Mr. R. Fischer, representing the officials and congregation, spoke in feeling terms of the happy four years assaciation which they had all had with Mr. Phillipson. The Bowen Methodist Church was a standing memorial to his initiative and devotion to duty. All matters of detail had always been carried out with precision and forethought. The sermons had been the result of much study and preparation, and were always delivered in a polished manner, giving inspiration to all who heard them. The conducting of services, functions and meetings had been on a high level, and his place would be hard to fill.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

In a neat speech, well delivered, Miss Val Erickson, on behalf of the Sunday School and Band of Hope, presented to Mr. Phillipson a Conway Stewart propelling pencil and pocket companion.

SINCERE APPRECIATION.

Mr. A. Rodney, on behalf of the congregation and friends, presented a wallet of notes as a token of sincere appreciation.

GIFTS AND GOOD WISHES APPRECIATED.

Replying, Rev. Phillipson made reference to the presence of the Air Force men, whom he had always been pleased to see at the church services and social functions. A brief resume of the early history and building of the new church was given. Grateful recognition was made of the fine work of the Ladies' Guild and officers. They had laboured together as a Christian team. His association with the other churches and ministers had been of the most cordial nature. The united services of intercession had brought the churches closer together. The only disparaging thing he could say speaking in general terms, was the somewhat poor congregational singing in Bowen, which in most cases was far too slow and half-hearted; some good improvement, however, had been noted of late. Coming events and reactions to the war would present a challenge to the churches. No doubt, it would become very important in post-war reconstruction. Mr. Phillipson sincerely thanked the friends for the generous gifts and good wishes, and commended to them his successor, the Rev. R. J. Dale.

GLADSTONE TOWN COUNCIL

HOSPITALS BOARD AND CHARGES FOR WATER

WATER RESTRICTIONS - ZONING SCHEME REIMPOSED

The fortnightly meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen J. Deveney, M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. E. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

ALDERMEN WELCOMED.

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) extended a suitable welcome to the aldermen on their return to the Council, which showed that the people must have been satisfied.

DEPUTY MAYOR.

Ald. Tudman, in nominating Ald. Golding for the position of Deputy Mayor, said it was no reflection on Ald. Smith, but Ald. Golding had topped the poll for many years, and in his opinion should be elected to the position.

Ald. Anderson nominated Ald. Smith for the position, and stated he had been returned, and no alteration should be made in filling the position. "It should be as you were," he added.

On a vote being taken Ald. Golding was elected to the position.

ELECTION OF COMMITTEES.

The following committees were then elected:—

Lighting: Aldermen Busteed, Tudman and Anderson.

Water: Mayor Dennis, and Aldermen Tudman and Deveney.

Works: Aldermen Busteed, Smith and Golding.

Health: Aldermen Anderson, Smith and Golding.

Finance: The chairmen of the various committees.

Fire Brigade: Aldermen Busteed and Deveney.

FARMING PROPERTY.

The Premier (Mr. F. Cooper) advised the Council, through the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams), in reference to a deputation that waited on the Premier relative to using for Land Army purposes certain farming property owned by Mr. N. Hellen, and pointed out that the matter had been taken up with the Deputy Director General of Manpower, who advised that in view of the location of the farm it would be of little value to the Land Army as a training centre, as it was situated too far from headquarters.—Received.

WATER FOR HOSPITAL.

Department of Local Government, Brisbane, acknowledged letter of April 15 requesting that a copy of the Gladstone Hospital Board's letter protesting against the Council's proposed new water by-laws be forwarded to the Council so that the objection of the Board might be examined.

It was pointed out that the objection to the water by-laws by the Gladstone Hospitals Board was conveyed to this department by the Department of Health and Home Affairs. The objection was that the charges were unduly heavy.

The department had now also received an objection from the Gladstone branch of the A.L.P., voicing an objection to the proposed by-law, on the ground that the proposed by-law was unduly harsh on the Hospital.

The department noted that in the draft by-law submitted by the Council the Hospital was to be charged water rates by meter measurement, the scale of charges being 3/- per 1000 gallons, with a minimum of £25 per annum, whilst manufacturers and industrial enterprises were to be charged 2/6 per 1000 gallons only.

The department would be please to receive advice as to the reasons for differentiation in these charges.

Further, the Council should supply a statement showing the actual cost to the Council per 1000 gallons of water supplied to consumers, setting out the basis upon which the cost had been calculated.

It was further pointed out that as the Crown was responsible for the payment of 60 per cent of the difference between the estimated disbursements and receipts of the Hospital Board, it was incumbent on the Council to show that the charge proposed to be made to the Hospitals Board was fair and reasonable.

DISCUSSION.

Ald. Anderson stated the figures quoted in the letter were definitely incorrect. The motion dealing with the matter had never gone through the A.L.P. in the form contained in the letter.

Ald. Smith asked if the matter had been discussed by the Hospitals Board.

Mayor Dennis stated the question of paying a certain amount had never been discussed.

In answer to Ald. Deveney the Mayor said the Hospitals Board paid £20 for water and consumed about £120.

Ald. Deveney: What are they talking about?

Ald. Anderson said he would like to see the matter cleared up, as their by-laws were being held up, and he moved that the Chairman of the Hospitals Board and another member be asked to meet the Council in regard to the matter.

Ald. Smith: This is going down from one man, and not the Board, and he seconded the motion, which was carried.

MAIN ROADS WORK.

Department of Public Works, Brisbane, notified that the Main Roads Commission had been authorised to undertake additional work, comprising deck wearing surface on the Auckland Street bridge, on the Gladstone-Calliope Main Road; also deck wearing surface to be laid on the Briffney Creek bridge.—Received.

PROGRESS ASSOCIATION.

Mr. J. F. O'Malley, Gladstone, advised that at a largely attended meeting of citizens residing south of Short Street, it was unanimously decided to form a South Gladstone and Barney Point Progress Association. The Council was asked to recognise the Association, the objects of which were to attend to matters urgently required in this area.—Received.

FIVE REQUESTS.

South Gladstone and Barney Point Progress Association forwarded the following requests:—

(1) Two waiting sheds for bus patrons, one situated in Toolooa Street off Pier Street, and the other in Toolooa Street off Robert Street.

(2) That vicious dogs were allowed to roam this area, and asked that the by-laws be put into effect.

(3) Attention was drawn to the flood waters in Walsh Street during wet weather, and suggested a main drain through Toolooa Street so as to remedy this complaint.

(4) The same trouble existed in Buller Street, and the grading of a drain on each side of this street was something that was urgently required.

(5) The lack of shade on the beach at Barney Point, and the absence of seating accommodation. The Association asked the Council to erect another row of tree guards, so as suitable trees could be planted for shade purposes, and the committee would guarantee the watering of the trees.

It was decided that the requests be referred to the Works Committee for report.

OPEN SEWER.

Department of Health and Home Affairs, Brisbane, asked when the Council proposed to proceed with the work at the open sewer in the State School grounds.

It was decided to inform the department that the Council would carry out the work early in the new financial year.

PUBLIC CONVENIENCE.

C.W.A. (Gladstone branch) asked that a public convenience be erected in a central position.—To be advised that the Council would take early action to afford temporary relief.

NIGHT SOIL DEPOT.

Department of Health, Brisbane, forwarded a copy of a report relative to the night soil depot.

Ald. Anderson moved that Mr. Hunter be contacted, and asking him to send one of his sons to Gladstone to supervise the sanitary contract, and that a copy of the report be forwarded to him.—Seconded by Ald. Smith and carried.

After reference had been made to the shortage of manpower in the carrying out of such work, Ald. Anderson moved that application be made to the Manpower Officer, Brisbane, through the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams) to have such work brought under "protected industries," and thus safeguard employees being called up in the interests of public health.—Seconded by Ald. Smith and carried.

Mayor Dennis stated that recently Mr. Hunter had made similar representations to the Army Minister (Mr. Forde), and Ald. Tudman mentioned the difficulty being experienced in carrying out similar work in Brisbane.

Work Report

The Overseer (Mr. R. Tait) reported on the work carried out by the gang during the month.

ROSELLA STREET.

YAROON STREET.

The shoulders of the road were made up along the edges of the bitumen. The bitumen surface was repaired at the corner of Auckland Street, where the drain from the storm water gully had subsided. The concrete surface on the footpath at Mr. Connellan's garage was repaired. This concrete was broken by the Council gang when they were putting in the drain from the new Police Court buildings.

CENTRAL LANE.

This lane has been gravelled between Bramston and Herbert Streets, and all the grass and weeds have been cleaned out of the water channel.

TOOLOOA STREET.

The large opening at the inlet to the pipes at the corner of Eden and Toolooa Streets has been covered with 8" x 2" hardwood.

LITTLE BRAMSTON STREET.

The drain at the lower end of Little Bramston Street was cleaned, but it has been reported to me that there was a lot of stagnant water lying in the railway property where this drain crosses the line.

BITUMEN WORK.

Bitumen repair work has also been carried out on the Maryborough-Gladstone Road, and the Gladstone-Calliope Road.

When the men are doing this work a lot of time is lost and bitumen wasted through not having a proper bitumen kettle. What we have is a 40 gallon drum fitted into a frame, and they can heat only about half a drum of bitumen at a time. It does not take long to use that, then the men are mostly just waiting until the next lot is hot enough to use. I would advise that the Council purchase a small bitumen kettle for repair work of about 100 or 150 gallons capacity.

CIVIL DEFENCE.

I again draw your attention to the appointment of a bomb priority officer, and if you have appointed any person to that position. So far I have not been notified, and apparently the Home Security Department has never been notified of any change, as I still receive correspondence and instructions from the department. It appears to me that the bomb priority officer holds a dual position, firstly as to his duties as bomb priority officer, and secondly as area technical intelligence officer, and is responsible for supplying information to the State Technical Intelligence Officer in respect to defined areas. I have received all the forms for detailing the damage and casualties. Form 1 is known as bomb census, including casualties and bomb damage survey; form 2 is building damage report form; form 3 is shelter report form.

I expect to receive in the near future a pass in the shape of a badge of some sort permitting me to enter on to any property, and certifying my status in this organisation, and additionally in the case of wharves and docks to contact the Local Deputy of Navigation or the officer who issues national security passes, and a permit will be issued. Therefore, I would like to know if you have made any appointment so that I could hand over all papers and forms in connection with the position to the person appointed. Otherwise, if you wish me to retain this position, you will have to appoint some other person to take charge of the essential and emergency services.

In respect of the extra work entailed in civil defence, and Council work also, it is very necessary that I should have my car in good running order. Therefore, I would ask the Council to make application for me to obtain a higher priority on my consumer's license.

Since working on the pipe line the car has not been able to stand up to the rough road, and it has been out of commission since the first of April. The rubber on the back tyres has worn down to the fabric and should be retreaded.

The priority shown on the consumer's license is number nine; therefore it is impossible for me to get anything done with such a low priority.

At the present the car is being overhauled getting new piston rings and the valves ground in, and other repairs which will cost me a few pounds. I charge the Council 7/6 per week for the car when it is on the job, and I do expect the Council to keep it shod, as the car is used practically 90 per cent on Council work.

The report was adopted, and it was decided to make application with a view to obtaining a higher priority for Mr. Tait's car.

BOYNE SCHEME - FIRST SECTION.

The Overseer (Mr. R. Tait) reported on the progress of the work on the gravitation main from 99' peg to 15,000' peg. Since my last report I was able to obtain 50 bags of cement, and this has been used. I expect to receive a small quantity again during the current week. A statement showing the wages costs up to April 29 amounted to £690/11/2.

There are 31 piers completed altogether, and they vary in height from 2ft. to 11ft. The bases are completed for another four piers, and the boxing is partially completed for these piers.

All the earthworks for the excavation of the bases, with the exception of one watercourse, have been completed.

There are only two men and myself on the job at present. J. Nash left on April 22, as he was suffering with rheumatics in the arms and could not do the work.

I have endeavoured to reduce the costs of the work, but shifting the gear from one watercourse to another for the small quantities of concrete required for each place I find is an uphill job.

The report was adopted.

Health Report

The Health Inspector (Mr. P. F. Browne) reported that since last meeting attention had been given to the following matters:—

SANITARY CONTRACT.

The picking up of these services has been maintained in a regular manner, but the disposal work is not as satisfactory, although sufficient trenches are available. The practice at present is to fill the trenches to near the surface. This eliminates a few trenches a week, but instructions have been given to return to the standard method of disposal, which is far more hygienic and in accordance with the contract.

The plant is in fair order and condition. The collection, removal and disposal of household refuse is working to the satisfaction of the community. The sawdust covering has been well maintained during the month. The dump is growing in extent, and the reclaimed portion, if graded and grassed, would give the tip a much better appearance, as well as provide a better approach.

HEALTH REGULATIONS.

House-to-house inspections have been continued during the month. Recommendations made included reference to the disposal of wastes from baths and sinks. Others dealt with included screening of rainwater tanks and defective cabinets.

Some very bad types of drains were encountered, and some were being discharged on to the street. Notices have been served to dispose of this drainage on the premises by soakaway trenches.

The number of earth drains encountered shows that more drainage facilities are a necessity for the town.

A system of deep drainage that would carry away all foul drainage and leave the open concrete channels to carry storm water would make a considerable improvement in the general sanitation of the town. This, moreover, would considerably improve the mosquito menace by eliminating many of its breeding places.

MOSQUITOES.

The position regarding mosquitoes is still very bad in certain localities. There is still a fair amount of dengue fever in the town.

Inspections so far made show that there are a lot of tanks screened on top, but the overflow is invariably without a screen. In a number of instances this has been removed.

The night biting mosquito is fairly prevalent in many parts of the town. This mosquito is breeding in earth drains, and other collection of water lying around. The oiling of these stagnant places would prevent further hatchings. This mosquito is a greater pest than the dengue fever carrier.

In company with Inspector Woodley, from the State Health Department, inspections were made at the various slaughtering houses, and sanitary depot, with regard to fly infestation, and its spread to various parts of the town, particularly around the Hospital.

Rat baits are still being laid at certain sections of the town. There is a fair demand for these baits.

The town is apparently free from infectious diseases that are a charge on the Council, as no notifications have come to hand during the month.

The report was adopted.

Water Report

The Water Foreman (Mr. D. D. Jackson) reported that the following works were carried out during the month of April:—

Cut and raised 3in. castiron main at corner of Gondoon and Lord Sts., so as to allow a company to lay their new main. Also cut and raised 4in. castiron main at the corner of Lord and Glenlyon Streets for the same purpose.

Put in 1in. tee and laid 225ft. of pipe to connect a new consumer in O'Connell Street.

Repaired 3in. main in View Street.

Three consumers were cut off pending repairs.

AT THE WATERWORKS.

The suction gas plant was run for 268½ hours, and pumped approximately 2,403,138 gallons, and the electric pump has also run continuously.

The plant has given no trouble and is running satisfactorily.

The rainfall at the Waterworks for the month of April was 62 points. The dam on May 1 was 2ft. 4ins. below the by-wash, being a drop of 1ft. for the month. No. 2 tanks was 4ft. from full on May 1, and pumping was direct.

The report was adopted.

WATER RESTRICTIONS.

Mayor Dennis said he regretted to state that people were definitely wasting water, and he moved that the zoning restrictions be reimposed as from to-day (Wednesday), which would, of course, include unattended hoses.—Seconded by Ald. Busteed and carried.

It was decided that the restriction regarding water be advertised in the "Observer."

GENERAL.

On the motion of Ald. Anderson it was decided that the Health Committee go into the question of a new sanitary site and report back to the Council.

The mayoral allowance was fixed at £100 per annum, the same as last year.

On the motion of Ald. Golding, seconded by Ald. Busteed, it was decided that it be the policy of the Council to remit 50 per cent for the rent of the Town Hall for all patriotic purposes.

Chairmen of the various committees were appointed as follows:—

Water, Mayor Dennis; light, Ald. Busteed; works, Ald. Golding; health, Ald. Smith.

Electric Light Authority

ADDITIONAL PLANT.

Mr. A. E. Axon, consulting engineer, Brisbane, in referring to a circular sent out by the State Electricity Commission, asked the Authority to submit particulars of additional generating plant required. He considered the Authority should again state that it required a 600 h.p. oil engine and 500 K.V.A. alternators to ensure continuity of supply in the event of any of the present plant being out of commission. The difficulties of obtaining plant at the present time were realised, but it was desirable to make application at the present time to endeavour to obtain plant that would enable the supply of electricity to be maintained.

To be advised that the Council would require additional plant after the war, and the actual requirements would be submitted later.

It was decided that the Lighting Committee interview the General Manager of the Port Curtis Dairy Association (Mr. Wilson) with a view to ascertaining the position in regard to their plant and the supply of current under the agreement.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

GENERAL ASSEMBLY SESSION.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Queensland will commence the sederants of the ninety-sixth session in Brisbane this week.

It is expected that over 100 ministers and elders will take their seats in the Supreme Court of the Church in this State.

The Moderator-elect, the Rev. N. H. Joughin, M.A.B.D., of St. Stephen's, Toowoomba, will be installed in office by the retiring Moderator, the Rev. David Galloway, of Scots Church, Clayfield, at the first sederunt.

Besides the normal business of the Church there are many anxious problems arising out of the critical times through which the nation is passing.

A number of important petitions and overtures of lower church courts will be brought before the House, included in which is an overture from the Presbytery of Rockhampton regarding the syllabus of the Divinity course, and the appointment of a lecturer in Old Testament and systematic theology.

The Gladstone Minister, the Rev. H. MacNeil Saunders, M.A., accompanied by Mrs. Saunders, will attend the Assembly. He will resume his ministry at St. Andrew's on June 6. During his absence the Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson, of the Methodist Church, has kindly consented to attend to urgent calls in the event of serious illness or deaths.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

BIG FETE FRIDAY

Description of Stalls

Continuing our description of the stalls for the Red Cross fete, to be held on the grounds opposite Friends (Pty.) Ltd. next Friday, we are advised that splendid progress has been made with the organisation of the function, which promises to be a red letter day in Red Cross history in Gladstone.

In addition to the produce, country and cake stalls already detailed, we have the shilling stall in charge of Mesdames Archie Worthington and Clyde Smith. Here will be found a splendid collection of popular articles, and many enticing raffles, including a nice burlat shopping bag. Tickets are selling rapidly.

Mesdames Gollnick and Geo. Phillips, who have the flower stall, report that approximately 40 potted vines, plants and shrubs will be on sale; also an assortment of cut flowers, kindly donated by town supporters.

Mrs. Harbottle (Iveragh) is looking after the country donations for this stall. The organisers are raffling a £2/2/- open order, available for use at any store. Flowers are expected from as far as Brisbane.

Mesdames E. W. Phillips and D. Connellan have the jumble stall, where second-hand clothing, women's shoes, warm coats, woollen pullovers, and many other useful articles will be on sale. The main raffle here will have three prizes—first a nice doll, second a cushion, and third a shopping bag. All of the articles are on display in Friends Ltd. window.

A popular stall is certain to be the ice creams and drinks, in charge of Mesdames Ricketts and Lewis. Here young and old will be catered for with the choicest concoctions.

Last, but not least, is the sweet stall in charge of Mrs. C. Barker. A splendid collection of home-made sweets will be on sale, and in view of the prevailing scarcity of confectionery of any sort, there is sure to be a rush to get supplies from this stall. A basket of assorted sweets will be raffled during the day.

Mrs. Lionel Johnston, who is in charge of the cake stall, asks that purchasers desiring cakes bring their own containers or wrapping. A very large number of cakes are available, and there is a very keen demand for them.

BOYNE RIVER WATER SCHEME

WONDERFUL ASSISTANCE FROM STATE GOVERNMENT

DECISION OF CO-ORDINATOR GENERAL NOWAWAITED

At the Town Council meeting, held on Monday night, the Treasury Department, Brisbane, advised the Council, through the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams) as follows:

DEBENTURE LOAN.

"With further reference to your personal representations relative to the subsidised debenture loan of £15,000 obtained by the Council for the construction of a gravitation main between reservoirs 1 and 2 and alterations to the town reticulation, such work being portion of the proposed Boyne River water supply scheme for the town of Gladstone, and to the Council's request for a loan to carry out the full scheme, I am directed to inform you that, in accordance with the practice approved by the Australian Loan Council, the request of the Council was referred to the Co-ordinator General of Public Works for consideration.

FULL SCHEME.

"As you are aware, when the subsidy in connection with the debenture loan of £15,000 was approved, it was also approved that in view of the special circumstances associated with the new water supply scheme, a subsidy on the basis as that granted for such debenture loan, viz., one-third of the annual instalment of interest and redemption for a period of 15 years, would apply to the loan to be obtained by the Council for the full scheme.

AN "A2" PRIORITY.

"The Co-ordinator General advised that, following representations to the Commonwealth Authorities in the matter, advice has been received that an 'A2' priority had been allotted to the project by the Chiefs of Staff Priorities Committee, and the Minister for the Army has requested that the work be commenced at an early date.

£90,000 LOAN.

"A report has been received from the Department of Local Government which indicates that, excluding the filter plant (the installation of which is not regarded as essential at this stage, as the natural quality of the water in the Boyne River is generally good), a further loan of approximately £90,000 will be required to cover the revised estimated cost of the scheme.

COMMONWEALTH CONTRIBUTION.

"It is understood that representations have been made to the Commonwealth Government with a view to securing a Commonwealth contribution of £15,000 to £20,000 towards the cost of the project, and the Council's application has been discussed with the Commonwealth Treasurer by the Minister for the Army, who anticipates that the matter will receive sympathetic consideration.

TREASURER HAS APPROVED.

"In the meantime, in view of the urgency of the work, and the Co-ordinator General's recommendation in the matter, the Treasurer has approved, subject to the Australian Loan Council Co-ordinator's agreement to the loan raising being received, and to subsequent confirmation by the Loan Council of such agreement:—

(a) That the Council be authorised to enter into negotiations for a debenture loan not exceeding £90,000 for the carrying out of the Boyne River water supply scheme, provided tht rate of interest does not exceed £3/12/6 per centum per annum, such rate to be calculated on the net proceeds of the loan after deducting all expenses incidental to the borrowing, apart from the usual legal costs (if any).

(b) That a subsidy of one-third of the annual instalment of interest and redemption for a period of 15 years be paid to the Council.

INTEREST AND REDEMPTION.

The Council will require to pay to the lender the full amount of each instalment of interest and redemption, and the Treasury will pay to the Council on the due dates one-third of such instalment of interest and redemption during the first 15 years.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS.

"The subsidy is being made available on the terms and conditions set out in the printed memorandum, and the Council should furnish this department with an undertaking to carry out such terms and conditions.

SALE OF DEBENTURES.

"If an offer is approved it will be necessary for the Council to comply with the provisions of 'The Local Government Acts, 1936 to 1943' in accordance with the attached memorandum of procedure, and to obtain an Order in Council authorising the Council to borrow by the sale of debentures. It is desirable that, if possible, an Order in Council authorising the Council to borrow by the sale of debentures be issued before June 30, 1943. In view of the fact that a subsidy is being made available to the Council in connection with the work, the Council may, if it so desires, apply to the Acting Director of Local Authority Affairs for an Order in Council dispensing with certain of the formalities (advertising, etc.), prescribed by such Acts. After such Order in Council is obtained it will be necessary for the Council only to pass at a special meeting called for the purpose a resolution to borrow the loan and to obtain the decision of the Minister for Public Works in regard to the benefited area.

GUARANTEED BY GOVERNMENT.

"Payment of interest on, and repayment of the principal of the loan would be guaranteed by the Government in pursuance of the provisions of 'The Local Bodies' Loans Guarantee Acts, 1923 to 1936.'

ESTIMATES MUST BE APPROVED.

"When finance has been obtained the works should not be commenced until the plans, specifications and estimates of cost have been approved and, following compliance with the provisions of the abovementioned Acts, the necessary Order in Council authorising the Council to borrow by the sale of debentures has been issued. In this connection the Council's attention is drawn to the condition in the memorandum in regard to the submission of tenders, and the awaiting of the approval of the Council's recommendation before a tender is accepted by the Council.

WHEN AN OFFER IS RECEIVE.

"I would be obliged if you would advise the Council to the foregoing effect, and request that the Treasury be informed immediately any offer is received."

WONDERFUL ASSISTANCE.

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) said the letter was most satisfactory from a State point of view, wonderful assistance being offered the Council. However, they now awaited the approval of the Commonwealth Co-ordinator General (Sir Harry Brown), both in respect to the loan of £90,000 and manpower and plant. Until his approval was received no definite step forward could be made.

DEEPLY APPRECIATED.

Ald. Golding said it was wonderful assistance, and the gesture on the part of the Premier (Mr. Cooper) was deeply appreciated, and he then moved that a letter of appreciation be forwarded to the Premier, the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams), and the Deputy Co-ordinator General (Mr. Kemp) for their assistance in the matter.

The motion was seconded by the Mayor and carried unanimously.

REPORT ON INCREASED COSTS.

It was decided to inform the Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) that the Council's consulting engineer (Mr. Reinhold) had been asked to prepare a report and estimate relative to the increased costs since the last estimate had been prepared and submitted, and when completed same would be forwarded to him in support of the Council's application for permission to borrow £90,000 and to obtain the necessary manpower and plant.

DAIRY ASSOCIATION

Meeting of Directors

At a recent meeting of directors of the Port Curtis Co-operative Dairy Association Ltd., held at Gladstone, the Chairman (Mr. G. B. Mouatt) presided. There were also present: Messrs. A. Kippen, H. E. Hewitt, C. W. Thiele, R. F. Graham, A. Johnson, N. R. Mullally, W. C. Paroz, G. R. Anderson, W. Lehfeldt, F. Morris, A. H. Bulow, E. Liddell and G. Ellis, the general manager (Mr. C. S. Wilson), the assistant general manager (Mr. R. R. Meldrum), and the secretary (Mr. C. Butterworth).

Before commencing business the chairman extended a welcome to Mr. H. E. Hewitt, the newly appointed representative for the Mackay zone. The general manager reported that weather conditions had affected cream supplies, and indications were that the supply of butter for winter and spring was likely to be much lower than usual.

Mr. W. R. North, the newly appointed chief engineer, arrived on April 20, and had taken up his duties.

Consideration was given to the wholesale purchase of milking machines, and the matter was deferred until conditions became normal. It was decided to instal a new boiler at the Wowan branch, and a butter cutting machine at Monto, and to arrange for the chief engineer to inspect and report on boilers installed in the various factories.

The Mackay Dairymen's Association wrote in reference to the omission of the Mackay branch when the installation of vacreators was arranged, and the general manager was requested to draft a suitable reply.

The Mungungo Dairymen's Organisation requested the Association to arrange for the purchase of pigs and calves in the district, and the Monto Dairymen's Association asked that no action be taken in that area in this direction until after the next election of directors.

It was resolved to hold the next meeting of the Board in Rockhampton on June 10, when a matter of interest to pig breeders will be investigated.

RED CROSS SOCIETY.

The Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) has made it clear that the recent administrative adjustment by which the field service of the Australian Red Cross Society would function under the direction of the Director General of Medical Services of the Army, affected only Red Cross work at military establishments and in the field. The general administration of the Red Cross Society with its many-sided activities, including work performed by civilians, did not, of course, come under the control of the Army.

One family in every two enjoys

A.M.P. Protection

"GOD helps those who help themselves." The A.M.P. Society, the greatest Co-operative institution in Australia, was founded on that principle.

"He who saves a shilling starts to build an Estate," said Poor Richard. The main business of the A.M.P. Society is to help men and women build such Estates: to provide financial security for themselves during their lives and for their families after them.

Through A.M.P. membership one family in every two in the Commonwealth now enjoys some measure of financial security.

These families use the Society:—

to provide schooling;
to encourage marriage;
to build homes;
to sweeten old age;
to maintain income;
to protect widows and orphans;

Members' contributions range from a shilling a week upwards, but so widespread is the co-operation, so vast the membership, that the Society's income last year was £17,315,000 and its assets are valued to-day at £148,000,000.

Last year the Society paid out £8,250,000 in benefits to members and their beneficiaries, but in addition it has been, and still is, putting £500,000 a month into the War Loans. To date it has loaned £50,000,000 to the Commonwealth. Its ability to help its members and the Nation grows from day to day.

FOOD FRONT VITAL

More Vegetables Needed

In pre-war days about 40,000 acres were devoted in Australia to the commercial production of vegetables, irrespective of such things as potatoes, tomatoes, etc.

A negligible proportion only was processed, and in the main products from this acreage were sufficient only for urban needs.

Now, with city populations swollen with the growth of war industries, with some hundreds of thousands of members of the fighting forces and others transferred to areas where fresh vegetables are not procurable and the added responsibility of feeding Allied troops in the South-West Pacific, a large expansion of the cultivation area has become necessary.

Including potatoes and tomatoes, it is estimated that 175,000 acres will be required for the Allied Forces alone.

Vegetables are classed as a protective food, because their vitamin content assists in warding off disease and so protecting the health of the community. They are essential to the well being of the fighting services.

The Commonwealth Government is therefore renewing its appeal to all those people whose circumstances will permit to grow as much of their own vegetables as possible. The more the suburban gardener can grow the less will be the demand on the labours of other people.

FOOD FRONT VITAL.

The appeal, however, goes further than this. It should carry to those formers within reach of centres where processing plants are available to make every effort to ensure that the largely increased cultural programme is fulfilled.

The food front has now become of vital importance in Australia, and it calls for every effort on the part of the rural population to make even greater sacrifices than they have already so willingly made.

The vegetable production programme has been designed in collaboration with the fighting services and the canners, and varying acreages of the different kinds of crops that each canning area can handle have been carefully worked out.

Contract prices have been fixed, and close co-operation between growers and canneries is therefore necessary to the fulfilment of requirements.

PATRIOTS IN FRONT LINE

Branding the Quislings

Many of the Quislings in the occupied countries try to keep a foot in both worlds. They work for the Nazis in secrecy, hoping that they will not be found out by their fellow-countrymen.

Some of them are minor officials and workers, who make it their job to spy on their fellows and betray patriots whose confidence they win. But the names and the addresses of these traitors are known to their Governments in Britain. They are broadcast from time to time in the B.B.C. European service so that the true patriots may be warned against them, and so that all such Quislings may realise that their identity is known.

In a broadcast in French it was stated that one morning in November the few "collaborationists" in a certain small provincial town in France awoke to find that photographs of General de Gaulle had been posted up on the doors of their houses. It appears that the panic which took hold of these people greatly delighted the patriotic residents.

The broadcaster said that one day these people would discover the great truth of which they appeared ignorant, namely, that despite the temporary protection they are given by German machine guns and the police, it is they who are really cut off from the nation and who are watched by the nation, and that they are on the losing side.

"Finally," the speaker went on, "to prove that our files are right up to date, and so that the patriots in the front line of resistance in France may feel that they are being taken care of, here is one more small example.

In the course of a patriotic demonstration at Lyons on July 14, one of the guards dared to strike a woman who shouted 'Vive la France!' Two days after this incident the number of that guard was known to us in this country, and his record in our file was suitably amended.

INFLUENZA

Protection By Immunisation

The Minister for the Army (Mr Forde) said that the scheme for inoculating troops against influenza, which was begun amongst volunteers in Victorian camps last year, had been resumed in this State with the approach of winter.

Mr. Forde said that sufficient work had been done last year to show that the process was rapid. About 2000 men per day had been dealt with by two workers, and there had been no ill-effects whatever on the health of the soldiers inoculated.

The vaccine consisted of a living attenuated strain of the virus responsible for influenza, which was sprayed into the nose, said Mr. Forde. It had been developed by Dr. F. M. Burnet, a well-known authority on virus diseases, who had performed extensive research on influenza.

Dr. Burnet was assistant director of the Walter and Eliza Hall Institute at the Melbourne Hospital. He had prepared a vaccine from the main viruses which were known to cause influenza. The influenza virus often varied slightly in different countries, and Dr. Burnett had obtained the different types of virus. He had diminished the virulence of the virus by a special process, and in that way had obtained the attenuated influenza influenza virus.

NAILS AND WIRE

Necessary For War Work

Even the smallest goods are being called on to do a war job, and countrymen with fences that need repairing know full well that nails and wire have joined the ranks of Australian war workers.

Fencing wire is being made into anti-torpedo nets, spring wire into heavy spiral springs to cushion the jolt of a tank, hair-pin wire into tiny fuse springs, 10,000 of which will fit into a 20-cigarette tin.

There is little military equipment which does not call for wire in some form or another. Wire is used for the buckles of Army uniforms, for camouflage nets, for parts of respirators, for Beaufort bomber controls, for reinforcing runways, for field telephone and telegraph wires, and even for corkscrews and tin-openers. Australian-made barbed wire was used in the defences of Tobruk.

Nail wire has been switched to war work too, and instead of building civilian goods, nails are now doing a full-time job in the packing of food and ammunition boxes, in making Army boots, in building service huts, and in a thousand other ways.

The wire industry is yet another all-Australian industry doing a stout war job. Management, manpower and materials are all Australian.

"STRENGTH THROUGH GLOOM"

Japan Imitates Goebbels

Strength through Joy, the slogan of a movement which promised the German people so much which they never received, is now a thing of the past. The new Nazi motto is "Strength Through Gloom."

The "back-to-the-wall" theme recently introduced into German propaganda, finds something of a parallel in Tokyo's new trends.

On January 15 Goebbels wrote in Das Reich, "We are faced with incomparably more difficult tasks in this the fourth year of war. In the East we are fighting against a system which has brought total war to the highest level of barbaric cruelty."

Inaugurating in January the campaign to impress upon the Japanese the demands it must make, Tojo observed: "The great East Asian war has now emerged from its first stage, which was full of surprise attacks and blitzkreigs. It has now become a long-drawn-out affair in which conditions are quite different."

What is also interesting is that, broadly speaking, enemy propaganda east and west has reached this stage by the same route.

At Munich in October last Goebbels was still telling his audience of the loot that was and would be theirs, the oil of the Caucasus, the wheat of the Ukraine, the coal and iron of the Donetz Basin. But already the defensive theme of the "European Fortress" was being worked up. Goering had declared that "if anybody in Europe is going to starve, it will not be the Germans."

From the notion of conquest and loot to that of impregnable defence was a gradual but well defined process. From that of impregnable defence to that of a defence which demands the last ounce of effort and sacrifice from all the descent has been swifter.

Japanese propaganda has had to pass through similar stages. Not only domestic broadcasts but Domei messages throughout last June, July and August described every territory in Japanese occupation as a "treasure house." Moreover, there were detailed schemes for long-term exploitation similar to those implicit in Germany's "New Order," and in August, Manila radio announced that "trade of all countries within the East Asian co-prosperity sphere will be conducted by barter, the same as is being done in Germany."

In August, chiefly to impress an India believed to be vacillating, Tokyo was still prophesying further conquests, and even a meeting with the Western Axis somewhere in the Middle East. But at the same time we were being told of "the impregnable position, vast conquests and abundant available resources within South-East Asia sphere."

Next came the "build wooden ships" campaign, with its implications of crisis, and the exceedingly lame reply to America's vast armament programme that "production is not everything."

More perilous speculations are now permitted. "Ohere will be," says Mr. Sugida in a recent issue of the Japanese magazine Kaizo, "the full danger of 50,000 American planes bombing Japan in 1943."

If a United Nations spokesman had said that we should call him unduly optimistic. But in Germany and Japan planned pessimism—the "backs-to-the-wall" motif—is becoming the order of the day. In both cases the object is the same—to extract maximum effort from the Axis peoples by holding over them the threat of defeat.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

COMPULSORY BILLETING

WORK OF BUILDING SOCIETIES

Reply to Mr. Dedman

"Mr. Dedman has admitted that he's a socialist, so any movement he supports presumably would have socialisation as its objective," said Mr. W. Frith, M.L.A., the Country Party member for Lismore, in discussing the compulsory billeting scheme outlined last week by the Minister for the War Organisation of Industry.

"Housing will always be a problem of major importance," Mr. Frith continued, "and no government could do better than carry on with the three housing schemes which were instituted during the Stevens-Bruxner Government. These schemes provided houses for people on the lowest range of income and for the average wage-earner. The three schemes were the Unemployment Housing Trust, the Co-operative Building Societies' Movement, and the Rural Bank's scheme.

"Under the Unemployment Housing Trust homes were provided for £180 to £250. These could be purchased by a rental of from 6/- to 8/- a week. This scheme was, and still is, most successful, and the repayments have built up a fund for perpetuity for the continuance of the scheme.

"The Co-operative Building Societies Movement in New South Wales advanced some £18,000,000 in about five years, and they are to-day comfortably accommodating more than 100,000 people.

"I am sure that no better medium than these classes of building societies could be provided for the post-war reconstruction period, always provided, of course, that the interest rate is kept within reasonable bounds.

"No one would support a straight out policy by the Government for home construction involving Government ownership. Past experiences have proved unsuccessful, and comparison between what has been achieved by the three schemes already mentioned and Government housing projects gives overwhelming evidence in favour of non-Government schemes.

"And," concluded Mr. Frith, "one of the beauties of co-operative building movements and similar schemes is that they have already proved as valuable to country districts as they have to metropolitan areas."

Patricia M. Menzies

"An austerity campaign is really an economy campaign. We must save money by reducing our ordinary expenditure if we are able to pay for the war and keep up supplies to our fighting men. Women have for a long time been the economists of the home, and their influence on national affairs has been a good one. We must continue and intensify our activity in the direction of ensuring that the Nation lives soberly and sensibly, and that we civilians carry our share of the burden."

CURRENT TOPICS

STATE'S SURPLUS.

Queensland had a credit balance of £5,246,556 on April 26, according to a statement issued by the Premier (Mr. Cooper) on Thursday.

INVALID AND OLD AGE PENSIONERS.

Invalid and old age pensioners are advised that income and property statements are being issued at the Post Office. Each pensioner should obtain one, and return it completed to the Postmaster.

MORNING RAID ON RACECOURSE.

A manpower raiding squad made an early morning swoop on Ascot Racecourse, Sydney. Officers demanded the production of identity cards, and directed about 100 men and two women to report to the National Service Office for further interview.

GOLF OPENING FIXTURES.

Golfers are reminded that the opening fixtures for the season will commence on the links to-day (Saturday), when the first rounds of eclectic competition will be played. Associates will also play their 9-hole eclectic. The greens and fairways are in splendid order, and visitors are welcome.

BRITAIN'S BLITZED HOUSES.

Mr. Herbert Morrison, in reply to Mussolini's squeals about damage to houses in Italy, reminded the Duce that there had been some damage to houses in this country. We didn't squeal. Two million seven hundred and fifty thousands houses have been damaged by the Luftwaffe in this country—one million one hundred and fifty thousand in the London region alone in nine months. In two raids on Sheffield eighty-five thousand houses were dagaged."

MONEY HOARDING.

The Treasurer (Mr. Chifley) stated he did not belive reports that people were hoarding large sums of money. Some business people attempted to evade taxation by cash transactions without book entries, but inspectors usually caught up with these when investigations were begun. Undoubtedly there was much more ready cash in people's pockets than normally, and the disturbing feature of this from the Government's point of view was that it gave a temptation to unnecessary spending.

Q.C.E. DEFIED.

Alderman A. D. Murgatroyd, secretary of the original Hermit Park branch of the A.L.P., Townsville, stated that the branch had not been dissolved. Despite attempts by certain Q.C.E. officials to disband the branch it still was actively functioning, as the result of the Townsville municipal elections amply demonstrated. Its members have no intention of joining any other branch that may attempt to operate in the Hermit Park area.

STOCK PRICES.

An indication that stock prices would be fixed if necessary to keep retail meat prices stabilised has been given by the Prices Commissioner, Prof. Copland. Addressing a meeting convened by the Master Butchers' Federation, he said there was no intention to alter the general level of wholesale and retail meat prices, except to meet any increased costs to the producer because of scarcity of feed. If this scarcity occurred it might be necessary to fix stock prices. Traders should know that when they paid higher prices for stock they would not get relief from higher retail prices.

It was decided to make a further remittance of £1000 to the Treasury Department on account of interest and redemption.

PORT OF GLADSTONE

PROPOSED IMPROVEMENTS

A Debenture Loan

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A.) has been advised by the Queensland Co-ordinator General of Public Works (Mr. J. R. Kemp) that in response to his representations in the matter of additional improvements at the port of Gladstone, priority for construction might be secured, provided the proposal is approved by the Minister for Supply and Shipping, with whom the matter has been taken up by the Board.

Should such approval and priority be obtained the question of securing authority for the Board to raise a debenture loan to cover the estimated cost of the work could then, subject to the agreement of the State Treasurer, be taken up with the Loan Council Co-ordinator (Sir Harry Brown).

In the meantime, the Board is to be requested to furnish particulars as regards the estimated cost, and the manpower and materials necessary to provide for a reasonably rapid completion of the project.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

PRISONER OF WAR COLLECTIONS

Average £120 a Month

The joint organisers (Messrs. V. A. Summers and D. J. Connellan) advise that with the organisation of the town nearing completion prisoner of war collections have reached a new high which compares very favourably with those in much larger centres. For the three weeks, April 23 to May 13, collections amounted to £84/16/-, which would average approximately £120 per month, or an annual total of nearly £1500. It is anticipated that this goal will actually be reached when the long stretches of Toolooa Street are completed this week-end.

This splendid result has been achieved with a minimum of collectors. The small band of original collectors (Mesdames Watson, Elliott, Hallam and Ricketts, under Mrs. S. Coppin) were joined by Mesdames F. Johnstone, Hartley, C. Smith, M. Tait, W. Lodder, and Miss M. Hill. Then Mesdames A. Funk, D. Linnane, A. Ellingson, Geo. Phillips, E. Masterson, and Miss Liddicoat volunteered to assist.

Newly authorised collectors include Mesdames C. Steed, V. Summers, P. Lewis, W. H. McCray, and C. D. Cooper, who have taken over books for various streets. These ladies have greatly assisted others who had too much to do each week.

When Mrs. Hallam left recently difficulty was experienced in placing her West Gladstone books, but Miss Perkins came to the rescue and took over the collections for the time being.

It will thus be seen that the heavy collections are handled by twenty-three ladies, who receive some assistance at week-ends from Scout volunteers. The bulk of the collections are, however, being done direct by the ladies mentioned, and there is little doubt that the success of the scheme in Gladstone is in no small measure due to their efforts.

When the scheme commenced it was thought by some that Gladstone's contribution would reach around £500 per annum. That this has been exceeded by 200 per cent should prove very gratifying to the organisers and collectors.

The town is now responsible for the supply of nearly 30 weekly parcels to prisoners in enemy camps.

Messrs. C. F. Lloyd Jones (shire chairman, Barcaldine), David (Brisbane), and Edward (Longreach) were brothers of deceased, and a sister (Mrs. Davies) resides at Canberra.

The late Mr. Lloyd Jones was a keen fisherman, and spent a good deal of his time on the Gladstone harbour. He was a member of the Foresters' Lodge for many years.

The funeral was largely attended, the Rev. Father McSherry officiating at the graveside.

MR. W. YOUYEH.

A very old resident of Gladstone and district, Mr. William Youyeh, died at his home, Rocky Glen, at the extreme age of 90 years, after a very active life. A South Sea Islander, deceased came to the district when a young man, and worked for many years for the late Miss B. Wyndham, Boyne Island. He was later employed by Messrs. Mann Bros., Benaraby. Canadian Mixed Foursomes

The members and associates of the Gladstone Golf Club who worked so hard during the past months to get the course ready for play were rewarded on Saturday by an excellent attendance for the opening fixture.

Over twenty players took part in the Canadian mixed foursomes, whilst several others played friendly rounds with partners. The fairways were in excellent order, and the greens and approaches were first class.

The event was very keenly contested. Mrs. Craig and partner actually returned the best score early, but a penalty relegated this pair to third position. Then R. F. Power and Mrs. Jenkinson (winners of several events in the past) were in the lead with a card of 68 nett.

Late in the afternoon, however, two limit markers in Leo Collins and Miss Alma Joyner came in with another 68, and on a count back this pair succeeded in gaining the trophy.

The low markers, Mr. and Mrs. H. O'Sing and Mr. and Mrs. Moore, had the best gross scores of the day with rounds of 45-43-88 each.

Details:—

L. C. Collins-Miss Joyner	99	31	68
R. F. Power-Mrs. Jenkinson	90	22	68

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the club was held immediately following cessation of play. The report and balance sheet presented drew favourable comment from members and associates, and a tribute from a visitor, Mrs. Quodling, of the Miriam Value Club.

On reduced revenue the club had improved its finances. All of the club's assets had been invested in Commonwealth war bonds and Liberty loans.

Reference was made to the large number of members who had joined the fighting forces, and the death of two popular golfers in Messrs. W. Milne and R. Groeben.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

President, Mr. D. J. Connellan; vice-presirdent, Mr. J. O'Donnell; secretary and treasurer, Mr. R. L. Elliott; captain, Mr. Frank Peardon; committee, Messrs J. Bliss, D. Joyce, and H. O'Sing.

GENERAL.

Members were asked to keep their golf balls in play as long as possible, as the club's supply was very limited. Associate members served afternoon tea. Several new members, including Rev. Father Cullen, have joined the club, and there is every prospect of a satisfactory season.

W.N.E. LEGION

Presentation to Members

At the conclusion of the monthly meeting of the Women's National Emergency Legion and Youth Movement at the Legion rooms, an evening was held in honour of Miss E. Bruce, who is to be married shortly to Mr. C. Moran, of Dalgety & Coy., Ltd., Rockhampton branch, and previously of Gladstone branch for a number of years. The function was also in honour of Miss Bunning's forthcoming marriage to Mr. Frank Preston, R.A.N., of Perth, W.A.

Supper was served, after which the Commandant (Miss E. L. Bunning) presented Miss Bruce with a set of cake forks.

Mrs. Hando, vice-president, endorsed the remarks, and referred to the great assistance Miss Bruce had given the Legion as assistant secretary and secretary.

Opportunity was also taken to present Miss Bunning with a similar gift.

Mrs. Hando wished Miss Bunning every happiness, although, unlike Miss Bruce, she does not intend resigning her position for some time yet. Her marriage date is indefinite, but Legion members wished that a joint evening be given. The secretary (Miss M. Barker) ably attended to all arrangements.

RUMOURS CONTRADICTED.

Sir,—May I encroach a little on the valuable space of your paper to definitely contradict rumours that I am not returning to Gladstone, which I understand are circulating in the district.

Nothing is further from my mind, but on the contrary I shall be returning to my practice at Gladstone as soon as a victorious peace is won.

In the meantime I am pleased to be able to assure my clients that my practice will be carried on under the supervision of Messrs. Daniel P. Carey, solicitors, of Rockhampton.

Thanking you for your courtesy in publishing this denial, I am, etc.,

CHILDREN OF SICK MOTHERS

Sandgate Home Taken Over

War conditions have created the need for a new social service which the State Government has decided to provide. It is the care of children of mothers entering hospital for confinement or because of illness.

For this purpose the building at Sandgate previously used by the Hospitals Board as a convalescent home will be utilised by the Government.

The Maternal and Child Welfare Service, which will conduct the Sandgate home, already has done similar work at the Djamantina Home at Wooloowin, where the accommodation has become overtaxed.

The reconditioning and furnishing of the home at Sandgate is now in hand, and it is expected that within a few weeks arrangements can be made to take in children.

WEDDING BELLS

MOSSMAN-DAHTLER.

The marriage took place on Tuesday, April 27, of Pearl, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Dahtler, Nagoorin, and John Henry, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Mossman, "Colinwood," Ubobo.

The scene of this quiet but pretty wedding was Our Lady Star of the Sea R.C. Church, Gladstone. The Rev. Father McSherry officiated.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, looked very attractive in her street length frock of dushy pink "grandstand," featuring a fully smocked bodice and short sleeves lightly smocked. The gored skirt was smartly finished with two smocked pockets. A white shoulder posy, small white hat, white shoes, and a single string of pearls, together with a bouquet of eucharist lillies, white chrysanthemum and bridal trail tied with white satin ribbon, completed the bride's toilette.

Mrs. J. Muir, sister of the bridegroom, and herself a bride of only a few months standing, attended the bride as matron of honour. She wore a frock of green printed souile, featuring a tucked bodice and gored skirt. She also wore white accessories and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers and bridal trail tied with white ribbon. Both bouquets were the gift of Mrs. E. Tucker, junr., aunt of the bride.

The duties of bestman were carried out by Mr. Colin Mossman, brother of the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the Geisha Cafe, the bride's mother receiving the guests, wearing a black costume with white vestee and shoulder posey. She also wore a smart black hat, and was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom, who wore a black frock, small black hat, and beige edge-to-edge coat, showing extended shoulders, and a shoulder posey of black and grey felt.

The tables were tastefully decorated with bowls of flowers, the centre of attraction being the beautiful three-tiered wedding cake, which was made and iced by Mrs. Booth, Nagoorin.

Father McSherry, as chairman, read several congratulatory telegrams.

After the reception, at which about thirty guests were present, the bride donned a box coat of rose "cameltix," and the bridal party were driven to the railway station, where the young couple boarded the mail train for Bundaberg, where the honeymoon was spent.

Many nice presents and cheques were received.

The future home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mossman will be "Fairfield," Ubobo.

AUSTRALIAN NURSES

An Urgent Call

If sufficient qualified nurses do not volunteer for urgent hospital vacancies, it will be necessary to use the Manpower Directorate's powers of direction.

The Director General of Manpower (Mr. Wurth) said that sufficient progress had been made with examination of nurses' registration forms to indicate that there were sufficient nurses in Australia to cope with all ordinary civilian nursing needs, provided there was correct placement and distribution of such nurses.

Many trained nurses at present were not occupied in nursing, and they were urged to offer their services without delay at the office of the Deputy Director General of Manpower in the State concerned, or at the nearest national service office. The nursing position in hospitals was still acute.

Nurses who were sent to distant and perhaps inconveniently situated country hospitals would receive every consideration. After a period of service in such a hospital a nurse could apply for transfer to a more favourably situated hospital.

A nurses' advisory committee in each State was always ready to consider representations made to manpower authorities by any nurse.

CANNED MEAT

For Services and Export

Every can of meat in Australia's 100,000 ton production programme this year will be for the services or for export.

Importance of carrying out the programme has been emphasised by the Defence Foodstuffs Deputy Controller (Mr. W. T. Sumner).

He said that it was required for the services in the South-West Pacific, American troops in the South Pacific, and to the order of the British Food Ministry for Middle East troops, and for consumption in Great Britain.

A meat member of the United Kingdom Food Mission in Australia had told him that the British meat ration of 1/2 worth a week for adults and children over five years, and 7d worth for children under that age, could no longer be fulfilled. It had been necessary to supplement fresh meat stocks from the canned meat reserve held in the United Kingdom for the forces and for use in extremity.

The amount of canned meat which Australia had guaranteed to supply to the United Kingdom during 1943 represented only 2d worth of meat a week for two weeks for the people of Britain.

PRISONERS OF WAR

No Details From Japs

The Federal Government is participating with other Dominions in making strong protests to Japan against failure to furnish the United Nations with details of prisoners of war in custody. The protest is being sent to Japan through the Red Cross.

It is pointed out that although large numbers of Australians have been prisoners of war for 15 months, up to date only 3670 names have been officially conveyed by the Japanese to the Red Cross.

TAXI DRIVERS.

Two thousand taxi-cab and hire car owners and drivers in Sydney and Newcastle will soon be called on to fill in manpower questionnaires. Those capable of doing other work may be directed to do so.

MALARIA IN NEW GUINEA.

Investigation into the incidence and treatment of malaria among the forces in New Guinea reveals that the death rate from malaria among Australians is abnormally low. Deaths are lower than in any other army in any malarial district.

MANUFACTURE OF ALUMINIUM.

After a searching investigation lasting more than a year, experts of the Department of Supply are satisfied that aluminium can be manufactured from Australian bauxite deposits. A recommendation has been made by the Minister for Supply (Mr. Beasley) that the industry be established forthwith.

Notice to Cane Cutters

ALL cane cutters, excluding those in the Armed Forces, but including those engaged in the Civil Construction Corps, in addition to supplying the information required by the Deputy Director-General of Man Power (Q.), who desire employment for the 1943 crushing season, are advised to watch for press advertisements and wireless announcements as to commencement date of crushing in various areas, and as to dates and places fixed for signing on.

All such cane cutters are required to contact their prospective employers and/or employer's agent and/or their union officials, and make necessary arrangements to report on suitable dates. Cane cutters can then proceed to such employment unless prevented by an individual direction by the Deputy Director-General of Man Power (Q.), instructing them to proceed to some other specified area, or unless prevented by National Security Regulations.

Any cane cutter in doubt as to his position should make enquiries from National Service Officers, A.W.U. officials, or representatives of the cane growers and sugar millers.

A.M.P. Protection

"GOD helps those who help themselves." The A.M.P. Society, the greatest Co-operative institution in Australia, was founded on that principle.

"He who saves a shilling starts to build an Estate," said Poor Richard. The main business of the A.M.P. Society is to help men and women build such Estates: to provide financial security for themselves during their lives and for their families after them.

Through A.M.P. membership one family in every two in the Commonwealth now enjoys some measure of financial security.

These families use the Society:—

to provide schooling;
to encourage marriage;
to build homes;
to sweeten old age;
to maintain income;
to protect widows and orphans;

Members' contributions range from a shilling a week upwards, but so widespread is the co-operation, so vast the membership, that the Society's income last year was £17,315,000 and its assets are valued to-day at £140,000,000.

Last year the Society paid out £8,250,000 in benefits to members and their beneficiaries, but in addition it has been, and still is, putting £500,000 a month into the War Loans. To date it has loaned £50,000,000 to the Commonwealth. Its ability to help its members and the Nation grows from day to day.

HOUSING TO BE REVISED

Post War Plan

Most Australian house types are based on English models. But the Australian climate varies from English temperatures to the heat of Equatorial Africa.

Careful consideration of climatic conditions may revise a too orthodox outlook, says a former Australian architect, now a member of the A.M.F., in an Army Educational journal.

We have to consider if we should not provide more shade through verandahs, as was done in the early years, if we should not insulate more carefully against temperatures (particularly roofs), if we should not be more careful to get draft in summer and equal heating in winter.

A well inculated flat roof may be preferable to a high-pitched tiled roof, which is superfluous in countries without snowfall, and only absorbs and accumulates heat.

We shall further have to consider a law for preservation of natural beauty, embracing private property, to prevent people cutting down old trees in whose existence the community has every interest.

Although Australia after the war will have to remember the experience of other countries which have undergone similar changes, Australia's special conditions will always have to be the first factor to be considered.

HOUSES OR FLATS?

Pride in the possession of house and land is deeply rooted in tradition, he adds. The single family house offers greatest privacy; you are not disturbed by neighbours above or below, and you enjoy your garden as part of your daily life.

The flat misses all these advantages, but offers much greater economy in building by saving land, foundation and roof. If large enough it can, by standardisation and centralisation, offer facilities at a rental never possible in detached houses.

If flat construction increased sufficiently to make mass production of certain commodities profitable, flats could be fitted with comforts which, up to the present, have been considered as luxuries, such as automatic laundries, central heating, refrigeration, garages, including service, air-conditioning (cooling), servery lifts providing meals if desired, etc., and all these for a comparatively cheap rental. This has been done in some countries.

But if you still prefer a house of your own, it has to be a proper one; the block of land has to be large enough to allow a sufficient number of well-lighted and ventilated rooms. Frontage and area of blocks should not be cut down, nor a missing room added by an amateurish contraption in the back yard.

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

GERMANY AND JAPAN

Hitler's Boast

An announcement from General MacArthur's headquarters heralds what may be the opening of a new phase of war in the Pacific.

"The enemy," says General MacArthur, "has launched a submarine attack in some force in the waters east of Australia."

It is to be assumed that so high an authority has definite and serious evidence upon which to base such a statement: and when the publication of this evidence can prove of no use to the enemy, it will doubtless be made known to the people of Australia.

Hitler boasts that the U-boat is his most powerful weapon against the Allies. On our side it has been said that we must overcome the U-boat menace to achieve victory.

Here in Australia, much of our vital equipment and war supplies come by sea from America. Despite the wide expanse of the Pacific Ocean, the sea lane approaches to our land bases are restricted and well defined.

As in Britain, the sea not only forms a natural line of defence against invasion, but also a vulnerable link in our lines of communication. We must, therefore, expect the enemy to concentrate against it.

It might be pessimistic to expect the Japanese to attain the skill and dangerous efficiency demonstrated by the German under-sea fighters. They have neither the experience nor the tradition of their Axis partners, and so far have shown no indication of an equal skill; but it would be foolish to imagine that a ruthless, patient and cold-blooded enemy like the Jap will not go to extreme lengths to gain his calculated ends.

It must be remembered that not only our defensive strength, but striking power depends upon the steady flow of war material from America.

UNRELENTING FOE.

A million troops are nothing but an encumberance without guns and ammunition, and a thousand aircraft useless without petrol.

For some time the enemy hoped to drain our resources by protracted and costly campaigns in the jungle, and by sporadic though heavy air-raids on our forward bases. Now it seems that he has decided to strike at the roots of our growing strength.

We must accept as inevitable some measure of enemy success, but this must be offset by redoubled efforts on the home front to compensate for sea-borne losses.

Our navy and airforce can be expected to engage this under-water enemy seriously and to good effect; but the fortunes of war are such that we cannot expect to win each and every round.

Let us steel ourselves to take such blows as must surely come; but as the dangers grow and the battles become fiercer, let us so strive that we shall never lack the strength to press onward to the goal set at Casablanca—the unconditional surrender of the Fascist foe.

PARIS POLICE

Waiting for the English

The French section of the B.B.C.'s European service has received a letter despatched from Paris in October, 1942, written in the name of "ninety-five per cent of the policemen in Paris."

It contains an encouraging message about the attitude of the Parision police force. The writer says that all the members of his company agree with him that the public ought to know how disgusted and disheartened the police are with the present position of the Paris force.

"Our bosses, who have been bought, try to coerce us with every means in their power," the letter says, "but they can't make us behave as they want us to towards the people of Paris, who are all truly French. We underdogs, doormats, we've had enough of putting up with all these anti-French orders, not to speak of the indescribable bullying and the 'avalanches' of punishments to make us 'toe the line,' as our chiefs say. I am waiting for the day the English enter Paris."

IN NEW GUINEA

Army-Air Co-operation

The extent to which the new techniques of Army-Air co-operation are being used in New Guinea is revealed by a correspondent in an Australian Army journal.

In the advance to Buna and afterwards, he writes, artillery was flown in by air. Reinforcements arrived by air. Strategy and tactics were largely guided by air photographs.

Targets were pinpointed from the air. Artillery fire was often controlled from the air. Aircraft evacuated many of our casualties and sick. And while aircraft neutralised enemy airfields and aircraft, ground straffing and dive bombing gave direct support to our infantry's advance.

Thus to the Pacific battle area came Army-Air co-operation. Even since R.A.A.F. squadrons began training with field formations in Australia.

This co-operation between air and ground forces has gone ahead. New Guinea, with its special difficulties, such as target identification over jungle, demanded new techniques, different from those worked out in the desert war of the Middle East.

These new techniques are continually being perfected and extended by our pilots and air liaison officers.

At Milne Bay the efficiency of our air liaison officers and the squadron's improvised co-operation were so thorough that they corrected a sticky situation and paved the way for our ground forces' clean-up of the enemy's beach-head.

BUNA-GONA PUSH.

In the Buna-Gona push an Australian Division had an Australian Army Co-operation Squadron working with it in the field.

At times in that advance our tanks were held up by enemy guns. Air reconnaisance photos revealed some of these enemy batteries, and our aircraft directed patrols out to neutralise them. This done, the tanks went through, and our losses were cut to a minimum.

For this co-operation work in New Guinea we used Wirraways. With Zeros about, and under fairly constant ack-ack fire, it was a crazy game for the air crew concerned.

Often they deliberately exposed themselves at haystack range to ack-ack, to draw fire from undiscovered batteries. Their success—under conditions where we had a considerable margin of air superiority—does not mean that the Wirraway is an ideal plane for Army purposes.

WIRRAWAY AS DECOY.

Clear proof of that superiority was the enemy's reaction to a lone circling Wirraway. At first Jap ack-ack would open up, disclosing their batteries' position. Taking evasive action, the pilot called up our waiting guns over the two-way R.T. Australian 25-pounders opened fire, and getting the range almost instantaneously, wiped out the enemy batteries.

The Japs got so windy, in fact, that when a Wirraway came snooping over, their ack-ack remained silent, fearing the sudden, uncanny accuracy of our guns.

All authorities agree that an offensive strategy involving land operations by our troops will need air support of army.

To this end, preparations have been going on, which, if our co-operation successes in recent months are any indication, can give us new confidence in our power to win victories.

WAR USED POLITICALLY

Socialistic Dangers Ahead

"It is easy for Mr. Ward to say what will be done in the way of socialisation of industry if the present Government is returned at the next Federal elections," said Mr. Mair, leader of the opposition in N.S.W. in an interview with Industrial News Service, "for from what one hears from all parts of the country there is not much chance of their being returned.

"In fact," he continued, "many usual Labour supporters are not only disappointed in the activities of the Federal Government, but are angry that the Government should have used the war crisis for the furtherance of its political activities."

Mr. Mair was commenting on a statement in Perth a few days ago by Mr. Ward, Minister for Labour, that if Labour had a majority in both Chambers after the next Federal elections that banking and insurance should be nationalised. This statement was made in Mr. Curtin's own electorate, in spite of the fact that the Prime Minister has always asserted that the Labour Government would not take advantage of war conditions to further Labour's own ends or to foist socialism on Australia.

"The progress of the Empire," said Mr. Mair, "has been based on rugged individualism, initiative, and the encouragement of private enterprise, and experience has proved that wherever the governments have attempted to run commercial activity it has been a lamentable failure, because general inefficiency is the order of the day under socialistic enterprise. On the other hand, private enterprise must, under competition, bring forward all the efficiency possible and create the full development of the individual's initiative to ensure a success of its enterprise.

"Whilst admitting certain regimentation is necessary in war time, there is a general suspicion that the Federal Government has carried this regimentation to excess, merely taking the war as an opportunity for the furtherance of Labour's own policy of socialisation."

Mr. Mair continued emphatically: "It behoves people of this country who cherish individualism and believe in private enterprise to decide here and now that whilst submitting in war time to regimentation for patriotic reasons, they will be up and doing to protect their interests and remove the restrictions to trade at the earliest possible moment when peace has been declared."

GLADSTONE RED CROSS SOCIETY

OUTSTANDING SUCCESS OF MONSTER FETE

ANTICIPATED GRAND TOTAL WILL EXCEED £500

Despite the adverse weather, heavy showers falling throughout the day, the monster fete organised by the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society to initiate Red Cross week in this town was an outstanding success, and set a new record for such functions. It is estimated that when some small receipts still outstanding are accounted for the grand total will be over £500.

It is a tribute to the splendid work of the ladies, assisted by the Secretary (Mr. V. A. Summers), who really acted as general organiser, that this remarkable total was achieved.

The day previous to the function it was realised that some provision would have to be made against the weather, and thanks to the generosity of tent and marquee owners, and the energy of the ladies on the various stalls, the Red Cross grounds were converted into a veritable canvas village in preparation for the arrival of the commodities and articles for the various stalls. The result should put Gladstone well in the running for the Statewide pennant competitions for Red Cross Week.

THE STALLS.

Sweet Stall: The convenors were Mesdames Charles Barker and A. Buckley. The sum of £7/16/6 was realised from the sale of home-made sweets, and £7/10/- was obtained from the box of sweets raffled, the winner being Miss Del Lindley, Kent Street, with ticket No. 138. The total nett proceeds were £14/7/6.

The flower stall, conducted by Mesdames A. Gollnick and Geo. Phillips, with Mr. and Mrs. Harbottle (Iveragh) as country organiser, brought in a magnificent collection of pot plants, flowers, etc. The total receipts, including donations, amounted to £41/6/1.

Keen interest centred in the raffle of the open order of £2/2/- by this stall. The winner (Mr. J. Southard, of Swifts Pty. Ltd.) generously redonated the amount to the stall.

Cake Stall: The convenor (Mrs. Lionel Johnston) was assisted by Mesdames Masterson, McCray, Cooper and N. Smith. Cakes were sold by the score, and a brisk business resulted in the stall contributing the satisfactory amount of £39/14/10 to the fete. The iced fruit cake was won by Janice Cooper, Gondoon Street, with ticket No. 45.

Produce Stall: Mrs. W. H. Hall, assisted by Mesdames Golding and Hando, were in charge here in continuation of their monthly Paddy's maret organisation. Again, the splendid total of £42/1/10 was realised. The green woollen blanket (donated by Friends Pty. Ltd.) was won by Miss Anne G. O'Brien, Central Lane, with ticket No. 76.

Jumble Stall, with Mesdames E. W. Phillips, M. Tait, J. Schneider, J. Rigby and R. Quodling in charge, had a large assortment of wear apparel, etc., on sale. The proceeds here reached £20/1/6. Raffles conducted by this stall were: First prize, a cushion, won by Mr. Holse, of Quantas Ltd., with ticket No. 92; second, a doll, won by Miss June Connellan, Yaroon Street, with ticket No. 383, and third, a shopping bag, ticket No. 22, held by Mrs. J. Waterson, Off Lane. The green doll was won by Master Ian Cameron, Commercial Bank, with ticket No. 81, and the bride doll, ticket No. 22, by Mr. T. Warry, Mt. Larcom.

Refreshment Stall: Mesdames R. Ricketts and R. Lewis. Conditions were against this stall, the demand for drinks, etc., being very subdued. The nett receipts were £2/0/11.

One Shilling Table: Mesdames Archie Worthington, Clyde Smith and R. Elliott. This stall did wonderful business, the total receipts reaching £33/9/-.

The star article raffled during the day was undoubtedly this stall's shopping bag, which brought in £15/17/6, and was won by H. Howkins, Auckland Street, with ticket No. 283.

The golliwog was won by Mrs. Phillips, Auckland Street.

Last, but not least, was the Country Stall, with Mrs. J. R. Shaw (convenor) and Mesdames Campbell Bell, Les. Bartlett, and Misses Bebe Menzies and Lorna Stirratt assistants. As usual, this stall was the financial highlight of the fete, the receipts totalling the magnificent amount of £190/10/6.

DONATIONS.

Donations included the following:—J. A. Shaw & Sons £50, J. D. Stirratt £26/5/-, W. S. and P. F. Gill £20/12/11, H. Buss £10/10/-, Miss R. Stirratt, H. Ballantine, A. Stirratt, Alan Chapman, Ted Stirratt, W. A. F. McDonald, P. A. Friend, £5 each; Dick Wilson £3/3/-, Les. Pownall £2/2/-, Mrs. M. North £2/2/-, Mesdames A. D. Thomson, H. Pownall, Les Pownall, Miss E. D. Sitrratt and R. E. Geddes £1/1/- each, and Miss E. McDonnell £1.

Results of this stall's raffles were: Shopping bag won by Mrs. E. P. Colyer, Boyne Island (111); picture, Mrs. Bob Shaw, Wycheproof (147); Vase, Mrs. Sewell, Littlemore (8); and fruit cake, Mrs. Sewell, Littlemore (213).

The members of the Gladstone Voluntary Aid Detachment did their bit by selling flags, and raised £11/3/- for the fete, and donations apart from those included in the stalls amounted to £76/14/. Still to come are collections by V.A.D's. at the picture theatres this week, terminating on Saturday night, and a collection by V.A.D's. at Swifts Ltd. gate this Wednesday.

THANKS.

In expressing thanks for the splendid result the joint hon. secretaries (Mrs. Browne and Mr. Summers) expressed the appreciation of the branch to the stall-holders and assistants, patrons, and various donors, tent owners and carriers, for loan and cartage, V.A.D's. for selling flags and taking up collections at picture shows and Meatworks, the Press for publicity, and all others who assisted in any way.

MAGNIFICENT RESPONSE.

The response by town and country donors to the branch appeal was magnificent, said Mr. Summers, and patronage by the public under the circumstances showed that they certainly appreciate the noble work of the Red Cross. It took a considerable amount of pluck on the part of the ladies to even come out last Friday, and they might well be credited with the breaking of the drought in more ways than one. In any cae, the financial drought has been relieved so far as the Red Cross is concerned.

A report of the fete will be made officially at the nmothly meeting of the branch this Wednesday night.

KING'S BIRTHDAY.

The King's Birthday holiday will be observed in Queensland on Monday, June 7, which is the Monday following the Wednesday on which it will be observed in England this year.

NEW RATION BOOKS.

A new card, to be known as CR7, and designed to bring the civilian register up to date, must be completed before June 5 and 6, when the new ration books will be issued. It is proposed to take advantage of the issue of the new ration books to bring the civilian register up to date. It is imperative that the civilian registration should be kept current, and by co-operation with the Rationing Commissioner and the electoral officers, the manpower authorities will ensure that the requirements of Regulation 30 regarding changes of address are carried out. These changes of address should be notified to the Commonwealth electoral officers before the date of issue of ration books. The CR7 cards will be available at all post offices and at the ration book issuing centre. The issuing officer will require the production of the old ration book and the new CR7 card, and will sign the identity card of each person before a new ration book is issued.

NEW PARTY FORMED

To Help "Middle" People

"We are out particularly to further the interests of the 'small man'—men and women in business on their own account, and those working for employers who haven't the money to put into big political fights," said Captain H. K. White, M.C., one of the two sponsors of the new Liberal Democratic Party in Sydney, in an an exclusive interview with Industrial News Service.

The other sponsor is Mr. S. S. Crick, former Lord Mayor of Sydney. Both men are emphatic in stating that they are not looking for political power for themselves. A committee to organise the new party will be elected at a meeting of members to be held in the Sydney Town Hall in two or three weeks' time.

Already applications for membership are coming in from all sections of the community, including many business men and women, employers and employees in country districts, bank clerks, small business men, the personnel of an R.A.A.F. station, and servicemen generally. The annual subscription is two shillings.

"In ordinary, everyday business," Captain White went on, "there are so many men and women who are not represented by 'big business' interests nor yet by the unions. They are the 'middle' people we are seeking to help; people who want to be allowed to do a good war job without over regimentation.

And speaking of regimentation," he added, "one of our first aims will be the immediate cancellation of all National Security Regulations which are not now specifically necessary for the winning of the war, and the removal of other Security Regulations as their necessity is finished."

Captain White and Mr. Crick are at present preparing statements drawn up by experts ("not politicians," Captain White added with a smile) on such problems as immigration, post-war reconstruction in all its branches, housing, and many other problems which will directly affect the 'small' man in the post-war world.

MORE WEALTH to divide up

THE prime need for the moment, as General MacArthur has recently reminded us, is to get on with the War, yet there is much talk of Social Security. It is, therefore, a subject that should be discussed and understood.

It is important to remember that no national plan of benefits can, by itself, provide security for the individual. It can never do much more than provide the minimum of shelter, food and clothing without which human beings cannot live as human beings. Additional provision against the misfortunes of life (and for comfort in old age) must continue to be made by the citizen himself. Of course, the majority of people do make such provision, but many people do not realise the extent to which voluntary thrift exists through Savings Banks, Life Assurance Societies, Trades Unions, Friendly Societies, and the purchase of War Bonds or War Savings Certificates.

Through the A.M.P. Society one family in every three in the Commonwealth is engaged in building up its own security. These families are engaged in creating Estates for themselves which is the only sound basis for security. They see that if we are to raise our national standard of living there must be a greater production of Wealth. They are engaged in producing their share of this wealth and, through their A.M.P. Policies, in tucking away a part of their share so that they shall have a measure of financial security when they stand in need of it. In addition, these families are helping the Nation in its hour of need. Their savings (many as low as a shilling a week) build up the Society's Funds, and out of these Funds the Society has been able to put £50,000,000 into Commonwealth Loans and is adding £500,000 a month to this vast sum.

POTATO DISTRIBUTION COMMITTEE

Established at Rockhampton

Regional control of potatoes grown in the area extending north of Avondale and south of St. Lawrence, including Many Peaks and Dawson Valley branch lines, is to be placed under the Rockhampton and District Potato Distribution Committee, which has been established at Rockhampton.

This action was taken as a result of the recent visit to Rockhampton of the eputy Potato Controller (Mr. E. Brabiner).

The committee will consist of Messrs. Thos. Brown & Sons Ltd., Dalgety & Co. Ltd., Denham Bros. (Rockhampton) Pty. Ltd., R. M. Gow & Co. Pty. Ltd., J. M. Headrick & Co. Pty. Ltd., New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Co. Ltd., and Walter Reid & Co. Ltd., and Mr. C. Freeman, of Denham Bros. (Rockhampton) Pty. Ltd., will be the distributing manager for the committee, who will be responsible for the handling and distribution of potatoes within the area.

Mr. Brabiner said that regional control was calculated to provide better service for growers in many ways, and particularly in respect of payments to growers.

Whereas the control and handling of the last Southern Queensland crop of potatoes from Rockhampton south was handled by one central organisation in Brisbane, the same territory will now be covered by four such bodies.

Mr. Brabiner expected that under the new scheme there would be no difficulty whatever in making prompt payment to growers.

The Committee was established under National Security Regulations, and it was compulsory for all potato growers to dispose of their crop as directed by the committee.

The chief objects in establishing regional committees were:—

1. To ensure that the full requirements of essential services were met.

2. To provide for an equitable distribution throughout the State of all potatoes available for civil consumption.

3. To obviate unnecessary rail transport.

Mr. Brabiner said that it was intended to appoint receiving agents at all main centres in the area to accept potatoes from growers on behalf of the committee. Growers in smaller centres where there were no agents would send their potatoes to other centres as directed by the committee.

This control of the handling and distribution of potatoes would operate immediately.

All farmers whose area of potatoes exceed 1/2 an acre must register with the Deputy Controller of the Australian Potato Distribution Committee, 369 George Street, Brisbane, and those who have not registered as potato growers are requested to do so immediately. Application forms may be obtained from the Department of Agriculture and Stock, Rockhampton, or Mr. C. Freeman, distribution manager of the Rockhampton and District Potato Distributing Committee, Box 96, Rockhampton.

Mr. Brabiner pointed out that it was illegal for growers to trade potatoes with other than registered agents.

Growers are, however, permitted to supply potatoes to storekeepers in their own district subject to first having obtained permission in writing from the distribution manager, Rockhampton, and District Potato Distributing Committee, Box 96, Rockhampton.

All consignments of potatoes are to be railed or delivered to the distribution manager of the Rockhampton and District Potato Distributing Committee, Rockhampton: and in order to regulate supplies coming forward to avoid over supply when the bulk of local crops are being marketed, growers must consult the distribution manager before making delivery.

The indications are that there will be a ready market for all potatoes that can be grown. The Australian Potato Committee desires that as many potatoes as possible should be grown in Queensland, thereby obviating the necessity of bringing them from Southern States.

VEGETABLE GROWING.

Because the situation might grow worse if positive action is not taken soon, detailed plans for expanding vegetable growing will be considered by the Federal Cabinet next week.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

DEHYDRATION OF FOOD

Consumer Acceptance

One of the main hurdles barring progress in the dehydration of food—an industry which has been struggling for recognition over the past twenty years—has been to overcome consumer reluctance to try anything new. But war time shortages have forced housewives to become less conservative, and they are now participating in a revolution which will affect the food industry for all time.

Shortage of tin meant switching goods which were formerly canned to glass or paper containers, and notwithstanding that paper containers were not generally acceptable by housewives (who liked buying their goods in familiar containers) their prejudice has been forcibly broken down, and the dehydrating industry is now going to have ample opportunity to prove itself.

The switching over from tin to paper containers in itself meant the development of entirely new processes of food preparation—the two most widely used at present being quick freezing and dehydration. So the encouragement of consumer acceptance of new packings demands also the consumer acceptance of new food processes, and now that the initial prejudice has evaporated, the "consumer horizon" (as it is so graphically described in the States) has widened to a point where planting, buying and cooking of food will offer more and more variety as time goes on.

Eggs, milk, fish, fruit and vegetables are amongst the foods which are already familiar to Australians in dehydrated form. In the States they are sold in packages, as well as dehydrated meat. Coffee and flour are next on the list for dehydration and compression to save weight and space. And as these goods—all of them in packages—will be competing with prepared cereals, custard powders, jellies, gelatine, and other packaged goods already well known to housewives, a new field in advertising is opening up as well as new fields in food processing.

Food is the largest single industry in the world. Shortages and makeshifts will continue long after the war, for starving Europe will have to be fed, and every advance and every research undertaken with food processing now will affect our domestic economy for many years to come.

LABOUR MOVEMENT

Moderates Defeated

The bitter fight being waged in New South Wales between the Communists and the Moderates in the Labour Party was advanced another stage last week when the Communists virtually established control of the New South Wales Labour Council.

The voting on the question of full co-operation with the Communist Party was 119 to 92.

After the meeting the Moderates expressed grave concern at the growth of the Communist Party since the ban on its activities was lifted by the present Labour Government.

They fear that at the present rate the Communists will soon be strong enough to take over the trade union movement throughout Australia.

Control of the trade union movement virtually means control of the Labour Party.

In the course of the debate Mr. O'Neil, representing the Australian Railways Union, said that the very people who were now seeking unity in support of the Curtin Government had previously done all they could to prevent the Curtin Government being returned to power.

They had somersaulted time and time again in their attitude to the war, and they could not be regarded as sincere in their present overtures, he said.

Mr. R. A. King, M.L.C., secretary of the Council, said that the Communists had viciously opposed the leaders of the A.L.P., who were now supposed to turn the other cheek and allow them to get into a position where they could dominate the whole Labour movement, which was the real purpose behind their proposals for a united front.

Mr. E. Boland, Boilermakers' Union, said that the United Front proposals would do a great disservice to the Australian Labour movement.

WORK OR FIGHT

"Words But No Action"

"It's about time industrial hold-ups received more than 'consideration' from Mr. Curtin," said Mr. Percy Spender, U.A.P. member for Warringah, commenting to "Industrial News Service" on Mr. Curtin's statement in Melbourne recently, that the problem of industrial hold-ups was 'receiving his earnest consideration.'

"Unless I'm calling on my imagination," Mr. Spender went on, "we have heard this story for the past twelve months. The first form it took was 'Work or Fight.' Then it was 'Work, or else——!'

"I don't know what form the slogan takes now, but the facts remain the same—words but no action."

Stoppages in the mines, on the wharves, and in factories are continually dislocating Australia's war effort.

Mr. W. Orr, miners' representative on the Coal Commission, said in Sydney last week that one million tons of coal have been lost this year through various industrial disagreements. Now Sydney and Melboune householders and factories are being asked to economise with gas and electrical consumption to save coal stocks.

This appeal appears in Sydney metropolitan papers in the same issue as Mr. Curtin's appeal for an all-out war effort. The Prime Minister made his appeal during a "victory bells" broadcast to celebrate the Allied success in Tunisia.

"Our hearts have been uplifted, but there is still much more to do. It shall be done: done on the battlefields, done in the workshops, done in the mines, done in the factories, done on the wharves," said Mr. Curtin.

That's good!

AVIATION AND SHIP-BUILDING

Australian Industries

The Empire conference to discuss civil aviation, which has been suggested in London, would be of vital interest to Australia, for with the ever increasing range of transport and passenger planes, Australia will soon no lonegr be on "the other side of the world," but only a matter of three or four days away from London itself.

Australia's own aviation industry has grown up with the war, just as her shipbuilding industry has expanded into a full sized industry with the demand for more ships and speedy repairs.

The launching of an 8000 ton ship by Lady Gowrie the other day focussed attention once again on the growing fleet of Australian built merchant ships. The number of employees in the industry is now three times as many as in 1936, and Australian shipyards are repairing more than one million tons of shipping a month. There are the foundations here for the development of an industry of lasting importance, and the fact that Australia supplies the cheapest steel in the world means that the country has been given a flying start in the expansion of this virile industry.

Speaking in Canberra recently, the Minister for Munitions and the Navy (Mr. Norman Makin) said: "For our munitions factories and the equipment of the fighting forces, steel has been supplied by the B.H.P. Company at cost price," adding that millions of tons of steel had been made available by the company at prices below that of steel in other countries.

Mr. A. S. McAlpine, a member of the Australian Shipbuilding Board, also had a comment to make. He said: "If Australians only knew what the steel people are doing they would be very proud."

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

TRAINEE NURSES

In Short Supply

Health and hospital authorities are greatly perturbed at the ever decreasing number of applications from girls to undergo training as nurses. In many country training centres there is no waiting list, while even in the large metropolitan hospitals that specialise in nurse training, waiting lists are dwindling rapidly.

In urging girls to take up nursing as a profession the Director General of Manpower points out that not only will they be giving immediate and effective war services, but they are also safeguarding their future. Whatever industrial changes may take place after the war there will always be an assured demand for nurses.

Consideration is now being given to a suggestion that a scheme could be devised to give girls of, say 16 to 18, preliminary instruction in nursing before they enter upon their course of training.

The Director Generals of Medical Services, Army and Air Force, have informed Mr. Wurth that Army and Air Force nurses will be available for emergency civil nursing needs provided the needs of the services are safeguarded.

It has also been decided by the Man Power Directorate that where nurses have commenced a course of training in obstetrics or other branches of nursing outside their own State application for permission to return to their home State at the completion of their training will receive sympathetic consideration.

GLADSTONE TOWN COUNCIL

SIR. H. BROWN APPROVES OF THE BOYNE SCHEME

ALD. GOLDING DEALS WITH PUBLIC CONVENIENCES

The fortnightly meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen J. Deveney, M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. E. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

INTEREST AND REDEMPTION.

Treasury Department, Brisbane, submitted a statement showing interest and redemption due on June 30, amounting to £2836/5/6.—Received.

APPROVED.

Department of Local Government, Brisbane, notified its approval of an additional fee of £2/2/- for the auditor (Mr. L. S. Johnston) in connection with war damage insurance work for the current financial year.—Received.

SCHEME APPROVED.

Commonwealth Co-ordinator General (Sir H. P. Brown) wrote as follows:—

"The matter of the Boyne River water supply scheme, as represented to me in your letter of May 11, has been the subject of investigation and discussion with the Co-ordinator General of Public Works, and towards the end of last month he was notified that approval had been given for the raising of the necessary funds and making available sufficient labour and material.

"Presumably some time is likely to elapse before the necessary pipes will be available on which the completion of the job will be dependent. In regard to labour and plant, I suggest you communicate with the Co-ordinator General of Public Works, Brisbane."

Ald. Golding stated that Mr. Tait had a list of men, which he had perused, and it included a number of waterside workers whom he knew personally, and they were good workers and capable of carrying out the job. Local men, whenever possible, should be employed in preference to outsiders.

Ald. Smith and Anderson agreed that local men should be employed, and at the highest rate possible.

Ald. Golding agreed with Aldermen Smith and Anderson regarding the rate of pay, and he would bring the matter up in general business.

COMMONWEALTH GRANT.

Following telegram was received from the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) through the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams):—

"Your telegram regarding a grant for the Gladstone water scheme received. Have been constantly in touch with the Treasurer on the matter, but in view of the large number of similar applications received for grants from the Commonwealth Government and the refusals that have been given in other similar cases throughout Australia, he finds it extremely difficult to justify a grant in this case, unless some further information can be adduced.

"Understand from the Queensland Premier, in a recent interview, that the estimated cost of the scheme will now be in the vicinity of £120,000. If this is so, and if the Queensland Government can state definitely that the scheme probably would not have been proceeded with by the Gladstone Council had it not been for urgent defence demands, the Treasurer will probably be able to justify making a grant to Gladstone which will not involve him in making grants in hundreds of other cases throughout Australia.

"Have taken up with the Queensland Premier on the matter, and have requested him to write me fully as soon as possible, when I will make further representations to the Commonwealth Treasurer.

"You may rest assured that everything possible is being done to expedite finality in this matter."

The Town Clerk (Mr. Grayson) read the letter setting out the Council's application for a grant, which was based on national importance, and the letter contained all relevant facts and figures. The telegram was received.

PATROL GRADER.

Calliope Shire Council advised it was prepared to hire the patrol grader with the operator to level off the salt pan if released by the C.C.C., on the usual conditions, provided there was no danger of damage to the machine while carrying out the work.—Received.

ISOLATION WARD

Gladstone Hospitals Board asked the Council to appoint a delegate or delegates for the purpose of discussing the installation of better equipment in the isolation ward. It was pointed out that the equipment at present in use was very antiquated, and badly needed replacing.—The Mayor (Ald. Dennis) and Ald. Golding were appointed the Council's delegates.

WATER WANTED.

Mr. A. C. Draper, Glalstone, made application to have the water laid on to his property.—The matter was referred to the Water Committee for report at next meeting.

SLIT TRENCH.

Mr. H. Raynor, Gladstone, drew attention to a slit trench on private property, which was half full of water and grass, and was built right up against his dividing fence, which was falling into the trench. The trench, he claimed, should be filled in as it was not in a suitable place. He had to fill his own trench in on account of the water and sides falling in — It was decided that the matter be referred to the owner of the property.

FLIES AT HOSPITAL.

Mayor Dennis said he had visited the sanitary depot, and found it was clean and tidy, and there was a complete absence of flies. On the other hand, he had visited the Hospital, and saw more flies at the back of these premises than he had ever seen at the sanitary depot, and he intended to bring this matter up at the next meeting of the Hospitals Board.

PROTECTED INDUSTRY.

In reference to employees engaged in sanitary work, the Town Clerk, Mr. Grayson, stated that the Commonwealth Government had taken action, and it was now a protected industry.

INTERESTS OF HEALTH.

Mayor Dennis stated that during Mr. Forde's recent visit to Gladstone Mr. Hunter had stressed on him the urgent necessity in the interests of health of having such work declared a protected industry, and evidently Mr. Hunter's representations had done good.

£5/15/- PER WEEK.

Ald. Golding moved that the men to be employed on the Boyne River water supply scheme be paid £5/15/- per week of 44 hours, and that A.W.U. conditions be observed, payment to commence when the machinery starts operating on the job.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Busteed and carried unanimously.

SECURING PLANT.

Ald. Golding, speaking in regard to machinery, said he had had a good look round, and had been successful in securing some plant, including a caterpillar tractor. However, it would be necessary to purchase a scoop, which would have to be reduced in size so as to reduce the size of the trench to a minimum. He suggested that the Works Committee be empowered to purchase a rooter plow if the one now used by the Council was not able to do the job.

IN RIGHT DIRECTION.

Ald. Busteed said Ald. Golding had gone to a lot of trouble with a view to expediting the work, and he should be commended for doing so, as it was a move in the right direction.

WORKS COMMITTEE.

Ald. Golding said with a view to pushing the work ahead a small sub-committee should be appointed to carry out the details of the water scheme, based on the Council's policy, and the committee could report back to the Council.

Ald. Golding then moved that the Works Committee carry out the construction part of the water scheme. Seconded by Ald. Busteed and carried unanimously.

A 15-INCH PIPE.

Ald. Golding reported that in company with Ald. Busteed he had met the executive officers of the Buffalo Lodge, and inspected the drain adjoining their property, and they recommended that a 15-inch concrete drain pipe be placed from the corner of the building to the sand flat. He moved a motion accordingly, which was seconded by Ald. Tudman and carried unanimously.

COAL ON ROAD.

Ald. Golding said at the last meeting Ald. Deveney had reported in regard to coal lying on the Meat Works road. He had made an inspection, and moved that the Council take the matter up with Swift Australian Company (Pty.) Ltd. holding that company responsible for any further coal found on the road.—Seconded by Ald. Anderson and carried.

RENTON'S DRAIN.

Ald. Golding said he had made an inspection of Renton's drain in company with the Foreman (Mr. Miller), and had found it satisfactory, and it would remain so provided it was flushed out regularly.

WOULD COST £800.

Ald. Golding then brought up the requests received at last meeting from the South Gladstone and Barney Point Progress Association. He had made an inspection, he said, of Derby Street, and the Council would have to consider putting down a concrete drain, which would cost about £800, but as this had not been budgeted for the work could not be entertained this financial year.

WAITING SHEDS.

In regard to the waiting sheds, Ald. Golding went on to say he had taken the matter up with Mr. Roulston, and that gentleman was prepared to make a donation towards the cost. The Council could give early consideration to this particular request in the new financial year.

A DONATION.

Dealing with the request for shade trees at Barney Point, Ald. Golding said if the Association was prepared to supply the labour, the Gladstone Sawmills would supply the timber for guards as a donation.

QUESTION ANSWERED.

Ald. Deveney at this stage asked if the Council would be prepared to furnish the necessary money to see that the waiting sheds were completed.

Ald. Golding said the Council would supply the money early in the next financial year.

WATER ON SUNDAYS.

It was decided that consumers be allowed water all day on Sundays, but apart from this the zoning restrictions would remain as at present.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS.

Ald. Golding moved that the public organisations be informed that satisfactory progress was being made in regard to the Boyne River water supply scheme, and a meeting was not necessary at present. Seconded by Ald. Busteed and carried unanimously.

PUBLIC CONVENIENCES.

Ald. Golding said the question of suitable public conveniences had been discussed for years, and recently the C.W. Association had written to the Council in regard to this important matter. The delay had been caused through the difficulty in securing suitable land centrally situated. He had taken the matter up with Mr. A. H. Friend, who had informed him that he was not prepared to sell the land opposite their business premises for the erection of public conveniences, and he (Ald. Golding) had informed him that the Council could take the land over under the "Public Utility Act." Everyone would agree that the land opposite Friends was the most suitable for a park with all the necessary conveniences—rest room, parcel room, bathrooms, etc.

SCHOOL OF ARTS.

Proceeding, he said, the old School of Arts was languishing for the want of support, and the Council should give full consideration to embodying a School of Arts and reading room in the proposed building to be erected on the site opposite Friends, the remaining portion of the land to be turned into a park.

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE.

The whole scheme, said Ald. Golding, would cost between £5000 and £6000, which would be very near self-supporting. They had to remember they were building for the future. He suggested the Council should write to Mr. Friend, asking him to place a price on the land, and if suitable the Council should acquire it and erect the buildings on it when possible.

Ald. Golding thought it would be possible to arrange with Mr. Friend to pay him interest on the purchase price until such time as loan money was available. He then moved that the Council take the matter up with Mr. Friend with this object in view.

The motion was seconded by the Mayor (Ald. Dennis).

A GOOD MOVE.

Ald. Anderson said it was a good move on the part of Ald. Golding. They must have a central park with public conveniences, as it had cost many councils thousands of pounds to resume land, and they did not want that to happen in Gladstone. "The idea put forward," added Ald. Anderson, "is a good one."

ACCOUNTS.

Following accounts were passed for payment:—General £889/6/-, water £343/6/-, and water debenture loan £8,515/5/8.

Electric Light Authority

LIGHT AND WATER.

Mr. H. Padget, Gladstone, made application to have the light and power connected to his residence, and he was prepared to pay half the cost in connection with the water. The matter was referred to the Engineer and Committee for report at next meeting.

HELD OVER.

Messrs. Anson Motors, Gladstone, made application to have electric current connected to the West Gladstone Store, and a switchboard erected for the power.—It was decided to hold the matter over, and the Committee to table a report at next meeting.

ACCOUNTS.

Following accounts were passed for payment:—Lighting £692/17/1, and debenture loan £410/11/7.

RED CROSS SERVICE

INTERESTING LETTERS

A Man Located

Typical of the work of the Gladstone Red Cross is the case of Mr. Jack Foster, who was located by the Society following a request to the Gladstone branch for assistance. The correspondence, as follows, should be of interest to all supporters of the organisation:—

From Mrs. H. Browne (joint hon. stcretary, Gladstone branch) to Miss K. Weller, Red Cross Bureau, Brisbane:—

"I have been requested to find the whereabouts of the person listed below:

"Mr. Jack Foster, aged about 36 years, ship's carpenter, working on cargo ships for Americans. Left Brisbane about January 1943; ship was lost, but he evidently swam ashore somewhere about Milne Bay or Port Moresby. His father has had letter presumably since (but not certain) sinking. Address cut off, also lot of letter censored.

"Will you kindly do your best for us in the matter and advise immediately on receipt of any information. Mr. Foster's parents are very anxious to get in touch with their son. Any cost will be borne by this branch."

Letter from Miss Weller to Gladstone branch:—

"In reply to your letter we have been making inquiries, and finally gained quite a lot of information from Burns Philip & Co. Ltd., who, we understand, are agents for certain lines. The gentleman to whom we spoke knew quite a lot about Mr. Foster, and told us to let his parents know that he is at present working in an out of the way place, from where it is rather difficult to despatch mail. He stated that Mr. Foster is doing a good job, and that recently he had an opportunity to return this way, but volunteered to stay on in the position which he now occupies.

"The whole report was very heartening, and Mr. and Mrs. Foster can rest assured that their son is well, and although mail may be irregular, this will be due to the fact as mentioned above.

"We know the parents will be pleased to have this report, which should relieve their anxiety. The representative spoke highly of the work Mr. Jack Foster is doing, and for the information of the parents, future mail should be addressed, Mr. J. A. Foster, c/o small ships section, A.P.O. 928."

From Mrs. Browne to Mrs. S. Foster:—

"With reference to recent query re your son, Mr. Jack Foster, we have much pleasure in attaching copy of letter received from the Red Cross Bureau. We are most happy to be able to bring you this good news, and rejoice with you that he is doing such a splendid job."

GLADSTONE RED CROSS SOCIETY

INTERESTING SEWING AND KNITTING REPORTS

P.O.W. CONTRIBUTIONS REACH A HIGH TOTAL

Mrs. H. V. Phillips (president) occupied the chair at the monthly meeting of the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society. There were also present: Mesdames L. Golding, E. Johnston, M. Ricketts, N. J. Burnham, L. Rigby, R. Yum, A. Farnsworth, E. Cooper, E. McCray, E. Hall, Misses Bunning and Joyner, Rev. G. Phillipson, Messrs. A. H. Friend, D. J. Connellan, J. W. Rigby, and the joint hon. secretaries (Mrs. H. Browne and Mr. V. A. Summers).

Apologies for non-attendance were received from Mesdames Connellan, Hando, A. Friend, Messrs. Drewe and Norris.

SEWING CIRCLE.

Mrs. J. W. Rigby, sewing convenor, reported that over 300 articles, comprising quilts, dressing gowns, sheets, pillow slips, laundry bags, locker tops, tray cloths, washers, theatre covers, bag covers, bed pockets, mattress pockets, milk jug covers, dressing towells, triangles and cushion covers had been completed by ladies and despatched to headquarters.

The Builyan sub-branch had sent in a number of finished articles, which would be included in the packing.

For Red Cross week the depot windows were dressed with finished work. On the day of the fete quite a number of town and country visitors inspected our work at the Red Cross rooms, and comments were very favourable. A bundle of old linen was sent in by Mrs. J. . Stirratt. Several new members, who are most welcome, have joined the circle.

KNITTING CIRCLE.

Mrs. D. J. Connellan, knitting convenor, reported that during the month 42 skeins of wool and 4 ozs. knitting cotton was given out. The following persons kindly made the undermentioned articles:—

Mesdames Menzies (Stowe), McDermott and Wheeler (Calliope), 1 sleeveless cardigan each; Mrs. J. O'Neill, 5 prs. socks; Mesdames Norris and Watson, 3 prs. socks each; Mrs. Grenfell, 1 pr. cotton socks.

I wish to thank Mrs. Schneider for carrying on during my illness.

HOSPITAL VISITING.

Mrs. Hilda Woodruff Gollnick reported that from April 27 to May 17, the Hospital Visiting Committee had called on 27 servicemen. The usual fruit and comforts had been distributed. Weekly papers are being delivered regularly, and Matron had taken the responsibility of placing the papers in the ward. The following Red Cross members are now serving on the regular visiting committee: Mesdames Hando, Hall, Geo. Phillips, C. Barker, Clyde Smith jr., Quodling. The Auxiliary Committee include Mesdames P. Friend, A. Friend, L. Johnston, Golding jr., Taylor, Thompson, and Easterby.

P.O.W.

Reporting on behalf of the P.O.W., Mr. D. J. Connellan tendered a report which showed that Gladstone contributions had reached the splendid total of £84/16/- for three weeks, April 23 to May 13, an average of approximately £120 per month, and aproaching an annual figure of £1500. On a per capita basis, Gladstone now ranked very high in Queensland P.O.W. lists. Newly authorised collectors included Mesdames C. Steed, V. Summers, D. Lewis, W. H. McCray, C. D. Cooper, C. Stitt, and Miss Perkins (West Gladstone).

Several Gladstone and district P.O.W. had acknowledged with gratitude receipt of parcels of food, clothing, and medical supplies from the Red Cross. Several letters had been typed for relatives for transmission to their sons who were prisoners in Malaya, etc., and one (Mrs. Flannagan) had received the welcome news that her son, Gunner Pat Flannagan, was safe and well.

V.A.D.'s.

Reporting on behalf of the V.A.D.'s, Miss Alma Joyner (commandant) said that membership stood at 21. Three members, including the Superintendent (Mrs. Farnsworth) had resigned. The detachment would miss her services, as they were now carrying on without a trained nurse. Mesdames Joseph and Friend were granted one month's leave of absence. Members attended the memorial service in the Town Hall on Anzac Day, and a wreath was placed on the Honour Board.

V.A.D.'s sold flags on Flag Day for Red Cross week, and collected £11/17/-. Further collections for Red Cross week were, picture shows £9/0/8, Swifts plant £11/10/-, or a grand total of £32/7/8.

JUNIOR RED CROSS.

The Supervior Junior Red Cross, Mr. F. C. Thompson, reported instruction in first-aid and hygiene was continued, also the making of toys from scrap metal. Patients at the Gladstone District Hospital were visited at weekends and handed gifts of books and flowers. A wreath was placed on the Honour Board. Miss B. Grundy (leader) and Miss B. Bath (assistant leader) have carried out their duties enthusiastically.

BENARABY SUB-BRANCH.

Miss D. M. Colyer, hon. secretary, reported that the Benaraby sub-branch had met and arranged several functions, including the raffle of a trophy donated by Mr. F. Pike. Next dance was listed for May 29, and tennis May 30. A charge of 5/- is to be made for the sub-branch's accordeon for certain functions.

ENTERTAINMENT COMMITTEE.

Mr. B. Norris, on behalf of the Entertainment Committee, presented a statement showing a profit of £11/14/- from a dance at the Trocadero.

MILITARY WARD.

In acknowledging with thanks the Red Cross offer to provide daily newspapers and a radio for the military ward, the Gladstone Hospitals Board advised that it would assist with the selection of the wireless set.

RODEO.

Replying to the branch's letter asking that the Prisoners of War Fund be included in the list of beneficiaries in connection with the rodeo on June 5, the Gladstone Show Society advised that although it was too late to alter the list of beneficiaries in this instance, members appreciated the importance of the P.O.W. Fund, and if the Society staged any further benefits this particular fund would receive sympathetic consideration.

COMFORTS FOR SICK SOLDIERS.

Miss G. Richardson (general secretary) advised that every effort would be made to forward cigarettes, tobacco, stationery, etc., for sick soldiers in the military ward at the Gladstone Hospital. Such goods would be a charge on Field Force, and not one for the Gladstone Red Cross. The actual number of patients being serviced weekly was required.

BUNDABERG BRANCH.

Miss Amy Wallace, hon secretary, Bundaberg branch, acknowledged receipt of a telegram from Gladstone seeking assistance in connection with diet for a sick soldier. Unfortunately, owing to the telegram being delivered the next day the Bundaberg branch was unable to contact, although they generously had a meal of fish and milk prepared in readiness.

COUPON FREE.

Miss K. C. Bird, divisional rationing officer, advised that sailors and seamen who had lost their belongings through enemy action could be provided with second-hand or new clothes The Stipendiary Magistrate had authority to issue to the Red Cross permits to purchase coupon-free garments for these people.

RED CROSS UNIFORM.

The application of Mrs. L. M. Tait, P.O.W. street collector, was approved of for an issue of service coupons to cover Red Cross uniform.

BUILYAN SUB-BRANCH.

Mrs. L. Muspratt, hon. secretary, Builyan sub-branch, forwarded cheque for £16, result of a dance held at that centre. A jumble stall and dance is to be held for Red Cross week on June 5 next.

In acknowledging this with thanks, the joint secretaries advised having despatched one bag sugar for jam making, sweets, etc.

SYMPATHY EXPRESSED.

At the request of the President (Mrs. Phillips), who referred to the sad loss suffered by the country and the Red Cross, sympathy was expressed with the relatives and friends of those lost through the sinking of the hospital ship Centaur

REV. PHILLIPSON WELCOMED.

The President, in extending a welcome to Rev. Phillipson, said members were very pleased to see him at the meeting. The publicity officer (Mr. Connellan) said that press cuttings sent from Bowen showed that Rev. Phillipson had been president of the Red Cross in that centre for some years, and had rendered sterling service to the northern branch. He suggested that if possible a place should be found for the rev. gentleman on the Gladstone Executive.

It was decided that Rev. Phillipson be elected to an honorary position on the committee until such time as the next general election.

Rev. Phillipson thanked members for their courtesy and assured the branch of his best support.

A welcome was also extended to a new member in Miss Bunning.

Misses Joyner and Bunning, with Mrs. Hall, were appointed a committee to act with the Red Shield representatives (who were present) in conducting a luncheon booth at the Bushmen's Carnival on June 5.

FINANCIAL.

The financial statement showed receipts amounting to £192/8/10, the principal items being P.O.W. street scheme £138/13/-, dances and donations £53/15/10. After payment of accounts totalling £112/14/4, and remittance P.O.W. amounts to Brisbane £239/2/1, the branch had a credit balance of £571/8/6.

GENERAL.

In extending a welcome to the publicity officer, the secretary (Mr. Summers) referred to the outstanding success of the P.O.W. organisation in Gladstone. This had involved a tremendous amount of planning, appointing of collectors, collections, and zoning of streets, etc. The work involved heavy calls on the organisers' time and transit in covering such a large area, and the result was undoubtedly a credit to the 24 ladies who were now in charge of the various sections. He claimed that on a per capita basis Gladstone would actually lead the rest of the State in final collections.

Several members referred to the magnificent success attending the efforts of the ladies and officers in raising over £500 at the monster fete for Red Cross week. In this connection the work of Mrs. H. Browne, joint hon. secretary, was outstanding. It was decided to immediately remit £500 to headquarters for Red Cross week appeal.

The reorganisation of the Entertainments Committee was left in the hands of Miss Joyner. A letter of appreciation is to be sent to the Junior Red Cross for their Anzac Day parade.

GLADSTONE BOWLING CLUB

ANNUAL MEETING

President, Mr. W. R. Golding

The President (Mr. M. A. Busteed) presided over the annual meeting of the Gladstone Bowling Club. There was a large attendance.

ANNUAL REPORT.

The President (Mr. Busteed) presented the following annual report:—

It gives your committee much pleasure to present the third annual report of the club's activities for the year 1942-43.

MOST ENCOURAGING.

Our last report expressed the hope that the international situation would have cleared and allowed us to resume our normal life prior to the presentation of this report, but unfortunately such is not the case. It is felt, however, that the news at present is most encouraging, and the road to ultimate victory is now being travelled on.

MEMBERSHIP.

Our membership at the commencement of the season was 73, but during the year several members left us, and with the new members coming in, left us with a total of 69 at the close of the year. Several gentlemen have expressed their intention of joining us in the coming season, and taken all round the membership question must be considered satisfactory. Mention must be made at this juncture of the loss of a very valuable playing member in Mr. D. C. Jackson, who was forced to leave the district for health reasons.

FINANCE.

The Treasurer's financial statement, which will be read in conjunction with this report, will show that we have had another successful year, and that it has been possible to further reduce our overdraft by £206.

TROPHIES

L. Humphries won the champion singles, and W. R. Golding and J. Henery the pairs. J. Comino won the district representative singles, and H. Loveday, G. Wilson, A. Joyner and J. Comino the district rink. The President's trophy for the singles handicap is still in progress, also the rink championship.

PENNANT MATCHES.

During the year the club met representative teams from Rockhampton and Athelstane on our green, and succeeded in winning both matches. Later these teams journeyed to Rockhampton to meet Mt. Morgan in two matches. We were successful in one match and beaten by only a small margin in the other.

DISTRICT MATCHES.

At Easter a representative singles, pairs, and rink players journeyed to Rockhampton to meet other clubs. Our rink defeated a strong R.B.C. team, and were most unlucky to lose the final to Mt. Morgan by one point after a brilliant game. The pairs and singles players were defeated, but not by any means disgraced. The standard of play shown by our pennant and district representatives, and in fact, that of the entire club, compares more than favourably with the majority of country clubs.

DONATIONS.

At the commencement of the term we received a handsome donation of £50 from the Ladies' Club, and I take this opportunity of thanking them for this gesture, and also to express our appreciation of their splendid services given whenever called upon, especially in providing afternoon tea every Sunday. We also received a splendid donation of £10 from Mr. S. Corones, to be competed for as the club thinks advisable.

OBITUARY.

Early in the year we lost a highly esteemed member in the person of Mr. V. Stratigos, who passed away after a short illness.

LADIES' CLUB.

The Ladies' Club, which had been formed during the previous year, was officially opened in December last, and we have been privileged to play a few mixed bowls with them. The ladies' standard of play leaves nothing to be desired.

VALUABLE SERVICES APPRECIATED.

I would be failing in my duty if I did not refer to the valuable services rendered by Mr. Loveday and Mr. Henery in attending to the green and the club house on Sunday mornings. I take this opportunity to thank my committee for its support during the past year, as it is only by the committee's working in harmony that clubs prosper. I feel sure that all members will grant the same excellent support to the incoming president.

The report was adopted.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

President, Mr. W. R. Golding; vice-presidents, Dr. H. B. Skinner and Mr. A. W. Drewe; secretary, Mr. E. W. Barker; treasurer, Mr. P. A. Friend; auditor, Mr. L. S. Johnston; committee, Messrs. H. V. Loveday, L. B. Cameron, C. D. Cooper, J. Henery, and R. J. Mackay; selection committee, Messrs. H. V. Loveday, L. B. Cameron, and A. W. Drewe.

HOSPITAL BOARD ELECTION

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—As President of the Trades and Labour Council I would like to explain the reason for our nomination of Mr. Len Short as subscribers' nominee in the forthcoming election for the Hospital Board.

For many years there has been apathy regarding all these minor elections in Gladstone.

It is of no use complaining of the way a town is run unless the residents of that town show a lively and intelligent interest in the election of its governing bodies.

It is our firm conviction that Mr. Len Short will bring a fresh outlook to the Board meetings, and being in close touch and in harmony with all industrial sections of the community, will keep their interests to the fore.

We trust that every voter will do his utmost to see that Mr. Short is returned as the subscribers' representative.—Yours, etc.,

DAVE LEWIS,
President T. & L. Council.

Thanks

THE AMP
A SURE FRIEND IN UNCERTAIN TIMES

MORE WEALTH. to divide up

THE prime need for the moment, as General MacArthur has recently reminded us, is to get on with the War, yet there is much talk of Social Security. It is, therefore, a subject that should be discussed and understood.

It is important to remember that no national plan of benefits can, by itself, provide security for the individual. It can never do much more than provide the minimum of shelter, food and clothing without which human beings cannot live as human beings. Additional provision against the misfortunes of life (and for comfort in old age) must continue to be made by the citizen himself. Of course, the majority of people do make such provision, but many people do not realise the extent to which voluntary thrift exists through Savings Banks, Life Assurance Societies, Trades Unions, Friendly Societies, and the purchase of War Bonds or War Savings Certificates.

Through the A.M.P. Society one family in every three in the Commonwealth is engaged in building up its own security. These families are engaged in creating Estates for themselves which is the only sound basis for security. They see that if we are to raise our national standard of living there must be a greater production of Wealth. They are engaged in producing their share of this wealth and, through their A.M.P. Policies, in tucking away a part of their share so that they shall have a measure of financial security when they stand in need of it. In addition, these families are helping the Nation in its hour of need. Their savings (many as low as a shilling a week) build up the Society's Funds, and out of these Funds the Society has been able to put £50,000,000 into Commonwealth Loans, and is adding £500,000 a month to this vast sum.

TUNIS AND BIZERTA

Populations Rejoice

Reports from correspondents in North Africa have been coloured with descriptions of enthusiastic celebration on the part of the local populations of Tunis and Bizerta. Such manifestations of joy and relief are an offset to the grimness of the struggle on the other battlefields of the world.

As the great Allied armies press on across Europe and Russia towards the black heart of Nazism, other peoples will rise up in gladness from the shadow of oppression and despair. For them, the climax of these dreadful days of war will have been reached, both materially and emotionally, and the end of their suffering will be in sight.

For us in Australia these tremend ous events can only be happy auguries of final victory on a world-wide scale. We can share, in spirit, the joy of Allied success, but there is no assurance in the coming twelve months of any such relief on our grim battle fronts.

We have not yet reached the stage where our accumulated might can be launched as an irresistible battering ram against the enemy.

Two long years elapsed before our Allies could turn from their precarious defence to confident offensive action; two years of unremitting and concentrated toil; two years of unrelenting labour and determined perseverance. To-day the fruits of the labour are rapidly ripening.

When the peoples of Europe have been freed, we can expect a powerful measure of help from our friends in the West, but we should be deluding ourselves if we thought for a moment that the victory in Tunisia would immediately release a substantial proportion of strength for use on the Pacific front.

The battles for North Africa have been great and severe, but so must be the battles to come. A writer, referring to the war in Europe, has expressed it in this way: The bitterest part of the struggle is over, but the hardest part is to come.

Britain and America will need every plane, every ship, and every man to crush Hitlerism; in the meantime we are expected, justly, to prepare for the day of our own advance.

That day is not fixed by arrangement with anybody but ourselves. It depends on our own labours, our sacrifices, and our determination.

There are thousands of Australians among the millions of people waiting liberation from the rule of Nippon. Their day of unrestrained rejoicing and ecstasy depends on us—on you.

"RETURN OF THE MAYFLOWER

Re-Making the World

Someone called the coming of the American troops to Britain "The Return of the Mayflower." The sons of the men and women who, in the Mayflower and many other expeditions, left Europe because they stood for democratic government and freedom of worship, and who have built in the new world a great nation dedicated to these ideals, are now fighting for their maintenance throughout the world.

The Americans have proved themselves comrades at the battlefront. This comradeship must not end with the war, either on the other side of the world or here.

The future of mankind depends upon our standing together in a brotherhood of free peoples in the re-making of the world.

POTATO PRODUCTION

New Contract Prices

The Minister for Commerce and Agriculture (Mr. Scully), has announced that it had been decided to continue the system of growing potatoes under contract for the coming ear, 1st November, 1943. to 31st October, 1944.

Cabinet had approved of the following prices:—

Victoria, £12/10/- per ton, c.i.f.

Sout Australia, £12/10/- per ton, c.i.f.

Tasmania, £12/10/- per ton, f.o.b.

West Australia,h £12/10/- per ton c.i.f., or f.o.b. if for export.

N.S. Wales, £14 per ton c.i.f.

Queensland, £15 per ton c.i.f.

The above prices apply to the No. 1 grade of top quality variety in each State, and other varieties will be at appropriate lower rates.

He stated that the new agreements to be offered to growers differed from the 1942-43 contract in so far that the 1942-43 contract guaranteed the grower a minimum price, with the advantage of the market price, if the latter were higher than the former, whereas the new agreement was at a flat price throughout the year.

This figure will give growers an increased price which will enable them to contract for the increased area needed, with an assurance of reasonable returns.

Mr. Scully said that he had decided upon the foregoing following discussions which had taken place between growers' representatives on the Federal Potato Advisory Committee and the Australian Potato Committee.

Mr. Scully said that the foregoing prices would be paid to growers throughout the year, at a steady and reasonable figure.

It was anticipated that, at the prices mentioned, which are an increase over those being paid under this season's contracts, and with the valued assistance of the Agricultural Departments of the various States the target acreage of production for 1943-1944 should be attained.

SAVINGS BANK DEPOSITS.

An increase of 24,675 electors is shown in present enrolments for the Federal divisions in Queensland compared iwth those at the time of the 1940 election.

DAIRYMEN AND UNION COUNCIL.

At the annual district conference of the Queensland Dairymen's Organisation it was decided that the State Council be instructed to co-operate with the Trades and Labour Council with a view to creating a better understanding between the two bodies.

PETROL RATION TICKETS.

June petrol ration tickets will be issued from Monday, May 31. The Chairman of the Liquid Fuel Control Board (Mr. J. C. Lamont) stated that the issue of May ration tickets at the Boads office would cease from the close of business on Saturday next, and at Post Offices on Friday.

A SPLENDID GESTURE.

In South Australia the Country Women's Association takes a very special interest in the Australian Women's Land Army. Wherever a girl is being sent to the country, headquarters of the C.W.A. writes to the local branch, gives the Land Army girl's name and place at which she is to work, and asks the local branch of the C.W.A. to look after her. Mr. Wurth, Director General of Man Power, commenting upon this, said it was a splendid gesture worth copying by other associations.

3 THINGS TO REMEMBER

To obtain a Ration Book at any Issuing Centre each British Subject Civilian, 14 years of age or over, or Alien Civilian, 16 years of age or over, must produce either in person or by an agent each of these 3 things:

(1) Civilian Identity Card or Alien Registration Certificate; and
(2) Card C.R.7 duly completed (Card C.R.7 is obtainable at post offices); and

CHILDREN: Application for a new Ration Book for a British Subject Child under 14 years of age or for an Alien child under 16 years of age must be made by a parent or guardian, who must produce either in person or by an Agent:

(a) The Civilian Identity Card (or Alien Registration Certificate) of parent or guardian;
(b) The Child's Old Ration Book (and, in the case of an Alien Child of 14 years of age or over, a form C.R.7 duly completed in respect of such child).

No parent's or guardian's declaration form is necessary.

Wherever practicable, Ration Books of children under 14 years of age should be collected by their parents or guardians.

Where this is impracticable (e.g., children in institutions, etc.) the new Ration Book may be obtained by the head of the institution, etc., upon production of the child's old Ration Book.

BABIES: In the case of a young child for whom an ordinary 1942 Ration Book has not been obtained or in respect of whom a special red covered Ration Book with sugar coupons has been issued, the parent or guardian should apply on Form Rg. 1 (obtainable at post offices) to the Deputy Director of Rationing for the new Ration Book.

COLLECTION (By agent): Where it is inconvenient to attend personally at a Ration Book Issuing Centre, a Ration Book may be collected by agent. An agent must produce on behalf of the person for whom he or she is acting:

(1) Civilian Identity Card (or Alien Registration Certificate);
(2) Form C.R.7 duly completed;
(3) Old Ration Book.

No form of authority for agent is necessary.

The Civilian Identity Card and the new Ration Book must be handed by the agent to the owner as early as possible.

COLLECTION (By post): If on account of being an invalid, seriously ill, or approaching maternity, or living more than 5 miles from the nearest Issuing Centre, you are unable to personally attend an Issuing Centre and are unable to arrange for collection of your Ration Book by agent, you may apply by post to your Divisional Returning Officer for your Ration Book.

Application must be made on Form Rg.6, which is obtainable at post offices, and the application must be accompanied by:

(1) Your Civilian Identity Card;
(2) Form C.R.7 duly completed; and
(3) Your old Ration Book.

IF YOU CANNOT PRODUCE YOUR OLD RATION BOOK

If you cannot produce your old Ration Book, you must complete a Form Rg. 5 (obtainable at Issuing Centre) and present this form completed to the Ration Book Issuing Officer when applying for your Ration Book.

IF NO IDENTITY CARD:

If you have no Identity Card or have lost it, you must apply immediately for same to your Divisional Returning Officer. If you are an Alien and have no Alien Registration Certificate, or have lost same you must apply immediately to your nearest Police Station.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

If you have changed your address other than temporarily, and have not completed a Form C.R.4 in relation thereto, you should immediately obtain a Form C.R.4 from any Post Office and complete same. An Alien Civilian should inform the nearest Police Station as to change of address.

REMEMBER

Before a new Ration Book can be obtained, you must produce your:

(1) Civilian Identity Card, if over 14 years of age (or Alien Registration Certificate, for Aliens over 16 years); and
(2) Completed Form C.R.7 if over 14 years of age; and
(3) Old Ration Book, or Application Form Rg.5.

LAKES CREEK MEAT WORKS

SEQUEL TO RECENT STRIKE

Dismissal Confirmed

The Industrial Court, sitting at Brisbane, with Messrs. Ferry and Riordan on the bench, dismissed an application by the M.I.E.U. for an order to the Central Queensland Meat Export Coy. Ltd. at Lakes Creek to re-employ a worker in the boning section, whose dismissal had been upheld by the Manpower Appeal Board.

At the outset Mr. T. Lewis, for the company, objected to the application on the ground that the Court had no jurisdiction to deal with the matter, as it had already been dealt with by the Manpower Appeal Board. He claimed that the men in the boning section of the works were carrying on an unauthorised strike by refusing to work overtime.

For the union Mr. A. J. Neumann submitted that the decision of the Appeal Board had been based purely upon the man (Stafford's) actions as a union delegate, and that this should not prejudice his position merely as a worker. The company had admitted that he was a good worker. The union was now asked to supply labour while this man was unemployed. The workers at the plant were not prepared to accept non-union labour while a good unionist worker was unemployed.

Mr. Lewis said that on Monday and Tuesday last the men in the boning section had refused to work overtime. It was because Stafford had not been re-employed. This meant that the company would have to store meat and canning would have to be curtailed by 30 per cent. Two hundred men were affected. On Monday last the killing gang had been increased from 12 to 15 butchers, and no doubt the men in the boning section had taken this opportunity to cause dislocation and force the company's hand when it was more important than ever that the output of the boning section should be maintained.

Dismissing the application, Mr. Ferry said that in view of the decision of the appeal authorities under the National Security Regulations, the Court thought it had no jurisdiction. In any case, the position was that this employee already had had three hearings before different authorities, which had opportunity of listening to witnesses: in the first case before the superintendent of works, in the second before a national service officer, and in the third before the appeal authorities under the National Security Regulations. The charge against him was serious misconduct, and his dismissal was confirmed on the appeal. It would be foolish to think that the Court should intervene in those circumstances.

ROLL OF HONOUR

SMITH.—In sad and loving memory of our darling Brother and Uncle, Sergeant A. J. Smith, who died of wounds received at Tobruk on the 4th June, 1941.

No one he loved was by his side
To hear his last faint sigh,
Or whisper just one loving word
Before he closed his eyes.
We never knew the pain he bore;
We never saw him die.
We only know he passed away,
And never said good-bye.

(Inserted by his loving sister, brother-in-law, neice and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Vic Lesina, and Ron and Joyce.)

CURRENT TOPICS

BEER AND SMOKES.

Increased excise duties on tobacco and liquor will probably be considered by the Federal Government in preparing its next budget.

RAILWAY REVENUE.

Treasury returns for the eleven months ended May 31 show the railways earned £15,385,706, a rise of 57 per cent, compared with eleven months last year, when the receipts were £9,140,903.

RURAL AWARD.

Senator Gordon Brown, who recently visited the Maryborough district with Senator B. Courtice, stated that many farmers had said they would welcome a rural award, as it would help to stop the drift of farm labour to the cities.

OWEN GUN PATENTED.

NEW COUPONS ON MONDAY.

Although new ration books will be issued on Saturday, coupons cannot be used until Monday. One new provision is that tea coupons will not expire at the end of the month, as previously, but may be used until three months after they become available.

EMPIRE CASUALTIES.

Casualties suffered by all ranks of the armed forces of the British Empire in the first three years of the war up to September, 1942, totalled 514,993. Australian casualties to the end of March were 67,191. These figures comprise killed, including died of wounds or injuries, missing, wounded, and prisoners of war.

C.W.A. AND HOUSING.

A unanimous decision not to assist with the taking over of any existing boarding establishment was made by members of the metropolitan branch of the Queensland Country Women's Association at their monthly meeting this week. The branch felt that the housing problem would not be alleviated by the taking over of such places.

JUDGE WEBB.

The Premier (Mr. Cooper) refused to see a deputation from the Queensland Trades and Labour Council seeking the removal from the Industrial Court bench of the President (Mr. Justice Webb). Mr. Cooper said the Government was fully acquainted with all the facts leading up to the request, and he was of the opinion that no good purpose would be served by his receiving the proposed deputation. The Council's request for a deputation arose from remarks made by Mr. Justice Webb about meatworkers.

RED CROSS SOCIETY.

Despite the magnificent response to Sir Leslie Wilson's appeal for Red Cross month, in which Gladstone and district put up a record by contributing over £500, funds for local services have to be maintained, and supporters are asked to continue to be generous in their assistance to Paddy's markets.

"NOSEY PARKER" DANCE.

The President of the Red Cross branch (Mrs. H. V. Phillips) advises that the proceeds of the "Nosey Parker" dance to be held at the Trocadero to-night, following the patriotic rodeo, will go to the Prisoners of War fund. This should be an additional incentive to dancers to patronise the function.

WEEK-END GOLF.

Play on the Golf Club's links over the week-end will be for monthly medal, which is a stroke round, and scores will also participate in points for Mr. R. Elliott's trophy over the full season. Associates will also play for their monthly medal. The course is now in splendid order, fairways showing a nice growth of green grass, the result of recent rains.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY.

The members of the Women's Auxiliary of the R.S.S.A.I.L.A. return thanks to all those who donated gifts to their recent street stall; also to the friends at Yarwun who kindly donated the fruit, which was sold that day. The winners of the raffles were:—Doll (donated and made by Mrs. L. M. Walker), Miss Ruth Hill, Glenlyon St.; iced cake (donated by Mrs. Farnsworth), Mrs. D. F. Boyle, Auckland Street.

ORANGES £25 A TON.

Processing of oranges for juice for the Services will begin this month. Prices to growers for all varieties have been fixed at £25 a ton, plus £1/5/- a ton freight. The open market ceiling price for oranges till the end of October had been fixed by the Prices Commissioner at 21/- per case. Retailers would be allowed to add 25 per cent to this figure. For the greater part of the season oranges of average size should sell at 2d to 2½d each.

PADDY'S MARKET.

The convenor (Mrs. A. H. Friend) advises that the monthly Paddy's market organised by the ladies' committee will take place at the Red Cross grounds next Friday. Town and country supporters are again asked to forward usual donations of fruit, vegetables, cakes, sweets, home manufactures, etc., to Friends (Pty.) Ltd. in time for the opening of the function that day. The Gladstone branch of the society relies to a great extent on its Paddy's market revenue for its general funds and purchases of material for the knitting and sewing circles, and also to finance its hospital services to sick and wounded locally.

THREE MONTHS' IMPRISONMENT.

On Thursday, in the Court of Petty Sessions, before the Acting S.M. (Mr. J. F. Donovan), Vincent Patrick O'Dwyer (Mt. Larcom) was charged with falsely pretending to Percy Stanley Bensted, of Friends (Pty.) Ltd. that a cheque drawn on the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, Mt. Larcom branch, for the sum of £8/10/-, dated 30th April, 1943, and signed T. B. Brady in favour of M. Cooper or bearer, was good and valid, and obtained from Bensted goods to the value of £1/15/5, and a sum of money amounting to £6/14/1, with intent to defraud. O'Dwyer elected to be dealt with summarily, and pleaded guilty to the charge, and was convicted and fined £11/9/6, to include £8/9/6 restitution, in default three months' imprisonment in Brisbane Gaol. Sergt. S. Coxon prosecuted.

AIR RAID DRILL TEST.

An air raid drill test will be held in Gladstone on Saturday, June 12, and will take place in the No. 4 division, which includes that portion of the town on the north side of the sand flat, including Coney Island, and that portion of No. 2 division south of Tank Street, and a portion of No. 3 division. The posts which will be worked are Schneider's, Fowler's, Schmidt's, Smith's bakery, and Eggstein's. Wardens who do not belong to these posts are asked to assist in this test. Those who are attached to the Police Station post must report to Schneider's post, and those attached to the State School and Otty's posts are asked to report to Fowler's post. Those attached to Eggstein's post must report to Mr. Owbridge at Smith's bakery. All wardens are asked to be at their sections at 2 p.m. Messages will be delivered by motor vehicle, and other services will take their instructions from their own organisations.

SALVATION ARMY

LIEUT. COMMISSIONER HAREWOOD

To Visit Gladstone

More than ordinary local interest centres in the visit to Gladstone on Friday, June 25, of Lieut. Commissioner and Mrs. Harewood and staff.

A special address, "The Imovable Foundation," will be given by the Commissioner in the Salvation Army Hall, Herbert Street, at 8 p.m.

Lieut. Commissioner Earnest J. Harewood is an Australian, having entered the Salvation Army service from Leaderville, W.A., in 1908. He is well known in the two States of Eastern Australia, having been stationed at the Salvation Army territorial headquarters in Sydney for some years in an administrative position. When candidates' secretary and private secretary to the Territorial Commander he travelled nearly 36,000 miles in the two States.

The Commissioner's first overseas appointment was as training college principal in New Zealand. Later he was transferred to officers' training work at the great International College in London.

During the great war he served three years in England and France as Salvation Army military secretary with the troops, before being appointed chaplin with the 5th Division A.I.F. in the Villiers Brettoneaux section. Mentioned in dispatches by Sir Douglas Haig, his name was included in the King's birthday honours, June 3, 1919, being appointed an officer of the Order of the British Empire, military division.

LIEUT. COMMISSIONER HAREWOOD.

Fervent, intensely spiritual, apt to teach with a burning passion for the salvation of the people, and has been used by God as a great soul-winner. Many of his potentialities indicate the suggestion of speed. He is as provocative of repose as a lighted fuse attached to a mine.

Salvationists and friends, as well as many old diggers, will anticipate the visit with pleasure, and afford him a warm characteristic welcome.

At the outbreak of war Commissioner Harewood launched the Red Shield activities in the military camps of Southern Australia, and has shown great interest in all Red Shield camp operations in Queensland and New South Wales.

Mrs. Commissioner Harewood was a woman's social matron of high standing, whose first appointment had been to a circle corps in Queensland, and who later was transferred to the rescue home, Brisbane. Appointments, as matron of Salvation Army homes and hospitals in Auckland, Christchurch, and Wellington, New Zealand, followed, and returning to Australia she was for ten years the matron of the Haven, Melbourne.

By her genial salvationism Mrs. Harewood has won many friends throughout Australia, and other parts of the world. She will accompany the Commissioner on his tour of Queensland, and other members of the party include Major Hubert Scotney, Territorial Young People's secretary, and Brigadier Terricini, divisional commander.

Commissioner and Mrs. Harewood will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stevens, Auckland Street, during their stay in Gladstone.

O'MARA AWARD.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—In your issue of Wednesday, June 2, an article headed "Travel Time" states that under the O'Mara award members of the Civil Construction Corps receive 3/- per hour travelling time from their suburban homes to work. This is not quite correct, for under the O'Mara award workers are only paid for travelling time after they have travelled two hours per day in their own time, whereas under the old award they were paid for all time spent in travelling.—Yours, etc.,

V. J. WILLEY,
Secretary A.S. of C. and Joiners, Gladstone Branch.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Sergeant Kevin Joyner, of the R.A.A.F., has completed his training in Canada, and has now arrived in England.

FISHING INDUSTRY.

The establishment of a co-ordinating authority for the fishing industry in Australia has been decided on. It is to be set up in the form of a committee which will serve the forces as well as the civilian population.

ARCHBISHOP WAND.

Archbishop Wand advised the committee of the Anglican Diocese that the date of his resignation would be July 31. The election of a new Archbishop will be decided as early as possible after that date. A public farewell be extended the retiring prelate.

NEW RATION BOOKS.

Any person who has not got a ration book to hand back when new ration books are issued to-day and to-morrow, can complete application form RG5 at the issuing centre and receive a new book. Stating this, the Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming) said that as three things were needed to obtain a new ration book—identity card, completed registration form CR7, and old ration book—provision had to be made for those unable to produce an old ration book; that is, persons whose ration book has recently been lost, stolen, destroyed or defaced, and has not yet been replaced. Any British subject 14 or over who has not got an identity card should apply for one immediately. Application form can be obtained for this purpose at any post office.

IN NEW GUINEA

AN OLD GLADSTONITE

Sergeant Frank Hill

Sergt. F. V. Hill, who is serving with the Army in New Guinea, writes:

"Much water has flown under the old historic bridge since I was in Gladstone. You will recall I left the old town on a trip to Samarai some years ago.

"As you will percieve, I am now in the same, shall I say, locality, having been in this sphere for nine months or so. Time up here flies, and the atmosphere is more or less changeable in many ways.

"I have recently had sent to me some editions of the 'Observer,' and these are the first I have had since I left.

"I must really admit I received quite a shock. Gladstone, by all accounts, is still on the map, and still making itself felt in the general trend of events, as the war effort demands.

"I must pay a tribute to Goddy Crow and his latest sport, to wit, his opponent in the novel; yet, marvellous response Gladstone in general gave to this much needed Liberty Loan.

"As yet I have not received the final figures of this monetary effort of the public of Gladstone, but I look forward with pleasurable anticipation to doing so.

"I also read with interest the progress of the Gladstone Town Council, and note with pleasure that Mr. Dennis has the responsible position of the 'chair,' and also that Mr. Golding is still giving his experiences as an alderman to the public.

"Regarding myself, well, to say the least, since I left I have become a much travelled man. As may be imagined, in the Army, one gets mostly everywhere. Quite apart for the fact that I was just about sick of getting around the world, when I first came to Gladstone, I still seem to 'get places.'

"I am glad to say that I'm in good health; lost some weight, but that is a natural state of the human in New Guinea.

"I am enclosing a copy of our Army paper, published daily, but Sundays a supplement is added. This will, no doubt, interest you, and perhaps many other public minded persons in the old town. How well I recall my many efforts to supply the sporting public in Gladstone with accounts of swimming, boxing, and also dog racing. Hockey, too, was well in the news during my sojourn there.

"It will interest you to know that on Easter Monday a large swimming carnival was held in our open-air baths. Many interstate champions competed, including Bill Fleming, who is now a lieut., and looks very well—a typical digger.

"At this carnival I was called on to take over the position of starter, which was quite a job. The entries received totalled over 250. Naturally, many heats were needed to swim-off an event. The whole carnival was voted a huge success.

"The same night a boxing tournament was held in what I claim to be the best open-air stadium outside of Brisbane, and all built by Army personnel. At this gathering of sports I was once more called on to handle an official position—that of timekeeper.

"Boxing in this island is of a very high standard, and as you may imagine interest is very keen, not to mention the enthusiasm shown by Allied Forces. We have recognised champions in each division, and they qualify to hold the title champion of New Guinea.

"I would add too, that they have to earn it; very much so. This is no kindergarten, believe me.

"Actually, I could write a very interesting article on sport in New Guinea, but time, at this stage, will not permit.

"In conclusion, may I, as a member of the Forces abroad, be allowed to voice my appreciation of the wonderful effort of Gladstone in responding wholeheartedly to the sporting gesture of 'Goddy' and his unnamed opponent.

"Kindly remember me to all the sporting fraternity."

SECOND-HAND CHAFF BAGS.

Farmers who bought second-hand chaff bags above the fixed price were as liable to prosecution as those who sold them, according to Mr. R. J. B. Muir, of the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor's Office. A survey by the Department of Supply and Development revealed that there is a serious shortage of bags. The maximum price of No. 1 quality second-hand bags is 8/6 per dozen, and No. 2 quality 6/6.

NEW RATION BOOKS

AT THE STATE SCHOOL

To-day and To-morrow

Nearly 10,000 issuing centres throughout Australia, with staff approximating 30,000 persons, will handle over 6,500,000 new ration books when these are issued to the public to-day (Saturday) and to-morrow (Sunday).

While big metropolitan centres with staffs of up to 60 persons expect to handle 15,000 books for the two issuing days, some centres established for convenience of country people will issue less than 20 books.

All issuing centres will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on both days.

The Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming) said that the public should profit by last year's experience, and try to collect new ration books early and at "off peak" periods. Last year's rush demand occurred at noon on the the Saturday in city areas, although the suburban demand was evenly spread. Biggest demand on the Sunday was between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Mr. Cumming emphasised that three things will be needed to obtain a new ration book—an identity card, a completed civilian registration form CR7, and the old ration book.

While in some respects the method of obtaining ration books has been simplified by comparison with last year, handling of civilian registration form CR7 for manpower purposes will more than offset any reduction in work for electoral officers, he added.

Issuing officers will be doing a magnificent job in handing out millions of ration books and receiving millions of civilian registration forms, and old ration books in only two days.

In exceptional cases where persons are unable to attend their issuing centre provision has been made for them to obtain the new ration book by post. These persons must first obtain form RG6 from any post office, complete and return it to the Divisional Returning Officer for their Commonwealth electorate.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES.

Fruit and vegetable gardens in the Northern Territory established by the Army has inspired troops to take up gardening on their own behalf, and most units now have garden patches which are beginning to bear tomatoes, beans, cabbages, pumpkins, cucumbers and various sorts of melons.

SPARE PARTS DEALERS.

Traders in automotive spare parts must register with the Department of Supply and give particulars of parts held in stock. A regulation ordering this was issued on Thursday last. Because manufacture has decreased owing to manpower shortage and diversion of manufacture to munitions production regulations have been issued to conserve all available spare parts for essential transport.

NEHRU'S NIECES.

Two nieces of Pandit Nehru, chairman of the All India Congress Party, have arrived in Australia. They are aged 19 and 16. The girls are on their way to the United States to complete their education. Both speak flawless English. They were dressed in their Indian national costume. Both girls admitted they knew nothing about Australia except what they read in history and geography books.

HOMES FOR WAR WORKERS.

Since early in 1941 the Commonwealth War Workers' Housing Trust has supplied or almost completed 2456 permanent and temporary homes for about 10,000 war workers and their families. 1000 of these homes are permanent, and are let at from £1 to £1/12/6 a week, while temporary wartime cottages are rented at from 12/6 to 14/- a week.

BARNES RELEASED.

After the resumption of the Coroner's inquiry into the disappearance of Marjorie Norval on Wednesday, Mr. J. F. Barnes, M.L.A., was released from custody by the Coroner (Mr. J. J. Leahy), following his third appearance in the witness box. When released by the Coroner Barnes said, "I cannot thank you, as you should have done that yesterday."

KING'S BIRTHDAY.

Under amended National Security Regulations the only people compelled to work on the King's Birthday holiday next Monday will be those who are directed to do so by a Federal Minister. Holiday rates will be paid to all who work on Monday, whether directed by a Minister or in firms which themselves decide to work. Official celebration of the day has been suspended.

GIRL'S PHOTOGRAPH

In War Adventures

After adventures in several war theatres, a Queensland girl's photograph was recently returned to her.

Two and a half years ago she gave it to a soldier friend on the eve of his departure for the Middle East. It accompanied him all through the campaign there, and was still unmarked when he returned to Australia.

Shortly afterwards it went with him to New Guinea, and was in his pocket when he was killed in action last December.

It was taken from him by a Japanese, who some time later was shot by a Bundaberg soldier.

This soldier, discovering that the photo. bore the name of a Bundaberg studio, sent it to his home town, where the photographer identified it and returned it to the girl at her home in Toogoolawah.

LIFESAVING WAISTCOATS.

Amended Navigation Regulations require that special lifesaving waistcoats must be provided by ship owners for each member of the crew of Australian trade ships. Because the waistcoat can be worn at all times its use should overcome the risk of seamen being cast adrift without any aid, but it is not intended as a substitute for the ordinary life jacket, which should be worn in preference to any other form of safety appliance.

THE AMP — A TRUE FRIEND IN UNCERTAIN TIMES

The sort of world WE WANT

IN this world of violence and of change, the people with a fighting purpose—with clean-cut objectives—are in the best position to win through to Security and the sort of world they want.

We Australians can have the sort of world we want if we are prepared to make sacrifices for it in the living of our everyday lives.

There are two immediate objectives worthy of us:

(1) to strengthen our fighting arm,

(2) to avoid the economic error of thinking that we can take more out of a pint pot than we put into it.

The means of achieving both objectives are the same: Work, Wisdom, Thrift, and a spirit of Co-operation. There are no alternatives.

The members of the A.M.P. Society (numbering about one family in every three in the Commonwealth) aim at financial security for themselves and their families and are prepared to make sacrifices to attain it. Their contributions to the Society's funds range from a shilling a week upwards, but so widespread is the co-operation, so vast the membership, that the Society's income last year was £17,315,000 and its assets are valued to-day at £140,000,000.

Last year the A.M.P. paid out £8,250,000 in benefits to members and their beneficiaries, but in addition it has been, and still is, putting £500,000 a month into the War Loans. To date it has lent £50,000,000 to the Commonwealth. Its ability to help its members and the Nation grows from day to day. It has a fighting purpose that is based on Work, Wisdom, Thrift, and Co-operation. What the A.M.P. has achieved is a signpost for the Nation as a whole.

GROWING VEGETABLES

DEFICIENCY DISEASES

Diagnosis of Troubles

If the production of vegetables is to reach the dimensions which the present situation demands, it is essential that, in addition to planting large areas, every practicable precaution be taken to protect the growing plants from the ravages of pests and diseases, and from other troubles which tend to depress yields. An increase in acreage alone can easily fail to accomplish the objective if the wastage due to pests and diseases shows a corresponding rise.

The common pests and diseases and the method of combating them, however, are generally known to most of the larger vegetable growers, but there is one class of troubles the importance of which is not fully realised and about which there is still a dearth of knowledge.

This class is made up principally of nutritional disorders which are usually brought about by the inability of the plant to absorb from the soil one or more of the food materials it requires. Such inability may be simply the result of there being a deficiency of a particular material in the soil, but other causes also operate, and a deficiency in the plant can occur even when a particular material is present in large quantities in the soil. Thus, in some soils which contain manganese, plants may suffer acutely from iron deficiency, even though there may be abundant iron in the soil.

These nutritional disorders produce ill effects in two principal ways. Firstly, they may be such as to considerably reduce the size of the plant or its products, even to the extent of virtually eliminating the yield. Secondly, they frequently cause malformations and discolourations which render the vegetables unpalatable and unattractive to the public, and unfit for canning purposes. A third effect, and one which may be scarcely less important than the two mentioned, is that malnutrition quite commonly so weakens the plants that their susceptibility to insect pests and fungous diseases is so greatly increased that normal methods of control become relatively ineffective, or perhaps useless.

It is essential then that vegetable growers be on their guard against these nutritional troubles or deficiency diseases, as they are frequently called.

The symptoms to be looked for vary to a marked extent. Stunted growth, abnormally slow growth, mottling of leaves and stems, failure to blossom and set fruit and discolouration of parts perhaps are the most important manifestations of the troubles.

In the case of the major elements—nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash, inhibited growth and general absence of a characteristic healthy colour are the commonest symptoms.

In view of the present fertilizer position, which may lead to some stinting of the use of these materials, growers should be on their guard against this type of trouble. Generally it is better to feed a certain area adaquately than to attempt twice that area on a starvation ration. It should be noted though that over feeding is sheer waste of valuable fertilizer material.

The diagnosis of troubles due to the lack of elements, such as boron, zinc, manganese, and iron, which are required in but very small amounts, is usually more difficult, but at the same time there is generally some characteristic symptom by which the cause of the trouble can be detected.

Though these so-called trace elements are required in but minute quantities, they are of the utmost importance, and growers whose plants exhibit abnormal discolourations would be well advised to refer the matter to the Department of Agriculture and Stock as early as practicable. There is one very important point in connection with these trace elements, and that is the necessity to guard against the over application of the material required to correct the trouble—e.g., whilst the addition of a few pounds of borax to an acre of beetroot may mean the difference between a good crop and the production of worthless, woody, discoloured beets, if too much borax be added the land may be rendered useless for a considerable time. These are elements of which a trace leads to healthy growth, whilst an excess may be extremely toxic.

HOW TO KEEP PIGS HEALTHY

Construction of Piggeries

By the general practice of hygiene and sanitation in the piggery, coupled with sound feeding methods, the incidence of most pig diseases can be considerably reduced.

Roomy, well ventilated, but draught-proof sties are necessary. The floors should be swept clean every morning, all refuse taken away, and the yards raked over. Correct drainage of sties and yards will avoid the accummulation of water, and help to keep down insanitary conditions.

Moisture is necessary for the free living stages of nearly all worm parasites. In its absence very few of them can survive for any length of time. Therefore, pig keepers who wish to avoid losses from worms must have dry, well-drained sties and yards.

Unhygienic and insanitary conditions are predisposing causes of rheumatism, catarrh, and some of the more serious bacterial infections—such as suppurative otitis and pneumonia. Piggeries should therefore be constructed on high ground, floors should be made of concrete, and the run should be well sheltered from inclement weather.

Correct feeding and watering, together with adequate housing and paddocking, are undoubtedly most important factors in the preservation of the health of the pig.

WINNING THE WAR

Efficient Repair Shop

The repair and servicing of all agricultural machinery, which is incorporated in the new regulations bringing all agricultural machinery under the direction of the Minister of Agriculture, emphasises the fact that good and efficient repairs and spare parts are as essential to the winning of the war as new machinery.

The revision of Australia's shipbuilding programme announced by Mr. Curtin emphasises this also, and in future the industry will concentrate on repairs rather than on the building of new ships. New ships can be massed produced in the States, and Australian shipyards can best aid the Allied sea war by carrying out swift and efficient repairs.

Heavy industry, especially the steel industry, is notoriously hard on equipment, so that one of the secrets of maintaining full production is by maintaining a tremendous supply of spare parts, and a smooth running organisation to eliminate delay in fitting them.

In nearly 30 years' experience engineers at the B.H.P. Steelworks have learnt the wisdom of being prepared, and their supplies of spare parts cover a large area containing everything, from huge ladles weighing tons down to the smallest bearing.

This enormous supply, combined with the fact that the men in charge know exactly what to do in the event of a breakdown, has been responsible for the amazing fact that not one minute has been lost to production because a spare part was not available.

MAN ON LAND

Arsenic For Cattle Dips

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) has announced that he had received a letter from the Minister for Commerce and Agriculture (Mr. W. J. Scully), in reply to his communication, drawing attention to the question of supplies of arsenic for cattle dips.

Mr. Scully advised that approximately 60 tons had ben shipped since January last, which quantity has been distributed as equitably as possible against orders in hand.

The suppliers advise that there was a short supply of 84lb. drums, but that reasonable supplies have been obtained. It is therefore expected that shortly sufficient drums will be available to permit the completion of Queensland orders.

Application was being made for shipping space of 30 tons for Brisbane and North Queensland, sponsored by the Commonwealth Controller of Emergency Supplies, Melbourne. Further shipments will follow as packing proceeds and shipping space is available.

RECONSTRUCTION PLANS

Country Development Planned

By selecting key towns throughout the country districts and embarking on a deliberate and sustained policy of developing those towns industrially and socially, the Minister for Post War Reconstruction (Mr. Chifley) aims to achieve a much better distribution of population in Australia.

The amenities which a big city could give would thus be made more readily accessible to country residents.

Main points in the reconstruction programme are:—

Reducing marketing problems, developing education facilities effectively, giving greater opportunities for the development of cultural pursuits.

"Generally, this policy, if actively followed over a period, will give greater order and balance to our economic life, and better prospects for the farmer and his family," said the Minister.

"The policy of regional planning will make big demands upon local government authorities particularly.

Already fine community work has been done by Councils and also by War Agricultural Committees operating throughout the Commonwealth.

This is evidence that there are available in country districts the public spirited men who would be required to make regional planning a success.

"The Rural Reconstruction Commission is to visit Tasmania early next month, and later it will take evidence in the three Eastern mainland States.

"In this way it will be able to examine fully the views on regional planning held in all States, in the course of its general inquiries into our rural problems."

CARE OF EGGS

How To Keep Them Fresh

The method of storing eggs often leaves much to be desired. The room in which the eggs are kept should be free from mouldy or musty odours, and while alloking sufficient ventilation, must not be too draughty.

The temperature of the room is another important matter, especially in hot weather, when the eggs should be kept as cool as possible.

Where a cool room is not available the best course to take is to pack the previous day's eggs early the next morning, and after packing, cover the cases over until they are sent to market.

On no account should eggs be allowed to stand exposed to the air during the warm weather, as this leads to rapid evaporation and results in the eggs being rejected as stale.

SNAPPER SHARKS

Help The War Effort

Before the war Australia imported quantities of fish oil, mainly from Great Britain and Norway. Some 80,000 gallons of this imported oil was needed for medicinal purposes, and some 300,000 gallons for various industrial purposes.

Now, thanks to the Bass Strait sharks and Australian research chemists, Australia is producing her own medicinal fish oils, and also exporting some to Britain to help make up the deficiency caused there by the Nazi occupation of Norway.

The snapper shark weighs from 30 to 50 lbs. Its liver makes up 10 per cent of its weight, and the liver is rich in vitamin oil. Some of this oil is used to replace cod liver oil.

Vitamin A is extracted from the rest and used for the treatment of night blindness and other illnesses, for the fortification of all Australian margarine supplied to Britain or to troops in areas where butter would go rancid, and for many other high potency vitamin preparations.

Investigations by the C.S.I.R. revealed that tuna liver oil was the richest in vitamin A among the Australian fish. But tuna fishing has not been widely developed here yet, and as the oil was difficult to extract from tuna anyhow, experiments were carried out with sharks instead.

Shark oil, also manufactured by a private firm in Melbourne, is now being used for the treatment of burns.

Stewarts & Lloyds, in Newcastle, the first of all the heavy industries in Australia to sign on a staff of nursing sisters, has tried it with beneficial results on a man whose face had been badly burnt. It healed without a trace.

And, of course, sharks have a new appeal to fishermen. Instead of being dependent in the fish meat for their profit, they are now guaranteed a good return for shark livers, which they previously threw away.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

NEW RATION REGULATIONS.

Attention is drawn in this issue to advertisements detailing the rationing of butter to half a pound a week per head and the supply of coupons for towels, sheeting, pillow slip and other soft furnishings.

STREET STALL.

A street stall, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Ladies' Guild, will be held on Thursday, June 10, in Tank Street, Valley, opposite the Regent Theatre. Donations of jams, cakes, sweets, etc., will be greatly appreciated by the Guild.

WEIGHT GUESSING COM. PETITION.

One thousand tickets were disposed of in connection with the fat bullock weight guessing competition at the patriotic rodeo on Saturday. The beast which was killed at the Meatworks on Monday, weighed 807 lbs., but when going to press the name of the winner was not available.

PRISONER OF WAR DANCE.

The Prisoner of War dance held in the Trocadero on Saturday night attracted a very large attendance, the receipts totalling over £30. The President of the Red Cross Society (Mrs. H. V. Phillips) was assisted by Mr. Bert Norris. Miss Gertie Ward provided the music, and the dancers included many servicemen, who had a most enjoyable evening.

ENOUGH BUTTER FOR HEALTH.

The Commonwealth Nutrition Committee stated that full attention had been paid to the nutritional requirements of the population in fixing the butter ration. Children might be exposed to the risk of deficiency diseases if parents and guardians gave their children clarified dripping to save butter for adults or luxury cooking. Every child should get at least the entire 8 oz. ration.

BUTTER RATION.

A leaflet issued by the Commonwealth Department of Health gives the following suggestions to make the butter ration last longer:—Cream 4 ozs. of butter with 1 oz. milk until all the milk is absorbed, then use it for spreading on bread; allow toast to cool before buttering—hot toast absorbs too much butter and is not easy to digest; half an hour before using remove butter from the refrigerator or icechest, and allow it to soften in room temperature before using it. In winter time leave the butter in a warm place, but do not melt it. Cream it with a spoon or a knife before you use it.

SOUTH GLADSTONE PROGRESS ASSOCIATION

MONTHLY MEETING

Report by Mr. O'Malley

A pleasing feature of the recent largely attended meeting of the South Gladstone and Barney Point Progress Association was the application of new members, and eighteen were accepted. The President (Mr. E. T. Daley) presided over a large attendance.

Letters were received from the Deputy Prime Minister (Mr. F. M. Forde) and Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., and the Town Council.

Reports were presented by the secretary, chairman and treasurer. The financial position of the Association is sound.

Two auditors were elected, which brought the Association into conformity with the rules decided on.

A copy of the Wynnum rules was perused, and with two deletions will be adopted by the Association.

Several matters were discussed, and three requests will be presented to the Town Council for consideration at its next meeting.

AT BARNEY POINT.

The Secretary (Mr. J. F. O'Malley) presented the following report:—

With members of our committee I approached the Mayor (Ald. Dennis) and pointed out the almost absence of shade and seating accommodation at Barney Point.

The Mayor immediately became interested, and after much discussion regarding the lay-out of the beach, stated he was prepared to present the Association with a cheque for the purchase of suitable trees to be planted for shade, and said he would support any move made by the Council for the improvement of the beach.

POSTAL DELIVERY AND TELEPHONE.

On Wednesday, April 28, I accompanied Mr. E. T. Daley and Mr. P. Vock to the Town Hall, and waited on Mr. Forde regarding an extension of the postal delivery to Barney Point and the installation of a public telephone at Eggstein's corner.

Mr. Forde was sympathetic, and promised our officials his utmost support in presenting our requests to the Postmaster General.

SPEED LIMIT.

Regarding vehicles exceeding the speed limit in Tooloa Street, the Police Department stated it would take the necessary steps to control traffic in this area.

SERVICE PIPE MAIN.

I have secured a copy of the Gladstone by-laws, as requested, and by-law 20, dealing with the service pipe main, can be perused at this meeting.

WAITING SHEDS.

A feature of the last Council meeting was the attention given to our requests by the Works Committee, and as stated by the Chairman, two waiting sheds for the convenience of 'bus patrons will be erected early in the new financial year.

VICIOUS DOGS.

With reference to the complaints that vicious dogs are allowed to roam in this suburb, the Council decided that steps would be taken to remove the menace.

COAL ON ROAD.

Our thanks go out to Ald. Deveney for his assistance in requesting the Council to remove an accumulation of coal screenings from the Toolooa-Meatworks crossing, and thus leave the road in a safe condition.

APPRECIATED.

We appreciated Ald. Golding's generous donation of timber for treeguards, and his general outlook towards our Association.

THANKS.

Thanks is extended to the Mayor for his offer of a cheque to the Association.

PROGRESS MADE.

Summing up, I feel sure you will all agree with me that some progress has been made, and with a rapidly increasing membership, I feel sure that our Association will be of some value to the citizens in the suburb.

The report was adopted.

SAVINGS BANKS DEPOSITS.

The savings of the people throughout the Commonwealth continue to increase as never before in our history. This applies to every State. A summary issued by the Commonwealth Statistician gives the total in all savings banks in Australia as £337,124,000 as at April 30, compared with £264,446,000 on April 30, 1942, an increase of £72,678,000 in the past 12 months. The largest percentage increase over the 12 months was in Queensland, viz., 39.63 per cent.

GLADSTONE SHOW SOCIETY

SUCCESSFUL PATRIOTIC RODEO

Total Receipts £470

The complete success of the patriotic rodeo last Saturday, under the auspices of the Gladstone Show Society, must have been thoroughly gratifying to all concerned, and was in aid of the Gladstone and District Patriotic Fund, Gladstone branch of the Comforts Fund, Gladstone Red Cross Society, Calliope branch of the Comforts Fund, and the Gladstone Red Shield Fund.

PROGRAMME ENJOYED.

In the afternoon there was a large attendance, despite the fact that miserable cold weather prevailed, being bleak and sunless, but nevertheless the varied programme was enjoyed, embracing outdoor sport in many forms, besides many side attractions that helped to augment the day's effort.

MAIDEN CAMP DRAFT.

The programme commenced with the maiden camp draft, in which there were thirteen competitors, but owing to the greasy nature of the ground the exhibition was not of a high standard. The total number of points was 100, and E. Aldous won the event, his points totalling 65.

OPEN CAMP DRAFT.

The open camp draft was well represented, and created much interest. In the first round O. Christensen carried off the honours with 83 points, just heading W. Shuck with 80. It was a close and exciting contest.

In the final W. Shuck showed horsemanship of quality in the handling of a fast beast, turning it in a really capital manner, which gained him many points. It was indeed a creditable display, and he was awarded 93 points, histotal being 173, and he thus won the event.

O. Christensen, who also gave a nice exhibition, was second with 83 points in the final round, bringing his total to 166, while P. F. Streeter was third with 83 points, and his total 115.

BULLOCK RIDING CONTEST.

One of the most interesting and amusing events on the programme was the maiden bullock riding contest. There were 17 entries. Some good exhibitions were given, and not a little excitement, and the event was thoroughly enjoyed. F. Owbridge won the contest with 22 points to his credit.

OPEN FLAG RACE.

Several good finishes were witnessed in the open flag race, in which there were four heats and two semi-finals, and W. Shuck won nicely from H. N. Ballantine in the final.

BUCKJUMPING CONTEST.

Good sport was witnesesd in the buckjumping contest, the winner being C. Bateman, with 23 points out of a possible 25.

WIN FOR DESMOND BALLANTINE.

In the flag race for boys and girls two little boys competed, Desmond and Gordon Ballantine, and the event was smartly won by the former.

WALK, TROT AND GALLOP.

The walk, trot and gallop brought out nine entries. The order of this event was once round the track at a walking pace, once round trotting, finishing up at the gallop for the last lap. The winner turned up in K. Bruce, who won by several lengths, with C. Farrell second, and K. Ballantine third.

EXCELLENT ARRANGEMENTS.

The arrangements were admirably carried out by Mr. G. Crow (chairman) and Mr. A. E. Easterby (secretary), and their band of assistants, and the whole proceedings passed off successfully. Mr. E. Jefferis proved to be a most efficient judge, while Mr. A. H. Dahl, of Taragoola, lent valuable assistance in carrying out the programme.

GOOD RETURNS.

The catering arrangements were excellently carried out by the ladies of the Red Cross Society and Red Shield Fund, while the ladies of the Comforts Fund conducted a stall for hot pies, soft drinks and ice cream, and the publican's booth was run by members of the Patriotic Fund, and all showed a good return, as also did the fat bullock weight guessing competition, which was responsible in raising the sum of £50, the work of Mr. M. A. Busteed and Mr. Joe Bensted, in the selling of tickets being praiseworthy.

SPLENDID EFFORT.

All the officials worked well for the patriotic effort, and their most appreciated reward lies in the knowledge that they helped such a deserving object—the war work of the local and district patriotic bodies—with a very handsome sum. The total receipts amounted to £470, gate takings £127, and it is anticipated the five patriotic bodies will each receive a sum in the vicinity of £70.

SUCCESSFUL DANCE.

At night a successful and enjoyable dance was held in the Trocadero in aid of the Prisoner of War Fund.

HOCKEY ASSOCIATION

ANNUAL MEETING

President Mr. J. W. Rigby

The father of the sport in Gladstone, Mr. J. W. Rigby, presided at the annual meeting of the Hockey Association, and there was a good attendance of members, showing that keen interest is still being displayed in keeping the game that grows alive.

The financial statement disclosed a satisfactory position.

During the 1942 season all gate proceeds were donated to patriotic bodies, £5/5/- was handed to the patriotic Xmas hamper fund for the fighting services, and £20 was invested in war savings bonds, leaving a credit balance of £32.

Six teams have already registered for the current season, which promises to be very successful.

The following officers were elected for 1943:—

Patron, Ald. W. R. Golding; president, Mr. J. W. Rigby (who has held the position since the initiation of the game in Gladstone); vice-presidents, Messrs. J. Hopper, L. George, J. Onions; secretary, Miss Nancy Rigby; treasurer, Mr. J. Onions; hon. auditor, Mr. H. Hallam.

A.M.P. SOCIETY

Annual Report

The annual report of the A.M.P. Society discloses new ordinary business figures comprised 39,326 policies, assuring £17,808,638.

In the industrial department 81961 policies were issued, assuring £5,267,985.

Claims by death amounted to £4,488,577, as compared with £3,566,548 last year.

The accumulated funds of the ordinary and industrial departments has been increased by £5,797,240 to £135,432,786.

Investments in loans amount to £90,211,143, and there is a surplus of funds over liabilities in the ordinary department of £1,962,566, out of which £1,791,984 is to be allotted for distribution among the participating policy-holders.

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB

MONTHLY MEDAL COMPETITION

Win for Leo Collins

There was an excellent attendance at the Gladstone Golf Links over the week-end, when members played stroke rounds for the monthly medal. The winner was Leo Collins, who has been playing consistent golf since the season opened. His 69 nett was one stroke better than a card returned by D. Joyce.

The committee has decided to allow members to take out cards over any week-end in any competition. Thus golfers unable to turn up on Saturday afternoon can compete the following day.

Details:—

Leo Collins	94	25	69
D. R. Joyce	92	22	70
D. J. Connellan	90	8	72
H. C. Moore	88	16	72
J. W. Bliss	98	26	72
M. Clifford	92	20	72
F. Peardon	92	16	76
D. R. Joyce	100	22	78
R. Elliott	100	20	80
J. Bliss	112	26	86

THE ASSOCIATES.

Mrs. J. Starmer played good golf to lead a small associate field in their monthly medal. Her 48 was the best gross of the day, and gave her a nett 34. Other cards were Miss L. Burrows 37, Mrs. Starmer 37, and Mrs. Moore 41.

FOUR BALL.

An interesting four ball was played on Monday, when Father Cullen and the club President defeated ex-Secretary Harold O'Sing and Ted Phillips in a low scoring contest.

Father Cullen was the best of the quartette, some of his shots being really brilliant. When he masters the approaches to the local sand greens he will trouble our best scratch markers.

BOWLING

Week-End Games

HANDICAP SINGLES.

The handicap singles continue to be the main attraction at the Gladstone Bowling green, and four matches contested over the week-end were keenly contested, with only a few points separating opponents.

The highlights of the day were the Humphries-Johnston and Mackay-Joyner games. The singles title holder had to give of his best to defeat Lionel Johnston, the margin being 31-26 in a fluctuating match.

R. J. Mackay had a great tussle with Arthur Joyner, eventually winning 31-22, but the winner went down in a subsequent contest, when C. D. Cooper emerged victor 31-24.

George Dennis's recent mayoral success did not carry undue weight with host Joe Hogan, and the town's first citizen went down 31-22.

Hogan is a strong tip for the final, but he has yet to meet the country champion, Charlie Chapman, who is in fine form.

SOCIAL GAMES.

Social games resulted:—

Pugh, Seaton, Joyner v. Young, Hixon, Bycroft 23-16.

S. C. Wilson, Schmidt, A. Blake v. Buetell, J. Smith, A. Blake 24-15.

PRISONERS OF WAR.

A scheme for the employment of Italian and German prisoners of war has been extensively developed by the Department of the Army during the past two years. At present more than 1500 prisoners of war are engaged in growing vegetables and other crops under specialist direction, 500 are cutting firewood for departmental use, and more than 1000 are employed finalising construction of camps erected by prisoners of war. It has been found that many prisoners of war are excellent workmen interested in their jobs, and eager to acquire knowledge of Australian methods of production.

MARJORIE NORVAL INQUIRY

Disappearance Still Mystery

The Marorie Norval inquiry, which terminated in Brisbane on Friday last, produced a great amount of conflicting evidence, and some scenes which savoured more of a cheap theatrical entertainment than a court of law.

Many will be pleased that the sordid proceedings have been closed.

In the minds of most people the fate of the missing woman remains as great a mystery as previously.

The inquiry reflects no credit on anyone, and least of all on those members of the Government who are charged with the responsibility of ensuring that the processes of justice are not used for political ends. It is hoped that a determination to keep politics out of the courts will prevail in future.

HOSPITAL TAX

And Social Security

The President of the Queensland airyman's Organisation (Mr. W. L. Osborne) writes as follows in the "Courier-Mail" of June 5:—

Queensland primary producers would appreciate the placing before the Federal Parliamentary Committee on Social Security, evidence emphasising the injustice of the incidence of taxation levied for upkeep of public hospitals in this State.

Sixty per cent of hospital financial deficiencies is met from consolidated revenue, and 40 per cent by local authority precepts. This means that landholders first contribute their full proportion towards the former, and must, irrespective of income or financial position, pay the whole of the latter.

If every wage earner was required to pay a nominal weekly sum to hospital funds he and dependents would then receive hospital service as a right and not, as now frequently happens, as a charity.

Why not extend the system to universal compulsory superannuation to obviate the morale destroying old age pensions?

There is grave danger of the Federal Government's projected social legislation being of "non-contributory" nature so far as it concerns those sections of the public calculated to gain the most benefit.

BRISBANE BAKERS RESUME.

Operative bakers returned to work yesterday (Tuesday), and the Foodstuffs Union, of which they are members, will apply to the Industrial Court to have their claims heard this week.

COUPON GOODS.

The distiction between woollen and non-woollen articles for coupon rating has been abolished in the new clothing schedules announced in the Commonwealth Gazette on Monday. Coupon goods must not be auctioned without permission, but they may be raffled under prescribed conditions.

At the end of each quarter each producer must submit a return showing the number of pounds of butter supplied and the number of coupons collected. These coupons are to be forwarded with the return.

3. Until June 30th, 1943, a farmer or other person who produces butter may supply farm or dairy butter to a RETAILER, or a BUTTER AGENT or BUTTER FACTORY without collecting coupons. The person supplied must, however, give the farmer a dated receipt slip setting out the amount of butter supplied. These receipt slips will be forwarded by the farmer along with the return and coupons mentioned in paragraph 2. By June 30th, 1943, all persons trading in farm or dairy butter must be registered with the Rationing Commission and coupons must be collected by producers in all cases where the person supplied is not so registered. After that date the receipt slip given by such registered persons must set out the registered number of the person supplied.

4. A farmer who obtains for resale butter made by any other farmer must register as a Dealer in farm or dairy butter. Application forms are obtainable from the Deputy Director of Rationing.

5. In order to be in a position to supply necessary particulars to the Rationing Commission a farmer must keep a record of all butter supplied by him.

6. To supply butter otherwise than in accordance with the Rationing Regulations is Black Marketing.

The sort of world WE WANT

IN this world of violence and of change, the people with a fighting purpose—with clean-cut objectives—are in the best position to win through to Security and the sort of world they want.

We Australians can have the sort of world we want if we are prepared to make sacrifices for it in the living of our everyday lives.

There are two immediate objectives worthy of us:

(1) to strengthen our fighting arm,

(2) to avoid the economic error of thinking that we can take more out of a pint pot than we put into it.

The means of achieving both objectives are the same: Work, Wisdom, Thrift, and a spirit of Co-operation. There are no alternatives.

The members of the A.M.P. Society (numbering about one family in every three in the Commonwealth) aim at financial security for themselves and their families and are prepared to make sacrifices to attain it. Their contributions to the Society's funds range from a shilling a week upwards, but so widespread is the co-operation, so vast the membership, that the Society's income last year was £17,315,000 and its assets are valued to-day at £140,000,000.

Last year the A.M.P. paid out £8,250,000 in benefits to members and their beneficiaries, but in addition it has been, and still is, putting £500,000 a month into the War Loans. To date it has lent £50,000,000 to the Commonwealth. Its ability to help its members and the Nation grows from day to day. It has a fighting purpose that is based on Work, Wisdom, Thrift, and Co-operation. What the A.M.P. has achieved is a signpost for the Nation as a whole.

TOMATOES

How To Preserve Them

Medium sized firm ripe red tomatoes should be selected for preserving. Remove the stems carefully so as not to break the skin, pack in the jars, and fill to the top with a solution in the proportion of ¼ lb. sale, 2 oz. sugar, and one gallon water.

Place jars in warm water, screwing on tops with rubbers on, but not tightly, and exhaust by boiling for five minutes. The tops can now be lightly screwed down, the jars then being submerged and boiled for a further five to eight minutes.

If peeled tomatoes are preferred, dip in boiling water till the skins loosen, and then plunge into cold water and the skins will rub off easily.

Tomatoes may also be preserved in jars in their own pulp. This method is more economical than preserving them in brine solution, as with the latter the liquid is discarded when the tomatoes are to be used, and thus much of the flavour is lost, while the liquid also takes up considerable room in the jars. By cooking the tomatoes in their own pulp there is no loss whatever, as the pulp can be used in soups and many other ways.

The method is to crush firm ripe tomatoes, making certain that no diseased parts are used; boil briskly for about one hour, strain the pulp through a sieve or coarse muslin with mesh sufficiently small to prevent seeds and skin from passing through; add salt to taste, place in warm jars, screw on tops with rubbers on, but not tightly, and exhaust by submerging jars up to neck in boiling water for five minutes. Fasten down lids tightly and cook for eight to ten minutes. Peeled tomatoes are best for this method.

TOMATO JAM.

Wash and stem the fruit, place in cooking vessel, crush sufficient of the fruit to start boiling, and reduce the whole to pulp by boiling, say, for half to three-quarters of an hour. Strain all the pulp through a ¼-inch mesh sieve and weigh. Add ¾ lb. sugar for each pound of pulp, and bring to the boil. The cooking time cannot be stated definitely, there being many influencing factors. Fast boiling for approximately an hour to an hour and a quarter will produced the desired consistency.

As tomato jam made to this recipe is inclined to be insipid, the addition of a little acid in the form of citric or tartaric or pineapple, etc., as a decided improvement.

The addition of acid should be done when the jam is about half cooked, and at the rate of 1 oz. to 25 lb. of pulp.

Lemon juice may be substituted for tartaric, and if it is desired to use the whole lemons, they should be cut up into very thin slices and boiled for, say, half an hour before being added to the jam.

Apple pectin added to tomato jam has proved a decided success, supplying bulk, combination, and acid in one

THE HOME GARDEN

Growing Parsley

Parsley will grow almost anywhere and on any kind of soil which is not of too stiff a nature, although a partially shaded position and a rich, moist soil suit it best.

Being a biennial, it must be sown each year in order to provide a continuous supply. It should be sown twice a year—in March and April for use in winter and spring, and again in August and September for use in summer.

Seeds may be sown in shallow drills in the open ground, and the seedlings thinned out to about six inches apart.

It frequently happens that parsley is sown too thickly, and early thinning is neglected, with the result that the plants run to seed prematurely.

Instead of sowing a continuous row, drop a few seeds along the drill at 6-inch intervals, and when the seedlings have developed several leaves remove all but the strongest plant in each group.

VALUE OF GOATS' MILK

For Feeding Infants and Children

Goats' milk is highly nutritious, and although the flavour is slightly different to that of cows' milk, it is frequently difficult to detect this difference if the goats are properly fed. Goats' milk is alkaline in reaction, whilst cows' milk is acid.

All milk undergoes a process of curdling in the stomach. With cows' milk the curd is large, hard and tough, whilst the curd of goats' milk is small, light and flocculent, so that digestion is greatly facilitated.

Goats' milk has a high butter fat content, approximately 5 per cent. The fat globules are much smaller than in cows' milk, and do not rise readily to the top of the milk in a distinct layer, but the fat is readily separated by the ordinary separator.

The butter made from goats' milk is white, though otherwise of the same appearance and taste as butter made from cows' milk, and when artificially coloured, is indistinguishable from it.

Goats' milk is also very suitable for making cheese on account of the high percentage of casein it contains, and is used very largely for this purpose in Switzerland.

The value of goats' milk for feeding infants and children is well known, and its use is strongly recommended by the medical profession for this purpose.

Goats' milk is said to be digested in the human stomach in 20 minutes, this being due to the fine curd and the fact that the small fat globules are easily assimilated.

For ordinary use goats' milk can be taken fresh and in its raw state, with every confidence in its purity and high nutritive value. Tuberculosis in the goat is almost unknown, especially in this country, and there is no record in this State of undulant fever being contracted from goats' milk.

DECENTRALISE INDUSTRY

Cheap Electric Power Essential

Immediate consideration of the preliminary details of the enormous task of feeding the world have been urged by the United Nations Food Conference, which has just concluded its sittings at Hot Springs in Virginia. Forty-four countries sent delegates.

Targets set for four crops for the 1943-44 Australian season were announced in Sydney by the Production Executive at the end of last week. The targets are 174,000 acres of potatoes, 70,000 acres of flax, 600,000 bushels of blue peas, and 8,000,000 bushels of barley.

Commenting on the necessity for constructive post war planning now, Mr. D. H. Drummond, C.P. member for Armidale, said: "My own idea is that when this war ceases we will need everything we can produce. Everything will be in enormous demand. Differences of exchange may demand organised marketing for a while, but the sooner producer control comes the better. It is a question whether Australia can or ought to look to the present demand for products, caused by the destruction of production facilities and of flocks and herds in devastated countries, to be a pointer to her permanent policy. Rather, I think, she should build up home markets."

"The first cause of malnutrition is poverty," which is one of the points in the Food Conference's 7-point declaration; and the first cause of poverty is unemployment.

"Development of a hydro-electric power scheme with cheap power available at a flat rate all over Australia is the first essential in any attempt to decentralise industry, which in itself is essential for the re-absorption of service men and women into civilian life."

Mr. Drummond continued: "It is quite certain that after the war many men will have to be absorbed into undertakings such as hydro-electric and other power schemes as temporary measures. These jobs would provide an excellent opportunity for the tapering off of men to the working of their own small irrigated farms. What is needed is the extension of a policy along lines of power development, which will provide profitable work and employment in primary and secondary industries."

COMINTERN DISBANDED

Stalin a Realist

The Comintern, not to be regarded as an organ of the Soviet Government, was the director of international Communist propaganda and activity. To Western European minds it represented the bogey of world-wide Communist revolution. It is to be remembered, too, that there was a time when the Comintern was actively engaged in fomenting revolution in many lands throughout the world. The time came, however, when Russia realised that she could not successfully devote herself to this world revolutionary mission and to the adequated development of her own internal economy. For the time being, at any rate, Russia decided to concentrate upon putting her own house in order by means of her successive five-year plans.

A large part of the world refused to believe that the Red menace was no longer an immediate danger. Fears of Communism were fomented by German propaganda, and the declaration of the German mission as that of forming a bulwark against Communist intrigue and possible Russian attack.

Then came the anti-Comintern Pact, with Germany, Italy and Japan as its signatories. The pact is the alleged basis and reason for Axis co-operation.

In view of these facts Moscow's announcement of the disbanding of the Comintern is, in the main, of twofold significance. First and foremost is the fact that British and American people who have feared activities directed by the Comintern in their own land may now be assured that there is no longer ground for such fear.

British and American opinion will be greatly assured by the fact that the Comintern is now no more. The second fact is that the main item of German propaganda is now seen to be meaningless.

If there is no Comintern, what is to become of the anti-Comintern Pact? Logically it should lapse, but it was never just what it pretended to be, and by its continuance will be readily recognised for what it really is.

Stalin is a realist, and saw that the setting of Russian affairs in order must be his main concern. He has given his reasons for the disbanding of the Comintern. It was necessary, he said, "because it facilitates the organisation of a common onslaught by freedom-loving nations against the common enemy—Hitlerism."

That is the sum and substance of the matter. The existence of the Comintern and its activities were a source of distrust, which could not exist without harmful effects among the United Nations.

Russia has declared that her policy is one of non-interference with the internal affairs of other nations, and the disbanding of the Comintern may be regarded as an evidence of good faith by those who have had doubts regarding Russia's intentions. There is another aspect of this event which is of significance. It removes any doubt that may have existed concerning the possibility of United Nations' collaboration in post-war reconstruction.

DEBT TO NAVY

"Brotherhood of the Sea"

Archdeacon S. H. Denman, preaching at the naval memorial service at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Sydney, said that it was one of the compensations of war that it brought into bold relief the heroic stuff of which men and women were made.

"The strength, the endurance, the courage, the resolution, all we mean by the word hero," he said, "shine out in innumerable facts and stories which fill our minds with thankfulness and stir our hearts to richer and deeper devotion. We may shudder as we ponder the blastings and sinkings of the war. Yet an epic grows out of this long drawn-out struggle—the song of the men who risk their lives for the love and care of comrades; of the women who suffer and minister to the suffering and those who dare it all for their country's sake."

"It evolved no approbation of war as such to approve of the heroism which war evoked," he continued. "We shall never be able to pay the debt we owe to the officers and men of our navies, who are a wonderful brotherhood of the sea," added the preacher. "We stand at a desperately critical history in the world's history. Walls are breaking down, and a new sense of comrodeship is leaping from heart to heart. Directly the spirit of giving begins to make itself felt an exhilarating process of linking-up takes place. We begin to lose our little lives and link them up in the great life of our country, our cause, and our kin. The Christ who, in saving others, saved not Himself, claims us as His comrades."

There can be little if any doubt as to the average Britisher's pride in the Navy and his sense of indebtedness to it for all that it has done in the preservation of our liberty, and also by way of making possible a considerable part of the activity of our land and air forces.

More than once in the past the Navy has saved the island home of the Briton from invasion, and in the present conflict the part played by the Navy is no less important than it has ever been.

We have been inclined at times to think that the narrow stretch of the English Channel has been Britain's salvation from invasion, but that is only part of the truth. The Sicilian narrows are about four times as wide as the English Channel, but they will be powerless to save Italy from invasion. The difference between the British and the Italian situations is largely that of the difference between their navies.

It is not only the achievements of the Navy in which we rejoice, but also the spirit of its service and sacrifice. We think none the less these days of the Merchant Navy, which has travelled the sea lanes that our fighting ships have kept open.

Hitler's greatest hope of ultimate victory has lain in his ability to strike at our ships, and he has done so relentlessly and with considerable effect. He has not been able, however, to drive our ships from the sea or to institute anything in the nature of a blockade. The Navy has made the difference between Dunkirk for the British and Tunisia for the Axis, and probably the greatest role in its history is yet to be played.

CURRENT TOPICS

FRUIT PRICES.

Prosecutions are pending against a number of fruiterers in Brisbane for disregard of price orders fixing the price of certain fruit and vegetables, and for failure to display price signs in accordance with regulations.

SHOP LIGHTS LAW.

Police acted in Brisbane at the week-end to enforce the National Security rule restricting lighting in shop windows. It was stated officially that the regulation was designed to save electricity.

INTEREST FREE LOAN.

The manager of the Gladstone branch of the Commonwealth Bank, Mr. W. H. Hall, advises that the sum of £100 has been received as an interest free loan to the Commonwealth Government from the Country Women's Association, Gladstone branch.

BUTTER 7/- LB.

Butter was sold for 7/- a lb. without coupons in Canberra at the week-end, but there will be no prosecution. A couple of pounds were left over from supper donations to a party held at Ainslie Hostel in aid of the China appeal, and the surplus was acutioned. With the experience of a week on rations, bidders were keen to get the extra supply.

MR. DWYER WELCOMED.

On Monday morning, at the Court House, the newly appointed S.M. (Mr. M. Dwyer), who was recently transferred to Gladstone from Bowen, was tendered an official welcome. The C.P.S. (Mr. J. F. Donovan) and Sergt. S. Coxon, on behalf of their respective staffs, wished Mr. Dwyer and his family a happy stay in Gladstone. Mr. Dwyer suitably acknowledged the compliment.

POLICE COURT.

At the Police Court on Monday, before the S.M. (Mr. M. Dwyer), William John Dunn, labourer, was charged with stealing a silver bell alarm clock, valued at 15/-, the property of Mrs. A. Chapman, of Gondoon Street. The facts disclosed that Mrs. Chapman left the shop for a short period about mid-day on Sunday, and on returning found the kitchen door open and the clock missing. The defendant was arrested by Constables Gerber and Fels. In answer to the charge Dunn pleaded guilty, and was ordered to enter into his own recognisance in the sum of £20 to come up for sentence if called upon within six months. The clock was ordered to be returned to Mrs. Chapman. Sergeant S. Coxon prosecuted.

AIR RAID TEST.

Another successful air raid test was held on Saturday afternoon, and those who took part included Wardens, Police, Fire Brigade, W.A.D.'s, W.N.E.L., Red Cross Emergency Auxiliary, Auxiliary Transport drivers and Boy Scouts. The test covered a period of two hours, and the work carried out reflected credit on all concerned. The newly appointed Stipendiary Magistrate (Mr. M. Dwyer) patrolled the sections during the test with Sergt. S. Coxon, and expressed himself in praiseworthy terms with the efficiency displayed by all the services. A new feature was the attendance of the Red Shield mobile canteen, which dispensed hot refreshments to the various members of the services, and the kindly gesture was greatly appreciated.

GLADSTONE TOWN COUNCIL

£90,000 LOAN - BOYNE RIVER WATER SUPPLY

ALD. GOLDING HOPES TO START THE WORK TO-DAY

The fortnightly meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. E. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

LOAN OF £90,000.

The Treasury Department, Brisbane, asked to be advised if any action had been taken by the Council in the matter of negotiations for the loan of £90,000 in connection with the Boyne River water supply scheme, and also if satisfactory arrangements could be made regarding the survey and the preparation of plans and specifications. The Council should also, prior to the commencement of the work, make application to the Manpower authorities for assistance in securing the required number of men for the job, and also if necessary apply to the Allied Works Council for the release of men from the Civil Constructional Corps.

Ald. Golding moved that application be made to the State Government Insurance Office for a loan of £90,000 for the completion of the Boyne River water supply scheme. Seconded by Ald. Smith and carried.

COAL ON ROAD.

Swift Australian Company (Pty.) Ltd., Gladstone, acknowledged letter relative to coal on the roadway between the Railway Station and the turn-off on their private road, and they had taken up the matter of the Council's complaint with the contract carriers concerned, and trusted there would be no further cause for complaint.—Received.

A FOOTPATH.

Mr. A. A. Lowe, Gladstone, drew attention to the footpath in front of his residence, which he stated was in a deplorable condition.—The matter was referred to the Works Committee.

A DRAIN.

Sub-collector of Customs (Mr. R. J. Mackay) brought under notice the faulty condition of the drain from the basement of the Customs House under Lord Street to Auckland Creek. It was noticed that during the recent rain that flooding was caused in the basement of the building, apparently due to the blockage of the drain, and an inspection would be appreciated to ascertain the cause.—The matter was referred to the Works Committee.

DRAINAGE.

Mr. E. H. Warren, Gladstone, drew attention to the drainage in front of his property, and considered the stench was a menace to health, and again asked that something be done to alleviate this state of affairs.—The matter was left in the hands of the Health Inspector to attend to.

A COMPLAINT.

Mr. S. J. McCallum, Gladstone, complained of water lying at the corner of his yard, which, he stated, was caused by the water running down from Off Lane, and collected in a big pool. He asked that the matter be attended to.—The complaint was referred to the Works Committee.

NO OBJECTION.

Mr. J. Schulze, Gladstone, asked for permission to connect the water to his property through Mr. Cullen's pipe line.—It was decided that the Council offer no objection.

THREE REQUESTS.

South Gladstone and Barney Point Progress Association presented the following requests:—

(1) Attention to the footpath in Pier Street in front of Mr. F. Salgado's residence, which had been washed out by heavy rains, and was in a dangerous condition.

(2) Attention to the flood waters that flow through Mrs. G. Doble's property during wet weather in Off Street. It was stated the grading of a drain would rectify this matter.

(3) The Association recommended the request by Mr. Judge, of Bell Street, to have his house connected with electric light, and if it was necessary to carry the line a distance over his property he was prepared to purchase the necessary poles.

REQUESTS DEALT WITH.

Ald. Golding stated that with Ald. Smith he had met the executive officers of the Association, and they decided to co-operate by supplying soil for the planting of trees at Barney Point, and the Association undertook to plant the trees and attend to the watering.

From Barney Point they proceeded to Pier Street and Robert Street, where the site of the proposed shelter sheds were inspected.

Ald. Golding went on to say that the Mayor and aldermen were well aware of the difficulty in coping with the problem of drainage of this area. It could only be done by pipe line, either to Toolooa Street or Off Lane.

In regard to the flood waters that flowed through Mr. D. Doble's property, Ald. Golding recommended that the Council resume portion of the property in the vicinity and run a concrete pipe line through to the railway, and moved that the engineer prepare an estimate with a view to budgeting for the work in the next financial year. The motion was seconded by Ald. Tudman and carried.

In regard to request No. 3, it was decided to inform the Association that until more houses were built along the line the application could not be entertained.

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME.

Ald. Golding said at the last meeting of the Council it was decided that the supervision of the construction of the Boyne River water supply scheme be attended to by the Works Committee, and he was now pleased to be able to report that all the machinery would be on the job in the morning (Tuesday), and he hoped to have the work commenced on Wednesday morning (to-day).

HOUSES CLOSED.

Ald. Smith moved that Mr. Ambrose be written to asking him to have certain houses in William Street closed so as to prevent abuses being carried out. Seconded by Ald. Golding and carried.

PAY HALF THE COST.

The Water Foreman (Mr. D. Jackson) submitted an estimate for extending the water main to Mr. Padget's property in Worthington Street, via Scenery Street, the approximate distance being 660 feet.

It was decided to lay down a three-quarter inch pipe, provided Mr. Padget paid half the cost in accordance with his previous letter to the Council.

HELD OVER.

In reference to a request for water by Mr. A. C. Draper, of Coney Island, it was decided to hold the matetr over until fibro cement pipes could be obtained.

Mr. Jackson reported that fibro cement pipes were unprocurable in Brisbane at the present time.

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

The Engineer (Mr. E. W. Phillips) reported that since last meeting he had pumped electrically for 734 hours, using 14,925 units.—The report was adopted.

Work Report

The Overseer (Mr. R. Tait) reported on the work carried out by the town gang for the month of May.

GLENLYON STREET.

All the ruts and washouts in this street, between Bramston Street and Tank Street, have been filled with gravel.

AUCKLAND STREET

The bad places on the edges of the bitumen, between Roseberry Street and Herbert Street, were gravelled. There is also a very bad place on the shoulders of the roadway in front of McLeod's Depot that should receive attention. The ruts are deep, and make it awkward for turning at this place. The footpath at the State School was chipped, and all the grass growing under the shrubs on this footpath was cleared away.

YAROON STREET.

The footpath, from the Post Office down to Central Lane, was gravelled.

DERBY STREET.

Some gravel filling was put in across the water channel at a gate entrance, and the intersection at Buller Street also received attention.

TANK STREET.

All the weeds and grass growing around the young trees recently planted in this street have been chipped out and the ground around them has been dug.

The men are at present putting in concrete pipes under the roadway on Flinders Parade.

The report was adopted.

FIRST SECTION BOYNE SCHEME.

The Overseer (Mr. R. Tait) reported on the progress of the gravitation main between 0' peg and 15,000' peg. Since my last report on work completed to the 29th April there have been only two men and myself employed for seven days, and the remainder of the period there was only one man and myself, with the exception of the last two days, when I was fortunate enough to get another two men. The cement for the job arrived on May 11, and I got delivery on that date.

The work completed during the period from the 29th April to 27th May was excavating bases, 10 cu. yds. earthwork, carting special castings on to the line, carting 17 cu. yds. gravel, 7 cu. yds. sand, and carting the cement.

Since the cement arrived we have been on concrete work. The excavations for the bases of all the piers have been completed. The concrete piers are completed from 6100' peg to 15,000' peg. There are 49 concrete piers completed to date, and three concrete bases, where the work is in progress, at 5400' peg. There are several places in the small gullies on the line where 12" and 15" diameter concrete pipes are specified to carry the storm waters under the castiron main.

Both ends of the concrete pipes have to be stone pitched, with rubble filling cover over the main, and as this cannot be done until after the existing 6in. main has been lifted, I would recommend that instead of putting in concrete pipes, to construct a small concrete pier to be built on each side of the gully, and the gully cleaned out or deepened under the main to enable the storm water to flow in an open channel, even if we have to raise the levels of the grade line a few inches at those places. It is my intention to confer with Engineer Fenwick on this matter.

All the special castings that I have received have been laid on the line where required.

The report was adopted.

Health Report

The Health Inspector (Mr. P. F. Browne) reported on the health and sanitation of the town for the past month.

INFECTIOUS DISEASES.

A positive case of diphtheria occurred during the month. The patient was a preschool child, and had not been immunized. The patient was removed to the isolation ward of the Gladstone Hospital, and on receipt of its third negative swab has since been discharged.

In the swabbing of the contacts a carrier was detected. This carrier was removed by the Ambulance to isolation, and after a week's detention the application of a virulence test proved she was not capable of spreading the disease, so was discharged in accordance with the regulations. The premises were suitably disinfected, and all the necessary precautions taken during the infective period.

IMMUNIZATION.

A group of forty children have received two immunizing injections at the Medical Officer's surgery. The final injection will be given in a fortnight's time. It is proposed to start other groups when the present numbers are completed, as it is becoming very popular, and people are beginning to realise that the method is safe and reliable.

SANITARY CONTRACT.

This essential service has been working under difficulties, due to lack of manpower. For some time now three men have been working long hours to keep the cleansing and sanitary services of the town in operation, and during that period only an occasional complaint was received. The fourth man has commenced work, so the old practice will be reverted to of apportioning men for the various cleansing services. Additional new pans are being put into the service as they come to hand. The disposal work should show improvement with the additional labour.

The collection, removal, and disposal of household refuse appears to be working to the satisfaction of the community, as no complaints have reached the office concerning this service. The dump has a good covering of sawdust, but the garbage truck has been stuck several times during the month. It requires an earth covering to hold the truck.

DRAINAGE.

Drainage and other complaints were investigated during the month. Several drains in various localities are still giving trouble. These are mainly from baths and sinks.

A complaint has been received concerning the drainage from Mr. F. Williams' property, in Oaka Lane. This drain is soaking over the Council's footpath, and runs past his neighbour's place. The trouble here is that the whole of the wastes from the baths, sinks, and other washing waters are discharged into the street. No attempt is made to pick it up on the premises.

Other places where wastes are discharged on to the street have been prevented from doing this by absorbing all wastes on the property. This is a very old nuisance, and has been going on for some time.

GLADSTONE BOWLING CLUB

SINGLES HANDICAP

Three Good Contests

At the Gladstone Bowling green three sterling contests marked the continuation of the handicap singles. It is difficult to say which was the best game, but Joe Hogan and Cedric Cooper battled to the 47th end before the shipping man had to admit defeat. Hogan won 31-29.

Arthur Drewe and Ned Masterson had an equally hard contest, Drewe eventually winning 31-29 at the 45th end.

P. A. Friend had to go to 42 ends before he headed Don Schmidt, the game finishing 31-26.

Social matches resulted:—

Fewster, Humphries v. Ferris, Golding 18-17.

Dennis, Pring v. Joyner, Browne 31-15.

INSPECTIONS.

House to house inspections have been continued, particular attention being paid to the screening of rain-water tanks. Some very old and dilapidated tanks have been noticed during these inspections, and instructions have been given to kerosene all tanks where no protective screens are used.

RAT BAITS.

Rat baits are being laid at certain sections. There is an increasing demand for more baits. Rats appear to be on the increase at certain parts of the town.

The report was adopted.

Water Report

The Foreman (Mr. D. D. Jackson) reported that the following works were carried out during the month of May:—

Reading water meters.

Renewed two lengths of 1in. main in Pier Street.

Trenched and laid 79ft. of 1in. main in Walsh Street to connect a new consumer.

Repaired leak on 4in. castiron main on Auckland Hill.

Packed gland on valve corner Tank and Auckland Streets.

Gave notice to several consumers to have service pipes repaired, also cut off three consumers pending repairs.

Blew out all dead ends, and these are receiving further attention.

AT THE WATERWORKS.

The suction gas plant was run for 126½ hours, and pumped approximately 1,122,280 gallons. Cleaned gas pipes from scrubber to engine. Removed No. 2 plunger piston and cleaned grease channels in gudgeon pin. Cattle were again getting in, and they were put out and the fence inspected and repaired. Blew out all scours between pumping station and town.

The rainfall at the Waterworks for the month of May was 326 points. This fell in four falls, from the 14th to 31st, and put about 2 inches in the dam. The dam on June 1 was 3 ft. 2 ins. below the by-wash, being 8in. for the month. No. 2 tank was full on June 1, and since May 16 gravitation has been the order.

The plant has given no trouble, and is running satisfactorily.

The report was adopted.

Electric Light Authority

NO MATERIAL.

Mr. C. D. Tweed, Gladstone, made application for electricity to be installed at his residence.

Mr. Phillips reported that he had no material on hand at the present time.

The matter is to be reported on again.

GENERAL.

It was decided to write to the State Electricity Commission for permission to remove the shades from the street lights.

ACCOUNTS PASSED.

Following accounts were passed for payment:—General account £588/2/2, water £205/13/8, electric £574/2/-, debenture loan (water) £87/13/1, debenture loan (electric) £27/16/

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB

DISTANCE COMPETITION

Win for Frank Peardon

Members played a disetance competition at the Gladstone Golf links on Saturday, but were handicapped by unfavourable conditions, due to the week-end rain at the long fifth hole. Finishing 30 feet from the pin at the 18th, Frank Peardon handed in the best card. Bob Elliott was close up with his last shot, stopping 60 feet from the final green. Then followed M. Clifford 40 yds. out 18th green; L. Collins, 17th hole, and . R. Joyce, 17th fairway.

NEW ASSOCIATE WINS.

A new associate, playing her first game on the local links, Miss Winnie Archay, tied with Mrs. J. Starmer in the ladies' competition, both finishing on the 9th green. Miss Lorna Burrows got to the 8th green, Mrs. Burnham the 8th fairway, and Miss Kaine the 7th green.

WEDDING BELLS

PEVITT-BAUER.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Nundah, Brisbane, on June 5 by Rev. Martin, when Esmae, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Bauer, of Gladstone, was married to Jack, only son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Pevitt, of Nundah.

The tall, graceful bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, who subsequently gave her away, was gowned in ivory satin, which fell in graceful folds and trailed on the floor in a long train. The beautiful net veil was lent by Mrs. Carney, a friend of the bride. She was attended by Miss Phyllis Smith, of Lutwyche, who wore a full length frock of powder blue georgette, with matching headgear.

The large two-tiered cake was the gift of Mr. E. Ross, cousin of the bride.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

BOXING.

Herb Narvo, Australia's champion Rugby League forward of the 1937-38 Kangaroos in England, will appear before the Queensland public in a new role at the Brisbane Stadium on Friday night, when he will oppose the giant American negro, Al Hoosman.

Narvo has built up a fine K.O. record. Among his most notable victims are Britt, McNamee, Stehr and Wright. He won the title from Britt in 45 seconds.

Hoosman won six fights in America before enlisting, but this will be his first Australian fight. He is 6ft. 5in. tall, and possesses a reach of 82 inches.

SOLDIERS' FRIEND

AUSTRALIAN COMFORTS FUND

Letter From Sergt. Hill

We have received another interesting letter from Sergt. Frank Hill, who is with the Forces in New Guinea:—

"I find that I have a little leisure time on my hands, and for the moment, owing to some little incident ment, owing to some little incident turning my thoughts to your estimable "Observer," I venture to encroach on your time by attempting to give your readers and the members of the Comforts Fund in Gladstone an insight of just what is done by way of entertainment for the boys in New Guinea.

"Let me say at the outset that the A.C.F. is without doubt the soldier's friend, not forgetting the Salvation Army, who have distinguished themselves in providing in many ways for the comfort of the troops.

"In the first place let me briefly run through the activities of the A.C.F.

"It is to this organisation that falls the lot of allocatinb comforts to every soldier, irrespective of rank or creed. This in itself is enough to keep clerks and administration staff constantly working, having in mind the fact that troops move from one place to another in a most disconcerting manner.

"Many amenities of life are handled, viz., tobacco, cigarettes, matches, shaving material, toilet and washing soap, writing materials, handkerchiefs, and sometimes even such things as sox. In fact, nothing seems too much for the A.C.F.

In addition we have both the A.C.F. and Salvation Army providing suitable quarters for the soldier to sit down and write home, and if he is so inclined, to read and discuss different matters with his friends he meets from time to time. Even such things as a piano is provided.

"With regard to the sporting side of entertainment life, it has been my pleasure to be associated with quite a few projects in my particular area. In this respect we have to thank the Y.M.C.A. This body of men are very active in providing entertainments, and I will endeavour to point out some of the prominent functions so far attempted.

"Firstly, we have the stadium, which is a really fine piece of cooperative work. The ring is of standard size, very strongly built, and stands in the centre of a natural basin at the foot of a hill. The sides of the basin have been trimmed to form seats in tiers, which gives a really good bleachers effect. Dressing rooms have been built for the contestants, and everything is run smoothly.

"The boxing contests are staged approximately every month, and each night brings more challengers for the various titles.

"As you may imagine, barracking is og a very intensive type. Both the Aussies and Americans can sure make some noise when their particular fancied candidate puts in an appearance. I myself get a ton of fun listening to the barracking, and of course the inevitable betting.

"The different styles of boxing in the Americans and Aussies give rise to many witty remarks. It may interest some of the Gladstonites to know that on one occasion Peter Colby (a one-time fighter in the Mackay district) was the referee. Also it is the intention within the next few weeks of Kev. Lindley, of Gladstone, well-known in fistic circles, to try his prowess in the hempen square. I think that Kev. will do very well, as he has toughened up a lot since his stay in these tropics. He is well looked after by his brother, Bill Lindley.

"A gew remarks regarding the heavy division will perhaps interest you. The heavyweight division is mostly contested by Americans. The contestants are, as a rule, of the lumber jack type, if I might use the term. Both American negros and whites put up a real punching duel at times and on other occasions the match is more or less what the wags term a love wrestle. But the whole tournament creates a tremendous amount of interest, and gives rise to many hot arguments.

"It is the true stadium atmosphere, even so far as the spectators themselves getting into holts about their fancies.

"Now I will give you an idea of a more classic function. This is in the term of 'the melody parade.' Actually it is a more up-to-date version of the amateur hour on the wireless.

"Contestants had in their names with the type of number they intend to render to the Y.M.C.A. A programme is drawn up, and the show is staged at the Stadium, which has had an up-to-date stage completed, with footlights erected for the purpose.

"All classes compete—Aussies, Americans, members of Allies' nursing staffs, and, of course, much variety is seen. From the latest in swing music to such old-timers as classics and male voice choirs, quartettes, trios, etc., not to speak of the jazz swing orchestra, and instrumentalists.

"The judging is done by specially selected and competent personnel coupled with the applause from the audience.

"I have already written to you regarding the swimming carnival staged on Easter Monday, the first of its kind in this area. It is the intention of the Y.M.C.A. to hold another in the near future, so popular was the last one.

"Of course, besides the functions and events I have mentioned, we have a very regular screening of talkies. I believe we are to have some of the latest releases shortly.

"The foregoing will give you an idea in brief of just what is done to help the soldier in his leisure to pass the time pleasantly.

"It is my intention later to describe in detail for you the 'melody parade' to be held shortly, and I can assure you it will be well worth attending."

COMFORTS FUND

MONTHLY STREET STALL

Donations Asked For

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the joint A.C.F. and Patriotic Appeal Fund will be conducted in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, June 18.

The convenor, Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan would appreciate donation of jam, fruit cakes, vegetables, sweets, or any other home manufacture or articles for sale on that date.

SHORTAGE OF NURSES

A Final Appeal

Authough definite progress has been made in overcoming the shortage existing on the staffs of both public and private hospitals in respect of nurses and domestics, there are still many vacancies to be filled before it can be said that these institutions are definitely staffed.

It is a dreadful thing to have to admit that there is a danger of any patient being refused admission because of staff shortages, and the Deputy Director of Manpower in Queensland (Mr. F. E. Walsh) is determined that as far as possible such a contingency shall not arise in Queensland. This is one of the gravest responsibilities of the manpower directorate, and he is convinced that sufficient opportunities have been afforded nurses and domestics to offer their services voluntarily, and that the time has now arrived when the power of direction should be applied. He, however, is making a final appeal to eligible women to come to the country's assistance and take on the work for which they are qualified, and so relieve the desperate plight of our hospitals. If they don't come forward, there is only one course left, and that is to use the powers of direction.

If we could overcome the shortage of hospital trainees, much would be done towards relieving staff shortages, both present and future. Mr. Walsh therefore appeals to all suitable young women of 18 years of age and over to come forward and help relieve a very desperate situation. Their good sense as women should tell them that in their country's present plight they should line up behind the doctors and give the kind of service for which the hospitals are calling aloud.

"It has been said that the seeds of every great war were sown in the settlement of a previous war. If that has been true in the past, cannot we now, by care, equally sow the seeds of lasting peace during and at the end of this war?"—Mr. Ernest Bevin, British Minister of Labour and National Service.

The sort of world WE WANT

IN this world of violence and of change, the people with a fighting purpose—with clean-cut objectives—are in the best position to win through to Security and the sort of world they want.

We Australians can have the sort of world we want if we are prepared to make sacrifices for it in the living of our everyday lives.

There are two immediate objectives worthy of us:

(1) to strengthen our fighting arm,

(2) to avoid the economic error of thinking that we can take more out of a pint pot than we put into it.

The means of achieving both objectives are the same: Work, Wisdom, Thrift, and a spirit of Co-operation. There are no alternatives.

The members of the A.M.P. Society (numbering about one family in every three in the Commonwealth) aim at financial security for themselves and their families and are prepared to make sacrifices to attain it. Their contributions to the Society's funds range from a shilling a week upwards, but so widespread is the co-operation, so vast the membership, that the Society's income last year was £17,315,000 and its assets are valued to-day at £140,000,000.

Last year the A.M.P. paid out £8,250,000 in benefits to members and their beneficiaries, but in addition it has been, and still is, putting £500,000 a month into the War Loans. To date it has lent £50,000,000 to the Commonwealth. Its ability to help its members and the Nation grows from day to day. It has a fighting purpose that is based on Work, Wisdom, Thrift, and Co-operation. What the A.M.P. has achieved is a signpost for the Nation as a whole.

JAPAN'S CO-PROSPERITY SPHERE

No Longer Exists

Japan's Co-prosperity Sphere no longer exists, because within it there is no prosperity. And, according to a correspondent in India, Japan has already been obliged to change her Co-Prosperity Sphere into a Co-Endurance Sphere, although even the radical change in outlook that this implies is far from reflecting the true state of affairs.

Co-Endurance, if it means anything, can only mean co-operation in endurance. The plain fact is, however, that there is no co-operation between the territories of the occupied sphere, because Japan herself has destroyed the means by which they could co-operate.

Transport, both on land and sea, is restricted. The world is thus presented with the ridiculius spectacle of a rice glut in Burma while Japanese chemists in Singapore are frantically trying to make bread from sago and Malayans are being told that they must give up eating rice and learn to eat vegetables.

In Japan and Manchuria Japanese industrialists are erecting synthetic rubber plants, while Malay is suffering from the greatest crude rubber glut in its history.

With all the oil resources of the Netherlands East Indies at Japan's disposal, attempts are being made to produce oil from rubber, while the sugar of the Philippines, unobtainable in Japan, is being used to produce power alcohol.

Manchuria and North China are among the world's greatest producers of coal, yet in the Philippines locomotives are running on cocoanut fibre.

The occupied countries have much to endure, but they are not all in the same boat. They are in lots of little boats and the towing lines if they have not yet parted, are at least badly frayed.

TUNISIAN VICTORY

Liked "The Old Man"

"To-day we are celebrating the second great step in the defeat of Hitler, Tojo, and a man whose name I have forgotten," said Sir Ernest Fisk, chairman and managing director of Amalgamated Wireless (Australasia) Ltd., guest speaker at a luncheon held in Sydney by the Australian-American Co-operation Movement for representatives of all the allied nations who participated in the Tunisian victory.

"The first step towards that defeat," Sir Ernest continued, "was made by a number of boys after Dunkirk—the few boys of the R.A.F. to whom so many of us owe so much."

Other speakers at the luncheon included Mr. Andre Brenac, on behalf of the French National Movement and the Fghting French, and Mr. R. S. Conrow, on behalf of the American community, who said that although their forefathers had broken with England because of misunderstanding and the human element, Americans had always thought a great deal of "the Old Man."

OLD CLOTHES

Widespread Renovation

First official move to encourage widespread renovation of old clothes has been made by the Commonwealth Rationing Commission by the issue of a booklet entitled "New Clothes From Old."

This 20-page booklet will be on sale at bookstalls and newsagents in every State early next week.

The Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming) said that with the reproductions of patterns and renovated clothing shown in the booklet, many persons should be stirred to look through their wardrobes for old clothes to remodel into useful garments.

No doubt, there are thousands of enterprising housewives who will be able to cut down their coupon spending by the means suggested in the booklet, he said. Now more than ever before it is vital that coupon expenditure is cut to a bare minimum. Every coupon saved helps divert vital manpower and machinery to production of war materials instead of civilian clothing, and also saves vital shipping space.

Both models and designs used in the booklet were provided by students of the Emily McPherson Domestic Arts College in Melbourne. Illustrations show what valuable clothing can be made from old coats, suits, slacks, shirts, women's evening dresses, etc. Hints on care of clothing to make existing garments last longer are also given.

BUTTER RATIONING

CURTIN GOVERNMENT

Blamed For Imposition

"The Minister for Commerce (Mr. Scully) has failed completely to answer my charge that the Curtin Government, and that Government alone, is to blame for the imposition of butter rationing on the Australian people," said the Leader of the Federal Opposition (Mr. Fadden), referring to the Minister's reply to his criticism of butter rationing.

"I reiterate that had the Curtin Government adopted the report made to it by the Rural Industries Committee (appointed by the Menzies Government), and the two reports by the Special Dairy Industry Committee which it appointed, each of which recommended an increase in the price of dairy products; and had it given sympathetic treatment to the industry there would have been no necessity to introduce butter rationing.

"Mr. Scully's statement consists of a mass of inaccuracies and irrelevancies. For instance, referring to the special committee's report, the Minister mentioned that, among other things, that committee recommended the granting of increased prices. The Minister then had the effrontery to state that the Federal Government was giving effect to the recommendation.

THE FACTS.

"The facts are that on July 11, 1942, nearly eleven months ago, that committee recommended that immediate steps be taken to secure a minimum return to the dairy farmer by increasing prices on the Commonwealth market by 3¾ pence a lb. for butter, and 2d a lb. for cheese, with increases in the export value of those commodities.

"Instead of giving effect to that recommendation, as Mr. Scully claims, the Government procrastinated until October, when it introduced its Subsidy Bill,

THE MUDDLE.

"What the industry would like to know from Mr. Scully is why the Government rejected the recommendation of the practical men who comprised the committee, then kept the report secret for several months. Doubtless, they would also like to know why, when the Opposition endeavoured to obtain something better for the producers than that provided by the subsidy—a paltry dole—Mr. Scully threatened to leave things as they were, and to throw on to Opposition members the responsibility for whatever consequences might ensue.

"Mr. Scully's ignorance regarding the past history of butter prices is equalled only by his complacency concerning the middle he has brought into being which has culminated in butter rationing.

BUTTER PRICES.

"Wholesale butter prices at the factory rose from 101/- per cwt. in 1935 to 143/- per cwt. in 1940. This rise meant for the record production of 213,000 tons in 1939-40 a gain of £8,000,000 in the pockets of the dairymen. That rise was rendered possible by the tariff protection given by Sir Earle Page in 1926, and by the organisation which was placed on the statute book by the Governments with which the Country Party was associated during the last 20 years.

FIRST PRICE RISE.

"Since the war began the first price rise was given by the Commonwealth Prices Commissioner, who was appointed, and whose powers were rendered absolute in this connection by the Menzies Government. The subsidy is the result of his recommendations after an application to him by the industry following the very unsatisfactory result obtained from the Curtin Government last year.

BUNGLING GOES ON.

"Not only has the Curtin Government bungled the affairs of the dairying industry, the bungling goes back to the time when the State Labour Premiers killed Sir Earle Page's fodder conservation scheme at the Loan Council in 1941. The scheme provided for very great additional mechanical help for the dairy farmer at a time when it was still procurable. The difference in the help given by non-Labour Governments is that, in their assistance, there has been no tag; dairy farmers having been allowed entirely to work out their own destiny, while with all Labour assistance there has always been attached additional unworkable tags. The butter industry has almost doubled in size in the twenty years between the two wars. This increase of labour and capital in the industry could only occur if during the greater part of that time there had been substantial satisfaction with its conditions.

LOCAL GOVERNING BODIES

AMERICAN PLAN

Municipal Equipment Pool

Shire, borough and city councils in Australia which have had to face difficult times because of the shortage of roadmaking and other machinery, have, in some cases, shared certain equipment and skilled direction, but they should be interested in a pooling plan proposed in the U.S.A.

With so much equipment and plant needed for the fighting forces and for vital defence works, as well as a shortage of manpower, local governing bodies have found that caring for roads, bridges, etc., in their districts is becoming an increasing problem.

The American plan by which all State and local governments will be assured of adequate equipment to maintain streets and roads for the duration, is outlined in the weekly bulletin of the U.S. Office of War Information.

It envisages an equipment pooling arrangement, depending for its success upon the willingness of State and local authorities to co-operate.

It is emphasised that road machinery is made almost entirely of critical materials, and that any move to reduce the need for new equipment would advance the war effort. Such a pooling arrangement has been in operation in several American areas for snow removal, and has proved successful.

America's War Production Board has asked each State highway commissioner to suggest a plan suitable for his State, with information as to what action would be necessary to make it official.

Use of all types of equipment would be pooled under the plan, including machinery for road construction and maintenance. The pool would be handled by a designated State official, who could dispatch necessary equipment to any section of his State where it was needed. Governors of U.S. States in which present laws prohibit pooling, are being asked to exercise their war emergency powers to give effect to the plan.

"Those guilty of trumpeting the glories of war at the beginning may well be extolling the virtues of peace at the end. It would not be right that those who fixed on their own terms the moment for the beginning of wars should also fix on their own terms the moment for the ending of them."
—Mr. Churchill, in a statement to the House of Commons.

PEOPLE OF MALTA

Invincible Spirit

The story of the invincible spirit of the people of Malta is one that will be retold as long as there are tales of valour and heroism to tell.

It has probably never been so simply and so convincingly told as in a little book, "Malta Invicta," written, after a visit, by the famous writer of naval sketches who cloaks his identity under the name "Bartimeus." Here is a typical extract:—

"A squadron of our fighters roaring overhead woke me in the dawn, and when I got up and looked round over the grey countryside, beyond the stony fields and walls and villages, I could see the distant spires of Valletta and the Three Cities and the gleam of the Grand Harbour.

"An aircraftsman went past as I was looking at it. I pointed towards the huddle of habitations that had been Senglea, Cospicua and Vittoriosa, at the far end of which the fort of St. Angelo jutted into the harbour. 'What is it like there now?" I asked.

"'It's a shambles,' he said curtly.

PEOPLE UNDAUNTED.

"Curiously enough, I came later upon the phrase in a book on Malta describing it in the autumn of 1565.

"'But the people?' I asked.

That is the spirit that pervades the book, a document that tells of heroic men and women, laughing children playing "tag" among the broken masonry, and a whole people living in catacombs, tunnels and dugouts.

Of the many stories of Malta's heroic defence, this is the most complete and factual sketch of the daily lives of the people, enhanced by a particularly apt series of photographs.

"Malta Invicta," published by Chatto & Windus, at the modest price of 1/-, is a moving story, ending on a note that could not sound false in such a tale of heroism: "And that is the way of things in Malta as I saw them. Death and birth, terror and laughter, love and undying hatred; and interwoven are the endurance, the piety, the loyalty and self-forgetfulness of brave hearts."

CURRENT TOPICS

CAPTAIN ALEX TAYLOR.

Word has been received that Lieut. Alex Taylor, son of Mrs. J. Taylor, of Gladstone, has been promoted to the rank of captain. It will be remembered that Lieut. Taylor served with distinction in the Middle East, where he won the D.C.M., and subsequently with the forces in the New Guinea area. Captain Taylor has two other brothers, Philip (who is a prisoner of war in Italy), and John, who is serving with the Australian Navy.

MISS DOROTHY FRIEND.

Miss Dorothy Friend, who has just completed her first year of training as a nurse at the Brisbane General Hospital, is home on three weeks vacation. Several of her friends assembled at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Friend, on the occasion of Dorothy's 21st birthday, when advantage was taken of the opportunity to congratulate the guest and wish her every happiness. On behalf of the party Mr. A. W. Drewe conveyed the good wishes of all friends in a happy little speech which was suitably asknowledged by Miss Friend.

HOCKEY.

The Port Curtis Hockey Association officially opened its 1943 season by staging three games at Rigby Park. There was an excellent attendance, and all gate receipts for the season will be distributed amongst Gladstone patriotic organisations. The playing area was a little on the damp side following recent rains, but much enthusiasm and flashes of excellent hockey were witnessed. In the A grade Bandits defeated A.T.C. by four goals to two. Lady Y-Nots drew with Imperials 2 all, and Sparks in the B grade defeated Bandits 4-2.

ARRIVED IN ENGLAND.

The two sons of Mrs. R. G. Joyner, Reginald and Kevin, who are both sergeant observers in the R.A.F., have arrived safely in England after completing their training in Canada. Both of the young Gladstonites did very well in the various tests and examinations, and thoroughly enjoyed their stay in Canada and visits to the U.S.A., where they were treated most hospitably. The brothers took advantage of an offer by an American firm to have their voices recorded, and the messages sent to sister Alma have been received and heard on local machines. Both messages are clear and distinct, and appreciated by many friends who heard them. Kevin and Reg have had their leave in England, and no doubt visited many historic spots in and around London. All joint in wishing them every good fortune and a safe return.

BOYNE WATER SCHEME

LAYING THE PIPES

First Section Commenced

At the last meeting of the Town Council, Ald. W. R. Golding, speaking as chairman of the Works Committee, stated that all the machinery would be on the job for the Boyne River water supply scheme on Tuesday, and he hoped to have the work commenced on Wednesday.

A commencement was made on the day stated by Ald. Golding, and sixteen men are at present engaged, and as opportunity offers more men will be employed.

Good progress has been made, about half a mile of trenching having been carried out.

The men employed, almost all of them are residents of Gladstone, and they show a keen desire to push on with the job, which it is anticipated will take 15 weeks to lay the pipes of the first section of the new water supply scheme.

COMING OF AGE PARTY.

Miss Mavis Allison

Between 80 and 90 guests were present at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Allison, Kent Street, Gladstone, on June 15 to celebrate the coming of age of their daughter Mavis.

Dancing, community singing and games made the evening an enjoyable one, and the time went too quickly for all.

An excellent sit-down supper was enjoyed. The birthday cake, which was made by Mrs. Allison, took pride of place.

Messrs. J. McHugh, J. Crawford and R. Farnsworth all spoke in glowing terms of the guest of honour, and Mr. W. McDermott responded on her behalf.

The surprise of the evening came when Mr. Allison announced Mavis's engagement to Mr. W. McDermott.

Mavis was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, and many congratulatory messages on attaining her majority were received during the day.

AIR RAID WARDENS.

Sergt. S. Coxon advises that a meeting of air raid wardens will be held on Thursday night next in the new Court House at 8 o'clock, when a lecture will be delivered by Sergt. Sjostedt. A large attendance is requested.

TRAIN BOYS UNDER 18.

Plans to provide military training for youths under 18 years of age are being considered by the Federal Government, and a War Cabinet decision is expected soon.

CORPORAL NOEL FERRIS.

Corporal Noel Ferris, one of the original defenders of Tobruk, and afterwards wounded at El Alamein, has with his wife spent a week's holiday with his father, Mr. Walter Ferris, Belvedere Lodge, Boles Street, and has since returned to the Lady Wilson Convalescent Home at Chelmsford, Brisbane. Noel's many friends will join in wishing him a complete recovery from the effects of his war injuries.

BIG FISH CONSIGNMENT.

A magnificent catch of fish has been brought in to the Gladstone Fisheries and Cold Stores by Messrs. H. Leach and Son, the well-known fishermen, consisting of 9000 deep roed sea mullet. The fish were caught near the harbour entrance, and averaged 2 to 3 lb. in weight, and have been despatched to the Brisbane market. The manager (Mr. J. Rigby) and staff at the Fisheries established a record on Thursday by packing and consigning the fish in time to catch the mail train south.

GUNNER RYALLS MISSING.

Mr. J. T. ("Tom") Ryalls of Monto has been advised that his son Rear Gunner Jack Ryalls has been posted as missing following an operational flight over Germany, covering May 28-29 last. Jack, who had just been promoted for service in previous flights, was a member of a crew of a Lancaster bomber, and friends will join with his father and relatives in expressing the hope that he may have been able to parachute down and is possibly a prisoner of war. A brother "Connie," is also in a bomber crew taking part in the European operations. Both lads were prominent in football and sporting circles in Gladstone prior to enlisting.

BUILYAN-MANY PEAKS

RED CROSS BRANCH

Successful Appeal For Funds

A splendid response by district residents to an appeal by the Builyan-Many Peaks Red Cross branch to assist in the State drive for funds for the Red Cross resulted in a jumble stall and dance held in Many Peaks on June 5, being highly successful, and the fund will benefit to the extent of approximately £133.

Of this amount donations amounted to £83/8/-, the balance representing the proceeds of jumble stall, dips, raffles and dance, including novelty dances.

Gifts for the stall comprised home-made jams, cakes, sweets, knitted wear, toys, vegetables, soft drinks, and various other novelties.

The ladies in charge of the stall, Mesdames R. Bailey, E. Jacobsen, A. B. Muspratt, and Miss Estelle Jacobsen, had no difficulty in disposing of the whole of the articles. Receipts from this source amounted to approximately £19.

A lucky dip, conducted at the dance by Mesdames D. McLachlan and D. Ross, found the supply of items inadequate to meet the demand, and £3/2/- was realised therefrom.

The dance at night was equally successful. There was a record attendance, which included visitors from the Boyne Valley as far distant as Wietalaba. In view of the threatening weather which prevailed, these visitors are to be commended for being present.

Conditions were ideal for dancing, and excellent music was provided gratis by Mrs. Dougall (piano), Mr. L. Pownall (saxophone), and Master Brian Pownall (drums). This orchestra is certainly a great asset to the various patriotic bodies. Extras were provided by Mrs. Dobson (piano) and Mr. Ted Foster (piano-accordeon).

A Monte Carlo waltz was won by Mr. Bates and partner, and a spot waltz by Mr. McDougall and partner.

Mrs. Long donated a turkey to be raffled, which was won by Gregory Klein.

A hamper valued at 30/- (donated by Mrs. M. Martin), a tea cosy (donated by Mrs. A. R. Wagner), and a 5/- trophy (donated by Mrs. Wex) provided first, second and third prize for a second raffle B. McGrath winning first prize, whilst L. Summers secured both second and third prizes.

Mr. E. Jacobsen was M.C., and prior to the conclusion of dancing extended thanks on behalf of the local Red Cross branch to all who assisted in any way whatsoever to make the functions a success, and also complimented the ladies of the branch on the very efficient manner in which the whole of the arrangements had been carried out.

The success of both functions reflects credit on the organisers, and in this direction a word of praise is due to the hon. secretary of the branch (Mrs. A. B. Muspratt) for the very able manner in which she carried out her many duties.

PRISONER OF WAR PROJECTS

Italians and Germans Employed

The Minister for the Army (Mr. Forde) said that schemes for the employment of Italian and German prisoners of war had been extensively developed by the Department of the Army during the past two years.

"The results have been," he said, "that more than 1500 prisoners of war are engaged in growing vegetables and other crops under specialist direction; 500 are cutting firewood for departmental use; and more than 1000 are employed finalising construction in camps erected by prisoners of war, on road maintenance, in camp workshops, and on other productive works."

It has been found that many prisoners of war were excellent workmen interested in their jobs and eager to acquire a knowledge of Australian methods of production.

Mr. Forde said that other approved projects now being inaugurated would complete the plans for full utilisation on all prisoner of war labour, after excluding unavailable categories, such as officers, N.C.O.'s who had not volunteered for work, physically unfit, and those engaged in the performance of essential camp maintenance and fatigues.

NEW RATION BOOKS

CAN STILL BE OBTAINED

Sugar and Butter Coupons For Babies

Those who have not obtained new ration books can still get them by applying to the Divisional Returning Officer for their Commonwealth electorate, said the Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming).

Application may be made either personally or by post on completed form R.G.6, which is obtainable at any post office. The applicant's identity card, completed registration form C.R.7 and old ration book must also be forwarded.

Parents of children now over six months of age who have not obtained an old ration book, including those who have received a red covered book of special sugar coupons, must apply to the State Deputy Director of Rationing for a new ration book supplying evidence of the child's date of birth. The red covered book of sugar coupons can be used for this evidence.

Where sugar and butter coupons are required for babies under six months, application should be made to the State Deputy Director of Rationing, also with evidence of date of birth. This application should be made on form R.G.1, obtainable at any post office.

Mr. Cumming also said that the coupon rating on fabrics 32 inches and under 40 inches in width has been reduced from three and one quarter to three coupons.

ROLL OF HONOUR

PRIVATE T. I. HIXON.

On Wednesday the Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson conveyed the sad news to Mr. and Mrs. T. Hixon, of Oaka Lane, that their son Private Thomas Ivan Hixon had died as the result of injuries accidentally received while serving with the forces in New Guinea.

The deceased, who was 25 years of age, was well known and highly respected, and was a member of the local branch of the Waterside Workers' Union.

The late Private Hixon was an honorary bearer of the Gladstone Ambulance Brigade, and was an enthusiastic worker for the institution. He was also a keen sport, being a member of the Life Saving Club, besides playing a good game of hockey. His brother William is serving with the Air Force.

The deepest sympathy is expressed to the parents in the loss of a brave son.

OBITUARY

MR. G. E. MELLEFONT.

Mr. George Eldon Mellefont, who died at Longreach at the age of 57 years, was a native of Gladstone, and a brother of the late Mr. W. P. Mellefont, the well-known solicitor, who predeceased him some years ago.

As a young man he worked at the "Gladstone Observer" printing works, then owned by his father, the late Mr. W. P. Mellefont senr. The newspaper office was then situated at the corner of Yaroon and Glenlyon Street.

He married in Gladstone in. 1914, and went to Longreach, where he was employed on the staff of Messrs. Meacham & Leyland (Pty.) Ltd., with which firm he remained until the date of his death. He is survived by his widow, five daughters, and two sons, Mrs. J. L. Mitchell (Albionvale, Aramac), Joyce, June, Hazel and Yvonne (Longreach), Pilot George Mellefont, and Pilot officer Arthur Mellefont.

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB

Bogey Competition

Play on the Gladstone Golf links this afternoon and to-morrow will be a bogey competition for members and an open event for associates.

The working bee last week-end proved very successful, Secretary Bob Elliott and a few enthusiasts making attractive improvements to the club house.

One of these, the enlargement of the nineteenth, was very necessary. The work will be continued this week-end, when Vice-President Jim O'Donnell will supervise the programme.

The course is now in splendid condition for golfers. This is the first year that members have voluntarily mowed the fairways, dressed the greens, and kept the large area in order, and it reflects great credit on the small band of workers.

As previously stated, servicemen and visitors are cordially invited to have a game on the links.

MT. LARCOM

CATTLE SALE AND PATRIOTIC SPORTS

Total Proceeds £350

Mt. Larcom District Patriotic Fund Committee conducted its third yearly cattle sale and patriotic sports on Saturday, June 12, and despite the wet weather, there was a record crowd, the gate takings amounting to £27.

Mr. W. Beak (president), in declaring the function open, spoke of the good work being done by the Patriotic Fund, and appealed to all to contribute as freely as they could so that his committee could meet its commitment of raising the sum of £3000 for distribution among the returned men and women from this district.

Mr. T. Capstick, on behalf of Mulcare's (Pty.) Ltd., then auctioned the donated cattle. The cattle sold well, prices realising up to £19 for one white heifer that was snow-balled.

The total proceeds of the day's activities amounted to approximately £350.

Mr. H. Buss, of Euroa Station, donated a cheque for £50. The committee's very best thanks go to Mr. Buss, who on every occasion has been a generous donor.

An energetic ladies' committee, under the guidance of Mrs. Miller, of East End, very successfully conducted a refreshment booth, while Mrs. Savage and Mrs. Heinager took charge of the soft drink and icecream stall.

Mr. E. Hodgon spun the spinning wheel, and reported good business at the close of the day.

Messrs. Carmichael, Vickers, Weston, Watts and Priemazn took charge of the sports programme for the adults, and despite the rain that fell overnight, succeeded in providing a very attractive programme.

PARTY POLITICS

HINDRANCE TO AUSTRALIA

Democracy Best

We cull the following from a speech delivered to the League of Women Voters by Mr. Bruce Pie, member for Hamilton in the Legislative Assembly:—

"I was elected to Parliament by all classes, truly an independent, and as a result I do not represent any one section of the community; I represent all people, irrespective of class, creed, or position in life.

"Shortly after my election to Parliament an influential lady requested that I should do something which was clearly my duty as the member for her district. I willingly agreed to her request. She was surprised, and pointed out that she had recently voted for my political opponent, and had not expected my co-operation. My reply was that I felt, irrespective of her political preference, I should and must represent her interests to the best of my ability, as I was her elected representative.

"The proceedings during the last session at Canberra, I am sure, were followed by the people of Australia with dismay, for during this session there was a definite revival of the party spirit, which to my mind, has no legitimate place in any country at war. To-day party ambitions and manoeuvres to gain party political advantage have an air of tragic unreality.

"Parliament is controlled by party; on the one hand by caucus, and on the other by a party executive. It is an acknowledged fact that the decisions of either the caucus or the party executive must stand, even if such decisions are directly opposed to the very principles of any man, a member of either party.

"The Comonwealth of Australia cannot afford to divert attention from the supreme task of ensuring our national safety and developing our maximum war effort. We cannot afford to play at the game of party politics.

"There must be national unity. It already exists among the people to a large degree, but the people of Australia need strong leadership; have looked in vain to the present party politicians on both sides of the House to set an example, to give a lead, to close the ranks and form a Victory Government.

"The results of the decisions of the Labour Caucus or the Opposition's Party Executive have the effect of restricting full debate on the floor of the House, because each party predetermines its decision before debate on the floor of the House, with the result that freedom of speech is restricted — surely the very basis of democratic and successful government.

An independent is differently situated to a party man. He has to vote intelligently, as his conscience dictates, in an honest endeavour to do the greatest good for the greatest number of people, which is surely the only honest test that can be applied to legislation.

"I have seen party men not present during the whole of a debate rush into the House when the division bell rang, voting without study or knowledge of the subject under discussion!

"Let me give an example of how the party system operates:—

"Take the elimination of State preferential voting, a principle which, in my opinion, should not have been taken away from the people by Act of Parliament. I maintain it should only be taken away by referendum. The reported division in caucus was close. On the floor of the House, if free and unfettered voting had been indulged in—if every man had voted according to his conscience—the total members against the Bill would have probably been 42, with only 20 supporting it.

"Surely this is a perfect example of where the majority does not rule, and the people as a result are not being honestly represented. No party represents the true thoughts of the majority, therefore no party can honestly and truly govern whilst free voting is restricted.

"The thinking community in democratic countries throughout the world are rapidly realising that the system of party politics is being abused. Party politics should be scrapped, for party politics are truly an obstacle which must be crushed if we in Australia are to render a total war effort and successfully handle the many post-war problems which lie ahead. I honestly believe that no political party in to-day take the responsibility of government without offending the people or class they represent. We must, elect free men; men who during war and peace will not make a job of politics, who will not vote according to the dictates of their party or for political gain. These are the men who can successfully guide the destinies of our great free country—men of intelligence and character.

"We must become less concerned with endorsing particular class views, and return representatives to Parliament who will have the courage to vote for and express independent views. We must vote for the man, not the party.

"A recent reported statement of a Federal Labour leader was:—

> "'War is a great time for getting through legislation that could not be submitted during normal times.'

"It is a well-known fact that once the policy of a party is formed that party will do everything in its power to break the man politically who dares oppose such policy.

"Winston Churchill, our great Empire Leader, was at one period rejected by all parties because he dared criticise, and was obliged to stand as an independent member to gain re-admission to the House of Commons! Party organisations tried hard to politically destroy him.

"Democracy still lives in Australia—battered, repressed, abused, mis-used by party politics, very sick, but not incurable. The remedy is in the hands of the people, for the political parties in power have cut loose from the people they represent; they have become absorbed in their own special political interests; they think that their electors need only be considered at election time. But conditions are altering. The people, through Government interference in their private lives are at last thinking, and now when an election looms on the horizon, politicians realise that their future is in jeopardy.

"Democracy means government by the people for the people. To-day government has become government for the politician, not for the people as a whole.

"The inevitable extension of bureaucratic interference is perhaps necessary in war-time. We all realise that some Government control is necessary, but as citiezns we are faced with its continuation in peace. We are faced with two alternatives—government by bureaucracy, confused and corrupt, and government by legislation, which is clean and competent.

"The true meaning of democracy should be that the whole nation concerns itself with national problems, thus creating an informed public opinion which no politician could afford to disregard. We must choose between party machine-picked candidates (party hacks) and able, honourable citizens, who can be persuaded to brave the inevitable abuse of Parliament, for never before has the quality of service to be rendered been of such grave importance to Queensland and Australia.

"It is essential to have in Parliament men of culture, men of integrity, men of principle, men of ideals, who as a consequence of the views they hold, bring a different outlook to legislation, bring the clean air and free spirit of a wider and broader life. The greatest men have always been those who have not pursued public life for power or notoriety, but from a strong sense of duty to their fellow men.

"An independent group of free men should be selected for Parliament, bound to principles of a broad policy, to which every loyal Australian could agree. But on the manner in which these principles are introduced every member should be free to act according to the dictates of his own conscience and powers of reasoning.

"In conclusion, I have tried to prove that we must have in our service in the Commonwealth and State Governments, and in city councils and all public bodies, the best talent and character of the nation, and these two essentials of sound government could be found among men who already have other worlds apart from politics; other worlds in which they are happy and have been successful."

BUTTER OUTPUT FALLS.

The total butter production by Australian factories during April declined by 3000 tons, compared with April, 1942, the respective figures being 9058 and 12,077 tons.

The sort of world WE WANT

IN this world of violence and of change, the people with a fighting purpose—with clean-cut objectives—are in the best position to win through to Security and the sort of world they want.

We Australians can have the sort of world we want if we are prepared to make sacrifices for it in the living of our everyday lives.

There are two immediate objectives worthy of us:

(1) to strengthen our fighting arm,

(2) to avoid the economic error of thinking that we can take more out of a pint pot than we put into it.

The means of achieving both objectives are the same: Work Wisdom, Thrift, and a spirit of Co-operation. There are no alternatives.

The members of the A.M.P. Society (numbering about one family in every three in the Commonwealth) aim at financial security for themselves and their families and are prepared to make sacrifices to attain it. Their contributions to the Society's funds range from a shilling a week upwards, but so widespread is the co-operation, so vast the membership, that the Society income last year was £17,315,000 and its assets are valued to-day at £140,000,000.

Last year the A.M.P. paid out £8,250,000 in benefits to members and their beneficiaries, but in addition it has been, and still putting £500,000 a month into the War Loans. To date it has lent £50,000,000 to the Commonwealth. Its ability to help its members and the Nation grows from day to day. It has a fighting purpose that is based on Work, Wisdom, Thrift, and Co-operation. What the A.M.P. has achieved is a signpost for the Nation as a whole.

KITCHEN FRONT

Make Most of Butter

With butter rationed to half a pound a person per week the housewife faces the problem of how to make the ration meet the family requirements.

While a great many people are not affected by the rationing of tea and sugar, the rationing of butter will affect every man, woman and child in the community.

Butter is essential to health, and to maintain health at least one ounce is necessary for each person daily. Butter contains health giving vitamins A and D, which keep you free from colds. They also keep your eyes healthy, and ensure firm bones and teeth and normal growth. Children whose bones and tissues are still being developed need these vitamins more than adults, and must be ensured their full butter ration.

While the ration may seem small, experts tell us that half a pound of butter weekly is sufficient for good nutrition.

Here are a few suggestions which may be of use in working out this difficult problem:—

Firstly, divide each ration into eight equal portions, one of which should be used each day for each member of the family. At the end of the week there will be a portion of each half pound ration left over. This may be used for any little extravagance which you have had to deny yourselves during the week—for cakes, scones, or for extra nourishment in sauces, or on vegetables.

Another suggestion is that the weekly ration of each member of the family should be placed on a separate dish or plate, which should be labelled with the name of the person whose ration it is.

It is also possible to stretch your butter ration. One way is to cream a quarter of a pound of butter with 1 oz. of milk until all the milk is absorbed. This makes it easier to spread on bread, or for use when making sandwiches.

When making toast, allow it to cool before buttering it. You will use much less butter this way, as hot toast absorbs it quickly. Also, when cold, toast is much more easily digested.

A third way of stretching your ration is not to use it for cooking. Clarified dripping will be found to be almost as satisfactory for frying, or making steamed puddings and many other things for which, in pre-rationing days, butter was generally used.

WIND FUNNELS

Aeronautical Research

A triumph for Australian engineering skill and Australian steel has been accomplished by the manufacture in Melbourne of a wind tunnel, a highly technical device for the testing of model aeroplanes in conditions approximating actual flight.

The tunnel was designed by the Division of Aeronautics staff of the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research, and was built to specifications demanding an accuracy better than one 64th inch per square foot.

By the scientific study of the reactions of models under test in the tunnel it is possible to determine the behaviour of full-scale planes built to the same design. Experts keep their eye on the model through observation windows let into the testing section, which is nine feet wide, seven feet high, and brilliantly lit.

The model itself is mounted on three steel supports which connect with an amazingly accurate mechanism known as the "balance"—a high precision instrument which in reality is the heart of the tunnel's testing mechanism. Its construction called for the highest skill of expert instrument makers.

The tunnel itself is an enormous affair, incorporating some 12 tons of mild steel. It is built in the form of a hollow rectangle, with a current of air forced round and round inside by a six-blade fan. This is electrically driven, the 550 h.p. motor producing an air current flowing at 300 ft. per second. A series of vertical "cascades" shepherds the air round the corner, and any turbulance or cross current is "ironed out" by an enormous steel honeycomb mesh through which the air passes just before entering the testing section. The honeycombing, which consists of one inch cells five inches long, also demanded a high degree of accuracy.

The construction of this tunnel will be of immense value in aircraft construction not only during the war, but in the post-war years when civil aviation in Australia will have to be greatly expanded. And the tunnel is yet another example of how Australian skill and the cheapest steel in the world can stand on their own feet and overcome a "make-it-here-or-do-without" problem.

THE LITTLE MAN

Paving Way To Victory

The transformation in the fortunes of the United Nations has been achieved not only by the inspiration and genius of great leadership, but also by the devotion and self-sacrifice of the little men.

We are grateful for outstanding generalship and deeds of heroism on land, on sea, and in the air. But battles are won or lost because thousands of men and women in the Forces carry out their ordinary daily task.

Much also depends on the home front, on the faithful attention to detail of the ordinary munition worker, the thorough workmanship of men in the dockyards, of aircraft fitters and the steady labour of the miner and the unrelenting readiness of those who must stand ready at all times for emergencies.

The years of war are writing epochal chapters in our national story and the history of man, because the little men and women who never shine in honours lists have been lifting with a certain grim cheerfulness their share of the burden.

Great events spring from small duties faithfully performed. The little man is paving the road to victory.

BUNGLING C

"APPALLING AFFA

Linen Rationi Short

"An appalling stat the phrase used to su ing by Sir Charles an exclusive intervie trial News Service"

PENALISED FOR

He quoted as typ girl in his electora engagement over buying linen on tion of starting h a reasonable stock hold requirements. Her coupons totalled £60, and she had paid all but £2 of this amount, but now she is faced with the problem of finding more coupons than she has in her ration book.

And the only reason for her not having paid her lay-bys in full was that she had invested her money in the last war loan.

So that she is being penalised for her patriotism.

Sir Charles pointed out that it would have been an extremely simple matter to have applied the principle observed in all alterations to the Customs tariff to this new extension of rationing. Had this been done the extension would have been accomplished with a minimum of hardship, and no injustice to anybody.

"The principle observed in the case of alteration to Customs duties," Sir Charles explained, "is that all goods actually in bond in Australia, having been imported at the old rate, or in transit in Australian waters, are exempted from the new rate.

"If the Government had laid down that lay-bys taken out before the introduction of rationing were to be redeemable without coupons it would have merely followed a principle which has been observed in the case of imports for many years.

"But after observation of the Government's incredible bungling in many other directions, I am convinced that this new series of inequalities and injustices are quite in keeping with the Government's record," said Sir Charles.

GOVERNMENT BUNGLING.

"For instance," he continued, "the present egg shortage has been blamed on every conceivable thing but Government bungling, yet that is the sole cause.

"In one particular district that I know, no less than 19 out of 20 poultry farmers are now out of business. And they have been driven out simply because the Government has refused to co-operate with them in any way. Many other poultry farmers are on the verge of ruin.

"This is an example of what these men are facing in an endeavour to keep going.

"The Government states that wheat for feed is available to thme at 3/6 a bushel, a price which, when taken in conjunction with the Egg Board levy, makes the selling of eggs almost profitless. But this wheat is only obtainable by the 10-ton truck.

"And how many poultry farmers can afford to take a 10-ton truck of feed

"The same position applies in the case of second-grade wheat, which is available at 3/3¾ per bushel, but only if taken by the 15-ton truck.

"However, in cases where a number of poultry farmers have combined to order a truck, they have been blandly informed that no trucks are available for the cartage of the feed.

"As for other feed, bran, pollard and maize, all are unobtainable.

"So that the poultry farmer is being forced out of business at a rate which spells disaster to the community.

SERIOUS EGG POSITION.

"Typical of the Government's policy, or lack of it, in connection with the egg position," Sir Charles went on, "is the action taken in regard to the call-up of a chicken sexer.

"There are only 13 chicken sexers in N.S. Wales, and as the average number successful in the examinations for chicken sexing is one per hundred, it can be seen that a sexer is very hard to replace.

"A man whose weekly tally of chickens was between fourteen and fifteen thousand was called up, leaving a great number of poultry farmers without the services of a sexer. I made representations to Mr. Forde, the Army Minister, who stated that he would take immediate steps to have the man exempted.

"After a break of some days Mr. Forde told me that the Army would not release him. I then approached Mr. Scully, Minister for Commerce, who assured me that he had the power to withdraw the man from the Army, which he would do forthwith.

"Mr. Scully later informed me that he did not have the power, which was vested in the Food Controlled (Mr. Murphy).

"So there the position rests. And in the meantime this State is losing from fourteen to fifteen thousand chickens a week."

Special permits are issued to hospitals to permit them to obtain butter from suppliers. These permits can be obtained on application to the State Deputy Director of Rationing.

Mr. Cumming added that some people apparently were unaware that the value of sugar coupons is the same as in the old ration year, despite the fact that on page "D" (sugar) coupons total 52 instead of 26 as in the old book. One sugar coupon still purchases 2 lbs. of sugar every two weeks, two sugar coupons becoming valid at the same time. At present coupons D1 and D2 are valid, and can be used until the end of the ration year.

On July 5 next coupons D3 and D4 will become valid.

TOOTHBRUSHES.

Federal restrictions on the transport of goods between States is blamed by Brisbane chemists for the shortage of toothbrushes in Queensland. Representations have been made for increased supplies, but only a slight improvement has resulted.

Under the "Registered Daily Guardian" scheme that has been introduced with great success, women prepared to undertake the work of looking after young children are put on a list of registered daily guardians. The mother is supplied with a list of these guardians, and selects one, preferably a friend living nearby. BUNGLING CONTINUES

"APPALLING STATE OF AFFAIRS

Linen Rationing and Egg Shortage

"An appalling state of affairs," was the phrase used to sum up linen rationing by Sir Charles Marr, M.H.R., in an exclusive interview with "Industrial News Service" last week.

Sir Charles pointed out that he had been inundated with letters from his electorate, chiefly from working people, protesting bitterly about what they regarded as a gross piece of deception on the part of the Curtin Government.

PENALISED FOR PATRIOTISM.

He quoted as typical the case of a girl in his electorate, who since her engagement over a year ago had been buying linen on lay-by, in anticipation of starting her married life with a reasonable stock of essential household requirements. Her commitments totalled £60, and she had paid all but £2 of this amount, but now she is faced with the problem of finding more coupons than she has in her ration book.

And the only reason for her not having paid her lay-bys in full was that she had invested her money in the last war loan.

So that she is being penalised for her patriotism.

Sir Charles pointed out that it would have been an extremely simple matter to have applied the principle observed in all alterations to the Customs tariff to this new extension of rationing. Had this been done the extension would have been accomplished with a minimum of hardship, and no injustice to anybody.

"The principle observed in the case of alteration to Customs duties," Sir Charles explained, "is that all goods actually in bond in Australia, having been imported at the old rate, or in transit in Australian waters, are exempted from the new rate.

"If the Government had laid down that lay-bys taken out before the introduction of rationing were to be redeemable without coupons it would have merely followed a principle which has been observed in the case of imports for many years.

"But after observation of the Government's incredible bungling in many other directions, I am convinced that this new series of inequalities and injustices are quite in keeping with the Government's record," said Sir Charles.

GOVERNMENT BUNGLING.

"For instance," he continued, "the present egg shortage has been blamed on every conceivable thing but Government bungling, yet that is the sole cause.

"In one particular district that I know, no less than 19 out of 20 poultry farmers are now out of business. And they have been driven out simply because the Government has refused to co-operate with them in any way. Many other poultry farmers are on the verge of ruin.

"This is an example of what these men are facing in an endeavour to keep going.

"The Government states that wheat for feed is available to thme at 3/6 a bushel, a price which, when taken in conjunction with the Egg Board levy, makes the selling of eggs almost profitless. But this wheat is only obtainable by the 10-ton truck.

"The same position applies in the case of second-grade wheat, which is available at 3/3¾ per bushel, but only if taken by the 15-ton truck.

"However, in cases where a number of poultry farmers have combined to order a truck, they have been blandly informed that no trucks are available for the cartage of the feed.

"As for other feed, bran, pollard and maize, all are unobtainable.

"So that the poultry farmer is being forced out of business at a rate which spells disaster to the community.

SERIOUS EGG POSITION.

"Typical of the Government's policy, or lack of it, in connection with the egg position," Sir Charles went on, "is the action taken in regard to the call-up of a chicken sexer.

"There are only 13 chicken sexers in N.S. Wales, and as the average number successful in the examinations for chicken sexing is one per hundred, it can be seen that a sexer is very hard to replace.

"A man whose weekly tally of chickens was between fourteen and fifteen thousand was called up, leaving a great number of poultry farmers without the services of a sexer. I made representations to Mr. Forde, the Army Minister, who stated that he would take immediate steps to have the man exempted.

"After a break of some days Mr. Forde told me that the Army would not release him. I then approached Mr. Scully, Minister for Commerce, who assured me that he had the power to withdraw the man from the Army, which he would do forthwith.

"Mr. Scully later informed me that he did not have the power, which was vested in the Food Controlled (Mr. Murphy).

"So there the position rests. And in the meantime this State is losing from fourteen to fifteen thousand chickens a week."

COUPONS FOR BUTTER

Patients and Hospital Staffs

After patients have been in hospital for 28 days they must surrender coupons for butter at the rate of one a week, or one for any part of a week not completed.

In stating this the Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming) said that apparently some confusion existed as to when hospital patients should surrender coupons for butter.

Members of hospital staffs who have meals in the hospital must surrender a proportion of butter coupons, but they may be permitted to retain sufficient coupons to cover requirements for meals obtained during leave periods away from the hospital. Mr. Cumming stated that coupon surrender should be on the following basis:—

Full board and lodging at the hospital, or all meals and no lodging, three butter coupons for each four weeks.

Two meals at the hospital per day, two butter coupons for each four weeks.

One meal per day, one butter coupon for each four weeks.

Special permits are issued to hospitals to permit them to obtain butter from suppliers. These permits can be obtained on application to the State Deputy Director of Rationing.

Mr. Cumming added that some people apparently were unaware that the value of sugar coupons is the same as in the old ration year, despite the fact that on page "D" (sugar) coupons total 52 instead of 26 as in the old book. One sugar coupon still purchases 2 lbs. of sugar every two weeks, two sugar coupons becoming valid at the same time. At present coupons D1 and D2 are valid, and can be used until the end of the ration year.

On July 5 next coupons D3 and D4 will become valid.

TOOTHBRUSHES.

Federal restrictions on the transport of goods between States is blamed by Brisbane chemists for the shortage of toothbrushes in Queensland. Representations have been made for increased supplies, but only a slight improvement has resulted.

PART TIME LABOUR

Great Expansion Necessary

The position has now been reached in regard to the supply of manpower for the fighting forces and for production that part time labour must be used wherever it can be substituted for the man or woman employed full time.

The Director General of Manpower has made it clear that if it is necessary, powers of direction will be used first to compel men and women to accept part time employment, and employers to use them.

"Experience has proved," said Mr. Wurth, "that part time employment can be used successfully in practically every industry. In many cases it will need a revolution in routine and the scrapping of precedent, but it is inevitable."

Mr. Wurth commented on the fact that in Great Britain a war factory has been established in which all the employees are part time workers, and the scheme has proved so successful that similar factories are being opened.

Mr. Wurth also commented on a scheme that has been put into operation in Great Britain to solve the problem of looking after young children whose mothers are engaged either full time or part itme in war work. Under the "Registered Daily Guardian" scheme that has been introduced with great success, women prepared to undertake the work of looking after young children are put on a list of registered daily guardians. The mother is supplied with a list of these guardians, and selects one, preferably a friend ljving nearby. Where necessary, the Government supplements the amounts paid by mothers to these registered daily guardians.

BIGAMY IN QUEENSLAND.

With the object of satisfying the request of the Department, Mr. Whittle has the names of several persons who are interested, and he will be pleased to receive further names of those who may become intersted

IRRIGATION COMMISSION.

Ald. Golding moved that the Irrigation Commission be written to asking that a surveyor be made available to carry out the necessary survey.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Busteed and carried.

TYPE OF MACHINERY.

Lengthy discussion followed as to the type of machinery to be installed for pumping the water to the tank, and on the motion of Ald. Anderson, seconded by Ald. Deveney, it was decided to seek the advice of a steam engineer as to the possibility of carrying out this work with a boiler and low and high level centrifugal pumps.

PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS.

Ald. Golding moved that it be an instruction to their consulting engineer's representative that plans and specifications be prepared of the tank, and that they have power to invite tenders for its construction, as he (Ald. Golding) was of the opinion that it required an expert to carry out this work.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Tudman and carried.

This concluded the business of the meeting.

TIMOR TROOPS

Lived on A.C.F. Hampers

It is just a short time since all Australia thrilled to the news that a band of Australians on the island of Timor had escaped capture by the Japanese and taken to the hills. But it is not so widely known as it should be that A.C.F. Christmas hampers played a big part in relieving their food position.

One of the men from Timor called recently at A.C.F. headquarters and told the story. Christmas hampers sent by the Australian Comforts Fund arrived in camp by plane late on Christmas night. They were opened up and all tined food was put away for a good meal next day.

Soon the Japs turned up and the party of troops hastily snatched as many tins as possible and took to the mountains. Apart from the tins they had only rice and bully beef.

Fortunately, the camp cook was among the party, and with the aid of a kerosene tin to cook in and the extra A.C.F. goods he was able to put up some satisfying meals.

The rations were carefully used, and were made to last for weeks, thereby relieving what might have been a serious situation.

The member of the party who told the story at A.C.F. headquarters expressed warm gratitude on behalf of this intrepid group of soldiers for what had turned out to be a timely issue from the Australian Comforts Fund.

"It just goes to show," he said, "that the good old A.C.F. is always on the spot when we need it."

"WAR LOADING STUNT."

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—A few thousand men are standing at the gates of Australia willing to give their lives to prevent the Japs from invading this country, and they are doing a good job, and doing it well.

The only war loading they get is from the Japs, and we should give these men all the help we can.

They are helping us, but a lot of people in this country are using the war situation for their own advantage, which to my way of thinking is rotten.

The man who stated that Australia is a mob of lions led by asses was no mug, but he lived and died a bit too soon. If he was living to-day he would be getting a war loading; that is, if he kept well away from the Japs, but close to the asses.

The only loading I am getting is when I meet a friend at a pub. If he is a friend he unloads, and I load, and if he does not run out of coupons I get overloaded, and can you blame a man when he reads about the war loading stunt.

Hopper (hon. treasurer), and Mesdames Beale, C. Chapman, H. C. Smith, Richards, Gordon, Picton, Turner, Beutell, J. Worthington, and the hon. secretary (Mrs. J. W. Garrett). Apologies were received from Mesdames Wood and Keller.

The meeting opened with the National Anthem, followed by a special prayer for members of the fighting forces.

ACCOUNTS.

Accounts amounting to £49/-/1 were presented and passed for payment.

A donation of two pairs of socks was received from the C.W.A. Younger Set.

LABOUR TAXATION

Unionsit's Castigation

W. Black, an electric train driver, writes in a southern union journal as follows:—

"It is the first time in the history of Australia that we have had a locomotive engine driver as Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Australia.

"It is also the first occasion that the workers of this Commonwealth have been forced to pay taxation out of every pay throughout the whole year and receive no refund except under special circumstances.

"It is also the first time that no rebate is allowed on a child who is solely dependant on you for support, but who has not attained the age of 16 years.

"Having a wife and two children under sixteen years living with me, and both of these children are attending school, I filled in a form that I should be allowed a rebate on a fortnightly basis, which in effect amounted to 6/- per pay.

"Imagine my surprise to be told that no rebate is allowed in April or May for a child that will attain the age of 16 years before the first of July, 1943!

"I certainly will be allowed a rebate when my assessment comes along, but as I will have considerably overpaid my tax by that time, and no refunds are to be made, you will see that it is quite clear that our present Treasurer has reduced the age of dependants from 16 years to 15 years and nine months, thereby placing a further blot on Labour legislation."

AUSTERITY MESSAGES

From the wives . . .

. . . of AUSTRALIA'S LEADERS

Olga O'Blamey

To win this war, the whole nation must swing over to an austere wartime way of life. This can't be done without the whole-hearted co-operation of every woman in the community. Use your influence with the family, friends, every one with whom you come in contact, to discourage extravagance and encourage saving. Above all, set a personal example—wear last year's frocks, and be proud to do it; live simply; cut out spending on pleasure, and invest every penny you can in War Bonds and War Saving Certificates.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY.

The Women's Auxiliary of the R.S.S.A.I.L.A. will hold their monthly street stall in the Grand Hotel buildings on Tuesday, June 29. Donations of cakes, jam, fruit, sweets, etc., will be gratefully received by the Secretary (Mrs. R. Farnsworth, Gondoon Street).

FEDERAL ELECTIONS.

August 21 is being considered as the likely Federal election date. This is indicated by official inquiries of trustees of public halls, who have been asked whether buildings will be available for electoral purposes on that day. The rolls are expected to be ready by the end of July.

C.W.A. HOSTEL.

Holyrood Private Hotel, Gregory Terrace, has been bought by the Country Women's Association for about £5000, including furniture. It will be conducted as a hostel for women of the forces and essential services. After the war the hostel will be used by C.W.A. members visiting Brisbane.

BIGAMY IN QUEENSLAND.

Prosecutions for bigamy have increased slightly in Queensland under war conditions. Since January 1 thirteen cases of bigamy were brought before Queensland courts. One case heard recently concerned bigamy committed 15 years ago. More men than women appeared in the dock this year to answer charges.

TROPHY DONATED.

Rev. Father Cullen, who is a keen golfer, has generously donated a trophy of £2/2/- for a four ball best ball competition, to be played each alternate week-end. The first competition for the trophy will take place this coming week-end.

MR. ROY JAMES.

Mr. Roy James, C.P.S., of Biloela, was a visitor to the Gladstone links during the week-end, and was greatly impressed with the work of the committee in putting the course in order and renovating the club house. He donated two new golf balls (rare equipment these days) for mixed foursomes, which will be played on alternate week-ends.

BAIL FORFEITED.

Francis Henry Hamill, meatworker, was charged with making use of obscene language in Tank Street, Gladstone, on Saturday night last. He was arrested by Constable Gerber, and subsequently was released on bail of £2. On Monday morning he did not appear before Mr. M. Dwyer, S.M., in the Court of Petty Sessions, and Hamill's bail was ordered to be forfeited.

ALLOTMENTS AT TANNUM.

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A.), has informed Mr. H. H. Whittle on behalf of the lessees at Tannum, generally known as Wild Cattle, that if it can be shown there is a substantial demand for allotments at Tannum the Minister for Lands will give further consideration to making available, by sale at auction, additional perpetual town leases. With the object of satisfying the request of the Department, Mr. Whittle has the names of several persons who are interested, and he will be pleased to receive further names of those who may become intersted

TOWN COUNCIL

A SPECIAL MEETING

Boyne River Scheme

A special meeting of the Council was held on Friday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen J. Deveney, M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. E. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing with Mr. W. J. Reinhold's representative (Mr. Fenwick) the completion of the Boyne River water supply scheme.

TWELVE MILES OF PIPING.

Mr. Fenwick stated that no one expected that approval would be granted for the scheme to be carried out in wartime, consequently he had secured a position with the American Army. However, he could secure his release to carry the scheme through to completion. He was happy to be able to say that the Irrigation Commission would lend all possible help, and the Deputy Co-ordinator General and the Premier (Mr. Cooper) would give the scheme their fullest support. He thought that approval could be obtained to place an order for twelve miles of piping, which would tend to obviate any delay in the completion of the undertaking. He suggested that the Irrigation Commission be requested to make available a surveyor for the purpose of defining the route of the pipe line, from which he would be able to prepare plans and supervise the work.

NECESSARY TO DEVIATE.

In answer to a question by Ald. Golding, Mr. Fenwick said that the preliminary survey revealed that it would be necessary to deviate slightly to avoid the high hills south of Toolooa.

IRRIGATION COMMISSION.

Ald. Golding moved that the Irrigation Commission be written to asking that a surveyor be made available to carry out the necessary survey.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Busteed and carried.

TYPE OF MACHINERY.

Lengthy discussion followed as to the type of machinery to be installed for pumping the water to the tank, and on the motion of Ald. Anderson, seconded by Ald. Deveney, it was decided to seek the advice of a steam engineer as to the possibility of carrying out this work with a boiler and low and high level centrifugal pumps.

PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS.

Ald. Golding moved that it be an instruction to their consulting engineer's representative that plans and specifications be prepared of the tank, and that they have power to invite tenders for its construction, as he (Ald. Golding) was of the opinion that it required an expert to carry out this work.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Tudman and carried.

This concluded the business of the meeting.

TIMOR TROOPS

Lived on A.C.F. Hampers

It is just a short time since all Australia thrilled to the news that a band of Australians on the island of Timor had escaped capture by the Japanese and taken to the hills. But it is not so widely known as it should be that A.C.F. Christmas hampers played a big part in relieving their food position.

One of the men from Timor called recently at A.C.F. headquarters and told the story. Christmas hampers sent by the Australian Comforts Fund arrived in camp by plane late on Christmas night. They were opened up and all tined food was put away for a good meal next day.

Soon the Japs turned up and the party of troops hastily snatched as many tins as possible and took to the mountains. Apart from the tins they had only rice and bully beef.

Fortunately, the camp cook was among the party, and with the aid of a kerosene tin to cook in and the extra A.C.F. goods he was able to put up some satisfying meals.

The rations were carefully used, and were made to last for weeks, thereby relieving what might have been a serious situation.

The member of the party who told the story at A.C.F. headquarters expressed warm gratitude on behalf of this intrepid group of soldiers for what had turned out to be a timely issue from the Australian Comforts Fund.

"It just goes to show," he said, "that the good old A.C.F. is always on the spot when we need it."

"WAR LOADING STUNT."

(To the Editor.)

Sir.—A few thousand men are standing at the gates of Australia willing to give their lives to prevent the Japs from invading this country, and they are doing a good job, and doing it well.

The only war loading they get is from the Japs, and we should give these men all the help we can.

They are helping us, but a lot of people in this country are using the war situation for their own advantage, which to my way of thinking is rotten.

The man who stated that Australia is a mob of lions led by asses was no mug, but he lived and died a bit too soon. If he was living to-day he would be getting a war loading; that is, if he kept well away from the Japs, but close to the asses.

The only loading I am getting is when I meet a friend at a pub. If he is a friend he unloads, and I load, and if he does not run out of coupons I get overloaded, and can you blame a man when he reads about the war loading stunt.

LABOUR TAXATION

Unionsit's Castigation

W. Black, an electric train driver, writes in a southern union journal as follows:—

"It is the first time in the history of Australia that we have had a locomotive engine driver as Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Australia.

"It is also the first occasion that the workers of this Commonwealth have been forced to pay taxation out of every pay throughout the whole year and receive no refund except under special circumstances.

"It is also the first time that no rebate is allowed on a child who is solely dependant on you for support, but who has not attained the age of 16 years.

"Having a wife and two children under sixteen years living with me, and both of these children are attending school, I filled in a form that I should be allowed a rebate on a fortnightly basis, which in effect amounted to 6/- per pay.

"Imagine my surprise to be told that no rebate is allowed in April or May for a child that will attain the age of 16 years before the first of July, 1943!

"I certainly will be allowed a rebate when my assessment comes along, but as I will have considerably overpaid my tax by that time, and no refunds are to be made, you will see that it is quite clear that our present Treasurer has reduced the age of dependants from 16 years to 15 years and nine months, thereby placing a further blot on Labour legislation."

QUEENSLAND

Defence Expenditure

"Queensland is receiving the benefit of an ever growing volume of defence expenditure," said Senator J. S. Collings, Minister for the Interior and Leader of the Government in the Senate.

"To-day's figures appear astronomical compared with the sums spent in pre-war days. Then, works expenditure for all Australia barely reached the two million pound mark annually. Over the last twelve months, however, Queensland alone has averaged nearly two million pounds a month.

"A survey covering the last seven weeks' expenditure on defence works in Queensland shows that contracts valued at over £800,000 have been let and financial authority has been granted for the outlay of a further £3,200,000.

"Past expenditure in Queensland is now showing itself in Australia's greatly increased military strength in northern areas. The ever increasing flow of defence money to northern Australia is an indication of our determination to drive the enemy back to Tokyo.

"A modern miracle has been wrought in transforming northern Australia from a virtually defenceless area into a fortified base from which aggressive action can be taken against the enemy," declared Senator Collings. "The gigantic organisation of the Allied Works Council has ben responsible for the performance of this mammoth task."

FAIR SHARE FOR ALL

RATIONING IN AUSTRALIA

Shortage of Commodities

The first year of rationing in Australia has just been completed. The authorities report that the operation of the system introduced has been satisfactory, and citizens generally feel that they have been by no means badly done by. People have had to give their minds to planning their personal and household economy in a way they have not bothered to do hitherto, and have been put to the inconvenience involved in the use of their coupons.

Tea, sugar, butter, clothing and household drapery and certain types of furnishings are now under controlled distribution, and probably before we are through with the business a number of other necessities will be dealt with in the same way.

It is with a feeling of reluctance that we surrender our age-old individual right to produce, distribute and consume according to our own personal inclination, but circumstances have made it necessary that we should do so, and it is well that we should accept the existing situation with the best grace possible'

A continuance of the old order of our economy would have meant a serious dislocation of our social system, with the danger of a breakdown. Without control of prices and consumption, the scarcity of certain goods would have involved the prices of wartime profiteering. Those people with more money than others would have had all they wanted, and those whose resources were more limited would have had to go without many things which had risen to prices beyond their ability to pay.

The purpose of the Government control which has been introduced has been to see that prices shall be fair to producer and consumer, and to see that the rich shall not be able to buy more than their share, and that those who are not rich shall not be called upon to go without.

Of course, it was to be expected that difficulties would arise in connection with the operation of the system. Black markets, as well as black buyers and black sellers, were inevitable, and unfairnesses were bound to creep in, which could be eliminated only in the course of time.

For the most part people seem to have played the game and to have accepted rationing as an attempt to give a fair share to all. The main reasons for shortages of commodities have been seasonal conditions and transport difficulties. We now have to feed a large army as well as a civilian population. Moreover, we have to think of Allied countries less fortunate than ourselves, and spare some of what we have to augment their more meagre suplies.

For example, by going without a little butter ourselves we can still have half a pound per person per week and help to maintain the ration of two ounces to our kinsfolk in Britain.

It looks as if Government control of distribution has come to stay. It will probably take some getting used to, but we shall be wise to make the best of it we can.

LOST PROPERTY.

"Finders of lost property should seek always to locate its owner, and the best way of doing this is to communicate with the police," said Mr. S. Wilson, S.M., when James Cawley, 36, electrician, of Brisbane, admitted keeping a leather jacket which he said he had found on the roadway outside his home. The S.M., making the above comment, imposed a fine of £1, in default seven days' gaol.

DAIRY PROBLEMS.

Problems of the butter and cheese industry will be discussed at the annual conference of the Dairy Factory Managers' Association, which opens in Brisbane to-day (Wednesday). The annual butter and cheese show is being held in conjunction with the conference, and will be officially opened at the Hamilton Cold Stores on Wednesday afternoon by the Premier (Mr. F. A. Cooper). An address will be given to the conference on Thursday by the Federal Prices Commissioner (Professor Copland) on the butter price in relation to cost of production and cost of living.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

TEN PLAIN FACTS about VD Venereal Diseases

"It is very important under present conditions that the public should know of the existence of venereal diseases; their prevalence in war-time; how they are caused; the urgent necessity for early treatment; and where advice and treatment can be obtained."—THE BRITISH MINISTRY OF HEALTH.

1. Venereal Diseases have increased since the war and are still increasing; many new cases are now occurring yearly among civilians alone. Venereal diseases cause much misery. They bring tragedy into many homes, and considerably damage our war effort by causing reduced efficiency and wasted hours.

2. Ignorance and secrecy are highly dangerous. Only from a plain and frank statement of the facts can we all know what these diseases are, how they are spread, how they can be avoided and how and where they can be cured.

3. The two principal venereal diseases are syphilis and gonorrhœa. They are caused by quite different living organisms or germs.

4. Syphilis is a dangerous, a killing disease. If not treated early and thoroughly by a doctor it can cause serious mutilation, heart disease, paralysis, and insanity, any of which may be fatal. Syphilis can be passed on to an unborn child from its mother and (unless skilled treatment is given early in pregnancy) is one of the causes of blindness, deafness, and mental defects.

5. Gonorrhœa, though not so dangerous to life, is more serious than is generally believed, and is one of the causes of arthritis, sterility, and chronic ill-health.

6. Syphilis and gonorrhœa are almost always contracted through intercourse with an infected person. The germs of these diseases quickly die outside the human body. In practice, therefore, there is no need to fear their spread by accidental infection.

7. Professional prostitutes are not the only source of infection. Any free-and-easy sex behaviour must mean a risk of infection and cannot be made safe. Clean living is the only way to escape infection—abstinence is not harmful.

8. Venereal diseases can be cured if treated early by a doctor. Advice and treatment are available in Brisbane for the purpose and at Public Hospitals throughout the State. Treatment is confidential and effective. Any family doctor will give the address of the nearest clinic. Quack treatment or self-treatment is absolutely useless and may even be disastrous.

9. Disappearance of the early symptoms does not necessarily mean that the patient has been cured. It is essential to continue the treatment until the doctor says it may be stopped.

10. Anyone who has the slightest reason to suspect infection should seek medical treatment AT ONCE. A doctor or clinic or public hospital should be consulted immediately about any suspicious sore or unusual discharge. It may not be venereal disease, but it is best to be sure. These are the signs. The first sign of syphilis is a small ulcer. It appears from 10 to 90 days after infection; usually about three weeks. Gonorrhœa first shows itself as a discharge which usually appears from 2 to 10 days after infection.

WANTED:
A Bigger PIE!

THERE is much argument and discussion on how, after the War, we are to restore (and improve) our standard of living.

Much of the discussion is concentrated on how the national pie is to be divided up, though it should be clear that what will be needed is a bigger pie. Before there can be bigger slices for everyone we must make the whole pie bigger. We must produce more — more goods, more services, more housing, more travel, more entertainment — before we can expect to live better.

There are those who think that the issue of Bank Credit, or the raising of wages and priees will do the trick, but people cannot eat or wear money. If there be not enough houses to go round, doubling wages or rents will not let us all live better. No, what we must do is to produce and sell more: more per man, per horse-power, per acre, per £ invested.

It is the goods and services that we have to sell that give us the wherewithal and the urge to buy from others and something over to invest in more production, and in A.M.P. policies for the security of our families and the comfort of our old age.

CIVILIAN REGISTRATION

Five Million Cards

On March 31, 1943, the names of 4,597,383 persons (2,002 549 males and 2 594,934 females) were on the civilian register. Since then all boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 16 have registered. All these cards will now be checked with the C.R.7 cards that were filled in and presented during the distribution of ration books.

The civilion register does not include men in the armed forces, while there is a separate register for aliens, but it is expected that as a result of the supplementary register (C.R.7) the civilian register will reach 5,000,000.

For the twelve months preceding March 31 over 700,000 people notified the Manpower authorities that they had changed their address, yet notwithstanding this huge total, it had been discovered at various call-ups that thousands of persons had changed their address without carrying out the instruction that it should have been notified on the prescribed form.

The information given on C.R.7 cards in regard to "occupation" will be of the greatest value to the Manpower Directorate in placing men women and children where they can be of greatest service in the national war effort.

GARDEN PESTS

How To Control Them

Cutworms, fat, greenish, grey grubs, infest the soil at certain times, and take their name from their characteristic method of attack. They cut through the main stems of small plants, causing them to fall over. Sometimes complete decapitation takes place.

A few grubs can do a lot of damage if unchecked. By day they hide in the soil just below the surface, close to the plants damaged on the previous night's raid. Careful stirring of the soil may reveal them, but as their colour is akin to that of the soil, a sharp watch must be kept when seeking them out. They are particularly destructive in the vegetable patch, and some measure of control may be necessary.

This takes the form of baits. The baits are made from bran, paris green (a poisonous arsenic compound, and molasses. As paris green is now difficult to secure, lead arsenate can be used. One and a half pounds of bran and one ounce of lead arsenate are thoroughly mixed together. The mixture is moistened with a pint of water, in which two tablespoons of molasses, treacle, or golden syrup have been dissolved. The crumbly mixture is scattered over the soil.

Beware, the baits are poisonous. They are scattered in the late afternoon, so as to be moist at caterpillar feeding time. The above quantities will dress a large bed.

SLUGS AND SNAILS.

Slugs and snails, well known pests, create great havoc among the small plants, both vegetable and flowering. Fortunately, there is an excellent remedy available. It is usually bought under the name of "Meta" baits, the active ingredient of which is metaldehyde, which is both attractive and highly poisonous to these pests.

The baits are scattered about the more heavily infested places. It is somewhat poisonous to animals and human beings, and it is better to scatter the baits rather than leave them in heaps.

WHEN WILL THE WAR END

Events Moving Towards Triumphant Conclusion

One of the thoughts uppermost in the minds of most people is how long will the war last? The answers to this question vary between wide extremes. There are those who say that the end will come this year, while others assert that the conflict will continue indefinitely, if not conclude inconclusively.

From these conflicting opinions the average person is likely to derive little assistance. As we seek to make up our minds upon the matter, it is to be remembered that we are in a position to deal only with probabilities, for in warfare in general, and in the present conflict in particular, the unexpected has a habit of upsetting calculations.

We may well begin with Mr. Churchill's warning expressed in his recent American speech, that we are not to expect a speedy termination of the war. Probably no other person in the world is in as favourable a position as Mr. Churchill to prophesy when the war will end but, on the other hand, he is not the kind of person to build up false hopes or to prophesy a date of which he does not feel certain. His statement may be taken to mean that, though the German war machine may break at any time, there is reason to believe that it may remain intact for some time to come, at any rate, that it will not be broken easily.

There are, however, other facts to be taken into consideration. Air attacks upon Germany must certainly be having at least a softening up effect that will assist the final onslaught when it comes.

The German war machine and German morale broke unexpectedly in 1918, and they may well do so again. Another question concerns Germany's petrol supplies, which many experts assert are now inadequate. This asserted inadequacy may account for the comparative inactivity of the Luftwaffe. If Germany is short of petrol the end may come soon.

Again German morale is bound to be adversely affected by defeats on the Eastern Front and the Axis debacle in North Africa, and the uprising of occupied territories when the United Nations' invasion is announced may well become to Germany an uncontrollable element.

Even if we cannot be certain as to when the war will end, we have a deep and strong confidence that events are moving towards a triumphant conclusion.

ROCK FORTRESS

"I'm Fighting Fit Again"

Members of an all-star concert party came along recently to the B.B.C. studio to say "hello" and "thank you" to the Rock in the weekly programme to "Gib." The Governor's wife (Mrs. Mason Macfarlane) also sent a message.

The party brought back with them a poem which the Governor and Commander-in-Chief (Lieut. General F.N. Mason Macfarlane) had written for the "Rock Magazine."

Here is the poem:—

OUR ROCK.

Rock fortress, scarred by fearsome fights
When Spaniards scaled your dizzy heights
To battle with the Moors.
A refuge then for little ships
Escaping from the tidal rips
That skirt Morocco's shores.

Centuries passed; a sailor race
Hewed from your side a naval base,
Wherein great fleets may lie.
And finally an aerodrome
To give their gallant hawks a home
From which to scour the sky.

Symbol of all that stands for strength
And chivalry throughout the length
Of years replete with fate.
Great Sphinx in armour standing guard
And keeping tireless watch and ward
Over your narrow strait.

Token of Britain's steadfast might,
Watchfully crouching day and night,
While other empires wane.
They thought your arms were laid aide
But you can tell them now with pride
"I'm fighting fit again."

.303 RIFLES

Available To Pastoralists and Farmers

The Army is selling Martini Enfield .303 rifles at £1 each to pastoralists and farmers for the eradication of pests. With these rifles, which will be disposed of in good condition, will be sold 500 rounds of Mark VII. ammunition.

This was announced by the Army authorities last week, whose spokesman stated that the Army would pay rail freight on the rifles to suitable applicants.

He stressed the fact that no other type of rifle or sporting gun was available, nor was any ammunition.

Many requests had been made to the Army by owners for the return of .22, .32 and other calibre rifles and shot guns that have been impressed, but these applications could not be granted.

Rifles would not be sold to people in closely settled areas, because of their long range and danger.

Application must be made in writing to the Impressment Officer, Victoria Barracks, Brisbane, who would decide on the suitability of the applicant.

Cooper, E. M. Hall, L. McCray, L. Rigby, A. Farnsworth, H. Gollnick, E. Johnston, L. Janson, Miss A. Joyner, Rev. G. T. Phillipson, and Messrs. A. Drewe, D. J. Connellan, and the joint hon. secretaries (Mrs. H. Browne and Mr. V. A. Summers.

The rapid growth of branch activities was reflected in the nine reports submitted by the convenors and organisers of the various units.

SEWING CIRCLE.

Mrs. J. W. Rigby advised that one large box of finished articles had been forwarded, and another would be sent to headquarters on Tuesday, June 22. Members had been kept busy, but did not mind this, as results were good and all were keen on their work.

A letter from Mrs. Crouch, of the receiving and despatching depot, headquarters, said that Gladstone's big box of garments had been unpacked, and no fault could be found with it. The packing and listing were perfect. The quilts had been shown to Mrs. Carter, who is in charge of all made garments, and she advised that it was a good idea to put the bias around the crosses which had been attractively embroidered. One suggestion was that on account of the shortage clean linen should be made up in half size rolls. Mrs. Crouch asked that her congratulationns to members of the sewing and knitting classes should be extended on the high standard of work at Gladstone. Mrs. Rigby thanked Friends (Pty.) Ltd. and Mr. E. Masterson for cases and packing.

KNITTING CIRCLE.

Mrs. D. J. Connellan reported that 53 skeins of wool had been given out during the month, also 2 ozs. knitting cotton. Two beautifully knitted sleeveless pullovers were sent in by Mrs. A. E. Musprott (Littlemore) as a donation. We also thank the ladies who knitted the following articles:—

1 sleeveless pullover, Mrs. F. C. Thompson; 1 cardigan, Mrs. H. Hill; 2 prs. socks, Miss M. Liddicoat; 1 pr. socks each, Mesdames Grenfell, McDermott, and Miss Gilmore.

The Builyan-Many Peaks branch sent in a parcel of nicely knitted articles, which included 3 prs. socks, 3 balaclava caps, 1 skull cap, 1 chest protector.

A case of articles was sent to headquarters containing 25 prs. white cotton socks, 35 prs. Woollen socks, 1 long sleeve pullover, 4 sleeveless cardigans, 2 sleeveless pullovers, 2 balaclava caps.

The wool has arived to make bed jackets for invalid nursing sisters. Several ladies have kindly offered to make these jackets, and wool is available to any others who will write or 'phone 174 for same, as the articles are urgently needed by headquarters.

Many ladies who have been regular knitters for the Red Cross in the past have had to reduce their knitting efforts on account of extra time spent in shopping, etc. We would, therefore, be grateful to hear from any lady able to assist us to keep up our usual supply of socks, etc.

We have the directions of a very easily knitted sleeveless pullover and cardigan, which are only waist length. These can be supplied to knitters.

The best thanks of members are due to Mrs. E. Schneider for carrying on for the past month during my absence.

PADDY'S MARKET.

Mrs. A. H. Friend advised that the monthly Paddy's market (as reported) had realised £37/12/9. She is in need of an additional table for use at the markets, and anyone able to assist should get in touch with Mr 'phone 79.

The players are to take the accordeon home to practise, and persons wishing to use the instrument are to approach the Red Cross. It was also agreed that the accordeon be the property of the sub-branch for the duration of the war, and thereafter to be public property. It was agreed to donate the proceeds of a dance and tennis party to Red Cross week.

Messrs. D. Pershouse and C. Mann were thanked for donations of 10/- and honey for raffle, also Mrs. Colyer for chocolates for the next dance.

P.O.W. SCHEME.

Messrs. V. A. Summers and D. J. Connellan, joint organisers P.O.W. scheme, reported that due to the consistent efforts of lady collectors, Gladstone continued to do well with the street scheme, and was in a very high position on a per capita basis. An amount of £86 was handed Mrs. Browne for three weeks' collections. This equalled the previous deposit, showing that there was no falling off in the total. Prevailing dengue, etc., has affected many collectors, but we have in all cases made visits and given every possible assistance.

New collectors, who have proved very satisfactory, include Mrs. Cooper (who took over Mrs. Masterson's Gondoon Street book temporarily), Mrs. Les Kissicker (who is doing West Gladstone books for Mrs. Hallam), Miss V. Erbacher (who took two Auckland Street books from Mrs. Elliott), and Mrs. W. H. Hall (who has been doing portion of Gondoon Street, and has now reliever Mrs. Cooper, who is on holidays).

Additional collectors are required to relieve Mrs. Cooper (two Auckland Street books, from Tank Street to William Street), and Mrs. Stitt (two books, Ferris and Eden Streets, and Tank Street). Both of these collectors require relief temporarily.

The organisers would also like to hear from any person living in Toolooa Street to take over books in the distant area; also anyone able to assist with collections in Bonar Street, etc.

Mrs. Hallam has returned much improved in health, and will resume her collections at West Gladstone, where Miss Perkins and Mrs. Kissicker have been relieving.

Special donations handed in include a cheque for £6/10/- from Mr. Fred Williams, of Port Curtis Motors. This now a regular committee member.

YOUNGER SET.

The Younger Set of the C.W.A. was thanked for gifts of 15 packets of cigarettes for distribution. This kindly action was appreciated. Mrs. M. F. Howard also sent a splendid collection of magazines, which were very acceptable.

FINANCE.

The financial statement showed a balance of £661 after payment of accounts amounting to £85.

RED CROSS WEEK £900.

The Secretary (Mr. Summers), in announcing that Red Cross Appeal Week had reached the magnificent total of £900, said it had exceeded their most optimistic expectations, and reflected the greatest credit on town and country supporters of the branch. It was a very high amount to come from a comparatively small branch, and would, no doubt, be appreciated by His Excellency, Sir Leslie Wilson, who had made a special appeal to all branches. It was decided to remit a further £400, making a grand total of £900, to headquarters immediately.

GREEK COMMUNITY.

In outward letters of thanks it was moved that five members of the Greek community, Messrs. J. Comino, S. Corones, Feros Bros., M. Corones, and J. Calligeros, and J. Notaris, had contributed 27 guineas in special donations. The generosity of these gentlemen to Red Cross and other patriotic appeals in Gladstone is well known.

UNIFORMS.

Headquarters advised that only members of units in possession of first-aid or other certificates were entitled to Red Cross uniforms.

CONVALESCENT HOME.

The Divisional Commandant (Mrs. C. Brennan) would like to hear from any members of the Gladstone branch who are Red Cross aids (holding two certificates) prepared to do Red Cross work in a Red Cross convalescent home.

A report from the Emergency Service Company for 1943 was sought. It was decided to advise that Mrs. Jones would complete the necessary report and hand same to Mrs. Browne for despatch. If sufficient notice was given the company could be assembled for a visit by the Divisional Commandant.

A VALUED OFFICER.

Mr. Richard Hogan, hon secretary of the Bowen branch of the Red Cross Society, wrote stating that some time ago their chairman (Rev. G. T. A Phillipson) had resigned his position owing to transfer to Gladstone as Methodist minister there. Rev. Phillipson was the first chairman of the Bowen branch, which was founded in August, 1940, and he held the position until his transfer. He was one of the founders of the branch and had always worked in the interests of the Red Cross. Prior to the forming of the branch he was deputy commissioner for the Red Cross at a large military camp near Bowen, and looked after Red Cross interests in that camp. Mr. Hogan continued, "I have worked with Rev. Phillipson personally for the last two years, and can honestly say that I have never had a more energetic chairman to work with, and I have been in different secretarial posts for 15 years. I would strongly recommend that your branch invite Rev. Phillipson to help you in some way, as we have had considerable experience in Bowen in the different phases of Red Cross service, and he would be of great assistance to you."

Members welcomed the letter, pointing out that Rev. Phillipson had already been elected to an honorary position on the executive pending the annual meeting. It was hoped to fully utilise his valuable services.

GENERAL.

It was decided to accept an offer from Miss L. L. Rigby, Gladstone Hockey Association, for a share of the gates at hockey fixtures. V.A.D. collectors from the Red Cross and P.O.W. Committee are to be appointed.

It was decided that the annual general meeting be held next month, and that Mr. V. A. Summers be returning officer. Invitations are to be forwarded to kindred bodies to attend.

The general secretary (Miss Richardson) advised the despatch of a carton of cigarettes, 200 sheets writing paper, and 100 envelopes for Red Cross Hospital ward.

The hon. secretary (Mr. J. S. Robertson) conveyed the special thanks of His Excellency, Sir Leslie Wilson, to the Gladstone branch on its wonderful effort for Red Cross Week.

The general secretary (Miss Richardson) advised that Gladstone's record in connection with the Prisoner of War street scheme had been noted with pleasure and appreciation.

The Divisional Rationing Officer has requested that branches give a very exact description of the class of material they wished to purchase. Cotton pyjama or cotton shorting material is not sufficient, as it is necessary to state whether it is poplin, oxford shirting, etc.

P.O.W. SCHEME - RED CROSS WEEK NOW TOTALS £900

The President (Mrs. H. V. Phillips) presided over a well attended meeting of the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society. There were also present: Mesdames L. Golding, E. Friend, J. Jones, E. The best thanks of members are due to Mrs. E. Schneider for carrying on for the past month during my absence.

Mrs. A. H. Friend advised that the monthly Paddy's market (as reported) had realised £37/12/9. She is in need of an additional table for use at the markets, and anyone able to assist should get in touch with Mrs. Friend, 'phone 79.

V.A. DETACHMENT.

Miss Alma Joyner, commandant V.A. Detachment, reported that progress had been satisfactory. Members were still attending first-aid classes at the Ambulance on Tuesday nights. Miss Grundy's physical culture classes in the Watt Memorial Hall were also well attended. The hall was given free, and instruction was from 7.30 to 8 p.m. each Tuesday evening. The unit assisted with the refreshment stall at the patriotic rodeo. Members took part in the A.R.P. test last Saturday, gaining useful information and practice.

JUNIOR RED CROSS.

Mr. F. C. Thompson, Superintendent Junior Red Cross, reported weekly meetings. Instruction in first aid and toy making was given, and assistance rendered the branch at the fete held for Red Cross week.

Miss Grundy (leader) and Miss Rath (assistant) had worked enthusiastically.

Mrs. Hallam has returned much improved in health, and will resume her collections at West Gladstone, where Miss Perkins and Mrs. Kissicker have been relieving.

Special donations handed in include a cheque for £6/10/- from Mr. Fred Williams, of Port Curtis Motors. This represents a year's subscription of 2/6 weekly, and is certainly appreciated, as it is the first direct business donation to the street scheme.

The urgent need of keeping up P.O.W. contributions, and the forwarding of parcels to Australian prisoners of war was shown by information conveyed in a letter to a friend from a Gladstone boy interned in Italy. He wrote stating that food was poor and insufficient, and that it was due solely to the weekly Red Cross parcels that they were alive. This lad had shared his weekly parcel with a friend not so fortunate.

HOSPITAL VISITED.

Mrs. H. W. Gollnick, reporting on behalf of the Hospital Committee, advised that from May 17 to June 14 35 soldiers and sailors had been visited, and the usual comforts distributed. The men had been particularly grateful for the daily paper, which had been delivered regularly. All reading matter in the cupboard had been stamped. If any members of the Red Cross had spare magazines or periodicals they would be appreciated. Mrs. A. Taylor is now a regular committee member.

COMMISSIONER HAREWOOD.

Commissioner and Mrs. Harewood and party arrived in Gladstone by the Rockhampton mail this afternoon (Friday). The Commissioner will give his address, "The Immovable Foundation," in the Salvation Army Hall tonight (Friday), at 8 p.m. Everybody welcome.

WAR EXPENDITURE.

Revised war expenditure of £560,000,000 for 1942-43, was announced by the Federal Treasurer when making a financial statement in the House of Representatives. This represents a rise of £20,000,020 since last estimate in February. Revenue will provide £160,000,000 and £400,000,000 will come from loans.

AN ACCIDENT.

Thomas Edward Moore, married, aged 33, an employee of the Gladstone Sawmills, sustained on Wednesday serious injuries when he slipped and fell upon a fast moving pulley, suffering a compound fracture of the right leg and severe lacerations, which necessitated the removal of the kneecap. Dr. Byrne and the Ambulance were quickly on the scene, and the patient was conveyed to the District Hospital, where Dr. Skinner performed an operation. We are pleased to report that Mr. Moore is as well as could be expected.

BUFFS' "MYSTERY" BALL.

The annual effort of Lodge Gladstone 197, in aid of local charities, will this year take the form of a "mystery" ball, which is to be held in the Trocadero on Friday, July 2. The proceeds are to be divided equally between the Ambulance Brigade and the local Salvation Army Mobile Canteen Fund, two very worthy objects. As usual, the Buffs have made excellent and novel arangements for an enjoyable evening, and a large crowd is expected. Admission charges are 2/-, and an appropriate supper will be available at a small charge. The music will be supplied by Mr. Tom Ree's popular orchestra.

LIEUT. CLIVE MOORE.

The voice of Lieut. Clive Moore, who has been a prisoner of war since the fall of Singapore, was heard on the Tokio radio last night. Unfortunately, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Moore, who have listened to oversea broadcasts for the past year, did not have the pleasure of hearing their son's message, but Mrs. Clive Moore, who is living in Brisbane, was fortunate enough to hear the session. Clive said that he was well and receiving mail regularly. He also said that his friend, Lieut. Graham Burke, was well. The information that mail is being regularly received will be appreciated by the Red Cross and mothers and fathers all over Australia, as this is the first direct intimation that letters were getting through regularly. Lieut. Moore is a P.O.W. in Saigon, one of the large Japanese camps. There is now good ground for hope that letters will come through from Darcy Walters, W. McGeever, the Muspratt boys, and other Gladstone and district A.I.F. members, who were in Malaya when Singapore fell.

AMERICAN HOSPITALITY

SIGHT SEEING TOUR

Sergt. Observer Kevin Joyner

Letters home from Sergt. Observer Kevin Joyner, of the R.A.A.F., give some interesting details of Canada and the U.S.A., where the young Australian airmen were hospitably entertained.

The letters to Mrs. Joyner and Alma were written during the month of April, some weeks before Kevin and brother Reg left for England. The extreme cold (up to 67 degrees of frost), the absence of home mail, the difference in meat cuts in Canada and U.S.A. (where the Aussies strangely enough eat hamburgers and drink coffee and like it), the splendid Anzac Club (conducted by the Australian Comforts and New Zealand Patriotic Funds), the generosity of the American War Services Club in New York in providing free entertainment, including the famous Zeigfield Follies and numerous movie shows, the immensity of New York, where they spent days seeing small portions of the huge city, and the brief time spent in racing across the American Continent in modern express trains.

As a city New York impressed the Gladstone airmen. There was something different about the famous American city, with its grand central station, all avenues running north and south, and streets east ad west, the up-town and down-town. The city was extremely clean, with all communications underground through subways. The great commercial sky scrapers topped by the Empire State building.

The boys walked seven miles looking over one portion of Manhattan, a central park located on Manhattan Island. The usual brilliant lighting on Broadway was somewhat dimmed with lighting restrictions. Jack Dempsey's restaurant was one of the highlights here.

At 2 a.m. there was little or no sign of diminution of the life in the streets. The harbour by ferry and a view at the Statue of Liberty on the way to Staten Island, a look at the city from 1250 feet up in the Empire State building, Radio City, and the Rockfeller Centre (with the studios of the National Broadcasting Corporation), a trip to Marlem on an elevated railway, Fifth Avenue or Main Street, 11½ miles long, a bus trip from Broadway along the Hudson River to Giants Tomb, and the largest hospital in the U.S.A. (a Presbyterian institute), a ferry ride to Staten Island, where they were advised to see the Stock Exchange—were some of the highlights of a strenuous sight-seeing tour.

Once again Kevin referred to the hospitality of the Americans, who granted far more concessions to servicemen than the Canadians.

TEACHERS' UNION.

Application for deregistration from the Queensland Teachers' Union has been made to the Industrial Court by the Maryborough (Q.) branch of the union.

FEDERAL ELECTIONS.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Curtin) has announced that after a Supply Bill has been passed both Houses would be dissolved and an election held on July 24, or perhaps a week earlier.

ADDITIONAL GRANT TO TASMANIA.

On the recommendation of the Commonwealth Grants Committee, the Commonwealth will make an additional grants of £200,000 to Tasmania for the current financial year.

PYJAMA GIRL MYSTERY.

An application has been made for the reopening of the inquest on the Pyjama Girl, victim of murder near Albury in 1934. Among the grounds of application are that new witnesses can be produced, that former coronial findings were improper, and that the inquest begun in 1938 is incomplete.

POWERFUL LOCOMOTIVES.

Railway haulage will be strengthened soon by the addition of several powerful locomotives and a large number of waggons. Some of these engines will be used on the Rockhampton to Bundaberg run, on which generally two engines are required to haul one train.

SERGEANT RAY HALLAM.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hallam, of Gladstone, have received regular communications from their son, Sergeant Ray Hallam, R.A.A.F., since he left Australia some nine months ago. Ray has now been in England for some time, and is enthusiastic about the confident spirit of the people of England. He is a member of an all Australian crew of a Lancaster bomber, and says he has never felt better in his life. Sergt. Hallam has spent several leave periods in the English countryside, and his parents have received a letter from one of the families with whom he stayed. He also mentioned that he had met test match bowler Harold Larwood, and had danced to Victor Sylvester's orchestra.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

RESTORATION OF RACING.

Representations for a return to racing on the first Saturday in each month have been made by a deputation of members of the Labour Party to the Prime Minister. While Mr. Curtin said he would refer the request to Cabinet for consideration, it is believed his personal views are against the restoration of racing on the first Saturday.

BUFFALO FLY.

The Minister for Commerce (Mr. Scully), expressing concern at the spread of the buffalo fly in Queensland, said the pest had now reached the coastal districts, and if it attained plague proportions, would seriously menace Queensland cattle herds. He had asked the Director of Agriculture (Mr. Bulcock) to proceed to Queensland and discuss the matter with the State authorities. In view of the importance to the cattle industry the spread of the buffalo fly had national significance.

HOCKEY

GAME THAT GROWS

Interesting Points

(By "Skylark")

Sunday week saw the beginning of the first round of fixtures for the season of the Port Curtis Hockey Association.

Air Training Corp team forfeited to Bandit A, as most of the players were away on duties in connection with their training.

Sparks and Bandit B met in the men's match, and a thrilling game resulted. However, Sparks proved too strong for Bandits, and won by three goals to nil.

Tom Duncan led the Sparks in the absence of Tommy Morgan, while Jeff Onions was at the helm of Bandits, who took the field three players short.

Play was fast and furious from the first "bully" and good hockey was played. The first half was even, no score being registered.

Sparks showed good combination in the second half, and with a little practice, will be a hard team to beat.

Tom Duncan was very safe at full-back. Watty Spencer was as safe as ever, but a bit on the lazy side. I have seen Len Flash do better at half-back. Coxon was safe, and Bill O'Donnell (a lad new to the game) has the makings.

Of the forwards, Gilbert Beale and Paddy Crow were as lively as ever, and never missed an opportunity of forcing the pace.

For the Bandits each player pulled his weight, and the wonder of the game was the score against them was not higher. These boys are imbued with the old Bandit spirit—never say die—and fought it out to the final whistle.

Des Bauer, in goal, had many shots at him, and gave a fine display of keeping, meeting the oncoming forwards in fine style, and clearing repeatedly.

Norm Jones, full-back, put up a sterling defence, clearing in good style. He has a good eye and plenty of energy, and was ably supported by A. Robinson.

Fred Hunt, having two positions to watch, was in everything, assisting in the forward line and falling back to half.

C. Weldon, on the wing (a new boy), gave a nice display, and is the makings of a good player. We will, I am sure, hear more of this chap.

Jeff Onions was the tiger on the day. I have never seen more energy, better stick work or tactics displayed. A great display, Jeff, but see and rally a full team for future matches.

Allan George and Cliff Littlemore were in the thick of it. Generally, the Bandit B has everything to work up a first-class team, but don't forget, boys, you need the full eleven if you are going to win.

Imps and Y-Nots looked evenly matched. Imps, playing one short, went down by 5-3.

Generally, the play was slow, players being short of a game. These teams should put up some good tussels during the season. More about these teams next week, when I will endeavour to offer some helpful criticism on the day's play.

I understand the Executive are donating all gate proceeds to the Ambulance, Red Cross, and A.C.F., who will attend to the gate collections, so patrons, don't forget, and help these worthy bodies by your liberal support at the gate.

GOLF

The popular mixed foursomes will be played at the Gladstone Golf Club links this afternoon. Members and associates are asked to be present for the draw for partners at 1.45 p.m. sharp to enable an early start.

To-morrow the even more popular four ball best ball competition for members will be commenced. Once again the draw for opponents will be at 1.45 p.m. The following pairs will take part in the event:—

Moore-Fellowes, O'Sing-Clifford, McCray-Elliott, Peardon-Bliss, Connellan-Joyce, Golinick-O'Donnell, Fitzgerald-Collins, Busteed-Hanson, Power-Hall.

This fixture will be a pipe-opener for the bour ball best ball against bogey for Rev. Father Cullen's trophy.

PETROL DRUMS.

A plant is to be erected in Brisbane for the manufacture of petrol drums. Southern officers have been sent to Brisbane to select a suitable site.

DECENTRALISED HOUSING

Local Council's Part

Mr. H. E. Street, Under Secretary of the Department of Local Government, said local councils had not borrowed to finance housing projects, as they are entitled to, under the local Government Act, because of lack of encouragement from the Government. However, many were eager to start housing activities as soon as possible. Great impetus for decentralised housing could be achieved if councils were assisted financially.

Any Government housing authority should fully exploit local government bodies' facilities for drawing up plans for local development and for the building and administration of Government housing projects.

Written evidence submitted by Mr. A. M. Allen (Surveyor General) said that the use of Crown lands for housing in the eastern and central divisions of N.S. Wales would be governed by the stability of population after the war.

There had been an influx of population to certain country towns because of military camps, munition works, and wartime expansion of industry. The retention of such population would depend on Government post-war policy.

The outstanding lack in previous plans for subdivision and housing was a central planning authority with adequate powers for long-range regional planing and authority to ensure that its zoning and designs were followed. This lack largely explained the failure of local bodies to exercise their extensive powers in centres with growing populations.

Mr. Allen urged the formation of regional and county councils to carry out schemes too big for single councils. If a central planning authority had power to compel compliance with plans for private land development, it would eliminate the need for acquiring land at considerable cost, which was the only way in which planning could be achieved at present.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

L.A.C. Dorothy Force, W.A.A.A.F., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alf Force, of Gladstone, is spending leave with her parents.

Master Max Friend, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Friend, of Gladstone, is home on holidays from the Brisbane Church of England Grammar School.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Archay, of Calliope, have received word that their son, Pilot Officer Ken Archay, has arrived safely in Eastern U.S.A.

Miss Shirley McCray and Miss Audrey Moran, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McCray and Mr. and Mrs. T. Moran, of Gladstone, have arrived home for the mid-winter vacation. Both are pupils at All Hallows' Convent, Brisbane.

The many friends of Mr. A. H. Friend, of Gladstone, will regret to learn that at present he is an inmate of the District Hospital, suffering from a severe attack of dengue, and the hope is expressed that he will make a speedy recovery.

At the last meeting of the Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society it was mentioned that Mr. A. H. Friend was an inmate of the District Hospital, following a severe bout of dengue. Members expressed the hope that their executive officer would soon recover and be able to resume his usual business activities.

OBITUARY

MR. ROBERT CRAWFORD.

A well-known resident of the Mt. Larcom district, in the person of Mr. Robert Crawford, who had lately resided in Brisbane, passed away suddenly whilst being conveyed from Mt. Larcom to Gladstone for medical treatment. Deceased managed Mr. H. C. Moore's drapery branch at Mt. Larcom for many years, and after retiring lived in the city. He was visiting his daughter, Mrs. Eric McGuire, accompanied by his wife, and it was while he was at Mr. McGuire's property in the district that he was taken ill. As stated, he passed away before reaching the local hospital. The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon, Rev. Father McShery officiating at the graveside.

RESTORATION OF RACING.

Representations for a return to racing on the first Saturday in each month have been made by a deputation of members of the Labour Party to the Prime Minister. While Mr. Curtin said he would refer the request to Cabinet for consideration, it is believed his personal views are against the restoration of racing on the first Saturday.

BUFFALO FLY.

The Minister for Commerce (Mr. Scully), expressing concern at the spread of the buffalo fly in Queensland, said the pest had now reached the coastal districts, and if it attained plague proportions, would seriously menace Queensland cattle herds. He had asked the Director of Agriculture (Mr. Bulcock) to proceed to Queensland and discuss the matter with the State authorities. In view of the importance to the cattle industry the spread of the buffalo fly had national significance.

HOCKEY

GAME THAT GROWS

Interesting Points

(By "Skylark")

Sunday week saw the beginning of the first round of fixtures for the season of the Port Curtis Hockey Association.

Air Training Corp team forfeited to Bandit A, as most of the players were away on duties in connection with their training.

Sparks and Bandit B met in the men's match, and a thrilling game resulted. However, Sparks proved too strong for Bandits, and won by three goals to nil.

Tom Duncan led the Sparks in the absence of Tommy Morgan, while Jeff Onions was at the helm of Bandits, who took the field three players short.

Play was fast and furious from the first "bully" and good hockey was played. The first half was even, no score being registered.

Sparks showed good combination in the second half, and with a little practice, will be a hard team to beat.

Tom Duncan was very safe at full-back. Watty Spencer was as safe as ever, but a bit on the lazy side. I have seen Len Flash do better at half-back. Coxon was safe, and Bill O'Donnell (a lad new to the game) has the makings.

Of the forwards, Gilbert Beale and Paddy Crow were as lively as ever, and never missed an opportunity of forcing the pace.

For the Bandits each player pulled his weight, and the wonder of the game was the score against them was not higher. These boys are imbued with the old Bandit spirit—never say die—and fought it out to the final whistle.

Des Bauer, in goal, had many shots at him, and gave a fine display of keeping, meeting the oncoming forwards in fine style, and clearing repeatedly.

Norm Jones, full-back, put up a sterling defence, clearing in good style. He has a good eye and plenty of energy, and was ably supported by A. Robinson.

Fred Hunt, having two positions to watch, was in everything, assisting in the forward line and falling back to half.

C. Weldon, on the wing (a new boy), gave a nice display, and is the makings of a good player. We will, I am sure, hear more of this chap.

Jeff Onions was the tiger on the day. I have never seen more energy, better stick work or tactics displayed. A great display, Jeff, but see and rally a full team for future matches.

Allan George and Cliff Littlemore were in the thick of it. Generally, the Bandit B has everything to work up a first-class team, but don't forget, boys, you need the full eleven if you are going to win.

Imps and Y-Nots looked evenly matched. Imps, playing one short, went down by 5-3.

Generally, the play was slow, players being short of a game. These teams should put up some good tussels during the season. More about these teams next week, when I will endeavour to offer some helpful criticism on the day's play.

I understand the Executive are donating all gate proceeds to the Ambulance, Red Cross, and A.C.F., who will attend to the gate collections, so patrons, don't forget, and help these worthy bodies by your liberal support at the gate.

DECENTRALISED HOUSING

Mr. H. E. Street, Under Secretary of the Department of Local Government, said local councils had not borrowed to finance housing projects, as they are entitled to, under the local Government Act, because of lack of encouragement from the Government. However, many were eager to start housing activities as soon as possible. Great impetus for decentralised housing could be achieved if councils were assisted financially.

Any Government housing authority should fully exploit local government bodies' facilities for drawing up plans for local development and for the building and administration of Government housing projects.

Written evidence submitted by Mr. A. M. Allen (Surveyor General) said that the use of Crown lands for housing in the eastern and central divisions of N.S. Wales would be governed by the stability of population after the war.

There had been an influx of population to certain country towns because of military camps, munition works, and wartime expansion of industry. The retention of such population would depend on Government post-war policy.

The outstanding lack in previous plans for subdivision and housing was a central planning authority with adequate powers for long-range regional planing and authority to ensure that its zoning and designs were followed. This lack largely explained the failure of local bodies to exercise their extensive powers in centres with growing populations.

Mr. Allen urged the formation of regional and county councils to carry out schemes too big for single councils. If a central planning authority had power to compel compliance with plans for private land development, it would eliminate the need for acquiring land at considerable cost, which was the only way in which planning could be achieved at present.

Members expressed the hope that their executive officer would soon recover and be able to resume his usual business activities.

OBITUARY

MR. ROBERT CRAWFORD.

A well-known resident of the Mt. Larcom district, in the person of Mr. Robert Crawford, who had lately resided in Brisbane, passed away suddenly whilst being conveyed from Mt. Larcom to Gladstone for medical treatment. Deceased managed Mr. H. C. Moore's drapery branch at Mt. Larcom for many years, and after retiring lived in the city. He was visiting his daughter, Mrs. Eric McGuire, accompanied by his wife, and it was while he was at Mr. McGuire's property in the district that he was taken ill. As stated, he passed away before reaching the local hospital. The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon, Rev. Father McShery officiating at the graveside.

TREATMENT OF CANCER

FOREMOST AUTHORITY

Modern Facilities

The New South Wales Premier, Mr. McKell, anounced recently that the State Government had decided to provide £100,000 for the establishment in Sydney of a cancer institute for the treatment and research of the disease. He said that, acting on the advice of a committee of cancer experts, he had invited Dr. Ralston Paterson, F.R.C.S., foremost cancer authority in the British Empire, to come to Sydney to inform the Government on the establishment of the institute and on the treatment of the disease. Dr. Paterson is Director of the Holt Radium Institute, Manchester, servicing a population of about 10,000,000.

"My Government feels that, not alone in this State, but throughout Australia, we are far behind the best world standards in cancer treatment, and that the best way to tackle the problem is to bring Dr. Paterson to Australia," said Mr. McKell. "We realise that this cancer institute must set the highest standard, and that it must be equipped with modern facilities. Many of the public, and certainly the medical men who are interested in cancer treatment, are aware of what has been done in establishing a State Bureau of Physical Services at the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, where radon is produced and radium made available for cancer treatment.

"The Government intends, when the cancer institute is established, to incorporate therein the State Bureau of Physical Services, so that the services of the bureau will be available to the medical profession. At present only one physicist and one technician are attached to the bureau, but as soon as demands warrant it the Government will improve and enlarge the bureau and will appoint additional staff."

Dr. H. H. Schlinck, president of the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, has not announced the personnel of the committee of cancer experts, stating that he preferred to leave this to the Minister concerned. It was stated, however, that the committee would comprise a pathologist, a radiologist, a radio,therapeutist, a general surgeon, a gynaecologist, and, in fact, one representative from each branch of medicine dealing with cancer. The committee would advise the Minister about the necessity for the segregation of cancer cases, clinical research, etc., and would organise the instruction of medical undergraduates in the treatment of cancer.

Warm approval of the Government's decision to provide £100,000 for the establishment of a cancer institute was expressed by several doctors.

"A very good scheme, much overdue; a better man than Dr. Paterson could not be obtained to organise it," was a typical statement. It was made by a doctor who worked with Dr. Paterson at the Holt Radium Institute.

WANTED:
A Bigger PIE!

THERE is much argument and discussion on how, after the War, we are to restore (and improve) our standard of living.

Much of the discussion is concentrated on how the national pie is to be divided up, though it should be clear that what will be needed is a bigger pie. Before there can be bigger slices for everyone we must make the whole pie bigger. We must produce more — more goods, more services, more housing, more travel, more entertainment — before we can expect to live better.

There are those who think that the issue of Bank Credit, or the raising of wages and prices will do the trick, but people cannot eat or wear money. If there be not enough houses to go round, doubling wages or rents will not let us all live better. No, what we must do is to produce and sell more: more per man, per horse-power, per acre, per £ invested.

It is the goods and services that we have to sell that give us the wherewithal and the urge to buy from others and something over to invest in more production, and in A.M.P. policies for the security of our families and the comfort of our old age.

POST-WAR PROBLEM

LOCATION OF INDUSTRY

Decentralisation Necessary

Reviewing proposals of the new Post-War Reconstruction Department, the Army Educational Journal states that demobilisation in itself will be a huge task. The services will have to decide how many men will be needed for occupation forces in liberated territories, for the permanent forces, and for possible emergencies.

Services authorities with certain committees are beginning to work out the likely rate and order of discharge. Such plans must be sufficiently elastic to be adjusted to any conditions which may arise. They must be linked to plans for re-employment. They must take account of what happened last time, and the likely conditions this time. They must learn much from demobilisation experts in other countries.

Provision for returned soldier preference in employment in the Commonwealth Public Service and other fields where the Commonwealth has authority has already been written into the Repatriation Act. The Government proposes to extend this.

But the men and women of the services cannot be demobilised or trained or placed in employment apart from the rest of the community. Their problems on returning to civil life will be only one section of many reconstruction problems. None of these problems will be successfully and permanently solved unless all are solved—only if reconstruction as a whole is successful can repatriation and rehabilitation succeed.

There will be other groups—munition workers, women workers, C.C.C. workers—all of whom will have particular reconstruction problems. Investigation and planning must be, and is, taking place in their problems, too.

DECENTRALISING NEED.

One of the issues which touches all these fields is the question of decentralisation, location of industry, and town and country planning. Hitherto these have been unplanned—left to the decisions of individuals who have rarely worried about any but immediate personal ends. But overcrowded cities and under populated country areas can only be better adjusted if a conscious national policy is pursued.

Secondly, the danger of inflation. At war's end it will take two or three years for industry to turn back fully to civil production, for shipping and trade to reach full peacetime levels. Yet there will be plenty of money—not only from wages, salaries, rents and profits but from bank savings, war bonds, deferred pay.

There will be plenty of purchasing power, in fact, but a temporary shortage of things to buy. In those circumstances, prices will rise, deferred pay and savings as well as wages will buy less, and men and women will feel cheated.

Only by a temporary continuation of rationing and price control will the purchasing power of our money be preserved and the speculator and profiteer checked.

For our own sakes we shall have to accept these forms of self-discipline until peacetime industry and trade reach full output again.

HOUSEHOLD LINEN

Coupon Permits

The normal way in which owners of boarding houses, hotels, furnished flats and other residentials can replace household linen is by coupon permits issued by the State Deputy Director of Rationing.

This has been emphasised by officials of the Rationing Commission, who said that apparently this was not clear to some proprietors who are concerned about their means of obtaining replacements. Some of these proprietors have asked their residents to supply their own linen.

One reason why owners of these establishments cannot be expected to rely entirely on the three coupons collected from each residents to make replacements is because service personnel and occasionaly residents did not have to surrender coupons on June 15.

All coupons collected on June 15, however, must be pasted on to sheets, each coupon marked "HD" and returned to the State Deputy Director of Rationing on or before June 30.

The name and address of the proprietor and establishment must be marked on each sheet. These coupons cannot be used for direct purchases by the proprietor. To offer or accept loose coupons is an offence.

On this return the proprietor must state the number of service personnel, casuals and permanent guests housed on June 15.

When replacements are needed application for a coupon permit must be made on for R.G. 51, obtainable from the State Deputy Director of Rationing.

Coupon permits to buy will be issued only to those proprietors who have complied with these instructions. Persons using their own sheets, towels and pillow cases in an otherwise furnished flat do not have to give up coupons to the proprietor.

DAIRY FARMERS

Rationing of Butter

If any farmer produces butter only for use by persons, including employees, who are resident in his household, it is not necessary to register.

Dairy farmers must also collect current "E" coupons for all butter current "E" coupons for all butter use, whether it is sold, given free, or exchanged. One coupon must be collected for each half pound.

Any farmer buying butter from another farmer for resale must register as a dealer in farm or dairy butter. Application for R.G.37 is available for this purpose at all post offices, and when completed, must be sent to the State Deputy Director of Rationing.

It is essential that all farmers keep however, must be pasted on to sheets, tions, said the Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. Cumming). To supply butter in any way contrary to the regulations is black marketing, the minimum penalty for which is three months' imprisonment.

Every ounce of butter produced by dairy farmers is of vital importance to Australia's war effort. Butter is rationed because it is essential that supplies for Britain be maintained. The British butter ration is 2 ozs. a head weekly, one quarter the Australian ration, and the Australian dairy farmer bears the responsibility of ensuring continuance of this ration.

UNITS OF VITAMIN "B1" FOR BREAKFAST!

Professor Priestley, of the Sydney University, writes in the "Australasian Baker" of July, 1942:—

"With respect to their vitamin B1 content, breakfast foods may be divided into two groups: Those that are wholly pre-cooked ready to eat and those not pre-cooked, or only partially pre-cooked during the process of manufacture.

"With few exceptions all members of the former group are extremely low in vitamin B1.

"Members of the second group retain the greater part of the vitamin B1 present in the original cereal grain from which the breakfast food was prepared.

"Thus, a plate of a pre-cooked ready-to-eat breakfast food without the milk, gave 2 units of vitamin B1, while a plate of porridge of rolled oats gave 66 units—33 times as much."

Here is further convincing proof of the wonderful food value of Uncle Toby's Oats — the cleanest, freshest and highest quality rolled oats obtainable. Remember, a breakfast of Uncle Toby's Oats provides 66 units of Vitamin B1 — serve it regularly throughout the year. Sold by grocers everywhere

OWEN GUN

Builds Morale in Troops

"An Australian with an Owen gun can lick anybody," said Mr. Raymond Parer when he arrived in Sydney last week from an advanced operational area.

"The moral effect of an Owen gun on the fighting spirit of Australians is amazing. They take more care of the gun than they do of anything else. So long as that is in good order they feel themselves invincible.

"To the men in the thick of the fighting the Owen in a 'real gun'." Mr. Parer continued. "It is something to be proud of, designed by an Australian, made in Australia of Australian steel. Australians feel it to be 'a hundred per cent ahead of any gun in the war.'

"Even men who are not in action regard the gun as something to be prized, and although mud and dirt in no way interfere with its mechanism, they can be seen constantly polishing and cleaning it. To our men in any circumstaces 'up north,' it brings home to them the efficiensy of our war effort.

"It is the most important link to date between the war effort at home and in action.

"The Owen gun joins the hands of the soldiers to the hand of the munition worker, and makes him aware of a united effort."

Mr. Parer, who has completed six months working with the United States Army as an advisory engineer, arrived in Sydney with his uniform and every item of his gear, even to his toothpaste, riddled with bullet holes.

"Luckily, I was not in the clothes when that happened," he explained.

Mr. Parer stated that he was amused by the laconic reference made to the action in which his clothing was damaged in the official communique.

The communique merely said: "Oro Bay—Forty enemy bombers, escorted by a strong formation of fighters, at mid-day attacked the area, sinking one small vessel and damaging another. Casualties were light. In a series of brilliant intereceptions our fighters broke the enemy formations, shooting twenty-five enemy aircraft out of action. Our own air losses were extremely light."

Mr. Parer's recollection of the action are most vivid. "A large number of Zeros buzzed around us like angry bees, letting fly with both cannons and machine guns, and we all thought that it would be a good idea to head for the shore. So we dived overboard.

"When we returned to our ship practically every inch of the deck was riddled with bullet holes, and she was settling down. We were doing our best to patch the engine up, when she sank under us."

It will be recalled that Raymond Parer, a veteran of the last war, made the epic England to Australia flight in 1920 with the late J. MacIntosh.

On that occasion it was his faith in patching up an engine that brought his Avro to its destination.

BATTLE ON HOME FRONT

Fight Against Compulsory Unionism

In Sydney ten women have been fighting a tremendous battle during the last four or five weeks. They have been fighting for a principle that 60,000 Diggers died for in the last war, and that many more will die for in this: they are fighting to keep this country democratic, against the constant attacks on the liberty of the individual.

These ten women have the support of every Digger of the last war, and every man who wears a uniform in this. They have the moral support—and if it comes to anything more tangible, then they can have that, too.

On one side in this battle we have ten women, some the wives of servicemen, whose one desire is to give everything they have to the war effort. Who believe that strikes over trivial matters can wait until the war is over.

On the other we have a fine bunch of heroes. They were here in 1914 when the last lot of Australians left to fight for democracy, and they were here in 1918, when some of them came back. And in the ranks of Trade Union pooh-bahs are many who should be shouldering a gun in this war.

Typical of the last war's non-starters is Mr. Colin Tannock. Mr. Tannock stated in the N.S.W. Parliament that non-unionists were "a lot of loathsome toads."

What a fine Australia! According to statistics just 52 per cent of Australians are trade unionists.

That means 48 per cent are "loathsome toads." Of course, that is according to Mr. Tannock.

So that a chap who enlisted in 1939, fought through Libya, Greece and Crete, then slogged his way up over the Owen Stanleys, who returns to civilian life, and stupidly thinks that he should have the right to earn his living without having to pay tribute to Mr. Tannock and his brother bosses, is a "loathsome toad."

Well, if that's so, it will be a title that Diggers will shoulder with honour.

It will be one that they will bracket with Lord Haw Haw's appellation of "Rat," which taunted them daily in Tobruk.

Diggers writing from battle stations are firmly convinced that the Government's persistent refusal to curb the trade unions' brutal attempts to soerce Australians into compulsory unionism will result in a conflict terrifying in its implications.

And not a man who is away will fail to take careful note of the men whose sole contributions to the war effort is an atfempt to terrorise women into selling their economic freedom in return for the unlimited right to sabotage the war effort.

"PROTECTING A VITAL PLANT"

On their toes all the time and ready for any emergency are the V.D.C. and 1,000 trained A.R.P. personnel at B.H.P. steelworks. Regular training keeps the men fit and eager. Here Sgt. Quick writes up "next parade" times on the V.D.C. notice board whilst Armourer Jones points.

ANGLO-AMERICAN RELATIONS

CO-ORDINATED PURPOSE

Prosperity and Security

Many people see in the unity of the English speaking world the main part of the world's hope of prosperity and security. Even those who do not fully accept this statement at its face value are aware of the importance of Anglo-American relations.

It is evident that a United Nations' victory will depend largely upon the co-ordinated purpose and effort of the two English speaking democracies on their respective sides of the Atlantic. It is evident, too, that what the post-war world will be will depend largely upon the measure in which Britain and America work together when the war is over.

In view of these facts it is understandable that German propaganda should aim, as it has done, at sowing seeds of dissension in Anglo-American relations, and to change the metaphor, to drive a wedge between the two nations.

Germany has told the U.S.A. that she really has no concern in the European conflict, and has nothing to fear from an Axis victory— propaganda which most Americans now see through.

Again, Germany has declared to Americans that Britain is just seeking to use America for her own imperialistic purposes, and that Britain will stand as America's ally only as long as it suits Britain's purpose to do so. This last piece of propaganda is still being swallowed by the few American isolationists that have survived the past few years, and is in danger of doing a considerable amount of harm.

There are two assertions which American isolationists are now reiterating. The first is that Japan is America's enemy No. 1, and that Britain is not showing a sufficient interest in the Pacific theatre of war.

America, these isolationists declare, should launch her main attack against Japan, and give only what help she is able to over and above that to Britain and her other allies.

This ignores the fact that the United Nations' strategy to beat Hitler first is one to which the American President has pledged her support, and that of the nation which he represents, moreover, it involves a misreading of many of the facts of the existing situation.

The second of these reiterations is that if America helps Britain to beat Hitler she will, when the European conflict is over, be left to face Japan alone.

This is perhaps the aspect of German propaganda which is most dangerous to Allied unity. It has little respect for what the world has long accepted as the honour of Britain, or of a definite pledge which Britain has made.

One of the most valuable features of Mr. Churchill's recent American speech was its definite statement that Britain would stand by America's side to the last breath and the last drop of blood.

Americans, we believe, accept Mr. Churchill's definite statements, so that what Mr. Churchill has said should prove a valuable counter to Axis propaganda and a definite answer to American isolationists and their damaging assertions.

British and American leaders, we may be sure, will recognise this blatant propaganda for what it is worth.

CURRENT TOPICS

MT. LARCOM WORSHIP.

Public worship will be conducted in the Public Hall, Mount Larcom, this Friday, 2nd July, at 11 a.m.

ARMY MARCH.

A parade in Brisbane next Saturday afternoon, showing the Army at work, will be the largest of its kind yet staged in Australia. Several bands will play.

RECORD WOOL BUY.

The British Government has contracts for the purchase of Australian wool over four seasons. This embraces wool worth £260,000,000, the greatest wool transaction ever recorded.

CHEESE OUTPUT.

Cheese production for the year will be about 12,750 tons, 750 tons below the State's allotted goal of 13,500 tons. The output is 75 per cent greater than last year's record production of 7299 tons.

SCHOOL CHILDREN MAKE STIRRUP PUMPS.

Making stirrup pumps has been one of the war efforts at the Wooloowin (Brisbane) State School, where the boys made 100 pumps for the Brisbane Hospitals Board and 180 for civilian use.

CLOTHING NEEDS.

Queensland's civil clothing requirements for the next twelve months will be discussed in Melbourne this week. Among questions discussed will be manufacturers' capacity to provide civil clothing and at the same time enable them to fulfil important military contracts.

STATE PARLIAMENT.

State Parliament will probably meet for the next session early in August. If the Federal elections are held during August it is probable Parliament may adjourn for a fortnight for the elections.

C.C.C. RELIEF CLAIMS.

Up till the end of May 1760 claims for compensation have been lodged with the Allied Works Council. Of the total 1215 claims were admitted, 43 refused, and the remaining 502 were partially admitted. At the end of May there were 48,000 men in the C.C.C.

FEDERAL ELECTIONS.

Already 21 candidates have been endorsed by four parties to contest the ten Queensland seats in the House of Representatives at the forthcoming Federal elections. Independent candidates are expected to appear in at least three seats—Brisbane, Lilley, and Griffith.

BUTTER SUBSIDY RATE.

The first payment under the new butter subsidy will probably be at the rate of 3½d per lb., said the Commonwealth Controller of Dairy Products (Mr. C. Sheehy). This would be an interim payment to cover April, May, and June, to be made through butter factories. It is expected the rate will be increased later.

DROP IN BUTTER YIELD.

Queensland's butter output for the last quarter of 1942-43 will be only about 8500 tons, the lowest for the year. This represents a 50 per cent decline on production for the last quarter of 1941-42. The slump is due largely to the accumulating effects of the severe drain on the industry's manpower. The serious downward trend in production in all States was one of the main factors that made butter rationing necessary.

APPEAL TO CATTLEMEN.

A cattle drive is now taking place in aid of the funds of the Gladstone and District Patriotic and Comforts Funds. The organisers are Messrs. A. K. Walker, Allan Chapman, and H. N. Ballantine, and their efforts should meet with a hearty response from district graziers. Cattle will be collected and delivered to the Meat Works in one mob on July 20, and the organisers appeal to cattle owners to respond to this worthy object. Particulars are advertised in to-day's issue.

In the Police Court on Monday, before the S.M., Mr. M. Dwyer, Vernon Brian Sweetenham, 20, meatworker, was charged with behaving in an indecent manner on Saturday on licensed premises. Sweetenham forfeited his bail of £2.

LIQUOR NEAR PUBLIC HALL.

Yesterday Charles Edwin Page and William George Salmoni, both of Ambrose, were charged with being in possession of liquor in the vicinity of a public hall, while a dance was in progress. Both defendants pleaded guilty, and each were fined £2 with 6/- costs of court, in default 14 days' imprisonment.

FINED £5.

Day, who pleaded guilty, was fined £5, in default one month's imprisonment.

The facts disclosed that the battery was left at Tweed's garage, the Valley, for charging, and was later found in a utility truck, the battery having been removed from the garage without the consent of the owner or Tweed.

During investigations by Constables Gerber and Fells the battery was found, and the defendant at first denied any knowledged of it, but later admitted the offence, stating he had only taken a loan of the battery.

PUPILS GROW VEGETABLES

REMARKABLE RESULTS

Co-operative Scheme

Queensland school children have achieved remarkable results growing vegetables in school plots, and at a recent conference in Melbourne many suggestions already implemented in Queensland were brought forward for the encouragement of school gardens in other States.

Encouragement of school vegetable gardens was begun in this State soon after Japan entered the war by co-operation between Public Instruction and Agricultural Departments.

Besides the vegetables grown in school gardens, thousands of school children grew produce in plots at their homes.

The N.S.W. co-operative scheme allows children to supply their own families and market the surplus, according to a Sydney message.

Private C. Bentley

He had a lucky escape in the battle for Wau when he was ambushed by Japs armed with a machine gun. He threw himself to the ground, and as he did so a bullet tore a gash across his shoulder. He is now fit and well again.

Local sportsmen will remember him turning out for the Wallabies' junior football team. He also played junior cricket with Norths.

OBITUARY

Mr. F. F. Menzies

It is with feelings of profound regret we have to record the death of Mr. Frank Fogg Menzies, grazier, Stowe Station, Calliope, which came suddenly at his residence on Monday. The news of his passing came with something like a shock of surprise to the community.

The deceased, who was in his 76th year, had enjoyed the best of health, and was one of the best known and most highly respected residents of the Gladstone district.

The late Mr. Menzies was an excellent judge of stock, and for many years was a member of the Graziers' Association, taking an active part in all matters that affected land pursuits, and the progress of the district was very near to his heart.

He was a warm patron of manly sports and pastimes, and was an enthusiastic member of the Committee of the Port Curtis Amateur Race Club during the years the club functioned, a member of the Show Society, and a foundation member of the Gladstone Bowling Club. He also patronised the annual race meetings of the Gladstone Turf Club, being a keen supporter of the sport of kings, besides being a first-class shot with the gun.

Of Mr. Menzies' personal qualities and characteristics it can be said he was kindly, genial, courteous, and warm-hearted, a gentleman in every sense of the word, and his presence will be missed for a long time to come.

The deceased leaves a sorrowing wife, one son, and two daughters to mourn their loss.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon to the Gladstone Cemetery, and was attended by a large and representative gathering, the Rev. H. MacNeil Saunders officiating at the graveside.

A sittings of the Land Court will be held at the Court House, Gladstone, on Wednesday, 14th July, at 10 o'clock a.m.

GLADSTONE TOWN COUNCIL

WORK TO BE CARRIED OUT BY TRACTOR-GRADER

BOYNE WATER SCHEME - THE PIPES TO BE TARRED

The fortnightly meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen J. Deveney, M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. E. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

YAROON AND KENT STREETS.

The Co-ordinator General of Public Works, Brisbane, acknowledged letter in reference to the road connecting Yaroon and Kent Streets, and advised that the matter would receive the necessary attention.—Received.

WATER SUPPLY SCHEME.

Minister for Transport, Brisbane, wrote in reference to the new water supply scheme for Gladstone, and advised the Railway Department was not prepared to pay an annual fee against the estimated yearly requirements, which might involve payment for water the department might not receive. The department was of the opinion that the present charge made was excessive in view of the very large quantities of water obtained from the Council each year.—Received.

EMPLOYMENT EXCHANGE BOARD.

The Chairman of the Employment Exchange Board (Mr. J. F. Donovan) wrote as follows:—

"With reference to the question of employment, and particularly the utilisation of the services of the men and women of the fighting forces now engaged in war work, at the cessation of hostilities, I have to advise that the Board at Gladstone comprises the shires of Calliope, Miriam Vale, Monto and the town of Gladstone, and from this it will be noted that Gladstone is the pivot of operations, and to give effect to this with the greatest amount of weight, it is asked that your body co-operate in this gigantic operation, and it is asked that any efforts your body may have in this connection be sent here with details for submission to the Executive heads at Brisbane for determination.

"It is unnecessary for me to point out the advantages to be obtained by co-operative effort as against isolated action, together with the facilities the port offers in conjunction with the railway. I look forward with much eagerness to your co-operation and assistance as indicated."—Received.

POST-WAR RECONSTRUCTION SCHEMES.

Mr. H. Neill Ballantine, Galloway Plains, wrote regarding the activities of the Gladstone Employment Exchange Board, and stated they had held their first meeting, and it was decided to submit schemes so they could be gone into, and some post-war reconstruction schemes got ready, so that they could be commenced as soon as the war was over.

As the Council's representative on the Board, he asked the Council to submit to him any proposed schemes it had in view so that he could present them to the local Board.

As both Aldermen Anderson and Deveney were members of the Board, he would not go into details, as these gentlemen would be able to explain the details to aldermen.

He hoped they could count on the co-operation of the Town Council, and he would do his best to supply any further information that might be required.

Received, and a sub-committee consisting of the Mayor (Ald. Dennis) and Aldermen Golding and Tudman were appointed to go into the matter with a view to submitting post-war reconstruction schemes.

ACCEPTED.

Gladstone Hospitals Board advised that it accepted the Council's offer to supply water to the Hospital and other buildings for three years, commencing on 1/7/43, at a flat rate of £40 per annum, and to pay £20 in settlement of all charges and arrears, if any, to June 30. The Department of Local Authorities would be supplied with a copy of this letter, and subject to confirmation by the Council to that department, the Board would waive any objection to the proposed by-laws.—Accepted.

BOYNE WATER SCHEME.

Mr. W. J. Reinholdfi consulting engineer, Brisbane, advised as follows:—(a) Professional fees charged for preparation of plans and supervision will be based on the cost exclusive of sales tax.

(b) Council's instructions regarding the calling of tenders for the reservoir work are noted and will be carried out.—Received.

DRAINAGE.

Mr. F. Williams, Gladstone, desired permission to put an extended v-type drainage system on the piece of land in front of his house, and he forwarded a rough drawing of the proposed layout.

It was decided that the Health Inspector, with members of the Health Committee, make an inspection and advise Mr. Williams.

OFFER ACCEPTED.

Mr. H. Padget, Gladstone, advised that he was prepared to contribute half the cost of connecting the water to his property.—The offer was accepted.

APPLICATION SUPPORTED.

A. E. Holder, Gladstone, asked the Council to support an application for his release from the C.C.C. with a view to starting a wood depot.—It was decided to support the application.

WORK TO BE CARRIED OUT.

Ald. Golding said in connection with their application for a tractor-grader from the Calliope Shire Council, it should have arrived in town that day (Monday), and the work would be started on Wednesday morning. They would reform the whole of the road from Rolla Street to the jetty, the work to be carried out at the expense of the Allied Works Council; also Side Street, from Kent Street to Coney Island would be formed. It would be necessary, said Ald. Golding, to provide piping to carry off the storm water.

PIPES.

Ald. Tudman moved that the Works Committee be given power to purchase the pipes for these jobs.—Seconded by Ald. Deveney and carried.

PIPE LINE INSPECTED.

Ald. Golding said he had made an inspection of the laying out of the new pipe line to the Waterworks, and suggested that the Council give consideration to tarring the pipes, as in his opinion it would prolong their life and justify the expenditure involved.

PIPES TO BE TARRED.

Ald. Tudman moved that the Works Committee be empowered to carry out the work of tarring the pipes.—Seconded by the Mayor and carried.

GRADING A ROAD.

Ald. Golding then brought forward the question of grading the road from the Riverston turn-off to Mt. Golegumma, which he considered was necessary in connection with the work of the Boyne River water scheme.

The Mayor stated he would like to visit the locality, and it was decided that the Mayor make an inspection and report at next meeting.

RESUMING LAND.

Ald. Deveney said at the last meeting of the Council Ald. Golding stated it would be necessary to resume portions of Mr. G. Doble's and Mr. N. Lee's properties for the purpose of putting a pipe line through, and, he (Ald. Deveney) stated that these gentlement were prepared to give a portion of their land to the Council to carry out the work.

Ald. Golding suggested that these gentlemen should submit their offer in writing, when the matter could be dealt with.

AUCKLAND HILL.

Ald. Smith moved that the Council write to the Minister of the Interior, asking that another road be constructed in lieu of the road removed from Auckland Hill.—Seconded by Ald. Tudman and carried.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were passed for payment:—General £2095/7/9, and water £1156/11--.

ELECTRIC AUTHORITY.

At a recent meeting of the Authority, Mr. Judge, of Bell Street, made application to have his house connected with electric light, and he was notified that until more houses were built along the line the application could not be entertained.

Speaking in regard to the matter, Ald. Deveney asked if Mr. Judge contributed £10 towards the cost of extending the line would the Authority be prepared to carry out the work

Ald. Golding: Yes, but Mr. Judge would have to make his application in writing, stating he was prepared to contribute £10 towards the cost of carrying out the work.

UNITS PER HOUR.

Engineer Phillips: 19½ to 20 units per hour.

ACCOUNTS.

Accounts amounting to £1577/19/1 were passed for payment.

SALVATION ARMY

VISIT OF LIEUT. COMMISSIONER E. J. HAREWOOD

BRITISH EMPIRE - "THE IMMOVABLE FOUNDATION"

The Territorial Comamnder, Lieutenant E. J. Harewood, O.B.E., of the Salvation Army, accompanied by Mrs. Harewood, the Divisional Commander for North Queensland (Brigadier Terracini), and the Young People's Secretary (Major Scotney), arrived in Gladstone on Friday afternoon, and at night addressed a largely attended meeting in the Salvation Army Hall, his subject being "The Immovable Foundation.

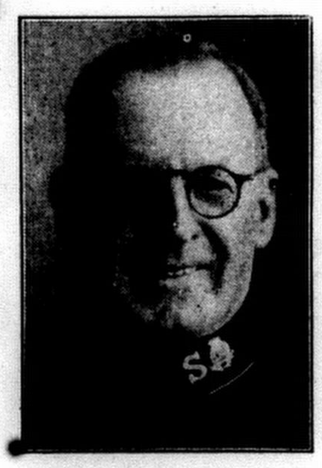
The President of the R.S.S.A.I.L.A., Mr. P. A. Friend, presided, and on the platform were the Lieut. Commissioner and Mrs. Harewood, the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson. Brigadier Terracini, Major Scotney, and the local representatives of the Army. An apology was tendered for the absence of Rev. H. MacNeil Saunders, who was indisposed.

IMPRESSIVE PRAYER.

Proceedings commenced with an impressive prayer offered up to Almighty God by Major Scotney, after which Brigadier Terracini introduced Lieut. Commissioner Harewood, and mentioned that Mr. Friend had accepted the invitation to preside over the meeting.

GLADSTONE FORTUNATE.

Mr. Friend, after suitably returning thanks for the invitation to preside, stated they all looked forward to meeting Lieut. Commissioner Harewood again, and remarked that Gladstone was fortunate in having another visit from the Commissioner.



LIEUT. COMMISSIONER E. J. HAREWOOD, O.B.E.

SCRIPTURE READING.

Mrs. Commissioner Harewood took part in the meeting, and led the audience in a responsive scripture reading, Psalm 118, "O give thanks unto the Lord for He is good: because His mercy endureth for ever," etc.

SAFETY OF THE KING.

Lieut. Commissioner Harewood, in his opening remarks, expressed his pleasure at being able to visit Gladstone again after an absence of three years. Since his return to Australia he had made eight visits to North Queensland, and on this occasion they had wonderful meetings at Atherton. He had learnt that night, per medium of the wireless, of the splendid news of the safe arrival in England of the King from his North African tour, and at his request the audience rose and sang the National Anthem, followed by an impressive prayer of thankfulness, offered up to Almighty God by the Commissioner for His Majesty's safety.

BRITISH EMPIRE.

Continuing his address, the Commissioner went on to say they had so much to thank God for—the many privileges which were being challenged on all sides by the forces of evil. God in His mercy, he said, had been good to the people of the British Empire which had done more for humanity and to preserve peace than any other country. The British Empire was built on the solid foundation of freedom for all peoples and was still the greatest living force for good in a world torn asunder by those rulers who had turned their eyes away from God.

NAZI SYSTEM.

On the other side of the picture, said the Commissioner, was the Nazi system, which was based on crushing the people of all lands by force, the military domination of the world, the trampling down of the wonderful works of God, "but such a system," added the Commissioner with emphasis, "cannot survive."

MARVELLOUS RULE.

Proceeding, the Commisioner briefly referred to what had been achieved by the British in India, and he characterised the English rule in that country as really marvellous.

MAINTAINING CIVILISATION.

Continuing his forceful and eloquent address, Commissioner Harewood said the British Empire was being guided by God in the world's greatest conflict against the forces of evil, and added, "God's will would prevail." The speaker then traced the many incidents that led up to the fall of France, with General Petain asking the little Austrian painter what terms he was prepared to offer France, and everyone knew what happened. Britain was left alone to continue the struggle for the freedom of the world, and the maintenance of civilisation itself.

DID NOT FALTER.

That was the Empire's darkest hour, said the Commissioner, and Mr. Churchill in simple but telling language informed the world that the battle of France was over, and that the battle of Britain was just commencing, and on its result depended the survival of civilisation and christianity. But Britain and the Empire did not falter; God was on our side.

"AN UNSEEN HAND."

The Commissioner then drew a graphic picture of the British troops falling back on Dunkirk in a masterly retreat, and the evacuation across the English channel in a fog that spread rapidly and embraced its skies and waters. After it was all over and the British forces, numbering some 300,000, were safely back on English soil, Mr. Churchill, in a statement, said: "I have a feeling that an unseen hand has been at work." It was a miracle, said the Commissioner, performed by God, the British troops were saved, and that bad man Hitler could not continue his attack. Let us, therefore, give thanks to Almighty God for His wonderous work.

BATTLE FOR EGYPT.

Commissioner Harewood also referred to the fact that at one stage of the battle Field Marshal Rommell was only 60 miles away from the naval base of Alexandria, and when he said, "I have the key to Egypt and the Suez Canal in my hand, and will open the door," which, said the Commissioner, would have cut the Empire in two—its lines of communication—and this would have brought about disasterous results, not only to the Empire, but Russia. The door, however, thank God, was not opened, and is closed forever against the forces of evil.

"GREAT SPIRITUAL FORCES."

The Commissioner then traced, step by step, the defeat of the enemy, culminating with the great victory in North Africa, and the opening of the Mediterranean, and General Alexander exclaimed, "Great spiritual forces have been at work." Yes, said Commissioner Harewood, "God had been at work, and was watching over the British Empire, which will live as long as its spiritual basis remains an effective force."

PREVAILING EVILS.

The speaker then referred to the growing menace of terrible prevailing evils—gambling and betting and drinking, while the spread of venereal disease in Australia was appalling, and he gave some startling facts regarding four young girls and their mother, who were all suffering from this dreadful disease. There were forces at work, he said, that were sapping both moral and spiritual vitality, and he made a stirring appeal to parents to wake up to their responsibilities. Think about it, said the Commissioner and take action, and added in conclusion, "God bless you and the British Empire, and all that it stands for, and see to it that it is built on an 'immovable foundation'."

THANKS.

Brigadier Terracini thanked the Rev. Phillipson and the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis) for their attendance, and Mr. Friend for presiding over the meeting.

VISIT NOT IN VAIN.

Mr. Friend thanked Commissioner Harewood for his thoughtful address, and added, "your visit will not be in vain."

ENJOYABLE EVENING.

During the evening an enjoyable musical programme was contributed by the Harold sisters, Methodist choir under the baton of Mr. R. Stevens), and Major Scotney.

A fitting prayer brought the meeting to a close—a real spiritual uplift

TEN PLAIN FACTS about VD

Venereal Diseases

"It is very important under present conditions that the public should know of the existence of venereal diseases; their prevalence in war-time; how they are caused; the urgent necessity for early treatment; and where advice and treatment can be obtained."—THE BRITISH MINISTRY OF HEALTH.

1. Venereal Diseases have increased since the war and are still increasing: many new cases are now occurring yearly among civilians alone. Venereal diseases cause much misery. They bring tragedy into many homes, and considerably damage our war effort by causing reduced efficiency and wasted hours.

2. Ignorance and secrecy are highly dangerous. Only from a plain and frank statement of the facts can we all know what these diseases are, how they are spread, how they can be avoided and how and where they can be cured.

3. The two principal venereal diseases are syphilis and gonorrhœa. They are caused by quite different living organisms or germs.

4. Syphilis is a dangerous, a killing disease. If not treated early and thoroughly by a doctor it can cause serious mutilation, heart disease, paralysis, and insanity, any of which may be fatal. Syphilis can be passed on to an unborn child from its mother and (unless skilled treatment is given early in pregnancy) is one of the causes of blindness, deafness, and mental defects.

5. Gonorrhœa, though not so dangerous to life, is more serious than is generally believed, and is one of the causes of arthritis, sterility, and chronic ill-health.

6. Syphilis and gonorrhœa are almost always contracted through intercourse with an infected person. The germs of these diseases quickly die outside the human body. In practice, therefore, there is no need to fear their spread by accidental infection.

7. Professional prostitutes are not the only source of infection. Any free-and-easy sex behaviour must mean a risk of infection and cannot be made safe. Clean living is the only way to escape infection—abstinence is not harmful.

8. Venereal diseases can be cured if treated early by a doctor. Advice and treatment are available in Brisbane for the purpose and at Public Hospitals throughout the State. Treatment is confidential and effective. Any family doctor will give the address of the nearest clinic. Quack treatment or self-treatment is absolutely useless and may even be disastrous.

9. Disappearance of the early symptoms does not necessarily mean that the patient has been cured. It is essential to continue the treatment until the doctor says it may be stopped.

10. Anyone who has the slightest reason to suspect infection should seek medical treatment AT ONCE. A doctor or clinic or public hospital should be consulted immediately about any suspicious sore or unusual discharge. It may not be venereal disease, but it is best to be sure. These are the signs. The first sign of syphilis is a small ulcer. It appears from 10 to 90 days after infection; usually about three weeks. Gonorrhœa first shows itself as a discharge which usually appears from 2 to 10 days after infection.

A Bigger PIE!

THERE is much argument and discussion on how, after the War, we are to restore (and improve) our standard of living.

Much of the discussion is concentrated on how the national pie is to be divided up, though it should be clear that what will be needed is a bigger pie. Before there can be bigger slices for everyone we must make the whole pie bigger. We must produce more — more goods, more services, more housing, more travel, more entertainment — before we can expect to live better.

There are those who think that the issue of Bank Credit, or the raising of wages and prices will do the trick, but people cannot eat or wear money. If there be not enough houses to go round, doubling wages or rents will not let us all live better. No, what we must do is to produce and sell more: more per man, per horse-power, per acre, per £ invested.

It is the goods and services that we have to sell that give us the wherewithal and the urge to buy from others and something over to invest in more production, and in A.M.P. policies for the security of our families and the comfort of our old age.

WAR-TIME YOUTH

FALSE VALUES

National Tragedy Foreshadowed

Deep anxietp over the problem of boys leaving school at the primary stage of education is being felt and expressed at present by magistrates, youth guidance officers, parents, and employers.

The opinion is that a major national tragedy is foreshadowed in New Zealand in the behaviour of boys in the 14-17 age bracket, on many of whom the effect of war-time conditions has been to develop a feverish irresponsibility. Preference among the boys for the temporary and unskilled, but highly paid war industries, it is considered, will have a serious effect on the national life in a few years.

The root of the problem lay in the demand for labour, one speaker recently said. The absence of a big proportion of the former labour supply on military service meant that lads as young as 13 had, sometimes by mis-stating their age, obtained jobs formerly held by older youths or grown men.

Without the discretion taught by experience the high wages were psychologically bad, the speaker continued. The boys were acquiring a false view of the value of their labour that would be rudely shattered when the war ended and they were requird to accept juniors' rates of pay.

One effect already apparent, he said, was the increase in juvenile crime, which had already been commented on by magistrates. High wages had not prevented some lads from stealing, and there was a widespread disregard for the employers' rights leading to damage to machinery and property, also absenteeism and slackness.

With the portents so clear after three and a half years of war, the speaker insisted that something must be done at once. It was suggested that where sufficient parental control was lacking some kind of trusteeship might be arranged in which part of the boys' earnings were held until mature years were reached.

To engrain some spirit of discipline and citizenship, and at the same time prepare them for the age of 18, when they must go into the services, a training system for the technical branches of the forces might with great advantage be instituted.

AN "OLD FAITHFUL"

Pressed Into Service

Engineering ingenuity has rescued all sorts of old timers from obscurity and decay to play their part in the war effort.

Australia was notoriously short of machines and engines of all sorts at the outbreak of the war, and everything that could be patched up and reconditioned and rebuilt was pressed into the Allies' service.

Among the old-timers with a sting in its tail is the Green Hornet, built in Newcastle-on-Tyne in 1852, and when the war broke out, resting in honourable retirement on a dead-end line in Newcastle.

At one time the old Green Hornet was a proud "flier" drawing the express between Hexham and Minmi—the coal boom town of 3000 people and 200 pubs. But her express days were only memories when she was rescued from retirement by Stewarts and Lloyds in the middle of 1941.

Engineers rejuvenated the old lady, and now she is puffing as importantly as she did in her express days, reconditioned and rejoicing in her war effort on the tracks of Stewarts and Lloyds plant.

LABOUR MODERATES

Communists Win Again

For the second time in a few weeks the Communists have defeated the moderate section in the bitter fight which is raging for control of the Labour Party.

Last month the Communists gained control of the N.S.W. Labour Council, and last week they were able to force their policy through the Australian Council of Trades Unions Congress in Melbourne.

The A.C.T.U. represents 700,000 out of the 900,000 trades unionists in Australia. These 700,000 are now committed to a policy of collaboration with the Communist Party.

The motion for unity with the Communists was passed after a bitter two-hour debate. The moderates, lead by Mr. W. O'Neill (A.R.U., N.S.W.), contended that co-operation with the Communists would split the Labour Party open and cause nothing but disunity within Australian industrial life.

In the course of debate Mr. O'Neill caused an uproar when he recalled the days before June 1941, when Stalin and Hitler were friendly.

Other moderate speakers included the President of the A.C.T.U. (Mr. P. J. Clarey), who was howled down on many occasions.

Amongst those who spoke for the Communists were Mr. T. Wright (Sheet Metal Workers), who said that he had been a Communist for twenty years. He launched a bitter attack on present day trades unionism, which he described as being too moderate.

Mr. Wright was supported by Mr. Murison (Townsville), who said that if the workers thought they could win by constitutional methods, then they had another think coming.

Mr. J. J. Moloney (N.S.W.) said that if the Communists were sincere in their war effort they would disband. He also stated that Communists were threatening delegates with basher gang tactics.

On the taking of the vote the Communist proposals were agreed to by 130 votes to 120.

LAND SETTLEMENT BILL

"Ruinous Legislation"

"A ruinous piece of legislation," was Sir Henry Manning's comment after the Legislative Council in Sydney had refused to ratify the McKell Government's Land Settlement Promotion Tax Bill.

In an exclusive interview with "Industrial News Service," Sir Henry, who leads the Opposition in the Legislative Council, gave his reasons for leading the attack on the Bill.

"All rural lands, large or small, pastoral, agricultural or farming, must have fallen imedmiately the Bill became law.

"If a fall takes place in any holding the other holdings in the district must also have a corresponding fall. Anyone familiar with the movement of land values must understand this.

"The panic which must inevitably follow on this class of legislation, coupled with the impossibility of obtaining purchasers or of financing them with the present National Security Regulations of the Commonwealth in existence, places the attempted legislation in the category of the impossible.

"The Bill would have had the most adverse effect on our rural industries, and as such, would have had a most unfortunate bearing on the war effort generally."

UNITS OF VITAMIN "B1" FOR BREAKFAST!

Professor Priestley, of the Sydney University, writes in the "Australasian Baker" of July, 1942:—

"With respect to their vitamin B1 content, breakfast foods may be divided into two groups: Those that are wholly pre-cooked ready to eat and those not pre-cooked, or only partially pre-cooked during the process of manufacture.

"With few exceptions all members of the former group are extremely low in vitamin B1.

"Members of the second group retain the greater part of the vitamin B1 present in the original cereal grain from which the breakfast food was prepared.

"Thus, a plate of a pre-cooked ready-to-eat breakfast food without the milk, gave 2 units of vitamin B1, while a plate of porridge of rolled oats gave 66 units—33 times as much."

Here is further convincing proof of the wonderful food value of Uncle Toby's Oats — the cleanest, freshest and highest quality rolled oats obtainable. Remember, a breakfast of Uncle Toby's Oats provides 66 units of Vitamin B1 — serve it regularly throughout the year. Sold by grocers everywhere

"SPLITTING LABOUR PARTY"

STRUGGLE FOR CONTROL

Labour's Internal Troubles

Trades Hall officials who were hopeful that the faction fights which have been splitting the Labour Party during the past six months would be settled by election time, were decidedly gloomy when interviewed last week by "Industrial News Service."

The struggle for control of the movement, which has been waged by Communists and moderates, with the Lang group making the fight a three-cornered one in N.S.W., has resulted in a series of defeats for the moderates, which have only had the effect of intensifying the fight.

Typical of the Communist victories in the past few weeks have been the N.S.W. Labour Council's vote for full co-operation with the Communist Party in a united front, and the Australian Confress of Trade Unions' vote on the same thing in Melbourne last week.

In N.S.W. the cancellation of the Senate ballot has caused a wide split, and it is felt that many firm Labour supporters will refuse to pull their weight this time, because they dislike the idea of the N.S.W. Central Executive selecting the Senate team.

For a Government which depends on Independent support for its majority, the situation in the Reid electorate is most disquieting.

Many Labour men consider that if Mr. Lang nominates for the Reid seat against the sitting member (Mr. Morgan) he will record a victory, which would be most embarrassing to many members of the Federal Cabinet towards whom he has shown personal as well as political animosity.

In Queensland the swing away from Labour, as evidenced by several by-elections, and the Brisbane and country municipal elections, has caused a good deal of recrimination, and the Communists have not been slow to take advantage of this disunity over key positions.

In Victoria the Communists control the industrial wing, and the bitterness between the industrial wing and the more moderate parliamentary wing of Victorian Labour was strikingly illustrated in the recent State elections when Communist second preferences elected one U.A.P. candidate in opposition to the official labour man.

All this, added to the fact that the Communists will run candidates against many sitting Labour M.H.R.'s, has made it certain that no mater what bitterness is engendered between rival parties during the election, the most savage fight will be within the ranks of the Labour Party itself, and will be carried on after the polling—win or lose.

BUREAUCRACY

THREAT TO DEMOCRACY

Warning Note Issued

(By Bruce Pie, M.L.A.)

Following a recent visit South, when I made direct contact with many Government departments, I felt it is my duty as an elected representative of Queensland people to issue a warning not against the rapid advancement in Commonwealth departments of the bureaucratic system. To my mind, this represents a very grave threat to democratic principles and the future freedom of Australians of all classes.

The present Federal Government, in bringing their recent constitutional proposals before the people, stressed that their adoption would preserve freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want and fear. Yet they are encouraging and developing a system of Federal bureaucracy which I think is one of the most potent enemies of personal freedom.

AMBITIOUS CIVIL SERVANTS.

The present system is controlled in many cases by ambitious Federal civil servants, striving one against the other for increased powers. It is reported that in many cases large salaries are being paid to these civil servants with large allowances made for expenses, the latter being free from income taxation.

Unlike members of Parliament, these highly paid servants are not responsible to the people, but only unto themselves. Yet to-day they are framing many laws and regulations vitally affecting industry and the business community as a whole.

INCAPABLE FEDERAL MINISTERS.

In many cases these laws and regulations are being implemented by Federal Ministers who have had very little industrial or commercial experience and lack the natural ability to realise that many of these bureaucratic ideas are impracticable, as well as creating confusion and wasting manpower. At the same time, they are taking away our freedom and leading us round in circles with no clearly defined objective.

LEADERSHIP NECESSARY.

We must have liberty. We must have leadership, and ever since mankind began the progress of civilisation has been measured by the people able to lead, to create industry and happiness; people, who by their success, have given some sense of security to those dependent on them for their advancement.

The economic conditions of war are creating in Australia a bureaucratic system which, if continued in peace, must eventually destroy the system of leadership and responsibility, reverting to the methods which to-day we are fighting, and which eventually will lead us back to the totalitarianState.

AUSTRALIA WAS DEVELOPING.

When World War II. commenced Australia as a nation was progressing and becoming more and more independent, particularly as far as secondary industries were concerned. Opportunities were being given to the people in the right to work, the right to earn a living, the right to happiness, and the right to security.

This position was being created by semi-governmental control in relation to public utilities and by private enterprise with regard to industry.

These activities have formed the basis of great manufacturing and commercial undertakings which in times of war have forged the weapons for our nation. Gradually, and in most cases willingly, the industrialists, the citizens and the State Governments have handed over to the Federal Government all the economic powers they desired to assume control of these developments in war.

WAR-TIME CONTROL SHOULD NOT BE PERMANENT.

I agree that in war these powers, handled by practical men and without abuse, should not alarm us, but what should be alarming is the now obvious assumption on the part of unpractical, academic and bureaucratic reformers that this economic control over the individual, the industrialist and the States, will become a permanent Federal Government power.

I am of the considered opinion that the present Federal Government has as its ultimate goal the general socialisation of industry, which means that the economic freedom taken from us under the necessity of war will not be restored to the Australian citizen in times of peace.

A few months before this war commenced I visited a number of European countries, and I fully realise what the loss of this economic freedom can mean to the people as a whole.

RATIONING COMMISSION

Industrial Clothing Scale

Steps have been taken by the Rationing Commission to iron out a number of minor anomalies that exist in the industrial clothing scale, said an official of the Rationing Commission.

An initial step is that clothing supplied by an employer under an award or established custom now requires the surrender of coupons.

Items affected will be footwear of all descriptions, oilskins and waterproof clothing, leggings and trousers, snowsuits, and other garments for wear in refrigeration chambers.

These articles have been couponed because the provision operating in the past has worked unfairly. Some men issued with articles coupon free under an award have been working alongside men who have not been issued with these articles, and who therefore have had to surrender coupons for them as well as pay for them.

Deletion of this provision will mean that extra coupon issues for some heavy wear groups must be revised, bearing in mind these alterations.

Garments used in the handling of food now require the same coupon ratings as the corresponding garments worn by other workers, with one exception, white trousers. As these can now be worn for leisure, the high rating of ten coupons has been retained for them in shops, but application to buy these at the lower rating of five coupons can be made to the Deputy Director of Rationing by persons handling food.

RATIONING TOWELS, SHEETS

Application For Replacements

Needs of those groups in the community whose occupations require extensive replacement of towels, tea towels, sheets and pillow slips will be dealt with as special cases, said the Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming).

They include ambulances, baby health centres, creches, kindergartens, hospitals, and other institutions, cafes and refreshment services, hairdressers and professional occupations.

Although the specific coupon allowance in each case has not yet been determined, persons needing immediate replacements should make application to the Commission on form R.G. 51, obtainable at the office of the State Deputy Director of Rationing.

As with other couponed goods, special allowances will provide for only minimum essential replacements.

Form R.G. 51 is also used for application for replacements by hotels, boarding houses, lodging houses, hostels, furnished houses, and flats.

TENNIS AND GOLF BALLS

Relief For Golfers

The tennis and golf ball shortage is as acute as ever, but relief for golfers is expected any day with the release of hundreds of dozens of recovered used balls.

The re-covered balls have been made under Government control, and are awaiting a price from the Prices Commission. Sports stores have been expecting their release for weeks. Some tennis balls are being made, but they are all going to the services.

"Although we cannot state a specific time in which the re-covered golf balls will be released, they definitely will come," said Mr. R. W. Webb, the Queensland distributor for Slazengers Ltd.

"When I was in the south a couple of weeks ago, there was a big proportion of balls stripped ready for recovering. Permission had been granted by the Government for the materials to be used, and for the manufacture, but this is coupled with the proviso that the work must only be done when it does not interfere with defence contracts,' said Mr. Webb.

Questioned on the release of tennis balls, Mr. Webb replied: "We are not expecting any tennis balls."

CURRENT TOPICS

CAFE SPOONS.

To prevent "souveniring" of sugar spoons, several Brisbane cafes have attached the spoons to strong chains, which are securely fixed to tables.

HOSPITAL COSTS.

The State Cabinet has decided to increase its share of the cost of hospital services from 60 per cent to 75 per cent, thus reducing the responsibility of local government bodies, comprising the hospital districts, from 40 to 25 per cent.

PETROL PRODUCTION.

An increase of petrol production at Glen Davis shale oilfield to 22,400,000 gallons a year, fourteen times more than the 1942 production, was urged on the Commonwealth Government by the Parliamentary Committee on Public Works in a report tabled in the Federal House. The report is based largely on the evidence of a mission of American experts which visited Australia.

PRISONERS OF WAR.

The Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) has announced that official advice of the names of another 647 Australian prisoners of war in Japanese hands, and stating where they are located, had just been received through the International Red Cross. Mr. Forde said that the information disclosed that 500 of the Australian prisoners of war are in Java, 131 in Osaka, and 16 in Manchukuo. This is the first official advice of actual names of Australian prisoners of war held in these areas.

WATALGAN MAIL SERVICE.

Mr. F. M. Forde, Minister for the Army, is in receipt of the following reply from the Deputy Director of Posts and Telegraphs, Brisbane, in response to his representations, made in regard to the mail service from Watalgan:—"The Postmaster General's Department has decided, in view of the investigations recently made as to the general utility of the service and the number of property holders who are directly benefitted by the mail delivery, not to distrub the existing mail service arrangements, and the twice a week delivery will continue to operate for the benefit of the residents interested."

POLICE COURT.

George Willy Tumlin, an allied sailor, appeared in the Police Court on Wednesday, before the S.M. (Mr. M. Dwyer), charged with unlawfully wounding Thomas Clinton Hannah, an Australian sailor. Evidence was given by Constable Gerber that on the night of June 29 a fight occurred near a dance hall, and Hannah received an incised wound on the lower portion of the body. After evidence of arrest had been given, an officer of the American Navy asked that the defendant be handed over to him to be dealt with by the American Naval authorities. The application was granted by the S.M. (Mr. Dwyer).

Sergt. S. Coxon prosecuted.

BOYNE WATER SCHEME

LOAN OF £90,000

After Many Years

The Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson) is in receipt of a communication from the manager of the State Insurance Office, Brisbane, to the effect that he was prepared to advance by way of a loan to the Gladstone Town Council the sum of £90,000 for the completion of the Boyne River water supply scheme.

The loan will bear interest at the rate of £3/12/6 per cent.

This news will be received with complete satisfaction by residents of Gladstone, who will support and compliment the Council on its success after many years of strenuous negotiations, in which the member for the district (Mr. T. L. Williams) and the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) have done their share.

LADIES' AND GENTS' HAIRDRESSER.

Mr. Tom Balaam, ladies' and gents' hairdresser, late of Bundaberg, is now open for business in the premises lately occupied by Mr. H. R. Carter, tailor, just below Lance R. Weiske's.

GRAZING PROPERTY FOR SALE.

Mr. Lance Weiske, Gladstone, and Messrs Winchcombe Carson Limited, Brisbane, auctioneers in conjunction, announce that they will offer the well-known property "Woodstock" for sale at Weiske's office, Gladstone, on Friday, July 30, at 2 p.m. An advertisement will appear in our next issue, giving full details.

BOYNE WATER SCHEME.

Progress in connection with the laying of the pipes of the first section of the Boyne River water supply scheme is being well maintained. Over half a mile of trenching has been opened up, and some hundreds of feet of piping laid. Approximately 25 men are at present employed, and the progress is up to expectations, which is only natural, as 90 per cent are local men, and are anxious to see the scheme completed.

PADDY'S MARKET.

Once again the monthly Paddy's market is near, the function being set down for Friday next, July 9. The convenors (Mrs. A. H. Friend) and her committee would be pleased to have the assistance from town and country people so generously given in the past. Donations of fruit, flowers, vegetables, sweets, cakes, home manufactures, etc., should be sent to Messrs. Friends (Pty.) Ltd. in good time for the market next Friday. A special feature of the function will be a nice collection of pot plants. The raffles will be for a doll in bed (made and donated by Mrs. R. Ricketts), and a hand-woven belt (donated by Mr. G. W. Draper).

SPECIAL PERMIT NECESSARY.

No butter will be supplied without a special permit to restaurants, sandwich shops, hotels, and other catering establishments, or to industrial users such as cake and biscuit manufacturers. In stating this the Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming) said that any establishment which did not get a permit by June 30 will be unable to obtain fresh butter supplies. Any caterer or industrial user who has not yet applied for a permit should obtain application form RG-30 from the State Deputy Director of Rationing, complete, and lodge it immediately. Applications must show the quantity of butter used during the three months prior to rationing, and must be supported by invoices or a certificate from an independent accountant.

"B" CLOTHING COUPONS.

"B" clothing coupons in the new ration books cannot be used yet, said the Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming). Although this was clearly stated when the new books were issued cases of traders accepting them, apparently in ignorance, have been reported to the Rationing Commission. The date from which "B" clothing coupons can be used will be announced in due course, said Mr. Cumming. Until then only "A" clothing coupons can be used for purchases of clothing or household drapery. Mr. Cumming also pointed out that the sheets of coupons marked "G" and "H" in the new ration book are not clothing coupons, and cannot in any circumstances be used for clothing and household drapery. They are reserve coupons in case further commodities are rationed.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

P.O.W. STREET SCHEME

New Record Reached

Gladstone Prisoner of War street scheme wound up the financial year by setting a new high, the collections for the 19 days, June 12 to 30, reaching the record amount of £94/15/-, which would total over £1500 per annum.

The splendid result reflects the greatest credit on the lady collectors, who continue to do their various areas each week. Some of the streets, especially in the outlying suburbs, are anything but good, and collecting has been a task.

The present organisers (Messrs. V. A. Summers and D. J. Connellan) took over the scheme early in February, with Mesdames K. Coppin, R. Elliott, A. J. Watson, and Clyde Smith as pioneer collectors. From small collections that month the totals have grown progressively, until they now reach around £30 per week.

All books were called in early this week to be handed to the auditor (Mr. L. S. Johnston) for the annual balance. They are now available again to collectors, who are reminded that all receipts must be preserved and attached to the books for presentation to the auditor.

The organisers have prepared a table showing the amounts received from the various streets, and this will be included in future notes. It shows that Roseberry Street (Mrs. Clyde Smith), Auckland Hill, and Marine Parade (Mrs. Watson), Scenery Street (Mrs. Hallam and Miss Perkins), Oaka Lane (Mrs. W. H. McCray), Auckland, Pier and Short Streets (Miss V. Erbacher), Yaroon Street (Mrs. Geo. Phillips), Central Lane (Mrs. Tait and Mrs. Elliott), and Auckland Street (Mrs. C. D. Cooper) lead in that order.

Included in the latest collections were cheques of £2/12/- from Mr. Walter Ferris (through Mrs. D. Steed, Boles Street), and 10/- from Mr. F. W. Robinson.

The first business subscription to the scheme came from Mr. Fred Williams, Port Curtis Motors, who sent in one year's subscription at 2/6 per week, totalling £6/10/-.

Miss Erbacher now has four books, having taken over from Mrs. C. Stitt, who is on holidays.

A collector is required for Bonar Street, where Mrs. Linnane had to discontinue collecting. Any lady living in or around that area could assist by getting in touch with the secretary or organiser 'phone 174.

OBITUARY

MR. F. F. MENZIES.

As reported in our last issue, Mr. Frank Fogg Menzies passed away suddenly at his home, Stowe Station, in the Calliope district.

Born near Castlemaine (Victoria) 75 years ago, he came with his parents to the Raglan district in the late 70's, when his father, the late John Menzies took up Raglan Station. Then members of the family acquired Wycheproof Station, in the Mt. Larcom district, and with a sister-in-law and an eldest son more land was taken up, and the grazing property enlarged. After it was purchased by Messrs. W. P. and J. A. Shaw, the former bought the property and put his son Mr. J. R. ("Bob") Shaw on it.

Mr. Menzies then purchased Stowe, where the family have resided for over 20 years.

"Wycheproof" was named by the Menzies after a Victorian property of the same name.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Master Isador Masterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Masterson, of Gladstone, has arrived home from Whinstanes, Brisbane, on his mid-winter vacation.

WOMEN'S AND INFANTS' SINGLETS.

A quantity of spun cotton yarn suitable for manufacturing civilian clothing, has been released for use by the Queensland manufacturers. It will manufacture from 3000 to 4000 tons of high quality women's and infants' singlets, which are urgently needed.

TOBACCO AND CIGARETTES.

Smokers are to receive increased supplies of cigarettes and tobacco from July 1. The arrival of tobacco leaf has made possible an increase of almost 15 per cent on supplies available in June. Cigars will continue to be rationed on a scale equal to the actual reduction of 40 per cent on average monthly sales during last year.

CALLIOPE SHIRE COUNCIL

TIMETABLE OF THE FERRY SERVICE ALTERED

DISTRICT POST-WAR SCHEMES SUBMITTED

At the monthly meeting of the Calliope Shire Council, held on Friday, June 25, there were present: The Chairman (Councillor W. Beak), and Councillors J. H. Cummings, W. Hansen, J. Schafer, H. Neill-Ballantine, J. M. Campbell, G. H. Potter, W. C. Dickinson, J. F. Drynan, E. H. C. Steel, and the Shire Clerk (Mr. H. H. Whittle), and the Health Inspector (Mr. P. F. Browne).

NOT GRANTED.

Mr. L. N. Pitter advised that the request for the temporary release of Division 1 patrol grader could not be granted for the reason that the Allied Works Council would not allow its employees or plant to operate on other than jobs under its control.—Received.

RECEIVING CONSIDERATION.

The Co-ordinator General of State Public Works advised through Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., that the Council's application to have the Division 1 patrol grader permanently released was receiving consideration.—Received.

DAMAGE TO ROADS.

The Co-ordinator General of Public Works advised that all complaints regarding damage to shire roads by heavy traffic are to be referred to him and not to the authorities concerned.

It was decided to advise that £15 had been expended by the Council to repair damage during heavy rains by heavy vehicles to the Mt. Larcom-Butlerville Road.

LICENSES RENEWED.

Mr. V. A. J. Byrne objected, on behalf of his client, Mr. M. Lang, to the renewal of the license for two gates to Mr. S. J. Murray.

Cr. Schafer stated having inspected the road on which the gates are erected, and as the reasons stated in the objection were not sufficient to warrant the refusal of the renewal of the licenses, moved that the licenses be renewed as for the year commencing July 1, 1943.—Seconded by Cr. Cummings and carried.

PROPOSED RESUMPTION.

The Mining Warden, Gladstone, stated that the Council should either repair the existing surveyed road or assist financially towards the payment of £100 compensation asked for by Mrs. Althouse.

It was decided to ask the Warden (Mr. M. Dwyer), who has recently been transferred to Gladstone, to inspect the site of the proposed resumption, with the object of finalising the matter.

APPROVED.

Mr. H. E. B. Plumpton asked that the ferry servce call at Garden Island in accordance with the timetable after July 7.—The request was approved.

FERRY SERVICE.

Mr. W. P. McGuire advised that he and other persons served by the ferry service would accept the Council's invitation to form a deputation and wait on the Council to discuss the unsatisfactory timetable of the service.

After the members of the deputation, comprising Messrs. W. P. McGuire, E. F. Byrne and D. Day, and the ferryman (Mr. H. B. Randall) withdrew, Cr. Ballantine moved that Mr. Randall be asked to consider the suitability of altering the timetable as suggested by the Shire Clerk, for the service to commence at Vallis' Landing on each Friday instead of at The Narrows.

Alterations to the existing timetable are to be furnished to those forming the deputation which waited on the Council, and to Mr. M. J. Thompson.

UNDER CONSIDERATION.

The Commissioner of Main Roads advised, through Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., that the request for the construction of the Maryborough-Gladstone Highway, from the Boyne River bridge to the Gladstone Town Council boundary, was under consideration.

FOR TRAVELLING STOCK.

Mr. L. N. Pitter advised having with Cr. Ballantine and Mr. R. S. Wilson, made a joint inspection of the clearing required in the Catfish Scrub on the Port Curtis-Callide Highway, to give access for travelling stock. Mr. Pitter stated having forwarded a report to the district engineer, pointing out it was necessary to clear a strip two chains wide for 3500 feet from chainage 4000' to 47.500'.

Cr. Ballantine had, shortly after inspection, arranged with the Clerk to support Mr. Pitter's report by a letter to the district engineer, asking that the clearing be carried out without cost to the Council.

It was resolved that the matter be held over pending the decision of the district engineer.

ACTION ENDORSED.

Gladstone Town Council asked that one of the shire's patrol graders be made available to grade the road from the Shell Company's installation to Coney Island.

The action of the Chairman in making the grader available, as arranged with Alderman Golding, was endorsed.

MAINTENANCE WORKS.

The District Engineer advised that Mr. R. E. Brown should be paid the foreman's rate of wages, as provided in the industrial agreement published in the Government Gazette of May 8, 1943, when carrying out maintenance works with funds approved by the Main Roads Commission.—Received.

The District Engineer advised that the request to have the unconstructed sections of the Port Curtis-Callide Highway, from the Rockhampton turn-off towards Gladstone, constructed was receiving consideration.—Received.

Mr. V. E. Vallis offered £5 for a tip dray belonging to Division 3.—The offer was accepted.

LEFT TO THE CHAIRMAN.

Mr. A. H. Waldron advised having to use his utility to cart fuel and provisions for the gang while Division 3 truck was out of commission for about 12 days, and asked to be paid for the use of same.—The request was left in the hands of the Chairman to arrange for the amount to be paid.

SALARY INCREASED.

The Secretary, Local Authorities' Association, advised of an increase of £16 per annum from the first pay period in May, 1943, to local authority clerks who are members of the Municipal Officers' Association.—Received.

POISONOUS WEED.

Mt. Morgan Shire Council forwarded a specimen of a poisonous weed known as Green Cestrium, which had caused the death of stock in that locality.

It was resolved that the Council be thanked for advising of the presence of the weed, and that the specimen be kept for inspection by anyone who wished to see it.

EMPLOYMENT EXCHANGE BOARD.

Cr. Ballantine, as the representative for the local authorities of Calliope, Miriam Vale and Gladstone on the Gladstone Employment Exchange Board, advised having attended the first meeting of the Board, which desired that the preparation of post war schemes be prepared and lodged as soon as possible.—Received.

POST WAR SCHEMES.

The Chairman, Gladstone Employment Exchange Board, asked that any post-war schemes the Council wished to bring forward be prepared and lodged at his office for transmission to the Department of Labour and Employment.

ISOLATION WARD.

The Secretary, Gladstone Hospital, advised that a meeting of the representatives of the component local authorities would be called for the purpose of considering carrying out improvements for the treatment of patients in the isolation ward at the Gladstone Hospital.—The two representatives of the Council on the Hospitals Board were asked to attend.

The Normanby Shire Council wrote seeking support of all local authorities in its proposed representations to have all main roads nationalised, and that the maintenance of all such roads including State highways, be a charge against the State.—It was decided to support the movement.

SANITARY WORKERS.

The Director General of Health advised that no further sanitary workers were to be withdrawn from such calling for national service, and that collecting outfits would be forwarded to health inspectors shortly to collect species of mosquitoes for forwarding

HOCKEY

THE GAME THAT GROWS

Week-End Matches

(By "Skylark")

Last Sunday saw the competition for the Rigby Shield advanced a further step. Sparks are now leading with two points, and should they beat A.T.C. to-morrow (Sunday), will have won the competition. However, they have the job in front of them, being opposed by the young and energetic A.T.C. team, who put up a good game last Sunday by beating the Bandit B team by six goals.

Sparks defeated Bandit A by 3-1, and A.T.C. beat Bandit B 6-0, while Y-Nots beat Imps 2-1.

COMMENT.

Sparks and Bandit were the first out, both teams being at full strength, and looked evenly matched. Shortly after first bully Sparks showed more dash and initiative, and gave Bandits a fair beating, playing easily the best hockey.

R. Scot was back in the old team at full- back, a popular, safe, and entertaining player. He gave a good display, and gave his forwards plenty of the ball.

Len Flack, at half-back, played a safe, forceful game, as is usual with this boy.

Tom Morgan (captain) was the outstanding player, the same as his "dad" on the football field, and the boy knows all the hockey tricks. He has great stick work, and an abundance of energy.

The balance of the team all worked hard to easily defeat Bandit A.

Generally, the Bandits were a real disappointment. The old dash was not there—a complete lack of team work—but their stick work was neat. It's up to you, Larry, to pull the team together, or you won't be in the race.

Kev. Auer was good in goal. Tim Curran worked hard, and Terry O'Reilly appeared lazy. Get hold of that ball and clear hard and quick, boy.

Kev. Last could do nothing right. Joe Rigby had plenty of energy, and scored the only goal. Merv Ratherson was a trier, while Larry Ryan, generally a great player, was all at sea and very slow.

LADIES.

The second match was very evenly contested, Y-Nots winning by the odd goal. In this respect they were lucky, as an Imp player by accident hit a ball into her own goal, giving Y-Nots the win.

The first half was fast and showed improved hockey, with Imps showing up a shade the better team.

After lemons Y-Nots came to light and had the better of the second half.

For Y-Nots Nance Rigby in goal was safe and cleared well.

At full-back Myrtle Hughes was as safe as the proverbial church, a ball of energy, and can she stop and clear the ball. No beg pardons about Myrtle when she gets the ball.

Glady Chapman was as safe and steady as ever at full-back.

N. Ryalls was in most of it at half-back, urging her team all the way.

Larry Lovett (centre forward) played a good forcing game, displaying plenty of energy, but oh girl, stay in your own position, as you will get better results.

Gloria Power and Miriam Hixon, on the wings, both played good, fast hockey.

For Imps Patsy Lee in goal appeared slow. Wake up, Pat. Joan Chapman and Joyce O'Donnell were safe as full-backs.

Lurl Jacobsen (captain) at centre, has a wonderful capacity for work, made few mistakes, and displayed good anticipation.

Beryl Fenton and Myrtle Barnes, two forceful forwards, did not get as much of the ball as usual, and were slowed up by the Y-Nots' full-backs.

These teams are evenly matched, and some real tussels are ahead.

FINAL MATCH.

The final match was the young A.T.C. and Bandit B. Bandits were again short, and went down badly by six goals.

I hear that two old warriors in Fred Clohessy and Charles Griffiths will take the field with this team in future.

The young fliers gave a great display in their first game this season, and if they are as good in the air I will be happy to have them on my side. The energy displayed was good to watch, the supporting tactics and stick work being a real treat.

Just how they will fare against the old experienced Sparks to-morrow (Sunday) remains to be seen. I think youth will prevail.

All the boys gave a fine display. Special mention, however, is due to K. Last and Kev. Flack in the back division, both giving a polished display.

Jim Irwin, in the forwards, never missed anything, taking opportunity to shoot, and scored three goals.

Bandits again fought hard against the odds, but short of three players is too big a handicap against a strong team. All worked hard. Des Bauer in goal is one of the best. Fred Hunt and Weldon battled hard against the odds.

With Jeff Onions, Fred Clohessy and C. Griffiths in the team next Sunday I will not be surprised to see them give the A team a trouncing.

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB

MEDAL STROKE ROUNDS

First Round Cullen Trophy

Play on the links this afternoon will be monthly medal stroke rounds for both members and associates.

The first round of the Cullen Trophy will be played to-morrow afternoon, players being asked to be on the tees at 1.45 p.m. to enable all to finish.

The competition will be divided into five monthly series, commencing with the pairs hereunder and allowing new pairings each month.

In the event of any players being unable to play week-ends, mid-week games of 9 holes will be allowed, but they must complete 18 holes in that series during the month.

Players with best scores totalled against bogey will win the trophy, and in the event of a tie a play-off will be arranged.

To-morrow's pairs are:—

MATERNITY ALLOWANCES

Medical and Hospital Services Covered

The total amount payable under the new scale of maternity allowance in respect of each child is £15 where there are no other children under 14 years in the family; £16 where there are one of two children under 14, and £17/10/- where there are three or more other children under 14.

These amounts include an allowance of 25/- a week for the four weeks preceding and four weeks following the birth of a child.

Forms may be obtained at maternity hospitals, or at the office of the local registrar of births, or by post from the Deputy Commissioner of Maternity Allowances.

Payment of allowances will be made by cheque in two instalments.

A warning is issued that medical practitioners and hospital services are included in declared services covered by ceiling price regulations order of April 13, 1943.

TENANCY REGULATIONS

Judicial Powers

Special legislation to give State Parliaments judicial powers to deal with tenancy regulations is being considered by the Commonwealth.

The Acting Attorney General (Mr. Beasley) said the Government was concerned with the position created by the High Court's decision that judicial powers could not be given to the States except by Act of Parliament.

The Government was now discussing with the Opposition the possibility of introducing a short Bill to meet the position before the rising of Parliament.

BRONZE COINAGE.

Provision has been made for the manufacture of bronze coinage without tin contents. The order has been made because tin, which is in short supply, has to be conserved for munitions. No serious disadvantage is expected to arise from the omission of tin from the bronze alloy.

FUNERAL BENEFITS FOR PENSIONERS.

The Commonwealth general benefits scheme for invalid and old age pensioners came into operation on Thursday in respect of deaths occurring on and after that date. In certain circumstances the Commonwealth will pay the actual cost of the funeral, but not exceeding £10. Applications for these benefits should be made to the Deputy Commissioner of Pensions in the State.

WANTED:
A Bigger PIE!

THERE is much argument and discussion on how, after the War, we are to restore (and improve) our standard of living.

Much of the discussion is concentrated on how the national pie is to be divided up, though it should be clear that what will be needed is a bigger pie. Before there can be bigger slices for everyone we must make the whole pie bigger. We must produce more — more goods, more services, more housing, more travel, more entertainment — before we can expect to live better.

There are those who think that the issue of Bank Credit, or the raising of wages and prices will do the trick, but people cannot eat or wear money. If there be not enough houses to go round, doubling wages or rents will not let us all live better. No, what we must do is to produce and sell more: more per man, per horse-power, per acre, per £ invested.

It is the goods and services that we have to sell that give us the wherewithal and the urge to buy from others and something over to invest in more production, and in A.M.P. policies for the security of our families and the comfort of our old age.

to the University, Brisbane. The matter was referred to the Health Inspector for attention.

DINGO BAITS.

The Land Administration Board advised that baits for the destruction of dingoes were still available at 5/- per case of 250 baits.—Received.

PAYMENT OF 10/. SUGGESTED.

The Land Administration Board advised that the Minister for Lands had under consideration fresh measures for the destruction of dingoes, foxes, and other vermin, and in the meantime had decided to make funds available from State revenue to continue the present method of destruction for the current and ensuing financial year.

On the motion of Crs. Campbell and Potter it was decided:—

(1) To ask the Government to take over and finance from State revenue the destruction of dingoes, foxes and other vermin and to fix the payment for dingo and fox scalps at 10/- each.

(2) That members of local authorities be appointed receivers of scalps.

DUCK HOLES CROSSING.

Mr. J. D. Stirrat complained of the delay in repairing the Duck Holes Crossing, and having to repair the crossing so as traffic could cross. Mr. Stirrat asked that a bridge be constructed over Zig-Zag Creek.

On the motion of Crs. Hansen and Cummings it was decided to thank Mr. Stirrat and others who had assisted in making the Duck Holes crossing trafficable, and to state consideration would be given to the erection of a bridge over Zig-Zag Creek when the budget for the ensuing financial year was being prepared.

EAST END ROAD.

Mr. F. Prestwood asked that repairs be effected to the road from East End to Woodman's corner.—It was resolved that as soon as the tractor and grader completed the repairs on the Mt. Larcom-Butlerville Road repairs would be effected.

A BRACEWELL ROAD.

Mr. W. C. Prestwood asked for repairs to the road leading from his property towards Bracewell Cheese Factory.—It was resolved that as soon as the tractor and grader had completed repairs on the Butlerville Road it would commence repairs to the road complained of.

REQUEST BE CONSIDERED.

Mrs. M. Ebert asked that repairs be effected to the road leading from her property.—It was decided that consideration be given to the request when preparing the budget for the ensuing financial year.

RECEIVE ATTENTION.

Mr. W. E. Goodman asked for repairs to the road leading from his property towards the Bracewell Cheese Factory.—It was desolved that when the tractor and grader had completed repairs to the Mt. Larcom-Butlerville Road this request would receive attention.

CEDAR VALE AREA.

The Dairymen's Organisation, Cedar Vale, asked that repairs be carried out on all roads in the area as soon as possible.

On the motion of Crs. Cummings and Schafer it was decided that repairs be effected as soon as the tractor and grader are available.

HORRIGAN CREEK ROAD.

The Dairymen's Organisation, Raglan, complained of the unsatisfactory nature of the repairs recently effected to the Horrigan Creek Rroad.

The Chairman reported having, in company with Cr. Hansen, made an inspection of the work complained of, and authorised further repairs by members of the organisation to the extent of £13.

It was resolved that the action of the Chairman and Cr. Hansen be endorsed.

CLEARING A ROAD.

Mr. A. J. Gunston advised that he had completed the clearing of the road from the Galloway Plains Road to portion 84, parish of Booroom, as arranged, at £19.

On the motion of Crs. Ballantine and Schafer it was decided that payment be not made until Mr. Gunston lodged a letter in the office stating he would gravel the banks of the first creek and gully within the next three months to the satisfaction of a representative of the Council without further cost.

APPROVED.

Mr. W. G. Day offered to clear and grub 1200 feet of the road leading to his place for 25/- per 100 feet.—The offer was approved.

REPAIRS BE EFFECTED.

Mr. Reg. Brown asked that repairs be effected to the road leading from his property towards the Calliope-Mt. Larcom main road.—It was resolved that the repairs be effected as soon as the patrol grader is available.

LANTANA.

Mr A. H. Janson asked that the lantana on the road adjoining his cleared property, near Briffney Creek, be destroyed.—The request was referred to Mr. R. E. Brown for attention.

AN OFFER OF £1.

Mr. W. Thorogood asked that the holes in the road near the railway bridge close to his property be filled in.—It was decided to offer the writer £1 to carry out the work to the satisfaction of a representative of the Council.

GRAVILLA CREEK.

Mrs. Stark asked that repairs be effected to the road across Gravilla Creek, which also served Shaw's dairy.—The request was referred to Mr. R. E. Brown, with a request to have the work carried out as soon as the grader was in the vicinity.

CHARTERS CROSSING.

Mr. J. A. Chandler asked that Charters Crossing be made trafficable, or failing that, to clear the old Eastern Boyne Road to the Netherleigh turnoff, so as he could market his produce at Boynedale.—It was decided to effect repairs to Charters Crossing as soon as the grader is in the vicinity.

NAGOORIN-NORTON ROAD.

Messrs. A. J. Dunnett, H. Punter, V. Russell, F. G. Clarke, G. Green, C. I. Green, and C. Tucker asked that repairs be effected to the road leading from Mr. Dunnett's property to the Nagoorin-Norton Road.

It was resolved that the request received consideration when the budget for the ensuing financial year was being prepared.

The Chairman stated that owing to it having been previously arranged for the Division 2 patrol grader to carry out other work in Division 2 it was unable to have Mr. Clarke's verbal request for repairs to the road near his place carried out.

FOURTEEN DAYS' NOTICE.

On the motion of Crs. Ballantine and Steel it was decided to advise Miss A. B. Davies that the fence erected across the eastern end of the road separating portion 52 from portion 55, parish of Riverston, would be removed by the Council after fourteen days from the date of the letter and action taken against those responsible for its erection, unless the fence was removed in the meantime.

BOYNE VALLEY CLEANSING CONTRACT.

Mr. V. A. Davis stated the statement prepared by the Shire Clerk, covering the receipts and disbursements of the Boyne Valley cleansing contract carried out by him for a period of two years and eleven months from July 1, 1940, to May 31 1943, was incomplete, as it did not show that his earnings would have been £997/7/- had he been carrying out the work as an employee of the Council under award conditions, as against £716/6/1 under the contract.

He stated as there was not sufficient time to prepare a further statement for the meeting showing the contract was being carried on at a loss, he asked for an increase of 4d per service. Failing the increase being granted Mr. Davis was prepared to carry on the service by day labour under award conditions.

On the motion of Crs. Steel and Dickinson it was decided to inform Mr. Davis that until he satisfied the Council that the contract was being carried on at a loss the Council was unable to consider his application for an increase in the contract price per service.

REPORTS.

The Chairman's report was read and adopted, including payment of £1 to Mr. G. W. Brown for repairing the spring of the Division 1 Dodge truck in his own time.

Mr. R. E. Brown's report was read and adopted, including the clearing and grubbing of 1200 feet by Mr. W. Day at 25/- per 100 feet.

On the motion of Crs. Ballantine and Campbell the Clerk was instructed to write Messrs. McCray Bros., agreeing to accept their offer of voluntary assistance to repair the road leading to Pike's bridge.

GENERAL.

The Chairman moved that Cr. Ballantine be appointed deputy chairman.—Seconded by Cr. Potter and carried.

On the motion of Crs. Ballantine and Hansen it was decided that applications be called in good time for the meeting in August next for a valuer to make a fresh valuation of the whole of the shire, to commence from July 1, 1944, unless the Director of Local Government advised in the meantime that the existing valuation was to be extended for a further period from June 30, 1944.

Accounts amounting to £3635/3/7 were passed for payment.

NATIONAL SECURITY REGULATIONS

CRITICISED BY JUDGES

"Impossible To Interpret"

The recent mass of National Security Regulations have created a boom in the legal profession, according to a prominent member of the Australian Bar, in an interview with "Industrial News Service," Sydney.

He points out that every day some of these regulations are being challenged and sometimes overthrown in the Courts of the Commonwealth.

"Both the Government and the people who are challenging these regulations are forced to brief expensive counsel, and fees of fifty guineas per day are common.

"Money spent on such litigation by the Government comes directly from the public purse, while money spent by private individuals is also diverted from the war effort.

"In effect, it means that money which is subscribed by the public in war loans and for war savings certificates, might easily be spent in an effort to prove the validity or otherwise of a National Security regulation whose peculiar working makes it almost incomprehensible."

In recent months no less than eight National Security Regulations have been overthrown in Australian Courts.

These include regulations on such diverse subjects as price regulation and the University student quota.

Throughout the Commonwealth various judges have criticised National Security Regulations on the grounds that they are almost impossible to interpret, and also that many of them actually are illegal and invalid.

For instance, Sir Frederick Jordan, N.S.W. Chief Justice, in attacking one of the price fixing regulations, said: "Apparently it is necessary for people to be prosecuted before they know their legal obligations under this regulation."

He described another regulation as "the utter negation of established principles of British law."

Another judge, Mr. Justice Magennis, in Melbourne, said that he had spent "a terrible night" trying to make head or tail of a set of price fixing regulations which he described as "the worst I have ever seen."

But in the meantime more and more cases in which National Security Regulations are being challenged are on the legal lists, and the Bill for costs will be staggering.

And in the long run the only people to benefit will be the members of the legal profession.

POETRY

LETTERS FROM HOME.

I am writing this ode
As I sit on the road
Awaiting the mail to come in.
There are others like I,
With their hopes held high
As they joke and talk and grin.

The names are called out,
And someone will shout:
"That's me!" as he winks at his mate.
There is nothing for some,
And their faces turn glum
As they hope and they pray and they wait.

The men all sent up here,
Where there is no beer,
No women, no parties, no fun.
But we'll all do our best
And work with a zest
Of a so-and-so son of a gun.

We can take all the bombs,
The smell of pom-poms,
The mud and the slush and the wet,
And this tropical sun,
Which is second to none,
At taking out gallons of sweat.

Now you folks at home,
Do your thoughts ever roam
To the boys on this island of hell?
So just write every day
In your own sweet way,
And say you are happy and well.

And when we get back
With rifles and pack;
You'll be waiting the day we arrive.
And on that great day
We can look back and say
'Twas your letters that kept us alive.

Now here ends this ode,
As I sit in the road,
In rain, in slush, and in wet,
Then I jump with glee,
For there's letters for me!
I knew you would never forget.

POST-WAR INDUSTRY

SWITCH-OVER PERIOD

Mr. Churchill has promised us "heavy fighting in the Mediterranean and elsewhere before the leaves of autumn fall."

American and Allied forces have launched successful advances on the Pacific front, and the whole world seems to be geared for the final "winding-up" phase of the war.

Industry, particularly private industry, is already looking ahead to post war, when all its resources will be called on to help iron out the tremendous problems of rehabilitation. New industrial developments of the war will bring new problems as well as new advantages.

Some of the substitute products, for instance, have proved so successful that they will be serious rivals to the original goods. This means that workers now in the Army will have to be taught new methods of handling new raw materials.

Fresh markets must be opened up, and with the increased production of all essential goods in every factory all over the world, competition will be so keen that only those wide awake now to post-war needs can hope to be in the running.

Private firms in Australia are already looking ahead preparing for the switch over from war to civilian production. One industry was discussed the other day by Government and private experts.

"It can't be done under 18 months," said the Government expert, discussing the switch-over.

But experts from private firms, which naturally have more freedom in enterprise than businesses financed with public money, and therefore are more likely to be quick off the mark, were more optimistic.

"From three to six months will see the switch-over completed," they said.

That's good news, for even six months will be long enough time in a world striving to maintain or reopen old markets and to find new ones.

Australia has established herself as a country of wide industrial possibilities since the outbreak of war, and it is encouraging to hear that technicians are ready to see that she doesn't miss her opportunities when peace is declared.

HOUSING COMMISSION

VISITS GLADSTONE

Commissioner O'Connor Impressed

On Saturday the Chairman of the Commonwealth Housing Commission (Mr. L. P. D. O'Connor), accompanied by the Secretary of the Commission (Mrs. Phillips), arrived in Gladstone, and were met at the Railway Station by the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

TRIP AROUND THE TOWN.

On Sunday they were taken for a trip around the town by the Deputy Mayor (Ald. W. R. Golding). Visits were paid to the Meatworks, Barney Point, Auckland Point, the Jetty, Ferris' Hill, and Hospital Hill, and Mr. O'Connor was able to obtain first-hand information as to the type of dwelling in Gladstone. A motor trip was also made to Calliope, where a brief survey of the buildings were made.

COMMISSION WELCOMED.

On Monday morning the Commission took evidence at the Town Hall, and prior to the commencement the Deputy Mayor (Ald. Golding) extended the Commission a hearty welcome to Gladstone on behalf of the citizens. He congratulated the Commissioner on his appointment. Mr. O'Connor, he said, had been entrusted with a big job, but he felt sure he would do justice to the position. Everyone was viewing with grave concern, he said, the acute shortage of houses in Australia at the present time, and big things were expected from the Commission. Ald. Golding trusted that Mr. O'Connor's stay in Gladstone would be very pleasant, and that he would carry away with him happy memories of his visit to the harbour town of Gladstone.

IMPRESSED WITH GLADSTONE.

Commissioner O'Connor, after sincerely thanking the Deputy Mayor (Ald. Golding) for his kind remarks, stated it was the first time he had been in Gladstone, and he was greatly impressed with the appearance of the town. He considered there was big development ahead of Gladstone, and trusted that the civic authorities would lose no time in having the town properly planned before it was too late.

FUNCTIONS OF THE COMMISSION.

Commissioner O'Connor, in outlining the functions of the Commission, said it would investigate and report on the present housing position, establish the deficiency of dwellings, and the number of sub-standard dwellings. The Commission would also estimate the future housing requirements, formulate a plan or plans to be sponsored by the Commonwealth Government, which would ensure adequate, sound, effective, and hygienic housing for the people in relation to their economic and social life, and to recommend ways and means to implement the plan or plans.

FUTURE REQUIREMENTS.

The Commission would estimate the number and type of dwellings required, future requirements (including repairs and alterations to existing buildings), and areas in which dwellings were required. It would recommend plans, including an annual housing programme designed to overcome the shortage in housing, and provide for future requirements, and assist with the erection of houses and their purchase on easy terms.

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS.

The Commission would also recommend action if any to be taken during the war, to inaugurate the programme, and report on the financial implications of any sections regarding financial relations between the Commonwealth and State Governments, other authorities, property owners and occupiers.

AFTER THE WAR.

Mr. O'Connor pointed out that the Commission was concerned only with housing after the war, and not with the position as it was to-day.

FARMING COMMUNITY.

The Crown Land Ranger (Mr. George Matthews) was the first to give evidence, and dealt with the farming community and the need for better housing, and more liberal advances, so that farmers' houses could be brought up to the same standard as the city dweller.

PERPETUAL AND FREEHOLD.

Mr. E. M. Breslin dealt chiefly with the outlook of the individual towards perpetual lease land as against freehold, and pointed out that trading banks, as a rule, would not make advances against perpetual lease land.

BASIS OF DISCUSSION.

The Commissioner asked if any of those present had prepared a statement on the questionaire as asked for by the Commission, and as Ald. Golding was the only one who had complied with the request, the Commissioner stated he would make it the basis of the discussion.

This procedure was followed, and Ald. Golding's statement was dealt with at considerable length, and those joining in the discussion included Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., the Mayor (Ald. Dennis), L. R. Weiske, P. F. Browne, R. H. Grayson, J. Burrows, J. Watson, Ald. H. Anderson, and Mrs. E. Burnham.

Ald. Golding's statement dealt with the need for economy in house construction and the conserving of timber for the huge demands that would be made upon it for the post-war construction of houses.

COMMISSIONER THANKED.

After the taking of evidence the Minister for Agriculture and Stock, Mr. T. L. Williams, thanked the Commissioner for visiting Gladstone, and for the interest and consideration he had given to all those who had attended.

IMPRESSED WITH GLADSTONE.

Commissioner O'Connor, after thanking Mr. Williams for his appreciative remarks, said he was pleased to come to Gladstone, and the advice received would prove of value to the Commission. He had been greatly impressed with the potentialities of Gladstone, and he felt sure it would grow and develop in importance. He hoped the sittings of the Commission would be the means of bringing forward a sound plan for the benefit of the people of the Commonwealth. In conclusion, he thanked the Deputy Mayor (Ald. Golding for his hospitality, and Mr. Williams and the Town Council for the assistance they had rendered the Commission, which was deeply appreciated.

The evidence tendered by Ald. Golding and by Mssrs. Willey and C. Boles on behalf of the Trades and Labour Council, will be published in our next issue.

GLADSTONE TOWN COUNCIL

BOYNE SCHEME - DEBENTURE LOAN £90,000

ISOLATION WARD - ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT £250

The fortnightly meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Alderman W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. E. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson). Apologies were tendered for the absence of Alderman M. A. Busteed and J. Deveney, and leave of absence was granted.

GRANT OF £10,000.

The Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) advised that the Commonwealth Treasurer (Mr. Chifley) was prepared to approve of a grant of £10,000 towards the cost of the Boyne River water scheme.

It was decided that Mr. Forde be thanked for his assistance in the matter.

TERM OF THE LOAN.

Minister of Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) wrote in reference to the proposed debenture loan of £90,000 for the Boyne River water scheme. He noted the desire of the Council that the term of the loan be extended from 15 to 40 years, and he would approach the Insurance Commissioner in this connection.—Received.

DEBENTURE LOAN £90,000.

State Government Insurance Office advised (through Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A.) that subject to the approval of the Treasury it would be prepared to make available a debenture loan of £90,000 for the purpose of completing the Boyne River water scheme. The loan to be for a term of 15 years, carrying interest at the rate of £3/12/6 per centum per annum.—Received.

DETAILS HELD UP.

Mr. W. . Reinhold, consulting engineer Brisbane, advised that owing to the illness of Mr. Sharpe, of the Department of Local Authority Affairs, discussion of the details of the Boyne River water scheme had been held up. However, directly Mr. Sharpe was available these matters would be attended to.—Received.

PROPOSED PUMPING PLANT.

Mr. W. J. Reinhold, consulting engigineer, Brisbane, forwarded two copies of a report from Mr. A. E. Axon on the proposed pumping plant at the Boyne River. As would be seen from the report, the cheapest scheme for a plant without standby units was that consisting of a gas producer, a suction gas engine, and electrical generation at the site of the pumping station.

Electric driven by power transmitted from the Gladstone Power House was very little dearer, and becomes cheaper when duplication of the pumping machinery was undertaken. Duplication would undoubtedly be necessary very soon, if not immediately, and thus it would appear that the most economical scheme was that in which the power was generated at Gladstone and transmitted to the site.

This scheme was accordingly recommended. As the necessary generating machinery would be probably the most difficult part of the whole scheme to obtain, the matter required an early decision, so that orders could be placed as soon as possible.

It was decided that the report lie on the table, and in the meantime the aldermen to be supplied with a copy of the report.

POST-WAR RECONSTRUCTION SCHEMES.

Mr. H. Neill Ballantine, local authority representative,—Gladstone Employment Exchange Board, asked the Council, under direction from the State Employment Council, to submit a tentative programme of suitable public works to be carried out during the post-war period.

It was desirable that the schedule be forwarded to the next meeting of the Board, to be held on August 6.

It was decided that a letter be written to the Calliope Shire Council asking that three delegates be appointed to confer with the three Town Council representatives to deal with post-war reconstruction schemes.

MAIN ROADS.

Normanby Shire Council forwarded the following resolution, which was carried at its last meeting: "That this Council commence a campaign for the nationalisation of all main roads, and that the maintenance of same be made a charge on the State, and that this Council seeks the co-operation of all other Councils in the matter."

It was pointed out that the Council was much concerned with the increasing amounts to be met annually for the maintenance of main roads.—Received.

IMMEDIATE ACTION NECESSARY.

Mr. H. Ambrose, Ambrose, advised he regretted to learn that people were using certain premises, and he would place the matter in the hands of the police. He would have the building repaired and made tenantable, if allowed, but owing to the scarcity of labour and carpenters he was held up at present. He would try and get someone to fix the locks, etc., to keep offenders out.

It was decided to inform Mr. Ambrose that he must take immediate action to carry out the necessary improvements, and failing that the Council would carry out the work at his expense.

GRANTED.

Mrs. A. J. A. Stanfield, Gladstone, made application for permission to construct a concrete invert into her property, and it would, therefore be necessary to break the water channelling.—The application was granted.

RECEIVE ATTENTION.

Mr. L. Thompson, Gladstone, advised that the C.C.C. had removed a full length of 20-inch concrete drain pipe from Lord Street, and had replaced it with two short pieces of 6in. pipe. These pieces of pipe were much too short, and during the operations of the grader in Lord Street, the end of the pipes had been totally buried.

To be advised that the matter would receive attention.

OFFER ACCEPTED.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Doble, Gladstone, advised that they were prepared to co-operate with the South Gladstone and Barney Point Association for the purpose of getting some relief from flood waters that flowed through their property. They were prepared to offer the Council a free strip of land to carry out the necessary drainage, and their allotment faced Off Street. The allotment, which was situated in front of Mr. Doble's property and faced Auckland Street, carried Mrs. Doble's name, and she was prepared to make the same offer.

It was decided that the offer be accepted.

THREE REQUESTS.

The South Gladstone and Barney Point Progress Association forwarded the following requests for the Council's consideration:—

CULVERTS.

(1) The dangerous condition of the culverts in Toolooa Street was a very urgent matter, and worthy of inspection. One was in front of the late Mrs. Lusk's property, which was a death trap for children. Two other exposed culverts were situated in front of Mr. A. Zwar's residence, and the old Fertilizer. The Association considered a guard rail should be erected to prevent a serious accident.

GUTTER WASHED OUT.

(2) Attention to the gutter in front of Mr. C. Binnington's residence. The flood waters that flowed down the road in Toolooa Street had washed out the gutter, and now flowed through his property. The Association requested the Council to grade this drain, and so give Mr. Binnington some relief.

SLIT TRENCHES.

(3) We draw the Council's attention to the slit trenches left open on the property recently occupied by Allied troops on Barney Point, and also the pits on the old Fertilizer property, and now owned by the Small Holdings Co. The citizens in this locality viewed with concern these mosquitoe nurseries, and the Association ased the Council to contact the responsible persons.

DECISIONS.

Requests No. 1 and 2 were referred to the Works Committee, and before taking action in regard to request No. 3 it was decided that an inspection be made by the Council.

NEW WATER SCHEME.

The Works Overseer (Mr. R. Tait) reported on the progress of the work on the new water scheme for the period between 28th May and 24th June. At the beginning of the period there was only two men employed, and when the concrete piers were finished we worked a few days in the quarry for the town gang.

The tractor and grader arrived on the job on June 15, and the next day the gang was increased to fourteen men. I started trenching at the 5200' peg, and at the end of the period on June 24 2000 feet of trench was completed.

The trench between 5200' and 5400' peg had to be taken out with pick and shovel, the hillside being too steep for the tractor. We encountered rock on this section, and explosives had to be used. This delayed the pipe laying at the start, and let the trenching get well ahead.

I was only able to get two days on pipe laying before the end of the period. However, we completed 162 feet, but since then the gang has been able to lay and joint 200 feet a day. I have had the scoop in use, but I had to get an alteration made in the bridle before it would operate satisfactorily.

The Mayor stated he was satisfied with the progress of the work, and that a good job was being carried out.

The report was adopted.

WASTE WATER.

The Mayor drew attention to waste water from Myola Flats in Off Street, and considered that something should be done in regard to the matter.

Ald. Golding said the Works Committee would make an inspection with a view to having the drain cleaned out to cope with the water.

TO BE ATTENDED TO.

Ald. Tudman drew attention to the necessity of keeping the earth well up against the shoulders of the bitumen in the streets, as some sections were showing signs of breaking away.

Ald. Golding stated the Foreman had already received instructions to have the matter attended to.

ISOLATION WARD.

Ald. Golding reported that in company with the Mayor he had met representatives of the Calliope and Mirjam Vale Shire Councils, and the Hospitals Board, and made an inspection of the local authority isolation ward. Since Christmas there had been only two cases of infectious disease. However, they agreed to the installation of some electrical equipment at a cost of £250, and the Shire Council representatives had signified their intention of bearing their share of the cost.

Ald. Golding went on to say that Mr. Dwyer (Chairman of the Hospitals Board) spoke strongly on the necessity of the local authorities doing something in connection with a new isolation block. It was pointed out to him, said Ald. Golding, that any delay in the completion of this block must be borne by the Department of Health and Home Affairs, as the Town Council and Shire Councils had agreed to spend £2000 in this direction, but this had been turned down by the department, which had suggested a bigger scheme, involving an expenditure of £6000, and the councils were not prepared to do this.

The Mayor: That is the position as stated by Ald. Golding.

ACTION CONFIRMED.

Ald. Tudman moved that the action of the Council representatives be confirmed.—Seconded by Ald. Smith and carried.

AERODROME SITES.

Ald. Golding reported that in company with Surveyor Murray he had inspected two sites for an aerodrome. Mr. Murray was greatly impressed, and suggested that a contour survey be carried out. He (Ald. Golding) had taken the matter up with the Deputy Chairman of the Calliope Shire Council (Cr. Ballantine), and asked that they contact the Main Roads Commission with a view to having a surveyor made available to carry out this work. Cr. Ballantine had agreed to this being done.

SURPLUS WATER.

Ald. Golding reported that in company with Ald. Anderson and the Health Inspector (Mr. Browne), he had made an inspection of Mr. Williams' property, with a view to taking certain action to dispose of the surplus water, and a trial hole had now been put down for this purpose.

DEPLORABLE DRAIN.

Ald. Anderson again drew attention to the old railway drain behind the refreshment rooms, which he stated was in a deplorable condition, and he would like the Health Committee to make an inspection with a view to taking definite action to remove the nuisance in the interests of public health.

In accordance with the statement made by Ald. Anderson, an inspection will be made by the Health Committee.

UNREGISTERED DOGS.

It was decided that all unregistered dogs found straying on the streets would be destroyed, and a notice to this effect will be inserted in the "Observer."

ACCOUNTS.

Following accounts were passed for payment: General £461/9/4, and water £163/5/11.

ELECTRIC AUTHORITY.

COUNTRY DISTRICTS.

It was decided, as a post-war reconstruction scheme, to discuss at a special meeting the question of extending electric light to country districts, with a representative of their consulting engineer, Mr. A. E. Axon, Brisbane.

Accounts amounting to £421/7/9 were passed for payment.

GLADSTONE RED CROSS SOCIETY

WORK OF THE YEAR INTERESTINGLY REVIEWED

MRS. H. V. PHILLIPS RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT

When a small band of ladies in Gladstone reformed the Red Cross shortly after the outbreak of war, nearly four years ago, the branch started in a very small way, and for a long time activities were limited and finance very restricted. However, excellent work was performed, and gradually the various units took shape. Right from the start the Sewing and Knitting Circles were the chief organisations, and they soon developed into important undertakings.

CHEQUE FOR £100.

When the branch was struggling a benefactor in Mr. W. B. Shaw (now Lieut. Shaw, and a digger of two wars), came along and astonished the ladies by leaving a cheque for £100. At that time it seemed a fortune, and the finances never looked back.

HUNDREDS GROW TO THOUSANDS

When some 50 ladies and gentlemen assembled at the Red Cross rooms on Wednesday night to hear the President (Mrs. Phillips) read her annual report, the small band of ladies referred to must have listened with amazement to the balance sheet, which showed receipts for the year of £3000, and remittances to headquarters of £2667. The hundreds had grown into thousands to form a record year in the branch operations, a tribute to the splendid work of the pioneers who had kept the organisation alive through the difficult years.

Many of these ladies are still connected with the various activities, principally the Sewing and Knitting Circles, and their work well merited praise each month from headquarters.

MANY UNITS.

From the initial sewing and knitting classes sprang other units—the Paddy's market (which has proved so successful in raising funds each month), the V.A.D.'s (who are highly efficient and well organised), the Entertainments Committee (which raised over £300 during the year), the Hospital Visiting Committee (recently formed), Emergency Service, Junior Red Cross, two sub-branches, Builyan-Many Peaks and Benaraby, and last but not least, the Prisoners of War street adoption scheme, which holds pride of place on the balance sheet with collections.

Now the branch has a chartered accountant (Mr. V. A. Summers) as secretary, with Mrs. H. Browne as assistant secretary, the joint secretaries having taken over from Mr. H. P. Hallam, who did excellent work last year.

ANNUAL MEETING.

When Mr. Summers took the chair there were present: The Mayor and Mayoress (Ald. and Mrs. G. G. Dennis), Mr. R. W. Lodder (representing the R.S.S.A.I.L.A.), Mesdames A. Fry, G. M. Lodder, and M. J. Hewart (Red Shield), Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan (Australian Comforts Fund), Mesdames H. V. Phillips, J. Bennedick, E. Schneider, H. Browne, E. M. Joseph, M. Ricketts, B. Lewis, L. M. Janson, L. Rigby, E. C. Connellan, A. Hartley, A. Martin, J. H. Taylor, E. E. Robinson, M. Leadbetter, L. E. Herbert, R. M. Yum, V. Masterson, A. P. Farnsworth, G. Hughes, V. J. Burnham, D. Clark, E. C. Taylor, E. Ricketts, A. A. Norris, and A. W. Drewe.

Apologies for non-attendance were read from Mesdames L. Johnston, H. W. Gollnick, Messrs. A. H. Friend, and J. W. Rigby.

WELCOME EXTENDED.

In extending a welcome to the Mayor and Mayoress and representatives from the Diggers, Comforts Fund, Patriotic Fund and Red Shield, it was mentioned that a well-known digger, Mr. Arthur Greasley, who had assisted the Society in its Prisoner of War appeal, was unfortunately unable to attend.

Mr. Greasley, who had given the branch correspondence received with his Red Cross parcels when he was a prisoner in Germany in the last war, advised that he would continue to assist the P.O.W. fund in every possible way.

After the President (Mrs. Phillips) had read her annual report (which has already been published), and many complimentary references were made on the finances, as shown in the balance sheet read by the Treasurer (Mrs. Golding), the following officers were elected for the year.—

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

President, Mrs. H. V. Phillips (re-elected), vice-presidents, Mesdames A. H. Friend and W. Yum (re-elected), joint hon. secretaries, Mr. V. A. Summers and Mrs. H. Browne (re-elected), hon. treasurer, Mrs. Golding (re-elected), committee, Mesdames Hall, Ricketts, Messrs. A. H. Friend, A. W. Drewe, Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson, D. J. Connellan, J. W. Rigby, H. P. Hallam, A. A. Norris, and K. Neil-Ballantine; convenors sewing, Mesdames J. W. Rigby and G. Byrne; knitting, Mrs. D. Connellan; buyers, Mesdames H. Hall and G. Hando; paddy's market, Mrs. A. H. Friend; entertainments committee, Miss Alma Joyner, with power to appoint her own assistants; P.O.W. street scheme, Messrs. Connellan, Summers, and Rev. Phillipson; Hospital visiting committee, Mrs. H. W. Gollnick and assistants; auditor, Mr. L. S. Johnston, A.F.I.A; delegates to headquarters, Mrs. Drewe and Miss L. Cribb; supervisor Junior Red Cross, Mr. F. C. Thompson (with Miss Grundy as leader); publicity officer, Mr. D. J. Connellan.

COUNTRY REPRESENTATIVE.

The appointment of Mr. Ballantine to the committee is the first election of a country representative, and a tribute to the splendid support received from the section of Red Cross supporters.

CONGRATULATED.

Mrs. Phillips, who is entering on her third year of office as president, was warmly congratulated on her re-election. Her splendid work, particularly in organising functions for the entertainment of allied servicemen, and her tact in dealing with all branches of the extensive organisation won the admiration of all members, and led to a unanimous request that her services should again be available.

FINANCES.

A table prepared by Mr. Summers showed the phenomenal growth of the finances. The branch commenced its operations in 1939 with £38/2/5. In 1940 to June 30 it raised £586/16/2, of which nearly half came from one function (the "win the war" ball), 1941 contributed £655/7/. In 1942 £1343/-/10 was raised, and this year the record amount of £2990/3/-, the latter being £366/16/7 more than the first three years together. The total collections of £5613/9/5 since the commencement of the war must take some beating, and as Secretary Summers remarked, "it was not done sitting down." Either on a membership or per capita basis Gladstone must rank very high in a state-wide survey of revenue. The P.O.W. scheme, with £1240 (including £518 street scheme) leads the way with Paddy's market £452/9/7, dances, donations, fetes, and sub branches £727, and Red Cross week appeal £720, all high contributors to receipts.

CONGRATULATIONS.

In congratulating the branch members and officers on the remarkable achievement during the year Mr. A. W. Drewe, the Executive chairman, said that the whole picture was not reflected in the finances. The Sewing and Knitting Circles had done an amazing amount of excellent work, which did not figure in financial returns, and which few of the general public were aware of. The amount spent on the purchase of materials for sewing and knitting during the year, viz., £405, was an indication of the tremendous turnover. These ladies worked throughout the year, and their work had won high praise from headquarters.

Continuing, Mr. Drewe said that all sections had worked in harmony and gained general support. Undoubtedly, the chief new activity in finance was the Prisoner of War street adoption scheme, and he congratulated the organisers and lady collectors on the high degree of efficiency attained. An amount of over £500 had been collected in five months. The scheme entailed an enormous amount of organisation and detail, but Gladstone had done its part, and prisoners of war in enemy camps were benefiting from the effort.

The Paddy's market, entertainments, and other units had also contributed materially to the record year.

The re-elected President, Mrs. Phillips, and other officers thanked members for their continued support. It was mentioned that Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson had been elected to the P.O.W. Committee, and that Mr. Ken Ballantine, of Galloway Plains, was representing country interests on the committee.

SEWING CIRCLE.

Mrs. L. Rigby (Sewing Circle) reported that Mrs. Cavill had resigned the position of convenor early in the year, and that it was a pleasure to take over from her. She wished to place on record an appreciation of Mrs. Cavill's services. The Circle now comprised a very happy and efficient band of workers. Progress should continue, and the coming year prove even more satisfactory, as much was needed to provide the necessities for servicemen and women. 2800 articles had been made and despatched to headquarters during the year. In addition a chest of linen, towels, pyjamas, dressing gowns, etc., were held in stock for emergency. Two cases of materials, sufficient for 120 persons, had been provided for the local V.D.C. Sub-branches Many Peaks-Builyan and Benaraby had sent in regular consignments, which were forwarded to headquarters. The quality of the branch work was outstanding. All supporters of the circle—Mr. Bartlett for servicing machines, Friends (Pty.) Ltd. for despatching goods, Mr. E. J. Masterson for casing, and Mr. A. W. Drewe for the use of the rooms, which were most comfortable and convenient, were thanked.

KNITTING CIRCLE.

Mrs. D. J. Connellan (Knitting Circle) reported that knitting articles had been sent regularly to headquarters, the garments coming from the local branch and Builyan-Many Peaks and Benaraby sub-branches. Following instructions from headquarters we discontinued making certain articles, and concentrated on socks, pullovers and cardigans with good results. We were also asked, as an urgent request, to make white cotton socks for tinnia patients, and although headquarters were having difficulty in procuring knitting cotton for same, we were able to obtain our supplies locally and go ahead. Our appeal for knitters for these socks met with ready response. Later we were sent wool for making bed jackets for sick servicewomen. A large quantity of this wool had been donated headquarters specially for this purpose, and all branches were asked to make a certain number as quickly as possible. We hope to distribute the last of the wool this week. Owing to altered domestic conditions, several of our knitters, including some of the original ones, find that they no longer have time to do their usual output of knitting. We are hopeful, however, that additional help will be given the circle to enable it to keep up the consignments. Mrs. Schneider has been a great help, and on several occasions carried on during my absence, and once again I must express my best thanks.

In thanking all who assisted during the year I would like to specially mention those people who donated knitted garments to the circle. Our work generally was of an excellent standard, and we hope to maintain this in a satisfactory manner during the coming year.

PADDY'S MARKET.

Mrs. A. H. Friend (Paddy's market) reported that the functions had been held on the second Friday in each month, and had raised £452, which sum exceeded the total purchases of materials necessary to carry on the sewing and knitting. This amount did not include the Red Cross week fete, when the committee ran four stalls and raised £181/7/7 on that day. The year had been a pleasant one, and the loyal band of workers were sincerely thanked for their co-operation. Mrs. Hall, as assistant convenor, had taken charge on several occasions. During the year the market had lost some of its best jam makers, and this, coupled with butter rationing, was a serious threat to the finances. Any ladies able to make jam for the market were asked to advise the convenor. The necessary fruit and sugar would be supplied. Those who had regularly helped by contributions in cash or

TEN PLAIN FACTS about VD
Venereal Diseases
"It is very important under present conditions that the public should know of the existence of venereal diseases; their prevalence in war-time; how they are caused; the urgent necessity for early treatment; and where advice and treatment can be obtained."—THE BRITISH MINISTRY OF HEALTH.

1. Venereal Diseases have increased since the war and are still increasing; many new cases are now occurring yearly among civilians alone. Venereal diseases cause much misery. They bring tragedy into many homes, and considerably damage our war effort by causing reduced efficiency and wasted hours.

2. Ignorance and secrecy are highly dangerous. Only from a plain and frank statement of the facts can we all know what these diseases are, how they are spread, how they can be avoided and how and where they can be cured.

3. The two principal venereal diseases are syphilis and gonorrhœa. They are caused by quite different living organisms or germs.

4. Syphilis is a dangerous, a killing disease. If not treated early and thoroughly by a doctor it can cause serious mutilation, heart disease, paralysis, and insanity, any of which may be fatal. Syphilis can be passed on to an unborn child from its mother and (unless skilled treatment is given early in pregnancy) is one of the causes of blindness, deafness, and mental defects.

5. Gonorrhœa, though not so dangerous to life, is more serious than is generally believed, and is one of the causes of arthritis, sterility, and chronic ill-health.

6. Syphilis and gonorrhœa are almost always contracted through intercourse with an infected person. The germs of these diseases quickly die outside the human body. In practice, therefore, there is no need to fear their spread by accidental infection.

7. Professional prostitutes are not the only source of infection. Any free-and-easy sex behaviour must mean a risk of infection and cannot be made safe. Clean living is the only way to escape infection—abstinence is not harmful.

8. Venereal diseases can be cured if treated early by a doctor. Advice and treatment are available in Brisbane for the purpose and at Public Hospitals throughout the State. Treatment is confidential and effective. Any family doctor will give the address of the nearest clinic. Quack treatment or self-treatment is absolutely useless and may even be disastrous.

9. Disappearance of the early symptoms does not necessarily mean that the patient has been cured. It is essential to continue the treatment until the doctor says it may be stopped.

10. Anyone who has the slightest reason to suspect infection should seek medical treatment AT ONCE. A doctor or clinic or public hospital should be consulted immediately about any suspicious sore or unusual discharge. It may not be venereal disease, but it is best to be sure. These are the signs. The first sign of syphilis is a small ulcer. It appears from 10 to 90 days after infection; usually about three weeks. Gonorrhœa first shows itself as a discharge which usually appears from 2 to 10 days after infection.

THE AMP — A REAL FRIEND IN UNCERTAIN TIMES

RISING PRICES
no economic benefit

IN War time, the good citizen spends as little on his family needs as possible, so as to be able to pay his Taxes, invest in War Loans and Certificates, and keep up his Life Assurance policies, for by all three means he can play his part in meeting the costs of the war.

The good citizen (whether managing a factory, or growing cabbages, or mining coal) also works harder at his daily tasks so as to produce as much as he can, thus playing his part in avoiding the evil of Inflation.

We get Inflation (with rising prices) when men and women have more purchasing power than there are goods to spend it on.

Unless enough of the essential things that the people must buy are produced, the effect is simply a rise in prices all round, and higher prices bring no economic benefit. They merely use up the money that should be going into War Loans, and to pay Taxes, and into A.M.P. policies by which men and women provide security for their families and comfort for their old age.

The A.M.P. Society has put £50,000,000 of its members' Savings into Commonwealth Loans and is adding £500,000 every month. The more prices rise, the harder for its members to make this contribution to the Nation's cause. This is a fact worth pondering over.

The Nation's need is more production per man, per horse-power per acre, per £ invested.

kind were thanked, also the publicity officer (Mr. Connellan) whose notes each month had been the means of making the function so well known. The Press, picture theatres, V.A.D.'s (for sale of flags and collections), and Mr. Fred Stitt for keeping the grounds clean, were also thanked.

V.A.D.'s.

Miss Alma Joyner, Commandant V.A.D's., advised that all members had attended meetings, church parades, first aid lectures, and physical culture classes, also four air raid tests. Lectures had been given by Mr. Farnsworth and Matron Cairncross, picture slides by Captain Rutherford, and a talk to members by Captain E. R. B. Pike. Two members had joined the forces.

Mrs. Farnsworth had resigned as superintendent, and Mrs. Joseph as commandant. Mrs. Friend was elected quartermaster, and Miss P. Friend section leader.

Dr. Byrne gave efficiency tests, and new members sat for home nursing exams. conducted by Dr. Skinner. A donation of £1/10/- was made to the A.A.M.W.S., and £45/3/- was collected by members for Red Cross week appeal. Five new members had been enrolled, making the total 18. The bank balance was £12/1/8.

Messrs. W. V. Coase and P. Hutcheon were thanked for arranging first aid lectures each Tuesday night at the Ambulance building.

JUNIOR RED CROSS.

Mr. F. C. Thampson reported that Junior Red Cross members had been given tuition in needlework by Miss Grundy, and Miss Rath had taken the first aid lectures. Members had continued sewing and making dolls and animals.

HOSPITAL VISITED.

Mrs. H. W. Gollnick reported that since the commencement of the year 20 servicemen had been visited bi-weekly, including allied and Australian soldiers and sailors. Daily and Sunday papers had been distributed regularly, and donations of reading material had been made. The Survey Unit, under Major Eggling, had generously given a dance, which raised sufficient money to instal a radio in the service ward. The wireless was definitely needed, and should be installed as soon as possible. Members who had visited regularly included Mesdames Hando, G. Phillips, Hall, Barker, Taylor, C. Smith, Quodling, and P. Friend, A. Friend, Golding, Easterby, Elliott, Thompson and Johnston as auxiliary committee. The work was not a social phase of Red Cross, but a vital part of morale building. In one particular case at the Hospital the members did as fine a mental piece of therapy as could have been done by trained psychologists, simply by human kindness and sympathy.

Mr. Rallstone ('bus proprietor) was thanked for conveying members, the staff of the Hospital for courtesy, and committee members for their fine spirit and loyalty.

P.O.W. STREET ADOPTION SCHEME.

On behalf of the organisers, Mr. D. J. Connellan reported as follows:—"Although in comon with others towns Gladstone commenced its P.O.W. street scheme in November, 1942, it was not until February of this year that the scheme was put into operation. Excellent pioneering work was performed by Mrs. K. Coppin (organiser) and a small band of ladies, Mesdames H. P. Hallam, A. J. Watson and R. Elliott were the original collectors and they opened up some of the main streets late in the year. However, only £28 was collected to January 31, 1943. When the reorganisation came in February Mesdames Ricketts, Clyde Smith, Hartley, F. Johnsone, and Lodder, and Miss M. Hill joined the organisation, and new streets were opened up under the direction of Mesdames Elliott, Watson and Coppin. February returned an amount of £45/16/-, but this was considered a long way below the objective of £1000 per annum. New collectors in Mesdames Funk, M. Tait and Miss Liddicoat helped in March, when Mrs. Ricketts did valuable work organising the Fowler Estate end. Then Mrs. Geo. Phillips, D. Lewis, E. Masterson, Miss Perkins, Mrs. Summers, Mrs. Stitt, Mrs. Ellington, and Mrs. Linnane took over books to swell April collections. Finally Mrs. Tait, who had too many streets, was relieved by Mesdames Cooper and McCray, and Mesdames Hall and D. Steed became official collectors. Mrs. Kissicker did valuable work relieving Mrs. Hallam at West Gladstone. Boy scouts from both groups assisted the ladies right through, and were undoubtedly of great help. At the present time Miss V. Erbacher has four books, and is also relieving the collector at Bonar Street. However, despite many difficulties, not the least being the rapid wear of shoes on the rough streets, we reached a total of £256 for May and June, and averaged approximately £30 per week, or £1500 per annum. This appears to be our maximum, as few short lanes and parts of streets require to be completed.

A tremendous amount of work is involved, the weekly collections of amounts from each collector, the collection of books for review and audit, and return of books promptly to enable continuance of collections. There are two 100 per cent areas—Barney Point (Mrs. F. Johnstone) and Parson's Point (Mrs. K. Coppin)—where every resident is a contributor.

As the scheme covers an area of some twelve square miles, from Parsons Point to Fowler Estate to West Gladstone, Auckland Hill and Barney Point, the difficulty of keeping contact with all collectors is realised. Many contributors have thoughtfully given annual, monthly and fortnightly amounts, thus relieving the ladies of much hard work. The backbone of the scheme is undoubtedly the assembling of reliable lady collectors, who organise each week, wet or fine. Our experience is that collections missed through any cause are seldom recovered the following week. I must express my thanks to co-organiser and Secretary, Mr. V. A. Summers, who often left his work at short notice to come considerable distances to straighten out collectors' problems. His efficiency and enthusiasm were a big factor. Secretary, Mrs. H. Browne, also attended promptly to deposits for banking.

Letters from some of our boys who are unfortunately prisoners of war were published from time to time, showing that the weekly Red Cross parcels actually saved the lives of many in enemy camps.

MAGNIFICENT RESULT.

Correspondence included the following letter from Mr. J. S. Robertson, hon. secretary Queensland Division Red Cross Society:—

In acknowledging receipt of your letter enclosing cheque to the value of £400 I have been directed by my President, His Excellency the Governor of Queensland, and the members of my committee to convey to you our sincere thanks. Your assistance in our efforts to raise £300,000 for Red Cross during 1943 is very much appreciated. It is noted that with your previous donation of £500 and the £400 just received, the total to date from your branch for Red Cross week is £915, and I take this opportunity of congratulating your members on this magnificent result.

RED CROSS PARCELS.

The Chairman of the P.O.W. adoption scheme, Mr. Geo. Wilson, advised the despatch of a number of phamplets, which showed beyond any doubt that Red Cross parcels were reaching Australian Prisoners of war in European camps, and were of material assistance in keeping them alive and well.

COOKING CAKES.

In advising that the Paddy's market came under the heading of street stall or public refreshments, Miss K. C. Bird, Divisional Rationing Officer, said that no permits could be issued for butter for use in cakes, etc. However, a good cook had tried the following with excellent results:—

1 lb. lard, 2 lbs. beef dripping; render down just enough to blend. When using for cakes to 1 lb. of the mixture add one dessert spoon of vinegar or the juice of half a lemon, and one dessert spoon of black treacle, golden syrup or honey (treacle is best). The addition of treacle keeps the cake moist. Cakes made on Saturday are in good condition on Monday.

RADIO.

In acknowledging receipt of letter asking that a radio be purchased for the military ward, Gladstone Hospital, the general secretary advised that the matter had been handed to the Commissioner for his attention. At the moment it was impossible for wireless sets to be purchased except under contract by the Society, and manufacturers were behind with their deliveries. Demands in forward battle areas had to be given precedence. However, when stocks were available Gladstone's order would be given consideration.

The Treasurer, Benaraby sub-branch (Miss G. J. Turich) forwardede donation of £1 from Mr. E. O'Connor for Red Cross week appeal.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN.

Immediately following the annual meeting Mr. A. W. Drewe was re-elected Executive chairman for the ensuing year. New members present included Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson and Mr. K. Ballantine.

Mr. Drewe briefly thanked committee members for his election, and said he trusted the same harmony and success would prevail during the current term.

HOUSING COMMISSION

INTERESTING EVIDENCE SUBMITTED

ALD. GOLDING AND TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL

As reported in our last issue, the Commonwealth Housing Commission sat in Gladstone on Monday, and the following evidence was submitted by Ald. W. R. Golding:—

ALD. W. R. GOLDING.

It is not only desirable, but imperative that included in the Government's post-war plan, the abolition of slum areas and the demolition or remodeling of sub-standard dwellings should be regarded as of major national importance, not only from a point of view of comfort, but mainly for health reasons and the future outlook of the individual and the welfare of the nation.

HOUSING SCHEMES.

Whether housing schemes should be the right of the Government or shared with building societies would depend principally on whether the Government would make their housing scheme sufficiently attractive that no other source would be desired, and in this connection I would say that this would mean, not only which monthly repayment would be the most attractive, but to a large extent upon the expeditious handling of the application for an advance, coupled with the least preliminary capital outlay in fees, etc.

GLADSTONE HOUSE SHORTAGE.

The cause of the house shortage in Gladstone has not been brought about by the war, nor do I consider that it has been accentuated by it. The three main causes can be briefly stated as:

(1) The rapid increase in the population of the town brought about mainly through Swifts Australian (Pty.) Ltd. purchasing the Gladstone Meatworks, and increasing the number of employees may times over.

(2) Centralised control of housing, with its many aggravated delays in dealing with applications for advances, due perhaps to the limited amount of money available to the State Advances Corporation.

(3) The apathy of the investor towards house building as a profitable investment, brought about mainly by Government regulations and restrictions.

ENCOURAGEMENT TO BUILD.

Given every encouragement to build, that is, a minimum of delay upon application, easy monthly repayments, and the assurance of supplies of material and labour necessary for a continuity of housing, there would be no danger of a recurrence of the present shortage of houses.

SUITABLE LAND.

There is, however, a real need for suitable land of an area large enough as will permit of numerous subdivisions, so that it could be regarded as a residential area, remote from the uncongenial atmosphere of industrial centres. To determine the area to be allotted to each occupier, omitting any desire to turn the allotment into a miniature farm, would be generally determined by the size of the house required. I would say that an area of one chain frontage by 2½ chains deep would be sufficient.

HOME-BUILDER.

Wherever possible the home-builder prefers to own the land on which he intends to build, and looks with a good deal of suspicion on perpetual lease blocks, preferring to pay fancy prices to obtain a block of land which he can call his own.

STABILISE PRICES.

Whether there is any necessity for the control of prices for building materials in normal times is questionable. I would suggest that it is necessary in boom periods, and in normal times it would assist the small sawmiller to carry on against his somewhat better equipped competitor, and at the same time tend to stabilise prices for similar buildings.

TAP FORESTRY RESERVES.

There will be, not in the far distant future, an urgent need to tap forestry reserves, which through distance have remained untouched, as owing to the enormous demands made on all sawmills, present supplies are fast becoming exhausted. Greater distances means increased costs, and substitutes for wood will be used in the future in ever increasing quantities.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL.

Government control of housing, and by this I mean a standard of new construction should only operate where local authorities' by-laws on buildings are out of date. Even so, it would, I feel, be more acceptable to the home-builder if the Government insisted on a standard set of building by-laws administered by the Local Authority, and these by-laws could and generally do give the necessary authority to order the demolishing of old buildings or repairing of sub-standard dwellings.

BE DISASTROUS.

For the Government to contemplate the erection of dwellings on a large scale, and to retain control of them would be disastrous in many ways, unless such large scale housing was carried out in a manner similar to Canberra of the Yallourn housing scheme, when individuality of design is as marked as the individuality of the average citizen.

CHARACTER OF THE INDIVIDUAL.

I repeat that it would be disastrous to construct rows of houses all similar in design, as it would clash with the character of the individual, and create in him the reverse that is generally found in the home lover—a horror of his place of abode, a carelessness and contempt for his surroundings, a restlessness and dissatisfaction which would soon be apparent not only in himself, but in his or her work.

CIVIL SERVANTS.

If, however, the Government insists on the erection and control of a number of houses in each centre for renting purposes, these should be confined for the exclusive use of civil servants, and the number to be erected would be determined by the number of civil servants employed in any one centre, and by civil servants I mean school teachers, the police, and court house staff, as from my experience it is those people who are more frequently moved on and have the greatest difficulty in securing the necessary housing.

STANDARD OF COMFORT.

That there is need for a greater degree of comfort in many of the existing houses, particularly houses for renting purposes, goes without saying, but an up-to-date set of by-laws setting out the standard of comfort required in each house would overcome this omission. Should this avenue, as an investment remain unattractive for the investor, then there would be an obligation on somebody to take his place when the present house becomes inhabitable, or a rapid increase of population takes place, but in this respect I would again stress the necessity for a dissimilarity in design, and would utter a word of caution, as there would be many pitfalls for such a venture as the wholesale erection of dwellings for what might be only a temporary increase in population of any one centre.

LONGER PERIOD OF REPAYMENT.

Dealing with the internal arrangement, number of and position of rooms, etc., I have found as a builder that the prospective builder has a very definite idea of what he requires, and his only worry is juts how far he can go without over-stepping the amount set aside for his purpose, or his ability to meet his monthly dues. If he were allowed a longer period of repayment, and at the present low rate of interest—that is, £3/12/6 per cent—he would, from my extensive knowledge, be able to include everything necessary for the completion of his home, and in this I would include electric light, water, stove, bath, hand basin, hot water system, concrete tubs, bricked-in copper, laundry, sink, pantry, and refrigerator, and this last item should be purchased in bulk by the Government and distributed to the home-builder at cost, and included as part of the capital outlay of the building.

CONTRACT SYSTEM.

As one who has spent a lifetime in building, it perhaps is only natural that I should favour the contract system as against day labour, more especially in the construction of dwellings, and Government experience must show this, even if their policy is the reverse.

LOCAL AUTHORITY.

It is my considered opinion that it would simplify the granting of advances and permission to build, if whatever system is adopted, was decentralised and placed under the control of the local authority in each city or town, working as agents for the Government, with full power to make advances and let contracts, with the right of the applicant to select his own builder if he so desires, as experience shows that many persons prefer a particular builder, and will pay quite an appreciable sum to obtain his services.

30 OR 40 PLANS.

I further suggest that the Government prepare a set of say 30 or 40 plans, which would be available at a nominal charge, with the right of the applicant to have any detail altered to suit his convenience, and in this respect I would go as far as cutting out the inspector and his fee, as generally a satisfied applicant results in a satisfied inspector; but should he desire one, then an inspector should be available; or, better still, let the inspector be a charge on the Government, and not upon the applicant.

FINANCED HOME-BUILDERS.

Over the last ten years my firm has financed dozens of home-builders, and found that it was impossible to determine the amount of the initial deposit by any set rule, relying exclusively on the honesty of the applicant to determine his deposit, and in nearly every case accepted £1 per week as the maximum repayments, and not one of these applicants are in arrears.

LIMIT OF ADVANCES.

On the other hand, we have financed many a one who has built a worker's dwelling, and not always with the best result, and tending to prove that the present conditions of advances, under the Workers' Dwelling Act, has a limit beyond which, in some cases, it is not wise to go.

LARGER FAMILIES.

Everyone realises that a man with a large family has little chance of paying off a home under the present system, and larger families should be encouraged. He should be considerably assisted by the Government, and this could be done by paying him a grant or subsidy on every child after his third from income tax collected from those who have no children, and up to two children, and this grant to be equal to the determined cost per annum of each child.

QUESTION OF PENALTIES.

The question of penalties for late payments is one that would need careful handling, and only very flagrant breaches should be taken into account, as I am convinced that given reasonable conditions, that any advances made by the Government for the better housing of the population of the Commonwealth, provided that it is not bound up in red tape, will have an immediate and beneficial effect on the whole of our national life. And here I would enter a plea for the primary producer to share in any scheme, as it is usually to be found that these hard working people are living under conditions which are anything but congenial.

CURRENT TOPICS

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB.

Members and associates of the Gladstone Golf Club are reminded that the important eclectic stroke competitions will be held this afternoon (Saturday) on the local links. Associates will also compete for the Jones Cup. To-morrow (Sunday) the second round of the popular four ball best ball competition for Rev. Father Cullen's trophy will be staged. Partners will be the same as in the last round, but any new players not paired will be allowed to select their own partners for the day. The President of the club invites servicemen to make use of the links during the week, and to take part in club competitions during the week-end. Officers and men from any Allied units are specially welcome.

P.O.W. SCHEME.

Mrs. Bayntun (Roseberry Street) has kindly taken over collections at Glenlyon Street until Mrs. Funk junr. is able to resume in that area. In addition to doing four regular collections, Miss V. Erbacher, who is a Lone Ranger, has relieved Mrs. D. Linnane at Bonar Street. Mesdames Bennedick and Schneider (West Gladstone) have taken over collections from Mrs. Hallam at View, Side and Ormonde, also Scenery Streets. Mrs. C. D. Cooper has had to give up her collections in Auckland Street (two books), and the organisers would be pleased to hear from any lady or other person able to assist in this locality (from Tank Street to the railway line). Mr. Cliff Henderson (Queen's Hotel) has handed Mrs. Masterson a donation of £1/1/- for Gondoon Street book.

INCOME TAX RETURNS.

Attention is drawn to an advertisement in to-day's issue calling on all persons liable to furnish income tax returns to forward same to the Deputy Commissioner of Taxation, Taxation Building, George and Elizabeth Streets, Brisbane, on or before July 31, in the case of employees or persons in receipt of income from property only, and on or before August 31 in the case of all persons in business or professions, or companies. It should be noted that if any person or company liable to make any income tax return fails to do so by the due date, he or it is liable to a penalty of £100. Return forms may be obtained at the Taxation Department, Taxation Building, George and Elizabeth Streets, Brisbane, or at the Taxation Department, Commonwealth Government offices, Adelaide Street, Brisbane, or at any post office, or office of the Clerk of Petty Sessions in Queensland. Postage on all returns must in all cases be paid by the sender.

CONVENT SCHOOL FUND DANCE.

The popular weekly dance will again take place on Monday night next in the Empire Hall, and a feature will be the fox trot competition. There will be twelve competitors, and judging by the keeness shown in the heats, the final should attract a large attendance. The prize for the lady is a permanent hair wave, and for the gent 10/6. The floor is in excellent order, and first-class music will be provided. The function is in aid of the Convent School Fund.

MR. T. L. WILLIAMS, M.L.A.

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) spent the past week-end in Gladstone and district, including Mt. Larcom, and attended a meeting of the local A.L.P., and received a deputation from the Trades and Labour Council also during his visit. On Monday he was present at the hearing of evidence taken by the Commonwealth Housing Commission in the Town Hall, in which matters Mr. Williams has always shown a keen interest, especially where a better type of home and communal facilities for the worker and his family are concerned.

21st BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Miss Ailsa Greasley, who attained her majority on Saturday, July 10, entertained a small party of friends at her parents' (Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Greasley) residence, Auckland Street, to celebrate the occasion. Singing and games were indulged in, and the guests sat down to supper at 10 p.m. A beautiful birthday cake (made by Mrs. L. M. Walker) took pride of place at the table. Ailsa was congratulated on her coming of age, and received some very nice presents, amongst them being a beautiful fur, presented by her father. The function terminated at 11 p.m. after a most enjoyable evening.

STATE LAND TAX RETURNS.

An advertisement appeared in our last issue notifying that all owners of freehold, the aggregate unimproved value of which is £200 or more, are required to lodge State land tax returns on or before September 30 next. In ordinary circumstances all persons liable to lodge returns should furnish particulars in full in form "B" but owing to war conditions, this requirement has been varied and simplified to the extent that the return may be made either in form "CA" (the simple declaration where there has been no change during the year), or in form "C" where changes have been effected. All returns lodged after September 30 but before November 30 are subject to a penalty of 5 per cent of the tax for late lodgment, and all returns lodged after November 30 to a penalty of 10 per cent of the tax.

RED CROSS HOSPITAL COMMITTEE.

Through a typographical error the number of servicemen visited by the Red Cross Hospital Visiting Committee was shown in the annual report of the branch as 20, whereas it should have read 206. This worthy organisation, the most recent of the Gladstone Red Cross to function, is doing a splendid job, and many complimentary references have been made to the convenor (Mrs. A. F. Gollnick) on the service. Through this circle the public of Gladstone and district have an opportunity to show their appreciation of the wonderful efforts of members of the fighting forces in various units and theatres of war. Many of them have recovered their health and strength in the hospital ward. It is hoped to provide a radio for the patients at an early date, the Queensland Division of the Red Cross Society having placed the order under contract with the distributors.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. and Mrs. W. Archay, of Calliope, have now received word that their son, Pilot Officer Ken Archay, is safe and well in England.

Miss Lorna Hallam, who is attending St. Faith's School, Yeppoon, is home on her mid-winter vacation.

Mrs. J. Treacy has arrived from Longreach to spend a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Quirk, of Short Street, before leaving for her future home in Bundaberg.

Nurse Hazel Hallam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hallam, of Gladstone, is at present spending her annual holidays with her parents. Nurse Hallam is on the staff of the Murwillumbah General Hospital.

The Inspector of Schools, Mr. Pestorious, is spending a few days in Gladstone. He was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Farnsworth, at a pleasant bridge evening at their residence, Gondoon Street, on Thursday night.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

PADDY'S MARKET

Receipts £47/15/10

Once again the monthly Paddy's market, conducted by the organiser (Mrs. A. H. Friend) and her able committee, was an outstanding success, the receipts amounting to £47/15/10. Features of the function were the wonderful collection of cut flowers (principally roses), and sweets amounting to 41 lbs. made by Mrs. Chas. Barker.

The raffle of a doll and bed (donated by Mrs. M. Ricketts) was won by Miss Alison Tudman, with ticket No. 399, and the hand-woven belt (donated by Mr. G. W. Draper) by Mrs. F. C. Thompson.

The death occurred at the Gladstone General Hospital on Saturday last of Mrs. Elizabeth Turner, wife of Frederick Albert Turner, of Calliope.

Deceased was 58 years of age, and prior to her marriage to Mr. Turner she was Miss Elizabeth Phillips, and was born at Gootchie, in the Gympie district. She was married in Maryborough in 1910.

The deceased was well known in the Gladstone district, being gate-keeper at the railway station of Barmundu, Taragoola, and Calliope. Her husband was a well-known ganger in the railway department.

She is survived by her husband and three sons, Sydney, of Goolembil, William, of Calliope, and Thomas, of the A.I.F; also three daughters, Lily (Mrs. H. Neal, Rockhampton), Evelyn (Mrs. P. McGuire, Comet Downs, Clermont), and Phyllis (Mrs. F. Coplick, Calliope) also four brothers, Joseph and Edward (Wondai), William (Biggenden), Alfred (Nanango), and one sister, Mrs. C. Kajewski, of Littlemore.

The funeral took place at Calliope on Saturday last, and was largely attended. Rev G. T. A. Phillipson officiated at the graveside.

CAPRICORNIA ELECTION

MR. C. P. WARD, C.N.O. CANDIDATE

A Returned Soldier

Mr. Charles Power Ward, Rockhampton, has been selected as the Country-National Organisation candidate to oppose Mr. F. M. Forde, Minister for the Army, for the Capricornia seat at the coming Federal election.

MR. WARD'S CAREER.

Mr. Ward was born in Brisbane in 1893. At an early age his parents moved to the Woodford-Kilcoy district to take up dairying and cattle raising. At 18 he commenced work with a Rosewood blacksmith, and during that time was a member of the local Light Horse Troop. He enlisted with the A.I.F. in 1916, being a member of the 15th Battalion. He served in France as a non-commissioned officer for the greater part of 1917, and lost his right arm at Polygon Wood in October of that year. He returned to Australia to be discharged from the forces in 1918.

SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS MAN.

In February, 1919, he joined the staff of Mactaggart Bros., livestock salesmen, Brisbane, and remained with that firm until 1925, when he transferred to Sturmfels Ltd., as stock auctioneer and manager of the stock department. He continued with Sturmfels until the end of 1938. In February, 1939, with Mr. Norman Geddes, he founded the firm of Ward, Geddes & Co., Rockhampton, and has built up a successful business, with outside saleyards at Baralaba and Nebo.

Mr. Ward is married, with four children, his eldest daughter being attached to the W.A.A.F. He is a member and past treasurer of the Crippled Soldiers and Sailors' Association of Queensland.

MR. C. P. WARD.

CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE FORMED.

At a largely attended meeting at the School of Arts, Rockhampton, Mr. Ward's Central Campaign Committee was formed. Mr. H. S. Beaney was elected chairman, Mr. W. H. Kettle treasurer, and Mr. J. H. Fitzpatrick campaign secretary. A committee of twenty, with power to add, was appointed. The desirability of committees forming in all centres in the electorate was strongly recommended.

A RETURNED SOLDIER.

In introducing Mr. Ward to the meeting, General Thompson said that in addition to being a successful business man of high integrity and a returned soldier, who had lost an arm in the last war, Mr. Ward had a special qualification to represent Capricornia in the knowledge he possessed of the cattle industry, upon which the prosperity of much of the district, town and country depended.

MR. WARD IN REPLY.

Mr. Ward, in responding, was fully conscious, he said, of the honour that had been paid him in asking him to stand for Capricornia. If his only qualification was that he was a returned soldier who had lost an arm in the last war he would not have considered himself any more entitled to seek return to Parliament than many thousands of others who had done their duty in the last war.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

He was influenced in coming forward by the fact that it appeared to him that in many respects the political aspect was the least creditable part of Australia's war effort. Everywhere was a desire for stable government, preferably a National Government, but influences were always working for its frustration. There was a sincere desire to end the conditions that has characterised the last Parliament.

A.L.P.

FREIGHTS AND FARES

Boyne River Scheme

At a well attended meeting of the Gladstone A.L.P. several important matters were dealt with.

A PROTEST.

It was decided to write the Town Council protesting against the very summary manner in which the Council dispensed with the services of the bodies formed to further the Boyne River water scheme.

COMMUNIST PARTY.

The Communist party is to be informed that the Labour Party had already formed a campaign committee, and that they did not require the assistance of the Communist party. If the Communists were genuine in their statements that they were anxious to assist the Labour Party, why were they putting forward candidates against sitting Labour representatives in both State and Federal elections.

MONEY ORDER OFFICE

Mr. F. M. Forde advised that as soon as a safe could be procured a money order office would be established at the South Gladstone Post Office.

FOR THE SCHOOLS.

Mr. Power reported that the Labour Day Picnic Committee had donated a new football and the sum of £3 to each of the schools, Convent, State and Meatworks.

FREIGHTS AND FARES.

Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., who was present at the meeting, reported that Cabinet had reduced railway freights and fares. He also reported an increase in subsidy to district controlled hospitals. He also said that Mr. Kemp (Co-ordinator General) had asked him to urge the Town Council to advise the requirements as to equipment and material for the Boyne water scheme as soon as possible.

Mr. Williams spoke on the water requirements, and on the reduction of freights and fares. Personally, he would sooner have seen a bigger reduction in freights, leaving fares for the present. By this the costs of country foodstuffs, etc., would have been reduced.

"PLANS SHOULD BE EXPEDITED."

Following Mr. Williams' statement that the Co-ordinator General was concerned at the delay in placing orders for equipment and material for the Boyne scheme, it was decided to write the Town Council urging that the plans of the scheme should be expedited so that the material and equipment could be ordered immediately.

VISITING DENTIST.

It was decided that a request be made to the department that a visiting dentist be sent to the Gladstone Hospital at an early date, also that if possible a dentist be released from the military to take up permanent duties at the Hospital.

SOCIAL EVENING.

A social evening and old-time dance was held at the Oddfellows' Hall last Wednesday night by Mesdames M. McLeod and L. Padget, and the sum of £5/8/5 has been handed to the Brigade. Mr. Schuck acted as M.C., and carried out his duties in a most capable manner. The committee appreciates the action of the ladies.

CATTLE INDUSTRY.

In coming forward he believed he was giving the people of Capricornia an opportunity of ending a position that had become intolerable to them. Election day would show whether they wanted that opportunity. As General Thompson remarked, he could claim to have some knowledge of an industry that was vital to the prosperity of Central Queensland—the beef cattle industry. But whilst he had a special knowledge of that industry he was conscious of the fact that there were other industries in this district that called for championship.

A MYSTERY.

It had been a mystery to him, as doubtless it had been to others, that such a strong case for the Mt. Morgan copper refinery had come to nothing. Roads that were essential to the welfare and safety of the district had been neglected in spite of the strongest representations. There was a feeling that the Parliamentary representation of the district was at fault. That was the main reason why such strong requests had been made for him to stand. He had acceded to those requests, and he now placed himself in the hands of the people who could help in his return. (Applause).

GLADSTONE GIRLS

JOIN THE W.A.A.A.F.

Interview Flight Officer Dow

"We have had quite a number of inquiries since our arrival," said Flight Officer Lilias B. Dow yesterday. Flight Officer Dow is in charge of the W.A.A.A.F. Mobile Recruiting Unit which is visiting Gladstone at present.

"Some of the girls are under the age of 21, and have to get their parents' consent before enlistment, added Flight Officer Dow, who with her assistant, Corporal J. Vaughan, is at the W.A.A.A.F. Recruiting Bureau, next to the Grand Hotel, where inquiries may be made.

"All the girls already in the service are happy and contented in their many and varied jobs. When I have visited Airforce stations in the course of my travels, I have seen the girls at their work, and they are doing a grand job. In fact, that is their answer when you ask them how they like service life."

"I have seen S.Q.A.'s working in the hospitals with an every-ready smile and untold patience. I have seen the dental orderlies quickly and quietly handling the necessary instruments to the R.A.A.F. dentists and sterilising those instruments. I have seen D.M.T.'s driving not cars, trucks and tenders, but ambulances and tractors, taking bomb loads to planes. To see the fabric workers busily stitching and doping aeroplane wings, others repairing and folding parachutes, which may save the life of brave airmen some day is most interesting."

"In the R.A.A.F. kitchens cooks, mess women and mess stewardesses do great work too, serving meals at all hours, day and night, to fliers. In the offices they work complicated switchboards, teleprinter machines, and send and receive Morse code. Even in the meteorological section there are W.A.A.A.F.'s recording vital weather information. These are only a few of the many interesting jobs now being done by girls who have given up excellent positions to join the W.A.A.A.F. They are happy in the fact that they are releasing a man to do more active service."

"A great comradeship exists between the W.A.A.A.F. and the R.A.A.F. both in working hours and out of them. At most stations the W.A.A.A.F.'s have an 'open house' night, when each airwoman is allowed to ask an airman to the W.A.A.A.F. recreation hut for a sing-song or a dance. In return the airmen sometimes take the W.A.A.A.F.'s to the station cinema or to a dance in the recreation hut.

"The work the W.A.A.A.F. is doing is 100 per cent efficient. The airwomen are proud of their service, and the Airforce tradition that lies behind it, proud of their uniform and what it stands for.

The age limits are 18 and 40. I know it is asking a lot for mothers to give up their girls at 18, but you must give up your girls as you gave up your sons. If they were boys they would be away, so mothers, when your girls come to you for permission to join the W.A.A.A.F.'s don't turn them away and tell them they can't go. Listen to them and let them explain their request, not only that, come and have a chat with me, and I will be only too pleased to explain any details."

Flight Officer Dow may be interviewed at the W.A.A.A.F. Recruiting Bureau, next to the Grand Hotel.

HARBOUR BOARD

Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Board was held yesterday. Present: The Chairman (Mr. C. W. Macfarlan), and Messrs. W. R. Golding, J. F. Donovan, E. W. Crow, A. W. Drewe, C. S. Schache, and the Secretary (Mr. A. D. Hopper).

An apology for non-attendance was received from Mr. R. S. Wilson, who was granted leave of absence from the meeting.

APPROVED.

The Treasury Department advised that approval had been given by the Marine Board for the Port Curtis Dairy Association Ltd. to lay a pipe line across tidal lands, and to erect a pumping plant at Barney Point.—Received.

WORKS.

The Works Committee reported that Mr. W. R. Golding had been appointed chairman of the committee

PAYMENTS.

Payments amounting to £1152/17/4 were confirmed, and accounts amounting to £601/16/8 were passed for payment.

SOUTH GLADSTONE PROGRESS ASSOCIATION

Monthly Meeting

The President (Mr. E. T. Daley) presided over the usual and largely attended monthly meeting of the South Gladstone and Barney Point Progressive Association.

Letters were received from the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) and the Postmaster General (Senator Ashley), dealing with the postal delivery to Barney Point, and the installation of two public telephones.

The Town Council forwarded a letter dealing with their requests.

The letters were received.

The Treasurer presented the financial statement, and this showed a credit balance.

The secretary's report dealt with his activities during the month.

Reports were adopted.

Several new members were admitted.

GENERAL.

A committee was elected to inquire into the Council's refusal to connect Mr. Judge's residence with electric light. Measurements will be taken with a view to asking the Council to reopen the case.

The removal of the Parsons Point State School to a more suitable locality was discussed at length, and it was pointed out that 34 out of a roll-call of 38 school children were forced to travel long distances under adverse conditions to school, which was of great concern to parents.

The Association will take the matter up with the Government immediately.

It was decided to form a "busy bee" for the purpose of erecting several tree guards at Barney Point.

This work will be carried out under the direction of Mr. L. Short.

SCOUTS STREET STALL.

The street stall, conducted by the Second Gladstone Group of Scouts last Saturday, was most successful, the net takings being £14/6/-, and is a most acceptable contribution to the group funds. Mrs. Owbridge, of Barney Point, won the guessing competition, the weight of a cake, which weighed 4 lbs. The Group desires to thank all those who contributed to the success of the stall.

PLAY FAIR
with fellow citizens

A programme for Australians who hope for a better to-morrow

- Play fair with fellow citizens (in and out of the Services) by buying war bonds, digging a little deeper every now and again to buy an extra one; this, to lift our share of the load and to ward off Inflation.
- Play fair by avoiding waste in administration, at work, and in our domestic affairs; this to reduce the burden of the cost of the war.
- Play fair by avoiding unnecessary or excessive absence from work and by doing our utmost when at work.
- Play fair by remembering that this is a total war that calls for a total effort by all of us.
- Play fair by seeking to understand the grave financial and economic problems of the times so that we may exercise our rights wisely.
- Play fair by arranging with the A.M.P. for the security of our families, and the comfort of our old age, instead of leaving the responsibility to the community which is already heavily burdened.

HOUSING COMMISSION

TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL.

The following evidence was submitted to the Commission on Sunday last by Messrs. V. J. Willey and C. Boles on behalf of the Trades and Labour Council.

We believe that a large scale Federal Government housing programme is necessary in Gladstone in the post-war period. Accommodation will also have to be built for single persons and pensioners should be well provided for.

POSITION IN GLADSTONE.

The shortage of houses is Gladstone is not due to the war, but to the fact that with the expansion of the Meatworks and other local industries, workers who previously left here at the completion of the season are now permanent residents of the town.

FINANCE.

Under the prevailing schemes finance to prospective home builders is not cheap and easy to acquire. The necessity of purchasing a block of land, the supplying a deposit, and the furnishing of the home, is beyond the reach of most wage-earners. Most of these problems could be overcome by the strict control of the perpetual lease system of land tenure, whereby all blocks would be assessed at a nominal upset price and balloted for, and not sold by auction to the highest bidder.

RATE OF INTEREST.

In the case of average size families, and even couples on a low rate of pay, assistance would have to be given in regard to the deposit. The rate of interest should never exceed the current rate of Commonwealth Savings Bank interest, and redemption should be assessed at the rate of 10 per cent of the weekly wage of the purchaser. Plans and administration cost should be reduced to a minimum.

CHECKING SPECULATION.

As a method of checking speculation in land or other tenure, we suggest that it should be sold in single blocks, and each purchaser allowed only one block, which must be built on in five years to avoid resumption.

66ft. FRONTAGE.

A strict control over the price of all building material would be necessary, and to stabilise the building industry permits would be necessary. Many and varied designs would be necessary, as each home-builder likes to be somewhat different from his neighbour. A high standard of domestic equipment and facilities, including refrigerator, would be essential. Each house should have a frontage of 66ft. of land, and in the interest of health all waste water, etc., should be drained from the property to street channeling.

DAY LABOUR SYSTEM.

As members of the working class, we favour the work to be carried out by Government departments, under the day labour system, which we believe, if properly controlled and administered, would be satisfactory, and private profits would thus be avoided.

PERIOD OF SERVICE.

To ensure a continued supply of skilled labour the apprenticeship system should be overhauled, and the period of service reduced from five to three years. In the past boys serving their time have in lots of cases been used as labourers or kept continually on one class of work, whereas if they were correctly taught and allowed to learn all sections of the trade the three-year period would be ample.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT CONTROL.

It will be necessary to have houses built and controlled by the Federal Government for letting to the floating population, and here again it is stressed that designs should be many and varied. Local tenants' committees would be necessary to control the letting and supervision of these houses.

FOR GLADSTONE.

In conclusion we are convinced that the most important item is the introduction of a large scale Government housing programme for Gladstone, and we believe that any anomalies that may arise in its early prosecution will soon be overcome by the earnest co-operation of all persons concerned with it.

SINGLES HANDICAP

Busteed and Hogan Win

Two matches in the handicap singles at the Gladstone bowling green resulted in M. A. Busteed defeating R. Humphries 31-16, and J. Hogan beating C. Bycroft 33-25 after a very close game.

In the social games a rink skipped by member Tom Williams narrowly defeated a four led by George Matthews. Results:—

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB

BISOUE COMPETITION

Win For Peardon

Playing excellent golf, Captain F. Peardon won the bisque competition at the Gladstone Golf Links on Saturday afternoon. His 2 up led H. C. Moore sq., L. Collins sq., M. Clifford 1 down, R. James 2 down, and E. W. Phillips 3 down.

Mrs. Easterby and R. Elliott won the mixed foursomes with the excellent card of 32 from a gross 42. Other scores were: Mrs. Fitzgerald and M. Clifford 37, Miss McGahan and L. Collins 40, and Miss Dingleton and J. Fitzgerald 44.

P.O.W. LABOUR.

Tweed Shire Council has decided to ask the Federal authorities that prisoner of war and internee labour be made available to maintain Tweed roads. The Council now has only 20 workmen, compared with a pre-war peak of 180.

MENDING STOCKINGS.

Several Brisbane skilled hose menders who specialise in repairing gossamer stockings and other quality garments state that human hair for mending stockings might be worth trying on the ordinary "ladder." This followed a report that British women were using human hair in this way.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

PACIFIC OFFENSIVE

Lights Shine Again

The Pacific offensive now in progress gives good hope that the invasion clouds that have hung so long on our horizon soon will be driven back over the enemy.

Yet scarcely a day passes when further evidence is not forthcoming of the agonies of the peoples whose lands have actually suffered invasion.

Their fate might have been our fate. As it is, Australia, of all the countries actually involved in the conflict, is one of the first in which the lights may shine again.

It is worth thinking about; worth asking ourselves what would have been our fate had we imagined that neutrality would protect us, or failed to gird our loins, and earn the assistance that has come to us from Great Britain and her Allies.

If for a moment we allow ourselves to disregard what other freedom loving peoples are still suffering, what our own kith and kin are still enduring, and what we owe to those who stand between ourselves and the enemy, then we shall deserve only the cold contempt of those who, when victory comes, will have earned it.

Are we thinking, for instance, of how some of the underlying causes of this war can be removed so that peace may be more than a prelude to another and even more catastrophic war?

There is an indication of the answer to this problem in a book newly published. The authoress, Eve Curie, writes about a recent visit to the battlefronts of freedom. In Russia she asks why the Allied observers are not given more freedom to move about and see things for themselves.

"We are not going to forget so easily," replies a Russian spokesman, "the way the Soviet has been calumniated, insulted and attacked for 25 years in the countries that are now our Allies. You ask us to be trustful. Trust is a two-way proposition."

Some of us might be offended with this attitude, but resentment cannot eradicate the element of truth. Even setting aside the case of Russia, we have many other sad examples of distrust and international suspicion to look back upon with regret and discomfiture.

Liberation is in the air, and the prospect of relief for threatened and oppressed peoples is no longer in doubt. But liberation from an alien oppression is no guarantee of lasting freedom. Liberation from suspicion, from fear and want, from the hate that springs from these, will still be needed to seal the victory and safeguard the peace.

TAX BANKRUPTCY

"Pay-As-You-Go" Taxation

"The Taxpayers' Association is determined to make 'pay-as-you-go' income tax a dominant issue," said Mr. John White, secretary of the N.S.W. branch of the Association in an exclusive interview with "Industrial News Service."

"In the United States and in Canada 'pay-as-you-go' schemes have recently been adopted. Such a system of taxation will meet the problem so many Australians are faced with to-day.

"For instance," Mr. White continued, "take the problem of the Australian who gives up a good position to go into the Army; the bank officer who retires on a small pension; or the person who dies and leaves his dependants to pay the last year's tax. Their position is such that with the high rates of tax, tax bankruptcy is arising on all sides.

"The Taxpayers' Association has evolved a scheme, based on the United States and Canadian practice, which offers a practical solution to these problems," Mr. White continued. "The scheme was submitted to the Federal Treasurer (Mr. Chifley), who rejected it on the apparent ground that, coming from the Taxpayers' Association, the Treasury would lose somewhere!

"Actually, the scheme is equally beneficial to the Treasury and the taxpayer. Since Mr. Chifley's summary rejection, the leading political organisations, including the United Australia Party, the United Country Party, and the Australian Council of Trades Unions, have all endorsed the principle of 'pay-as-you-go' taxation.

"To summarise the issue," Mr. White concluded, "the proposals are not a matter of 'pay-as-you-please,' but a scientific system of tax incidence."

Sixteen thousand Australian boys have joined the Air Training Corps, and of these 4000 have passed into the R.A.A.F.

PATRIOTISM

Communist Style

Let's imagine it's June 1941. In Africa a few thousand sand grimed, ragged but cheerful Aussies were hanging on to a series of holes in the ground that history knows as Tobruk. Bombed, shelled and strafed with everything that a fifty to one superior enemy could think up in the way of hatefulness, the boys were hanging on. They were short of practically everything that makes life worth while, even in war time. They had nothing but the most elementary of food, ammo. was short, ack-ack guns woefully few, and casualties pretty high. Their only lifeline was the Navy, which braved everything that sailed, submerged or flew, to keep them going.

Further to the East the ragged, battered remnants of the Sixth Divvy were streaming back from Greece and Crete, bereft of everything but their fighting spirit, and a burning desire to avenge the chaps who couldn't make it.

In Australia a Council composed of delegates of Australian Trades Unions was meeting. The main burden of the discussions at the Council dealt with proposals for obtaining the greatest possible profit out of the war, which many of the delegates claimed was simply an imperialistic conflict. The Communist section of the Council put forward a motion condemning the war as an imperialistic struggle and urging the negotiation of a democratic peace.

This motion was defeated, to the great disgust of the Communists, who, however, got some satisfaction out of boasting that they had been responsible for more planned strikes than any other body in the industrial life of the community.

Imagine that! Boasting of keeping Australians fighting for their lives short of equipment and ammunition.

And that particular statement brought cheers when it should have brought violent retaliation from anybody worthy of the name 'Australian.'

And now, at a time when the Communists are supposedly whole heartedly in favour of the war, we find their efforts directed solely towards the development of propaganda machinery designed to overthrow our democratic way of life.

At a time when the average citizen has been asked to dig deep in his pocket to help finance the war effort this band of 20,000 war-shy traitors have raised enough money to finance four newspapers and offer £90,000 for an elaborate building in Sydney. They collect compulsory levies from workers every week. They solicit funds on the radio to further the spread of their anti-British poison.

And good men have been fighting and dying to keep the enemy away from them since 1939.

But those of us who are left know them. While to them we are "loathsome toads" and "six bob a day murderers," we have a variety of names to describe them.

And we won't forget!

They won't get the opportunity to stab Australia in the back as they did the workers of Germany and the democrats of Spain.

We'll see to that.

The average Aussie gets sick at heart when he thinks of the fellows who won't be back, and contrasts them with this band of squibs who did everything to sabotage our war effort until it suited them, and are now reaping all sorts of advantages from a post of patriotism.

American Army authorities were so impressed with the blood bank service of the Red Cross and the Australian Army in New Guinea that some months ago they asked for the service to be extended to the U.S. Forces. This request was gladly granted.

TOWN COUNCIL

METHOD OF PUMPING WATER

Additional Machinery at Power House

A special meeting of the Council was held on Friday night last. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. R. Tudman, the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson), Mr. Claperson (electric engineer representing Mr. A. E. Axon), and Mr. Fenwick (water engineer representing Mr. W. J. Reinhold).

PUMPING.

The business of the meeting was to discuss the question of the most economic method of pumping water to the town from the new Boyne River scheme, and the need for considering the advisability of installing additional machinery at the Power House so as to cope with the increased demand that will be made upon the plant immediately the war is over.

THREE POINTS.

A lengthy discussion took place on the question of:—

(1) Steam pumping plant at the Boyne River.'

(2) Suction gas pumping plant at the Boyne River.

(3) Electric pumping from the Power House.

NOT ENTERTAINED.

The engineers contended that pumping by steam would cost approximately 9d per thousand gallons, and therefore could not be entertained.

SUCTION GAS.

On the question of items Nos. 2 and 3 there was very little difference in the capital outlay for suction gas, the cost being £12,750 against £13 200 for electric plant, the cost per thousand gallons pumped being 6.14 pence and 6.9 pence respectively. The latter cost is based on the supply of electrical energy at 1½d. which in the opinion of the aldermen was on the low side.

ADDITIONAL MACHINERY.

It was pointed out by Mr. Phillips, manager of the Power House, that even now they were in a position to pump electrically from the Power House after the peak load at night, and the installation of additional machinery at the Power House was for the growing needs of the town.

DECISION DEFERRED.

The Council deferred making a decision until the Government Engineer had been interviewed on several aspects of the proposal, which seemed at variance in the different propositions.

600 H.P. OIL ENGINE.

On the question of plant for the Power House, the engineers were instructed to consult with the authorities as to when a 600 h.p. oil engine would be available for Gladstone.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

A monthly average of 1,000,000 tons of merchant shipping has been repaired and maintained in Australian ports since the introduction ten months ago of a co-ordinated plan for merchant and naval ship repairs.

HOSPITAL CONTRIBUTIONS

GOVERNMENT'S RELIEF SCHEME

Town Council and Shires Benefit

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A.), is in receipt of the following letter from the Minister for Health and Home Affairs (Mr. E. M. Hanlon), relative to the State Government's proposed legislation in order to give relief in the matter of hospital contributions throughout Queensland, which in the case of the component local authority bodies in respect to the Gladstone Hospital district will amount to an annual saving of approximately £1144.

MR. HANLON'S LETTER.

"With reference to your discussions with me from time to time on the question of the Government relieving the local authorities whose areas are in hospital districts of part of their statutory contribution of 40 per cent to hospitals boards under the Hospitals Act, I desire to inform you that cabinet has reviewed the position and has decided to recommend that as from 1st July, 1943, the contribution of the local authority to the hospital authority be reduced from 40 per cent to 25 per cent.

"The Government will, of course, become responsible for the 15 per cent of which the local authority will be relieved, making the Government's contribution 75 per cent.

"The necessary legislation will be prepared for presentation to the next session of Parliament, and the hospitals boards will be requested to prepare their budgets for 1943-44 upon the new financial basis.

AMOUNTS TO BE SAVED.

In reply to his request to be supplied with particulars relative to the amounts to be saved to the Gladstone Town Council and the Calliope and Miriam Vale Shire Councils separately, Mr. Williams has received the following additional reply:—

"Referring to your inquiries concerning the saving to local authorities in the Gladstone hospitals district under the proposed new financial allocation, I have to advise that the saving to the component local authorities based on last year's precepts will be £1144.

"The saving to the Gladstone town, Calliope shire, and Miriam Vale shire being approximately £174, £543, and £427 respectively.

"The local authority precept for the year 1942-1943 was £2.966, equal to a rate of 1.01 in the £ for the year.

"Under the new allocation the charge on the component local authorities would be £1822, equal to a rate of .62 for the area.

COST OF £2000.

On the motion of Mr. Corr, seconded by Mr. Wilson, it was decided to adopt the report, and the statement made by the delegates from the Hospitals Board that they had agreed to an offer of a new building being provided at a cost of approximately £2000, such building to be capable of additions.

VARIATION IN NURSES' AWARD.

The Secretary stated that he had spoken to Mr. Coll, of the Department of Health and Home Affairs, regarding what appeared to be anomalies in the definitions in the proposed claim, and Mr. Coll had informed him that the Public Service Commissioner would be attending to the matter.

The Secretary's action was endorsed.

VISITING OPTOMETRIST.

The Secretary stated, in reply to a question, that the free optical service only applied to those people who were preared to accept a certain type of frame for their glasses, and in many cases the patients were advised that the standard frames were not suitable, and as a consequence the patients had to enter into a private contract with the optician for a more expensive type of frame.

The Chairman and Secretary were instructed to interview Mr. Henderson's representative on the question of these additional charges.

DENTAL CLINIC.

The reports from the Matrons of both hospitals, Medical Officer, Secretary and Finance Committee were received, and matters arising out of same were dealt with.

The Chairman and Secretary were appointed to interview Mr. F. M. Forde regarding the Board's inability to secure the services of a dentist. This was moved by Mr. Power and seconded by Mr. O'Reilly.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The Secretary (Mr. J. Burrows) reported as follows:—

Since last meeting the following matters have received attention:—

'BUS SERVICE.

The proprietor stated that he was very hopeful about securing a new 'bus, and promised to give the Hospital run every consideration as soon as he secured this vehicle, but with his present plant he could not offer any relief.

LAUNDRY.

A further inspection has been made by some members of the Board, and the Department of Health and Home Affairs has been communicated with on two occasions with a view to expediting the visit of the engineer. In the meantime the boiler has been slightly improved by inserting a longer copper coil, and an additional laundress has been engaged.

DENTIST.

The Department of Health and Home Affairs was not very hopeful about securing a dentist. This matter is serious, and Dr. Skinner informs me that the number of children he examines with faulty teeth is alarming. I understand that although it was asked, no dentist has attended the local school this year. In my opinion the seriousness of the position should be brought under the notice of the Federal Government.

OUTSTANDING FEES.

I have not had the time, owing to the end of the financial year, to go into this question with the chairman, but our solicitors report progress with those already in their hands.

NURSES' EXAMINATION.

These were conducted this week, and thanks are due to the following for acting as supervisors: Rev. Phillipson, Rev. Father Cullen, Rev. Father McSherry, Mr. J. R. Wilson, and Mr. W. Collins.

BOILER STACK.

STAFF.

Sister Cox, who is on holidays, asked for extra leave, and as a relieving sister was available, this was granted.

Matron requested that an additional trainee nurse be put on, as the present staff is only sufficient when things are normal.

STAFF ACCOMMODATION.

The domestic quarters are overcrowded, and are not satisfactory in other respects. It was suggested that you consider building new quarters.

The report was adopted.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

The Finance Committee reported that the following accounts had been paid in accordance with authority received at last meeting owing to the close of the financial year:—Administration £80/12/8, Gladstone £1366/15/7, Many Peaks £30/10/11, total £1477/19/2.

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB

Battle Stations Appeal

At a meeting of the Gladstone Golf Club Committee last week-end it was decided to hold a Canadian mixed foursomes competition on the links next Sunday, the whole of the proceeds to go to the Comforts Fund Battle Stations appeal.

It was at first agreed that the amount should be divided between the P.O.W. and Battle Stations funds, but the Red Cross representatives generously stood aside on account of it being Patriotic Fund month.

Mr. H. C. Moore has donated two handsome trophies for the winners of the event, and there is sure to be a very large field.

The associates will provide cold luncheon and refreshments at the club house at 12.30 p.m., so that an early start can be made with the fixture.

Members and associates are asked to select their own partners, and hand the names in to the Secretary or members of the committee not later than to-morrow (Thursday), so that the draw can be published on Saturday.

Next Saturday play will be a stroke round for Mr. Jim O'Donnell's (vice-president) trophy.

ECLECTIC COMPETITION.

Harold O'Sing, with a splendid round of 79, including a 38 over the first nine, led the eclectic field on Saturday. His nett 63 earned a reduction of two strokes by the handicapper. Captain Peardon was second with (82) 68, R. Ellis (87) 70, and H. C. Moore (88) 74.

ASSOCIATES TIE.

There was a tie in the Jones Cup, when Mesdames Starmer and Moore each returned cards of 34 nett. Other scores were Mrs. Easterby 37, Mrs. O'Sing (who had the best gross) 38, and Mrs. O'Donnell 41.

On Sunday the associates played a round for the associate delegate's trophy.

Mrs. Fitzgerald led with 33 from Mrs. Starmer 34, Miss L. Burrows 35, Mrs. O'Sing (46) 37, Mrs. Easterby 37, Mrs. Moore 39, and Mrs. O'Donnell 41.

FOUR BALL BEST BALL.

Again there was some splendid golf in the four ball best ball for the Cullen trophy. H. C. Moore and R. F. Power combining well, handed in a card of 4 up to lead the field. No other pair beat bogey.

J. Fitzgerald and L. Collins were 3 down, H. O'Sing and M. Clifford also 3 down, D. Connellan and D. R. Joyce 4 down, and F. Peardon and J. Bliss 5 down.

The Moore-Power combination now lead in the event with a total of 7 up.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Nurse Daisy Lone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lone, is spending a vacation with her parents. Miss Lone is nursing at the Brisbane General Hospital.

Misses Lorraine and Audrey Taylor, of the Q.N. Bank, Gladstone, were passengers on last Saturday's Brisbane mail, the former to spend a holiday with her aunt, Mrs. C. D. O'Bryen, Union Bank, Toowoomba, and the latter to return to St. Margaret's C. of E. Girls' School.

CORRESPONDENCE

(We do not necessarily identify ourselves with the views expressed by correspondents.)

ELECTION PROMISES.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—Appearing in your issue of July 14 is an article headed, "Promises! Promises!" which, because of its deliberate incompleteness, calls for some criticism. It is unfortunate that you should consider it necessary to use so much valuable space, and endeavour to confuse your readers with such a carefully cut article.

It is quite true, Mr. Editor, that prominent Labour Ministers have made statements which have included "promises" you mention. If you will allow me a little of your valuable space I produce the following facts, which will assist your readers to understand some of the positive achievements of Federal Government under Mr. Curtin's administration. Here is a contrast which your article very carefully failed to mention, particularly fact No. 1. That under the Curtin Government strikes were reduced to 16 per cent of what they were under the Fadden Government, and by 42 per cent of what occurred under the rule of Mr. Menzies.

The position of soldiers too is better under Mr. Curtin than under the U.A.P.-U.C.P.

A soldier with a wife was £2/9/- under U.A.P. and £2/19/6 under Mr. Curtin.

A soldier with a wife and one child was £3/10/- and £4/11/-

A soldier with a wife and two children £4/7/6 and £5/12/-

A soldier with a wife and three children £4/18/- and £6/6/-

That, Mr. Editor, is very briefly some of the reasons why Australia today is in a much better position for her war effort than she was during the reign of U.A.P.-U.C.P. reaction. What is more, C.C. Corp workers' memories are not so short that they cannot recall that these "pig iron" parties advocated that C.C.C. workers should be paid at soldiers' rates of pay and work under military conditions. This would allow the bosses to smash trade union conditions. The Curtin Government rejected this, and gave C.C.C. workers award rates of pay, and preserved trade union conditions.

POSITION OF FARMERS.

Your article further forgot to mention the position of farmers and other rural workers. For nigh on 12 long years U.A.P. administration did just nothing to relieve the crises in agriculture. Despite years of agitation, wheat-growers failed to secure a guarantee of 4/- per bushel for the first 3000 bushels.

The dairying boom collapsed shortly after the last war. For 20 years dairy farmers have been enduring a crises.

The yearly subsidy of 6½ million granted to the industry by the Curtin Ministry gives them security for the first time in 20 years.

Thousands of small wool growers also benefit by the increase of 2d per lb. in wool, which was secured by the Labour Government. The significance of all this will not be lost on the farmers, and the widespread swing to Labour at the last elections reveals that farmers have at last abandoned the reactionary U.A.P.-U.C.P.

Yes, Mr. Editor, the general elections will take place on August 21. The forthcoming elections will see a far wider support for Labour.

Reactionary propaganda will fail to confuse the broad mass of farmers, who now realise that a Labour Government, particularly one enjoying the united support of the industrial wing, can and will, do much to improve the position of the smaller farmers in particular.

Trusting that my letter will receive space in your valuable journal, yours, etc.,

MERV. THOMPSON.

262 CASES ATTENDED

956 Miles Travelled

At the last monthly meeting of the Brigade there were present: The Chairman (Mr. A. T. Power), and Messrs. W. O'Reilly, W. Ross, A. S. Fry, H. H. Ballantine, J. F. Clayton, W. V. Coase (secretary).

SYMPATHY EXPRESSED.

Before commencing the meeting the Chairman referred in suitable terms to the death of Hon. Bearer Ivan Hixon, who had died of burns while on active service. The Brigade had lost, he said, a good lad, and he regretted his passing very much.

All members present stood in silence for one minute.

It was decided that a letter of sympathy be sent to the parents.

GENERAL.

It was decided that the Superintendent's annual leave be granted, and that suitable arrangements be made for a relieving staff.

The balance sheet for the year ended June 3?, 1943, was received and adopted.

The budget for 1943-44 was approved of.

A vote of thanks was passed to all subscribers during the month.

The Chairman said Mr. Fry and himself had been invited to take the position of selling tickets at the dance held by the Buffalo Lodge, Gladstone No 197, when the profit was equally divided between the Ambulance and Red Shield.

Mr. Power then moved that a letter be sent to the Lodge, expressing the thanks and appreciation of the courtesy shown to Mr. Fry and himself at the dance by Messrs. A. Hopper, J. J. Lyons, R. Darling, and the committee.

The motion was seconded by Mr. O'Reilly and carried.

Accounts amounting to £78/3/11 were passed for payment.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

Superintendent Coase reported as follows:—

During the month of June the Brigade attended 68 accidents, 170 transports, 24 office cases, total 262.

The cars visited the following places and travelled 956 miles:— Meatworks (5), Benaraby, Nagoorin, Wietalaba, Calliope Station, Ubobo, Calliope Road, Calliope, and Benaraby.

TEN PLAIN FACTS about VD Venereal Diseases

"It is very important under present conditions that the public should know of the existence of venereal diseases; their prevalence in war-time; how they are caused; the urgent necessity for early treatment; and where advice and treatment can be obtained."—THE BRITISH MINISTRY OF HEALTH.

1. Venereal Diseases have increased since the war and are still increasing; many new cases are now occurring yearly among civilians alone. Venereal diseases cause much misery. They bring tragedy into many homes, and considerably damage our war effort by causing reduced efficiency and wasted hours.

2. Ignorance and secrecy are highly dangerous. Only from a plain and frank statement of the facts can we all know what these diseases are, how they are spread, how they can be avoided and how and where they can be cured.

3. The two principal venereal diseases are syphilis and gonorrhœa. They are caused by quite different living organisms or germs.

4. Syphilis is a dangerous, a killing disease. If not treated early and thoroughly by a doctor it can cause serious mutilation, heart disease, paralysis, and insanity, any of which may be fatal. Syphilis can be passed on to an unborn child from its mother and (unless skilled treatment is given early in pregnancy) is one of the causes of blindness, deafness, and mental defects.

5. Gonorrhœa, though not so dangerous to life, is more serious than is generally believed, and is one of the causes of arthritis, sterility, and chronic ill-health.

6. Syphilis and gonorrhœa are almost always contracted through intercourse with an infected person. The germs of these diseases quickly die outside the human body. In practice, therefore, there is no need to fear their spread by accidental infection.

7. Professional prostitutes are not the only source of infection. Any free-and-easy sex behaviour must mean a risk of infection and cannot be made safe. Clean living is the only way to escape infection—abstinence is not harmful.

8. Venereal diseases can be cured if treated early by a doctor. Advice and treatment are available in Brisbane for the purpose and at Public Hospitals throughout the State. Treatment is confidential and effective. Any family doctor will give the address of the nearest clinic. Quack treatment or self-treatment is absolutely useless and may even be disastrous.

9. Disappearance of the early symptoms does not necessarily mean that the patient has been cured. It is essential to continue the treatment until the doctor says it may be stopped.

10. Anyone who has the slightest reason to suspect infection should seek medical treatment AT ONCE. A doctor or clinic or public hospital should be consulted immediately about any suspicious sore or unusual discharge. It may not be venereal disease, but it is best to be sure. These are the signs. The first sign of syphilis is a small ulcer. It appears from 10 to 90 days after infection; usually about three weeks. Gonorrhœa first shows itself as a discharge which usually appears from 2 to 10 days after infection.

PLAY FAIR
with fellow citizens

A programme for Australians who hope for a better to-morrow

- Play fair with fellow citizens (in and out of the Services) by buying war bonds, digging a little deeper every now and again to buy an extra one; this, to lift our share of the load and to ward off Inflation.
- Play fair by avoiding waste in administration, at work, and in our domestic affairs; this to reduce the burden of the cost of the war.
- Play fair by avoiding unnecessary or excessive absence from work and by doing our utmost when at work.
- Play fair by remembering that this is a total war that calls for a total effort by all of us.
- Play fair by seeking to understand the grave financial and economic problems of the times so that we may exercise our rights wisely.
- Play fair by arranging with the A.M.P. for the security of our families, and the comfort of our old age, instead of leaving the responsibility to the community which is already heavily burdened.

VICTORY SHIPS

A New Science

Allied public imagination has been captured by the "Victory" ships—their symbolic name, their speed of production, and more particularly because of the fact that they are welded and not riveted. Actually, the first ship designed for welding was launched a couple of years before the war, when the tanker J.W. Van Dyke of 18,105 tons, was launched by the Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company of America.

Welding has only developed from a process not much better than soldering into an exact science during the last few years, and now steel men are regarding it as science's most versatile and promising tool. Great things are expected of it after the war, when its new-found power can be turned to use in peace-time industries, manufacturing welded motor cars, prefabricated buildings and homes.

One of the biggest triumphs for modern welding is its conquest of armour plating, formerly a welder's headache with its toughness and lack of elasticity, which couldn't withstand the stresses set up by gun fire or the impact of projectiles. Now armour plating is being successfully welded with seams of ductile stainless steel to cushion the plates in the same way as rubber seals cushion shatterproof glass in a car body.

This development is likely to be of great value to Australia, as it is only during this war that armour plating has been manufactured in Australia by the Broken Hill Proprietary Steelworks. This armour plating has played its part in Australia's first mass production enterprise—the manufacture of universal carriers for the fighting forces. Every advancement in welding now will help Australia keep her newly won place as an industrial force.

USE OF FLANNELETTE.

The Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. B. Cumming) said that misconceptions have arisen concerning the effect of a new order issued by the Rationing Commission and restricting the use of flannelette. The order deals only with white and cream flannelette in widths from 27 to 32 inches, and requires that this flannelette can be used only for making up napkins. The order does not restrict the use, making up, or sale of striped flannelette in widths outside the range of 27 to 32 inches.

WATERPROOF CLOTHING AND FOOTWEAR.

The Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming) said that employers must collect coupons for waterproof clothing or footwear issued to employees under an award or by established custom. Although this ruling has applied since June 5 last, some employers have not yet collected coupons for these garments issued to employees, he said. The coupons collected must be returned to the Rationing Commission and a coupons permit to make replacements will be issued. Before June 5 persons purchasing waterproof clothing or footwear directly from stores were required to surrender coupons whilst employees receiving these garments from employers obtained them coupon free. As this was obviously an anomaly it was decided to make both cases subject to coupon surrender.

GOOD HOUSING

National Business

The sub-standard housing area with its inadequate sanitation and drainage is a continual menace to the public health of the whole community.

This was the main theme of the report to the Commonwealth Housing Commission by the Sydney Metropolitan Medical Officer, Dr. J. Grahame Drew, recently. Dr. Drew made particular reference to tuberculosis, infantile mortality caused by dysentery, and prevalence of V.D. where sanitary housing is lacking.

He pointed out that an epidemic with its source in a slum area claimed more victims outside the slum than in it. Probably this tendency was due to slum dwellers being better able to resist disease because of their long and continual proximity to germs.

Thus sub-standard housing, with its need for expensive social services, imposes not only a financial burden on the community, but is a real danger to general health.

Dr. Drew favoured the creation of a Central Planning Authority for the whole State, but suggested that existing organisations be used rather than new ones set up. Among the principles he laid down for any new housing policy were fixed standards for every dwelling both for construction and domestic equipment. He considered provision of the best kitchen appliances for every home, no matter how poor, would be a sound communal investment.

ECONOMIC SECURITY.

One of the chief conclusions in Dr. Drew's evidence was that housing and economic needs are so inter-related that if the purchasing of homes be made easier for individual ownership and families be made economically secure, automatic increase in population will follow.

He preferred private ownership, but maintained that multi-unit houses must be produced and maintained on a rental basis. These flats should occupy only a quarter of the land and no more than 40 to 50 flats to the acre should be permitted. He thought it essential that city and suburban areas be zoned, and that in any scheme of planned communities, playing fields, health centres, and communal laundries should be provided. Canteens should be established whereever possible in industrial works.

The effect of Dr. Drew's report was that sub-standard housing drags down both the physical and mental health of a nation. The planning of standard dwellings would be a saving in the national budget.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

from the manufacturers of

UNCLE TOBY'S OATS

If you are finding that your grocer is sometimes unable to supply Uncle Toby's Oats just when you need it, please understand that it is because of circumstances over which he has no control. Actually, the reason is a simple one, and a common one nowadays. Firstly the needs of the fighting forces have priority — and rightly so.

Secondly there are the combined problems of manpower and deliveries, which make it impossible to maintain normal peace time civilian supplies in the grocers' shops.

However, civilian supplies of Uncle Toby's Oats are only slightly affected—and if your grocer hasn't any stocks to-day, he will have in a day or two.

Remember, there is no shortage of Uncle Toby's Oats—it's just a matter of transport and delivery to your grocer, and as we said before, if he hasn't any stocks today—he will have in a day or two.

MR. F. M. FORDE AT GLADSTONE

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME AND BURNETT RAILWAY

ACTIVITIES OF CURTIN GOVERNMENT OUTLINED

The Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde), who is again the selected Labour candidate for Capricornia, in an address in the Embassy Theatre on Monday night, gave an outline of the activities of the Curtin Government since they had been in office as the Federal Government. He outlined the Government's war record, stressing that this election would be fought mainly on the big questions of the prosecution of the war and post-war reconstruction.

CAMPAIGN OPENED.

Mr. Forde said that he had opened his election campaign in Rockhampton on Friday night last, and had then addressed meetings at Wowan, Biloela, Thangool, and Theodore. The indications were, he said, that he was going to retain the Capricornia seat by a large majority, because the people appreciated the war effort of the Curtin Government. It was his opinion that Senators Collings, Brown and Courtice, the three Labour Senate candidates for Queensland, would all be returned. Each of these Senators had carried out capably the varied and responsible tasks allotted to them.

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME AND BURNETT RAILWAY.

Mr. Forde, who was congratulated by the chairman of the meeting, Mr. W. O'Reilly, for the part he had played in securing a grant of £10,000 for the Boyne River water supply scheme from the Commonwealth Government, said that his association with Gladstone dated back to the days when he was a member of the Queensland Parliament, when he first associated himself with closer settlement and other progressive schemes. He was among the foremost who had advocated building the railway over the Dawes Range, which had resulted in the opening up of a large area and the settling of 8000 to 10 000 people in the Northern Burnett. This was a big scheme, he said, which had resulted in closer settlement, and from which area the produce was largely sent through Gladstone.

HIGHWAYS TO GLADSTONE.

Mr. Forde said that he had travelled to Gladstone from Theodore and Biloela, following for the greater part of the way the highways constructed and being constructed by the Civil Construction Corps established by the Curtin Government. One often heard aspersions being cast upon the C.C.C., but the fact was that this body of 50 000 civilians was doing a magnificent job throughout Australia. Anyone who saw their work could not help being filled with admiration.

DEFENCE WORKS.

The C.C.C., which had been brought into being by the Curtin Government had already carried out £82,000,000 worth of defence works in Australia including great aerodromes and landing strips from which the world's most modern bombers were hammering the Japs and from which fighters were going up to engage enemy Zeros in defence of Australian soil. The expenditure by the Government in Queensland to-day was at the rate of £2,000 000 a month, and in addition thousands of miles of roads, as well as port and other shipping facilities had been constructed by the C.C.C. throughout this country. It had fallen to his lot, said Mr. Forde, as Minister for the Army to approve of thousands of pounds worth of roads in his own electorate of Capricornia.

IN QUEENSLAND.

Speaking on defence preparations in Queensland, Mr. Forde said that the Department of the Army alone in the last twelve months had spent a sum of £45,000,000 in Queensland, as against £2,000,000 spent by the Menzies-Fadden Government in the year 1940-41. It was no wonder that right up through Queensland there was a greater feeling of confidence and greater prosperity now than ever before. A total of £93,000,000 had been spent on war works in Queensland in the last twelve months as against £9,000,000 in the year 1940-41. The Curtin Government was thus spending ten times as much on defence in Queensland as the previous Government.

A £10,000 GRANT.

Mr. Forde went on to say that recently when he was in Gladstone he received a deputation which impressed on him the urgency of providing a water supply scheme, and as a result the work had been given an A2 priority, and a £10,000 grant had been made to the Gladstone Town Council towards the cost by the Federal Government. He had been able to assist the claim upon the Commonwealth Government for financial assistance, because the scheme would be of value for defence when completed, and it would also fill an urgent need for the civil population. Electors of Gladstone would also remember that he had been responsible in obtaining for them their new Post Office.

MR. F. M. FORDE
(Minister for the Army).

POST-WAR RECONSTRUCTION.

Post-war reconstruction in Australia was engaging the Government's urgent attention, continued Mr. Forde. A Minister for Post-war Reconstruction had been appointed, and plans now being worked out would come to fruition in the next term of the Federal Parliament if Labour was returned to office—and returned they would be with a considerable majority. The Labour Party believed in a stocktaking now, and not in leaving reforms until after the war. There would be chaos if plans were not solidly laid during the war. The Curtin Government was pledged to see that soldiers coming back from the war, and the workers being transferred from munition works when these were no longer necessary, would not face hardships and poverty because of unemployment as after the last war. The money could be found for war purposes, and it would be found for reconstruction after the war. The Government was taking a realistic view of all problems and believed in long range planning, and this planning was now being undertaken.

RECORD OF UNITY.

Mr. Forde then emphasised that the electors could not have confidence in the opposition parties, because when they were the Government they had a discreditable record of bickering, quarrelling and intrigue, which had prevented even Ministers in the Menzies-Fadden Government administration from concentrating on their jobs. On the other hand, the Federal Labour Party had a record of unity and singleness of purpose, which had enable it to get on with the job of prosecuting the war.

"INTRIGUE AND DISSENTION."

"The Menzies-Fadden Government fell because of intrigue and dissention from within," said Mr. Forde. Although Labour did not have a majority in either House of the Federal Parliament it gave stable government to this country for nearly two years. Here are some of the things that members of the Menzies-Fadden ministries said about one another. They should know one another well enough, because they are members of the parties with the same political ideas, and they worked in the ministries together.

In 1939 Sir Earle Page, then Leader of the United Country Party, said of Mr. Menzies: "The national leader of this country must have courage, judgment and loyalty, but Mr. Menzies does not possess these qualities."

Mr. Archie Cameron, who was Leader of the Country Party and Deputy Prime Minister in the Menzies Government, said when he resigned on October 26, 1940: "I assumed leadership at a time when disruption, doubts and divided counsel ruled the party. I devoted my time for thirteen months to reconciliations, reunions, and endeavouring to produce harmony out of discord. Everlasting intrigue and manoeuvring for personal advantage reached its zenith in the ruptures of the seal of Cabinet secrecy. No party can function if its internal state is a stew of simmering discontent, spiced by insatiable personal ambitions and incurable animosities." That was the view of Mr. Cameron upon his colleagues, and he knew them pretty well, added Mr. Forde.

DEPLORABLE EXHIBITION.

Here are the words in which Mr. W. M. Hughes, Leader of the United Australia Party, described the breakaway National Service Group movement led by Mr. Hughes, a few months ago. Mr. Hughes said in a broadcast on April 6, 1943: "The people looking to the National Parliament to set them an example of that unity without which we cannot win the war, have been treated in the last few days to a deplorable exhibition of intrigue and reckless disregard of national interests calculated to bring into well merited contempt the institutions of democratic Government. Mr. Menzies is the greatest self-seeker, the man behind the scenes in every intrigue; the fountain head of every whispering campaign, the destroyer of unity."

"SHEER HYPOCRISY."

Mr. Forde continued that the Conservative Party leaders who had described one another in the words he had just quoted now were appealing for the formation of a National Government, but it had to be remembered that it was their bickering and wrangling that had brought down the Menzies and Fadden Governments, and, added Mr. Forde, their plea was sheer hypocrisy. If they could not agree amongst themselves, what chance would there be of their giving loyalty and co-operation to a National Government which included members of the Labour Party, whose platform and principles were vastly different from those of the U.A.P. and U.C.P. They realised, said Mr. Forde, that they could not smash Labour at the polls, and they want to disrupt the party by endeavouring to cajole a few of its leading members into joining a National Government and branding the rest of the party as disloyalists.

WAR EFFORT DOUBLED.

In its twenty months of office the Federal Labour Government had doubled the war effort of the previous Governments. It had completely reorganised Australia for war, and in addition had implemented a programme of far-reaching social reform. It had placed on a firm basis a post-war reconstruction scheme which was now being planned.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

ANNUAL MEETING

Mr. Friend Re-elected President

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held on Monday night. Present: The President (Mr. A. H. Friend), and Messrs. A. W. Young, C. Renton, H. H. Whittle, P. M. Jones, and the Secretary (Mr. L. S. Johnston).

ANNUAL REPORT.

The President (Mr. Friend) presented the following annual report:—

During the year under review many matters of vital importance to Gladstone were dealt with.

Most important of all was the resumption of the work on the Biloela-Gladstone highway. Last year, at a moment's notice, all contracts were temporarily held up, and the whole of the plant and men transferred to another road. The Chamber took the matter up immediately with the Minister for the Army and the Queensland Main Roads Commission, with the result that early this year work was again resumed, and it is earnestly hoped that the completion of this most important highway connecting the hinterland of Gladstone with the finest harbour on the Queensland coast will, before the end of the year, be an accomplished fact.

ROAD UNSAFE.

Attention of the authorities has again and again been drawn to the condition of the main highway up the coast between Boyne River and Gladstone, which is a bugbear to motorists, and a disgrace to our State Road Transport Commission. In its present condition it is definitely unsafe for the travelling public, because of its many dangerous blind curves and narrow width. The railway gates at Toolooa, en route, are also a great inconvenience to the travelling public, and very often travellers are held up half an hour at the gates. The Main Roads Commission blames the Railway Department, and the department cannot, or will not, make up its mind what to do about the big bend in the railway track at Toolooa, and so it goes on year by year. Perhaps some dictator will arise one day and see that something is done. In our memory the Chamber has been corresponding with either the Main Roads or the Railway Department for the last ten to twenty years without any sign of success.

RAILWAY YARD.

The railway yard, etc., at Gladstone is another matter on which we cannot congratulate the railway authorities. Before the war, owing to increased traffic, due to heavy log timber from the Boyne Valley, increased coal and live stock deliveries to the Gladstone Meatworks, plus the natural increase in trade inwards and outwards to Gladstone, to meet the requirements of increased population over the last ten years, the railway yards; in fact the whole lay-out of the station yard, offices, and refreshment room accommodation, are much overdue for expansion and readjustment. Since the outbreak of war, and the consequent heavy increase of traffic, the position has become almost intolerable for the staff and public, but how much it has meant to the slowing down of the war effort one can hardly estimate.

"RED TAPE RESPONSES."

In spite of all this, the Chamber's repeated representations for increased accommodation have been met with the usual departmental red tape responses, and we still muddle on with the old station facilities, which are expected to accommodate an increase of traffic, which at a guess, would doubtless show anything up to a 500 per cent increase. Is it any wonder the railways show a huge profit?

MANPOWER.

Manpower authorities have done many things that have been difficult for the layman to understand, but when they left Gladstone without one fully equipped motor garage, the owners of motor cars and vehicles in town and district were left speechless. The Chamber strongly supported a protest by the Town Authorities at the time, but to no avail. The consequence is that primary producers and food distributors, and other important national works, are seriously threatened at the present time.

NEW COURT HOUSE.

The new Court House in Yaroon Street is not only a great convenience to all who have business to do with the Clerk of Petty Sessions, the Land Agent, the Dairy Inspector, and the Police, but the building from an architectural point of view takes second place to no public building in Gladstone, of which we have some already that the town is well proud. It certainly adds to the stability and prestige of Gladstone.

BROWN-OUT REGULATIONS.

The brown-out regulations were considered by the Chamber too drastic, and very unfairly administered, but our representations fell on deaf ears. There is still no definite ruling about window lighting, although other lighting restrictions have been lifted, provided lights are not facing seawards. All the time Gladstone was in darkness Cape Capricorn and Bustard Head lights shone out to sea every night for a distance of at least 50 to 100 miles.

COMMENTS.

The Chamber during the year dealt more successfully with many other matters of interest affecting the progress and importance of the town of Gladstone, such as Police Creek and Brifney bridges, Barney Point improvements, coin shortage, dog menace, deck cargo accommodation, flying boat mail service, train services, mail service Thursdays, water facilities, Flinders Parade.

Congratulations to the Town Council on the prospects of an adequate water supply in the near future for Gladstone, and the Harbour Board on the proposed improvements and extensions on the war front.

Thanks to our war leaders and the wonderful fighting spirit of Britain, and the fighting men of the United Nations, the global war position is vastly in our favour compared with twelve months ago, and I trust before the next annual meeting of the Chamber we will meet once again under peace conditions, with total victory for the United Nations.

Our thanks is due to the consideration and prompt attention to all requests submitted to both our Federal representative (Mr. F. M. Forde, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for the Army) and our State member, the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams), and the Press.

The report was adopted.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—

President, Mr. A. H. Friend; vice-president, M. P. M. Jones; treasurer, Mr. W. H. Hall; committee, Messrs. C. N. Joseph, A. E. Taylor, A. W. Young, C. Renton, C. Bycroft, and H. H. Whittle.

GENERAL.

The President (Mr. Friend) and Messrs. C. N. Joseph and L. S. Johnston were appointed the Chamber's representatives on the aerodrome deputation to the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde).

OBITUARY

MR. J. LONG.

Another old pioneer in the person of Mr. Jeremiah Long, of "Brooklyn," Calliope, passed away at the Gladstone District Hospital on Thursday after a short illness.

Deceased, who was 84 years of age, was well known and highly respected. He was a native of Ireland, and was born in County Cork, and arrived in Australia with his parents when a boy of six years.

After attending school in Brisbane he joined his father in his boot and shoemaking business, and subsequently joined the firm of Messrs. Cobb & Co., driving one of the coaches on the passenger and mail run between Brisbane and Beaudesert for some years.

Later he followed droving, which took him over the greater part of Queensland. After selecting land in the Calliope district he conducted the mail run from Gladstone to Kroombit, and retired about 15 years ago to his property, "Brooklyn," where he resided right up to the time of his death. His wife predeceased him some five years ago.

Deceased leaves five sons and four daughters—Frederick Edmond (Dayboro), Jeremiah Ernest (Nagoorin), Phillip Lehr (Calliope), Francis Henery (Dayboro), Herbert Arthur (Caulfield), and Mrs. A. Cunning (Emerald), Mrs. R. Staddon (Sydney), Mrs. R. Austin (Brisbane), Mrs. F. Murphy (Mt. Larcom).

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at Calliope, the Rev. Father McSherry officiating at the graveside.

The following additional cattle and donations have been donated by residents of the Calliope Valley in connection with the Patriotic Comforts Fund drive:—Galloway Plains Pastoral Co. 3 fat cows; H. N. Ballantine, 3 cows; G. H. Potter, E Liddell & Son, and J. H. Thomson, one cow each; Armour Bros. 2 cows; P. A. Friend, 1 bullock. Donations: E. P. Colyer £10, D. E. Stirrat £5, Messrs. 'DROME FOR GLADSTONE ADVOCATED

DEPUTATION PUTS CASE FOR CONSTRUCTION

MR. FORDE WILL HAVE PROPOSAL RECONSIDERED

At the last fortnightly meeting of the Town Council the Chairman of the Works Committee (Ald. W. R. Golding) reported that in company with Surveyor Murray he had inspected two sites for an aerodrome near Beecher, where a runway of 6000 feet could be obtained running south-east to north-west, with a runway in a northerly direction of about 3000 feet. Mr. Murray was greatly impressed, he said, and suggested that a contour survey be carried out. The site, which is on private property, is situated in the Calliope Shire area.

DEPUTATION.

Following on Ald. Golding's report, opportunity was taken of the visit of the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) to wait on him and stress the urgent necessity of having an aerodrome established. The deputation consisted of the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. R. Tudman, Mr. H. H. Whittle (clerk of the Calliope Shire Council), the President of the Chamber of Commerce (Mr. A. H. Friend), Mr. C. N. Joseph (Chamber of Commerce), Mr. L. S. Johnston (secretary) and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson).

A NEW SITE.

The Mayor (Ald. Dennis), after extending a hearty welcome to the Minister, said that the deputation had been arranged to put before him the case for the building of an aerodrome on a new site about five miles from Gladstone. He said this was an old question which had been put before Mr. Forde on several occasions. The areas proposed as aerodrome sites previously had been found to be too small. Since then, however, the local bodies had made further progress. Several inspections had been made of the new area in the vicinity of Gladstone, and which was now considered to be most suitable. He added, he wished to thank Mr. Forde for the assistance he had given towards securing the grant of £10,000 for the new water supply scheme and the priority for the work.

ECONOMICALLY CONSTRUCTED.

The Clerk of the Calliope Shire Council (Mr. Whittle) apologised for the absence of the Chairman (Cr. W. Beak), who was unable to be present. Mr. Whittle then presented Mr. Forde with a letter and a map showing the site of the proposed strips near the Beecher Railway Station, on the Boyne Valley railway line. It was further stated that as the country was fairly level it would appear that the landing strips could be very economically constructed. The members of the deputation would speak on the importance of a landing ground being provided apart from its defence value and post-war civil aviation for the residents of the Shire of Calliope and the town of Gladstone, numbering some 9000 people. The two local authorities, the Gladstone Town Council and the Calliope Shire Council, earnestly desired that Mr. Forde should make representations to the Federal Minister controlling such activities to have the site inspected by an officer, and if found suitable, to have the construction work carried out at the earliest date possible.

PLEASED WITH PRESENT SITE.

Ald. Golding said he would like to impress on Mr. Forde the earnestness with which the deputation viewed the proposal for the establishment of an aerodrome at Gladstone. It was realised, he said, that after the war any town which did not have an aerodrome would not make any real progress, and an aerodrome was therefore necessary for the progress of Gladstone. This was the fourth time the Town Council and the Calliope Shire Council had endeavoured to find a suitable site. Three sites had been examined previously, but had been turned down after inspection, as the areas were too small, but he was more than pleased with the present site than any of the previous ones. The ground was level for more than a mile, and ran in a south-easterly direction, which was the prevailing wind. The deputation would like the Commonwealth Government, said Ald. Golding, to have the site contoured. This question should be looked at from the national point of view, as there must be aerodromes established throughout the important places of Australia.

STRONGLY SUPPORTED.

Mr. Friend said he had never been a member of a deputation in which he was so keen to support than the present one. Speaking for the commercial section of Gladstone, he could say that they were terribly disappointed that the town was not served with an aerodrome, as Gladstone was doing a very important war job, and it was felt that this was not being fully realised. Everything in the town and district was directly concerned with the war effort, and for this reason it was necessary that an aerodrome should be established from which Air Force planes could operate in the defence of the district. The proposal before the Minister had been discussed from every angle, and there was no question as to its suitability. He could not stress too strongly the importance with which the deputation viewed the proposal for an aerodrome. It was necessary that some action should be taken soon, and that the matter should not be left over until after the war.

Mr. Forde: How long is it since the first representations were made for an aerodrome for Gladstone?

Mr. Whittle: Eight to ten years.

Mr. Friend went on to say that he hoped that nothing would delay the beginning of the work. Surely the importance of the town of Gladstone was due for a public work of this nature.

Mr. Forde explained that in selecting sites for aerodromes the Government had to be guided by the advice of its military experts.

Continuing, Mr. Friend said it was essential to have an aerodrome established at Gladstone, and if Mr. Forde would put their representations forward in the right quarter, he (Mr. Friend) felt that something would be done in the matter.

AERODROME NECESSARY.

Mr. Joseph said there was nothing political in the present proposal, and it was merely a coincidence that the deputation was meeting Mr. Forde on the eve of an election. It was felt that the matter was one of national importance. Although Mr. Forde had said, and rightly, that the Government had to be guided by its experts, there was no doubt that local knowledge of the people and the site was very valuable, and should be taken into consideration. The deputation was of the opinion that in addition to the defence aspect the aerodrome would be most important after the war. He felt sure if the proposal was put forward to the authorities it would be fully realised that the building of an aerodrome was necessary, and as far as the Government was concerned, the expenditure would only be a drop in the ocean.

CLEARING COST BE LIGHT.

Mr. Forde: What would it cost to resume the land?

Mr. Whittle said the unimproved capital value of the land was probably 7/- to 8/- an acre, and they had been paying £1 an acre in resuming land for roads. The cost of clearing the site would be very light, and at present the land was being used for dairy cattle, with probably a little cultivation. It was a poor type of country, with some light sandy soil, but had very good natural drainage.

In answer to Mr. Forde, the Mayor (Ald. Dennis) said there would probably be 500 acres to resume.

ASSET TO GLADSTONE.

Ald. Anderson, in supporting the posal for the establishment of an aerodrome, said he regarded the area as being very suitable, and its construction would certainly be a great asset to Gladstone.

MR. FORDE IN REPLY.

Mr. Forde, in reply, said he was glad to have this opportunity of meeting the deputation and discussing the proposal with them. The question was of great importance to Gladstone. Personally, he had always supported the claims made for the establishment of an aerodrome at Gladstone, but so far they had been unsuccessful. He would approach this scheme with the same enthusiasm with which he had assisted the water supply scheme, when he had obtained a grant of 10,000 for the Town Council.

FUTURE FOR GLADSTONE.

Many years ago, continued Mr. Forde, he realised the great importance of the port of Gladstone, and was foremost in his advocacy of many public works, and was of the opinion there was a great future for Gladstone. It had a magnificent harbour, and after the war it would undoubtedly be used again as an important commercial flying boat base. It was a pity that some years ago Gladstone had not constructed a civil aerodrome, because many other Queensland towns which had done this had airports developed by the Royal Australian Air Force.

AIR TRAVEL.

Mr. Forde went on to say that it was true that Gladstone public organisations were now putting forward a better site than those previously considered. As one who realised the value of air travel for one whose duties took him to all parts of the Commonwealth, he agreed that any town of importance which did not have a good aerodrome after the war would be at a considerable disadvantage.

WHOLE-HEARTED SUPPORT.

Mr. Forde assured the deputation that he would give the proposal his whole-hearted support, and would endeavour to have the site considered by the authorities. An aerodrome in Gladstone would be of tremendous importance in the post-war reconstruction period. He had always taken a personal interest in the welfare of the town of Gladstone, and would continue to do this in the future, and would set himself out to help to the very utmost in having the proposal for an aerodrome favourably reconsidered.

IMMEDIATE ACTION TAKEN.

In conclusion, Mr. Forde stated that nothing would give him greater pleasure than to see the aerodrome constructed, and he would immediately send on the representations to the Minister of Air by air mail, also a telegram informing him of the deputation, and would inform the Mayor of any development that took place.

MR. FORDE THANKED.

Mayor Dennis thanked Mr. Forde for receiving the deputation, and Mr. Forde suitably replied.

GLADSTONE AMBULANCE BRIGADE

26th ANNUAL MEETING - £750 IN WAR LOANS

MR. POWER'S RECORD TERM OF CHAIRMANSHIP

The 26th annual meeting of subscribers and contributors to the Gladstone Ambulance Brigade was held in the Ambulance Centre on Thursday night, when there were present: The Chairman (Mr. A. T. Power), and Messrs. P. Hutcheon, A. S. Fry, W. O'Reilly, A. Barker, J. O'Brien, J. H. Wood, G. Curran, and the Secretary (Mr. W. V. Coase).

ANNUAL REPORT.

The Chairman (Mr. Power) presented the following annual report:—

The Brigade started the year with a credit balance of £1859/16/9, and finished with £2271/11/11.

During the year the sum of £500 was invested in war loans, in which up to the present we have invested £750, and hold war savings certificates to the fullest extent.

Subscriptions, donations and entertainments results have increased by £300.

The increase in revenue is due to the industrial activity in the town and district, and the assistance the unions are giving the Brigade is wonderful. Entertainments have been at their peak owing to the increase in poulation.

We have endeavoured to secure a new Ambulance waggon, but up to date have not been successful. It will again be included in the estimates for this year.

While our income is at its peak every effort should be made to continue our efforts, as when the war has been successfully finalised there is sure to be a falling off of industrial activity in the town and district. Therefore, the Brigade appeals for your generous help in the coming year, and thanks all who contributed in the past year.

The Superintendent, Driver Bearer and honorary staff have worked well under difficulties owing to call-ups of honorary bearers.

It is with regret we have to record the death of a member of the honorary staff on active service, Mr. Ivan Hixon. He was a bright member of the Brigade, and will be missed.

The thanks of the Brigade are due to the Ladies' Committee, ably led by the Superintendent's wife (Mrs. W. V. Coase). She has assisted greatly since staff shortage, attending to 'phone calls when there was no one left at the Centre. The Committee appreciates her valuable services.

During the year the Brigade attended 876 accidents, 1856 transports, 329 office cases, making the total number of cases 3061.

Our cars have travelled 11,302 miles. The cost per motor (petrol, oil, tyres, tyre repairs, renovations and insurances) was 4d per mile. The cost per mile in shillings was 1/1 (operating cost divided by motor mileage). The running cost per mile in pence was 4d (actual cost of motor transport travelled). The cost per case in shillings was 7/5 (working expenditure divided by total number of cases, office and transport).

Our plant consists of one 4-cylinder Dodge car, registering 84,437 miles, one 6-cylinder Dodge car, registering 54,774 miles, and one Dodge sedan model, registering 23,832 miles.

We have a good supply of first-aid material.

The staff consists of the Superintendent (who also acts as secretary), one bearer, and eight honorary bearers.

During the year one special and nine ordinary meetings were held, the attendance being as follows:—A. T. Power 10, W. O'Reilly 10, A. S. Fry 9, J. F. Clayton 8, W. Ross 8, H. N. Ballantine 7, Geo. W. Wyatt 5.

The Committee wishes to especially thank all subscribers and contributors during the year; also those who arranged dances, etc., in aid of the Brigade funds. Their action is highly appreciated by the Committee. The publicity given by the "Gladstone Observer" and the Bundaberg "News-Mail" is of great assistance, and tends to help the activities of the Committee, for which they are grateful.

Assistance has been given to the Brigade during the year by the V.A.D.'s, W.N.E.L.'s, Red Cross Emergencies League, which my Committee deeply appreciate.

FINANCIAL POSITION.

The Chairman (Mr. Power), in moving the adoption of the annual report and financial statement, said he thought the Brigade was to be congratulated on its outstanding financial position, which was a credit to all concerned with the welfare of the institution. He had filled the position of chairman for the last eighteen years, he said, and during that time nominations had been called each year to fill the position, but on each occasion he had been returned unopposed, which indeed reflected the confidence of the public in the staff and the committee.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

The report and financial statement, said Mr. Power, spoke for itself, the loyalty of the staff, and the work of the Ladies' Committee, coupled with the support of the public, being responsible for a most successful year.

SERVICE TO PUBLIC.

Some people said the Brigade had a lot of money, but it had to be remembered that Gladstone had reached its peak in industrial activity, as represented in the workers' contributions, and this in turn reflected the service rendered by the Brigade to the public.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE.

He deeply appreciated the support received from the subscribers, but many would remember the bad times they passed through during the years of depression when they had to carry a large overdraft, and he hoped these days would never return again. The financial position was being watched carefully, and they were looking to the future, and in this direction they had invested in war loans a sum of £750, which was gilt edged security.

THANKS EXTENDED.

He extended his best thanks to Mr. Coase, the bearers, Ladies' Committee, and all those who had assisted the Brigade during the year. The Ladies' Committee, under Mrs. Coase, had played their part well, while Mrs. Coase had saved the Brigade pounds in the work she had rendered, and the committee appreciated the work she had carried out.

CONFIDENCE OF PUBLIC.

Mr. O'Reilly, in seconding the motion of adoption, said he was pleased to be associated with a team that had pulled so well together in putting the institution in the financial position it was to-day, and their thanks were due to everyone who had contributed to the successful year. Excellent service had been rendered by the Brigade, and it was through this magnificent service that the institution retained the confidence of the public.

The motion was then put and carried.

"OBSERVER" THANKED.

The Chairman (Mr. Power) eulogised the services rendered to the Brigade by the "Observer," and considered that a special vote of thanks should be recorded.

Mr. Barker moved that the "Observer" be thanked for the large amount of space given to the activities of the Brigade, which was very much appreciated. Seconded by Mr. O'Brien.

Mr. O'Reilly said he appreciated the space given to the Brigade by the "Observer," which fully realised the magnificent work being carried out.

The motion of thanks to the "Observer" was then put and carried.

RECORD TERM OF OFFICE.

Mr. C. W. Macfarlan suitably acknowledged the vote of thanks, and congratulated the Chairman (Mr. Power) on his record term of office. Mr. Power, he said, had performed outstanding work for the Brigade, and hoped he would be long spared to direct the affairs of the institution in his capacity as chairman.

GENERAL.

Mr. Fry moved that a letter of thanks be sent to the Ladies' Committee for the excellent work it had carried out during the year. Seconded by Mr. O'Reilly and carried.

The Chairman (Mr. Power) moved that this meeting convey to Mrs. Coase its best thanks for the valuable service she had rendered to the Brigade, and added, "Mrs. Coase is a silent worker in the interests of the Brigade." Seconded by Mr. Fry and carried.

Mr. O'Reilly moved a hearty vote of thanks to all subscribers during the year. Seconded by Mr. Fry and carried.

The Chairman (Mr. Power) congratulated the staff for their attendance at the annual meeting, and on behalf of the committee thanked them, as it conveyed a deep interest in the work of the Brigade.

Superintendent Coase suitably replied, and stated there was a good friendship between them all, and he had no difficulty with the staff.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONCERT.

A Sunday School concert, held under the auspices of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, will be held in the Town Hall on Friday, July 30. Tickets are obtainable from the children or at the Manse. Particulars are advertised in to-day's issue.

JUST imagine Australia without its large Factories and Retail Stores—a Country without its Sheep and Cattle—its rich Minerals and Pasture Lands—its many Services and Activities.

While this War is on these are somewhat in the background for your thoughts and ours must first be to Win this War and win it quickly.

By doing so we can look to the Future with confidence.

In the meantime save unnecessary spending and lend your savings to the Nation.

MR. FORDE AT GLADSTONE

prospective Prime Minister in the field. He stood for progressive Government at the head of a party which was pledged to continue an all-in war effort, and the people of Australia could not afford to make a change in these crucial times. Mr. Forde went on to say that he had emphasised these points to show that before the U.A.P.-C.P. could honestly advocate a National Government they must put their own house in order, and at the moment, added Mr. Forde, "their house is in the wildest disorder."

CRITICAL PERIOD.

Mr. Curtin became Prime Minister at the most critical period of Australia's history, when the Commonwealth was in practically a defenceless position. Everyone knew that when the Japs came into the war the door was wide open to them, as it were, to come into Queensland. However, the Federal Labour Government had completely re-organised the defences of Australia until to-day they had an army navy and air force of twice the size it was two years ago. On the other hand, shortly before the Curtin Government assumed office the Minister for the Army in the Menzies Government had stated that the Army was complete and that no more men were required. Within a few months of the Labour Government coming into office 100,000 men were called up for the Army.

MANPOWER.

Mr. Forde said that the Labour Government had established manpower control, and had directed men into the essential industries. Under the Menzies Government there was no manpower control, and men were free to enlist in the Army, and to leave essential industries. Under the Labour Government, men were directed into essential industries, and were not allowed to leave them. Mr. Forde said that the Labour Government had established manpower control, and had directed men into the essential industries. Under the Menzies Government there was no manpower control, and men were free to enlist in the Army, and to leave essential industries. Under the Labour Government, men were directed into essential industries, and were not allowed to leave them.

FINANCE.

Mr. Forde said that the Labour Government had established manpower control, and had directed men into the essential industries. Under the Menzies Government there was no manpower control, and men were free to enlist in the Army, and to leave essential industries. Under the Labour Government, men were directed into essential industries, and were not allowed to leave them. Under the Menzies Government there was no manpower control, and men were free to enlist in the Army, and to leave essential industries. Under the Labour Government, men were directed into essential industries, and were not allowed to leave them.

FIGHTING SERVICES.

The Curtin Government, proceeded Mr. Forde, had made substantial increases in the pay for members of the fighting services. When the Government came into office the ordinary soldier was receiving 5/- a day, but since then the active pay of soldiers had been increased by 10/6 a week. The allowance to his wife was increased by 7/6 a week, and the allowances for the first and second children by 3/6 a week for each child. In addition the War Cabinet recently had decided that an increase of 6d a day proficiency pay be granted to privates subject to good conduct, who had completed six months' service and who demonstrated their efficiency at a prescribed examination. Before Labour took office a soldier with a wife and two children drew £4/4/6 a week, but as a result of the Labour Government's action he now drew £5/12/- a week, plus 5/- child endowment, plus 14/- deferred pay, a total of £6/11/- a week and if he qualified for proficiency pay he would draw £6/14/6 a week.

POST-WAR WORKS

BIG IRRIGATION PROJECTS

Forgotten Women

The Commonwealth Government has prepared a tentative programme of post-war works, including big irrigation projects, extensive sewerage and power schemes, afforestation, and the clearance of slums.

These are all good objects, but not one of them holds out any prospect for the employment of women.

Thousands of women who have been called up for work in factories and essential industries are enjoying financial independence for the first time. Thousands of others have been put into dead-end jobs to help the war effort. There is the making of a first-class problem here, and "playing ostrich" now will only aggravate the position later on.

"It is hard to understand why the Manpower Department is still calling up women," said an executive of a Sydney factory manufacturing war material. "Why haven't they the courage to admit that in reality no more women need be called up? For example, we have put off ten women during the last few days. A munitions annexe near Sydney has recently put off 169 process workers and checkers, and a number of others have been put off from a factory turning out defence and electrical meters. These women have all become accustomed to factory work, and yet, instead of being switched to more necessary jobs, they are put off and new ones called up.

"If only the Manpower Department had the courage to admit that many women could now be released for civilian works!

WIPE OUT DEAD-END JOBS.

"Dead-end jobs are just as demoralising for girls as they are for men, and surely it is infinitely better that a girl should be allowed to train as a milliner or for some other 'unessential' trade than to work as a tea girl in a factory—a job which has no future whatever.

"The Manpower officials are very helpful themselves, but the system is cumbersome and expensive. In our factory, for instance, we have a clerk, typist and junior entirely occupied with clerical work necessitated by Manpower regulations. In normal times, these three would not be on the staff at all. There would be nothing for them to do. Multiply those three by all the other factories and businesses which have had to put on extra staff, and you will still have only one small item in the enormous cost of manpower regulations.

"Now that the manpower position has eased off, private firms would be far better left to handle their own employment as far as women are concerned. So often we've found that totally unsuitable people are sent along by the Manpower authorities, which wastes the applicant's time, our time, and the public's money, for wasted time means higher production costs. The other day, the manpower people sent along a woman for me to interview. She was totally inexperienced in office work, but she expected a senior's pay, and added that she had asked to be sent to us as she had heard that we paid applicants' fees to learn shorthand and typing.

DIFFICULT YEARS AHEAD.

"Private enterprise is going to have as important a job to do for Australia after the war as it has had during the war, and the Government can help the difficult, immediate post-war years by letting us go ahead with choosing the right women for the right job, and by not forcing us to employ women or girls who will never be fully efficient in a war job."

Although they make only a very small part of the cotton goods Australia uses for the war and civil needs, almost the entire output of Australian cotton spinning and weaving mills goes to the services as drill uniforms, shirts, shorts, tents, tyre fabrics and kitbags. They are now weaving 26,000,000 lineal yards of cotton materials yearly. They employ about 7000 Australian men and women.

Fadden's Country Party Disrupted by . . .

Everlasting intrigue
Manoeuvring for personal advantage
Betrayal of Cabinet secrets
Insatiable personal ambitions
Incurable animosities, etc., etc., etc.

MAJOR A. G. CAMERON on the Country Party

When Major A. G. Cameron resigned from the Country Party, he wrote a letter to Mr. Fadden dated 26th October, 1940, in which he said:

"I assumed Leadership at a time when disruption, doubts and divided counsel ruled the party.

"I devoted my time for thirteen months to reconciliations and reunions AND ENDEAVOURING TO PRODUCE HARMONY OUT OF DISCORD.

"Everlasting intrigue and manoeuvring for personal advantage reached its zenith in ruptures of the seal of Cabinet secrecy.

"No party can function if its internal state is a stew of simmering discontent SPICED BY INSATIABLE PERSONAL AMBITIONS AND INCURABLE ANIMOSITIES."

He concluded his letter by saying:

"I trust that it (the Country Party) will soon redeem that unity of purpose and of will that it has lost for so long and which did not materialise to my efforts.

"No leader can lead if he must devote most of his time to outwitting rivals."

Neither the Country Party, United Australia Party, nor the National Service group can compose everlasting quarrels amongst themselves.

They certainly could not govern if elected.

The Labor Party has demonstrated its capacity to govern fearlessly, wisely and well.

EMPLOYING PRISONERS OF WAR.

Farmers who wish to employ prisoners of war are advised by the Director General of Manpower to get in touch with the local National Service Officer and first ascertain whether the district has been constituted a P.O.W. "control centre." If it has, then the applicant farmer should obtain a copy of the conditions attached to such employment. For instance, suitable accommodation must be provided by the employer, who is also responsible within prescribed limits for the custody of the P.O.W. employed. Three is the maximum number that can be employed by an individual farmer, but Mr. Wurth advises farmers wherever possible to employ either two or three rather than a solitary prisoner of war. The society of another P.O.W. will tend ot keep each one more contented. Farmers are required to provide food and accommodation, and to pay Army £1 per week for each P.O.W. employed. Army will subsequently credit each man with an allotment from this sum. Army also provides clothing and medical and other services prescribed by international law.

PATRIOTIC-COMFORTS FUND

BATTLE STATIONS FETE

An Outstanding Success

The battle stations fete, held under the auspices of the Patriotic Comforts Fund, Gladstone branch, was held on Friday, and proved to be no exception to the rule, the function being an outstanding success, all the goods on the four stalls being sold.

MAGNIFICENT DISPLAY.

The display at the various stalls of home-made novelties, produce, home-made sweets, cakes, jams, flowers, was really magnificent and of a high standard of quality, reflecting the greatest credit on all concerned, as it conveyed a convincing tribute of the energy and industry of the ladies of the town and district who so loyally support this organisation.

Two of the stalls were neatly and attractively arranged under canvas in Gondoon Street in the vicinity of the Grand Hotel. The business of buying and selling proceeded briskly, and early in the afternoon the stalls had sold out. It is anticipated the total proceeds will be approximately £400.

CAKE AND JAM STALLS.

The lady supporters of the Funds displayed their culinary art to perfection, as represented in the cake and jam stalls, and the goods were eagerly snapped up the quality being first-class, and showed that long hours of industry and careful concentration were combined to produce such fine articles. No wonder they were disposed of an early hour.

SWEET STALL.

There was a magnificent collection of sweets in the sweet stall, and as was to be expected, met with a ready sale, and the selection and high quality was favourably commented on, and is undoubtedly a tribute to the donors.

FLOWER STALL.

There was a fine display of flowers, and they were readily disposed of.

COMFORTS FOR THE BOYS.

The Chairman of the Patriotic Fund (Mr. W. R. Golding) and the President of the Comforts Fund (Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan) were extremely pleased with the result of the effort, as it once again shows that this organisation has laid a solid foundation in providing comforts for the boys.

EXCELLENT ARRANGEMENTS.

All the arrangements were admirably carried out, Mr. W. R. Golding, as usual, being an "army" in himself, ably assisted by Mr. Jack Busteed and Mr. C. Chapman, and the committee desire to thank all who in any way helped to make the fete a success.

STALLS AND STALLHOLDERS.

The stalls and stallholders were:—

Cake stall: Mesdames H. C. Smith, M. Richards, R. Jones, G. Gordon, F. F. Pope, W. Beale, A. Picton, W. J. Cross, and W. C. Chapman.

Flower: Mesdames E. Burnham, A. D. Hopper, A. W. Young, Jac. Worthington, D. Smith, J. Garrett

Jam: Mesdames J. Turner, W. Keller, K. Wood.

Sweet: Mesdames C. Chapman, W. Beuttell, S. Coxon, J. M. Stanfield, J. Stewart, G. Le Clare.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

The many friends of Corporal Les. Metcalf will be pleased to learn he is spending home leave in Gladstone after 17 months' service in New Guinea.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONCERT.

A Sunday School concert, held under the auspices of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, will be held in the Town Hall on Friday, July 30. Tickets are obtainable from the children or at the Manse. Particulars are advertised in to-day's issue.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

P.O.W. STREET SCHEME

Excellent Progres Made

The Gladstone Prisoner of War Street scheme continues to make excellent progress, collections since the annual meeting of the branch being well up to previous figures. At a recent meeting of the P.O.W. Committee the newly elected co-organiser, Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson, attended with Messrs. Connellan and Summers to discuss ways and means to relieve some of the lady collectors who have several books.

Two suggestions by Rev. Phillipson (1) that the assistance of the emergency services of the branch be enlisted, and (2) that where possible depots be established as collection centres where payments could be made and books made available, are to be fully explored, and if possible acted upon.

A map of the town showed that the whole area has now been canvassed, and collectors are regularly operating in the various streets and lanes.

Mrs. H. P. Hallam, who opened the first streets in Gladstone (View Side and Ormonde, West Gladstone) has moved to Auckland Street, and her services have been made available for two books which were vacant in that area. Mrs. Hallam is now the authorised collector in Auckland Street from Tank Street to the railway line, and she has already brought the books up to date with an initial collection.

Mrs. Eric Barker has generously handed the collectors a cheque for £2/12/-, being her annual subscription. This amount goes to collector Mrs. Lodder (Herbert Street and Oaka Lane).

Mrs. E. Masterson has temporarily given up her collections in Gondoon Street, the book having been taken over by Mrs. W. H. Hall (who is now doing the whole of Gondoon Street). Mrs. Masterson will resume on her return to town.

Mrs. C. D. Cooper has unfortunately been obliged to discontinue her collection for the present, but hopes to be able to assist again later.

Mesdames Bennedick and Schneider are doing West Gladstone collections vice Mrs. Hallam.

Miss V. Erbacher is still doing four Valley books, and has also temporarily stepped into the breach at Bonar Street. As the latter is a long way out from her residence the collectors would be pleased to hear from any lady living in the vicinity who could assist in that area. Letters continue to arrive from Prisoners of War (principally in Italian and German camps), confirming the earlier advices that Red Cross parcels had been received regularly, and had been a vital factor in keeping them fit and well.

Good news for mothers and relatives of our boys who are prisoners of war in Japanese hands: The Red Cross Society has received from Japan the names of thousands of British, American and Dutch war prisoners taken at Shanghai, Hong Kong, Philippines, Java, Borneo, Malaya, Korea and Manchuria.' The names have been received by the International Red Cross at Geneva and are being sent to the Red Cross organisations throughout the world.

The lack of news from many of our boys, including Darcy Walters, who was last seen in Malaya, has caused great anxiety, and it is hoped that the new list will include all of the Gladstone and district men.

The local P.O.W. Committee continue to type letters for relatives to P.O.W. in Japanese camps (as only type written letters are accepted for transmission), and one lady (Mrs. Flanagan) has kindly sought news of other boys when writing to her son Pat.

COLONEL JOHN McGREE.

Under the heading of sportsman-doctor a Sydney journal gives the following newsflash concerning Col. John McGree: "Former Bondi lifesaver, Dr. Jack McGree, who for some time practised at Bateman's Bay and later at Gladstone (Q.), is serving as a colonel at an A.I.F. training camp in N.S. Wales. Dr. McGree was one of the first volunteers from Gladstone, joining the 11th Field Ambulance, and he was for many months at Yeppoon and northern bases. He was President of the Gladstone Golf Club, and extremely popular in town and country sporting circles. His many local friends will join in congratulating him on his success in the south.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

GLADSTONE TOWN COUNCIL

BOYNE RIVER SCHEME - SERVICES OF A SURVEYOR

A MILE OF TRENCHING HAS NOW BEEN OPENED UP

The fortnightly meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen W. R. Golding, R. E. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson). Apologies were tendered for the absence of Aldermen M. A. Busteed, J. Deveney, and H. Anderson, and leave of absence from the meeting was granted.

SERVICES OF SURVEYOR.

Department of Local Government, Brisbane, acknowledged letter requesting that the department carry out a complete survey from the site known as No. 1 Reservoir to the Boyne River in connection with the proposed new water supply scheme for Gladstone, and pointed out the department had not the necessary surveying staff to undertake the work. The department had, however, made inquiries as to the availability of an authorised surveyor, and the Surveyor General was at present negotiating with a surveyor to undertake the work. The Council would be immediately advised as soon as the services of a surveyor could be obtained.

The Mayor stated nothing further could be done in the matter until further advice was received from the department in regard to the services of a surveyor.

QUESTION OF PUMPING.

Department of Local Government, Brisbane, wrote relative to making an engineer available to advise as to the most suitable pumping unit to be installed in connection with the proposed Boyne River water supply scheme, but notified that the department was now without the services of a mechanical engineer. However, the department was of the opinion that the most feasible, if not the only possible means of operating the scheme within reasonable time, would be the adoption of electric pumping. A report, however, could be obtained from the Council's consulting electric engineer.

REPORT SENT TO DEPARTMENT.

Ald. Golding pointed out that Mr. Claperson (electric engineer, representing Mr. A. E. Axon) had visited Gladstone in connection with the matter, and his report had been forwarded to the department for its comment, and nothing could be done until further advice was received from the department.

ISOLATION WARD.

Gladstone Hospitals Board, reporting on the isolation ward, stated the delegates at the recent conference were all satisfied with the inadequacy of the existing buildings and facilities, and it was decided firstly that plant to cost approximately £250 be purchased immediately. Secondly, it was decided that a new building costing approximately £2000 be provided, such building to be capable of additions.

The Council reaffirmed its previous decision (as fully reported in these columns) in regard to the matter.

A.L.P.

Gladstone branch of the A.L.P. advised that it had come to its notice that the Boyne River water scheme was being held up through failure of the Council to supply Mr. Kemp with the necessary plans and information regarding what material and equipment was required for the job. As the matter was urgent, it was suggested that the information asked for be supplied as soon as possible.

NO DELAY BY COUNCIL.

The Mayor stated as far as the Council was concerned there was no delay. As soon as they were advised that the money would be made available for the scheme action was taken to secure the services of a Government surveyor, and the A.L.P. should be advised that everything possible had been done by the Council to further the Boyne River water supply scheme, and this would continue to be done in the interests of the ratepayers and the advancement of the town.

TWELVE MILES OF PIPING.

Ald. Golding said the A.L.P. had been given a wrong impression, and if members had been reading the "Observer" they would have been acquainted with the facts where instructions had been given to their consulting engineer to place an order for twelve miles of piping, and that action had been taken some time ago to secure the services of a Government surveyor.

"EVERYTHING DONE."

The Mayor moved that the A.L.P. be infomed that everything possible had been done to expedite the scheme, both in regard to plans and specifications, securing the services of a surveyor, and the placing of an order for pipes. Seconded by Ald. Golding and carried unanimously.

A PROTEST.

Gladstone branch of the A.L.P. protested against the action of the Council in so summarily dispensing with the assistance of the representative body which was formed to further the Boyne River water scheme. Seeing that the A.L.P. were the prime movers in the formation of that body, which incidentally did most of the spade work," we think that the least you could have done was to have allowed the representative bodies the privilege of deciding for itself when its assistance was no longer necessary."

PUBLIC BODY.

Ald. Golding said it was not correct to state that the A.L.P. had been the prime movers in the formation of the public body, as he had dealt with the matter a long time ago, and had moved a motion at the Council table in regard to it. However, the services of the public body had not been summarily dispensed with, and if the Council found it necessary in the interests of the town to call the public body together again action would be taken accordingly.

IF FOUND NECESSARY.

The Mayor moved that the A.L.P. be advised that the public body would be called together if this was found necessary. Seconded by Ald. Golding and carried unanimously.

VALUATIONS POSTPONED.

Department of Local Government, Brisbane, advised that a regulation under the Public Safety Act had been made, postponing the making of fresh valuations for a further period of twelve months.—Received.

ROAD SIGNS.

Department of Local Government, Brisbane, advised that road signs might now be replaced throughout the area of the State without limitation.—Received.

SANITARY DEPOT.

Department of Public Health, Brisbane, inquired if any action had been taken to procure a new site for a sanitary depot. The Council was asked to instruct its inspector to submit a report for the information of the Deputy Director General on the conduct of nightsoil and refuse disposal and collection.

The Town Clerk (Mr. Grayson) stated that the Health Inspector (Mr. Browne) had forwarded a report to the department in regard to the matter.

Ald. Golding: We will have to make an inspection next Sunday morning.

Gladstone Hospitals Board asked the Council to repair the road along the railway and Flinders Street, and at the level crossing on Scenery Street.

Ald. Golding reported that the work had been carried out.

Mr. H. D. Knudsen, Gladstone, again made application to have water connected to his residence.—It was decided that a report be furnished by next meeting.

DEAD GUM TREES.

Mr. M. A. Onions, Gladstone, made application to remove two dead gum trees in Scenery Street.—To be informed that the matter be referred to the Main Roads Commission.

TRACTOR AND GRADER.

Mr. F. Spork, Gladstone, asked the Council to have the condemned tractor and grader removed from the front of his premises, as they were obstructing him in his work.—It was decided that the matter be left in the hands of the Works Committee.

ALLEGED BREACH.

The Water Foreman (Mr. D. Jackson) reported that a resident in Auckland Street had committed a breach of the water by-laws in permitting a hose to run unattended. It was decided in this case to prosecute.

ROLL OF HONOUR.

Ald. Golding said he would like the Council to take over the responsibility of looking after the graves of three servicemen, and he moved a motion accordingly, which was seconded by Ald. Tudman and carried unanimously.

BOYNE SCHEME.

Ald. Golding said in connection with the Boyne water scheme, a mile of trenching had been opened up, and any hold-up that might take place would be through the delay in obtaining the special castings. The Town Clerk (Mr. Grayson), on his visit to Brisbane, could ask the engineer to endeavour to expedite the delivery. With a view to obtaining a better and quicker supply of water to the jetty he had (after consulting the Mayor) decided to have the pipes cleaned out with the ferret, and the work was now being carried out.

Mayor Dennis said it had been a difficult job, but when the work was completed it would considerably increase the flow of water.

AT BARNEY POINT.

Mayor Dennis said he paid a visit to Barney Point on Sunday, and the shelter shed was in a disgraceful condition, and something should be done to protect their property.

It was decided that the Works Committee make an inspection and report at next meeting.

A FOOTPATH.

Mayor Dennis drew attention to the state of the footpath in front of Mills' shop. Ald. Golding stated he would make an inspection.

TOWN CLOCK.

Ald. Golding moved that application be made to the authorities to have the town clock lighted again. Seconded by Ald. Smith and carried.

SAVAGE DOGS.

Ald. Smith drew attention to a savage dog in the Valley, which had bitten several persons, and the Mayor also referred to another savage dog.

The matter was left in the hands of the Health Inspector (Mr. Browne) to deal with.

Electric Light Authority

SALES TAX.

The State Electricity Commission, Brisbane, advised that the authority would be liable for sales tax on such articles as air break switches, cable lubs, ironwork, etc., but not on the sales of electricity, which were specifically excluded.—Received.

ELECTRIC CRANE.

Gladstone Harbour Board asked whether the Authority would make the services of its engineer (Mr. Phillips) available to the Board in connection with the re-wiring of the 15-ton electric crane.—It was decided that the services of Mr. Phillips be made available.

RATION BOOKS.

Ninety-nine per cent of civilians entitled to receive ration books obtained their books on the two main issuing days, June 5 and 6 last. This is shown by recently completed figures, said the Acting Director of Rationing (Mr. J. B. Cumming). Of the remaining one per cent quite a number have since applied for their ration books. Those persons who have not yet obtained them are advised to apply either personally or by post as soon as possible. Until July 31 these applications should be made to the Divisional Officer for the Commonwealth Electoral Division in which the applicant resides. After July 31 application must be made to the State Deputy Director of Rationing. Mr. Cumming said applicants should remember that to obtain a new ration book their civilian identity card, completed registration form CR7, and old ration book must be produced.

Knitting mills in Australia are producing more knitted goods than ever before, with far less labour than they had before the war. Besides turning out a million garments monthly for the fighting forces, they make 5,000,000 for civilian needs. They have made 13,000,000 singlets for soldiers since the war began. Extra labour for all Australian textile industries is being sought by the Government.

ENTERTAINMENTS

BATTLE STATION CONCERT

(By "Fuzzy Wuzzy")

Being interested in all entertainments, from the Flea Circus to Grand Opera, I have taken it upon myself to look into the forthcoming Battle Station concert, which will be held at the Embassy Theatre to-morrow night (Thursday).

From the amount of practice one hears emerging from various musical instruments I learned that a stage band of some twelve players will be featured. The band is comprised of piano, three violins, three saxes, two trumpets, banjo, bass fiddle and drums.

Being in good grace with the powers that be, I was allowed attend the final dress rehearsal of this unit, when I received a decidedly pleasant surprise. In the absence of so many men and women in the fighting services, I did not think Gladstone could produce such talent, and it seems a pity that more is not made of such a combination of players, who can put over such numbers as "Concerto for Two" and "White Christmas."

The band will feature several of the latest swing tunes, both slow and hot, also popular marches. Interspersed will be instrumental solos, headed by the ever popular Tom Rees and Del Busteed. A feature of the swing section will be two lady soloists, who make a great job of their parts.

Passing from this unit I was interested to hear the much talked of "Benesto." I had heard numerous reports of the long and extensive experience in comedy of this man throughout Australia and New Zealand over the last twenty years, and after listening to a small part of his act, and where he is joined by the inimitable stooge "Joe," I feel sure that "Benesto," in his first public appearance in Gladstone, will have the audience holding its sides for many hours after the curtain has fallen on this act. Believe me, he's a one man riot, and it would not in the least surprise the writer if he steals the complete show.

Perhaps the unit that will appeal most, at least to parents, is that composed of several young children trained by Shirley and Mrs. McCray. These children are really delightful in their toe dancing, tap dancing, singing, and ballet work.

A quartette of men's voices rendering comedy numbers is another high spot of the programme. This is most difficult work and must reflect great credit on the individuals who have gone to such trouble to perfect the numbers. Probably the A.B.C. will be contacting the members of this unit and flashing a lucrative contract before them.

Space will not allow me to enumerate all the items, but mention should be made of the piano work by Dorothy Thorpe. This lady is not only an accomplished pianist, but also an excellent composer. Dorothy Thorpe will feature some of her own compositions at the concert, and I venture to forecast that her numbers will be heard outside Gladstone in the future.

Added to this you will have community numbers, vocal numbers by well-known artists, dancing, comedy and monologues.

From the foregoing you will gather that I have been quite impressed, and it goes without saying that the promoters are right out to place before the public a high speed first quality production.

All roads should lead to the Embassy Theatre to-morrow (Thursday) night, as this concert is being organised by the Patriotic and Comforts Fund to raise money for the State-wide appeal for "Battle Stations" comforts.

Admission charges are extremely cheap, being 2/- for adults and 1/- for children. Reservations can be made at the Gladstone Newsagency next to the Theatre.

Our slogan should be: Fill the Embassy to capacity to help our boys at Battle Stations.

HEENZO IS 3 IN ONE REMEDY FOR CHEST NOSE AND THROAT AILMENTS

In addition to saving much money by using HEENZO Cough Remedy, you can also use it three different ways. You take HEENZO internally for internal ailments, viz., coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis and influenza. You use HEENZO as a nasal antiseptic, just a few drops up each nostril night and morning quickly ridding catarrh and colds in head. By gargling with HEENZO you gain instant relief from sore and smokers' throats. Remember, a bottle of Concentrated HEENZO costing only 2/- makes one pint of Family Cough Remedy, equally good for adults and children.

GLADSTONE BOWLING CLUB

SERGEANT S. COXON FAREWELLED

Congratulations and Presentation

At the tea adjournment on Saturday several members of the Gladstone Bowling Club took the opportunity to congratulate one of their members, Sergeant S. Coxon, who has been promoted to the rank of senior sergeant.

The President of the club (Mr. W. R. Golding), in expressing the regret of members at the departure of their friend, said that it was nice to see that well earned promotion had been gained. On behalf of members he handed the guest a gift which he felt sure would remind him of many happy times spent on the Gladstone Bowling green.

Sergeant Coxon, who has been transfered to Innisfail, thanked members for their gift and good wishes. He considered the club and its appointments to be an asset to Gladstone, and trusted that it would continue to prosper.

Details of play:—

Pring, Hunt, Smith and Archay v. A. Jenkinson, Corones, Browne and Jackson 26-17.

Joyner, Chapman and Greasley v. Henery, Weiske and Drewe 25-20.

Hunt, Pring and S. C. Wilson v. Absolum, Browne and Jenkinson 16-14.

FEDERAL ELECTION.

Reports indicate that the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) will have one of the hardest fights in his career to retain his seat at the coming Federal elections. In Mr. C. P. Ward he has the strongest opponent since he was elected in 1922. Mr. Ward is a returned soldier of the last war, and a stock and station agent. The Country Party candidate (Mr. G. L. R. Hamilton) has decided to withdraw his nomination and give his support to Mr. Ward.

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB

BATTLE STATIONS DAY

Fund Benefit by £10

Members and associates rolled up in force at the golf links during the week-end, when a Canadian mixed foursome competition was staged for the Gladstone Comforts Fund Battle Stations appeal.

It is expected that the fund will benefit by an amount of £10, which is considered very satisfactory from a small club, with a great part of its personnel on active service.

Luncheon was provided by the ladies, the associate delegates, Miss Lorna Burrows and Mrs. Starmer, capably controlling the arrangements in this respect, whilst all, including visitors, were welcomed by the vice-president and his wife (Mr. and Mrs. J. O'Donnell).

WIN FOR MISS JOYNER AND L. COLLINS.

The competition attracted a field of 30 players, and some splendid golf was witnessed during the afternoon. Highlight of the day was the near record round turned in by the champion pair, Mr. and Mrs. Harold O'Sing. In their gross card of 80 they had a 37 over the final nine. However, their nett 64, usually a winning score in mixed foursomes, was well beaten.

Miss Alma, Joyner and her partner (Leo Collins) combined so well that they were able to finish with a 61 nett, which won the event by a stroke from another excellent card handed in by Mrs. Jenkinson and Dave Joyce (62 nett).

The win by Miss Joyner and partner was very popular, as both are long markers, and thoroughly good sports.

Another good performance was that put up by Miss Kaine and Hec. McCray, who tied with the O'Sings for third place with a nett 64.

Details:—

L. C. Collins and Miss Joyner (29) 61, Mrs. Jenkinson and D. Joyce (20) 62, Mr. and Mrs. O'Sing (16) 64, W. H. McCray and Miss Kaine (24) 64, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fitzgerald (22) 65, J. Starmer and Mrs. Jenkinson (28) 65, F. Peardon and Mrs. Starmer (20) 67, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott (27) 72, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Moore (18) 73, M. Clifford and Miss Archay (19) 73, E. W. Phillips and Mrs. Burnham (28) 79, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. O'onnell (31) 84.

Best thanks are due to Mr. Harry Moore, who generously donated the handsome trophies won by Miss Joyner and L. Collins.

POPULAR GOLFER FAREWELLED

At the tea adjournment advantage was taken of the opportunity to farewell one of the club's most unassuming and popular members in Mr. J. ("Jerry") Fitzgerald, who has been transferred north with the C.C.C.

In apologising for the absence of the President, Mr. Jim O'Donnell (vice-president) said they were all sorry to lose "Jerry," and associates and members hoped that it would only be for a little time. He was one of the early members of the club, an excellent golfer, and a great little sport.

The Captain (Mr. Frank Peardon), and the oldest member (Mr. Harry Moore) also spoke in appreciation of their guest.

In resonse Mr. Fitzgerald referred to the many happy times spent at the club house and the pleasant games enjoyed on the course. He looked forward to returning to Gladstone to continue his association with the club.

H. C. MOORE'S GREAT GOLF.

Harry Moore, one of the club's low markers, "turned the works on" in a stroke competition for the vice-president's trophy on Saturday afternoon. Going out in 39, he bettered the round, coming home to record 38, or a total of 77, one of the best performances off the stick this season. His nett 63 gained for him the attention of the handicapper, and gave him a margin of three strokes over Secretary Bob Elliott (66).

Other scores were: H. O'Sing (14) 69, J. Bliss (25) 69, J. Starmer (22) 72, F. Peardon (14) 73.

ASSOCIATES TIE.

Playing for Mrs. O'onnell's trophy, Mrs. Burnham (16) and Miss Lorna Burrows (18) tied for first with nett 36 each.

Others were: Mrs. Starmer (14) 37, Mrs. Moore (14) 38, Mrs. Fitzgerald (16) 39, Mrs. O'Sing (9) 40, Miss Joyner (18) 44, Mrs. O'Donnell (18) 45.

AFTER THE WAR

BUILD CANALS AND RAILWAYS

Views of Dr. Bradfield

"After the war we shall build canals, railways, plants for the production of steel, and wool, cotton and aluminium. Vast new fields beckon ahead." Dr. J. J. C. Bradfield, designer of the Sydney Harbour Bridge, said in Sydney last week to "Industrial News Service," speaking of the post-war expansion of the Commonwealth. "Trained men will be needed to operate and develop the industrial projects within our reach, and only through such a bold progressive plan as the Army Education Service can we attempt to improve our national standard of education to provide these men."

The projects undertaken by the Army Education Service are so far reaching that only the Russian and American adult education schemes will compare with the service when it has been fully organised. Boys who went into the Army without any civil training, men whose civil occupations are no longer available, and men who wish to train themselves for new trades and professions are enrolling in the University in Khaki at the rate of more than 100 a day.

"Australia should accommodate 90 million people. She must develop a vast constructive policy to develop, defend and maintain the country," said Dr. Bradfield.

FOR YOUNG CIVILIANS.

Meanwhile, young civilians in one of Australia's newest industrial towns, Whyalla, are being catered for in a way which may well place this mushroom town in the forefront of Australian industrial enterprise.

A week or so ago, an all-purpose school, described by the Superintendent of High Schools, Mr. E. Allen, as "the best of its kind in the world," was opened at Whyalla. The cost of erection (£40 000) was shared by the Government and the Broken Hill Proprietary, who said that they felt responsible for the technical education of their apprentices. Whyalla is a "heavy industry" town, employing hundreds of trained technicians. The demand is likely to increase after the war, when competition will demand high standards of production.

At present B.H.P. have at least 40 University graduates or holders of technical school diplomas on its staff at Whyalla and Iron Knob. All of them were trained outside Whyalla. The company contributed to the cost of the school in the hope that their future technical and commercial officers would be trained in Whyalla, making the town an industrial model in every phase.

HOSPITAL NEEDS

Part Time Workers

Much has been done to improve the position in hospitals in regard to nursing staffs since the nurses' register was made, but much remains to be done in connection with domestic aids in hospitals.

The Director General of Manpower emphasises that part-time help in hospitals is a necessity forced on the community as the result of conditions caused by the war, and adds that adjustment of hospital rosters and alteration of time-honoured hospital routine must be made to enable the fullest use being made of this part-time help.

Readjustment of rosters must fit in with the availability of these part-time domestic helpers. Even in regard to the nursing staff many trained nurses have intimated that they are prepared to give part-time service to hospitals in their vicinity. With proper organisation this should be possible in country districts. Already many hospitals throughout Australia have accepted the inevitable. Geelong is a striking example, for in both public and private hospitals a system of employing part-time labour has been inaugurated which has proved most helpful and satisfactory to all concerned.

Mr. Wurth points out that in practically every State in Australia consideration is now being given to improvement of conditions and to increased payment of nurses, so that apart from the fact that they are giving immediate and most important national service, young girls who enter upon trainee nursing courses are providing themselves with a worthwhile post-war career.

GLIDER-BORNE TROOPS

Air Train Experiments

The landing of glider-borne troops in Sicily was the first extensive use of these troop carriers by the United Nations. Germany however, has been working on the idea for years, and used glider-borne troops for the battle of Crete. Long before the war she was experimenting with air trains, which consisted of an engined plane to which gliders were coupled. The gliders were released at their separate destinations, and soared down while the rest of the glider train went on.

American engineers are now experimenting with a new development whereby gliders will not only be uncoupled in flight, but actually picked up from the ground by the engined plane. In recent tests conducted in the States by the Society of Automotive Engineers, eight consecutive glider pick-ups were made at intervals of four minutes.

A MESSAGE TO HOUSEWIVES

from the manufacturers of

UNCLE TOBY'S OATS

If you are finding that your grocer is sometimes unable to supply Uncle Toby's Oats just when you need it, please understand that it is because of circumstances over which he has no control. Actually, the reason is a simple one, and a common one nowadays. Firstly the needs of the fighting forces have priority — and rightly so.

Secondly there are the combined problems of manpower and deliveries, which make it impossible to maintain normal peace time civilian supplies in the grocers' shops.

However, civilian supplies of Uncle Toby's Oats are only slightly affected—and if your grocer hasn't any stocks to-day, he will have in a day or two.

Remember, there is no shortage of Uncle Toby's Oats—it's just a matter of transport and delivery to your grocer, and as we said before, if he hasn't any stocks today—he will have in a day or two.

AIRCRAFT FROM OCEAN

A Strategic Metal

In World War 1 the United States used approximately a quarter million lbs. of magnesium, principally for flares and tracer bullets. To-day a quarter million lbs. is nearer the daily consumption of American factories.

America's first magnesium was produced about 24 years ago.

Australia's first magnesium was produced about 24 months ago, for it was in July 1941, less than a year after research officers from the Newcastle Steelworks landed in England to investigate its manufacture, that the magnesium plant at the works produced its first magnesium.

Magnesium, the lightest known commercial metal, never occurs naturally, but in combination with other elements, it constitutes approximately 2 per cent of the earth's crust. In America there has been an important recent development in the production of magnesium by extracting it from sea water.

Magnesium was first isolated by Sir Humphrey Davy in 1808, but it was not until some 25 years ago that the metal was manufactured and exploited commercially. Germany was the chief producer; in fact, magnesium was the only metal produced in Germany proper in more than sufficient quantity for her own needs.

This surplus meant that Germany used magnesium to replace other metals, giving her manufacturers valuable technical knowledge that Allied manufacturers did not possess. It also meant that Germany had a virtual monopoly of this metal.

Until recently the United States had only one company manufacturing magnesium. Australia also was dependent on overseas supplies until the opening of the plant at Newcastle ensured self-sufficiency in this strategic metal.

In fact, industry in England, America and Australia has worked its eyes out to develop magnesium supplies for the Allies, for modern areo engines and planes cannot be built without magnesium. Metallurgical processes, magnesium alloys and fabrication technique all had to be worked out, and the success of magnesium production in quantity and at low cost is one of the highlights of private industry's contribution to the war effort.

SUGAR FOR JAM.

The Minister for Trade and Customs (Senator Keane) stated that in view of many requests received from country districts it had been decided to make an issue of six pounds per head of sugar for jam making, to be available from August 2. This will enable people having crops of citrus fruits and melons to make use of them while they are available. Senator Keane stressed, however, that in view of the probable reduction in production of sugar this year, due to shortage of manpower and fertilizer, and also to seasonal conditions, it should not be assumed that the allowance of sugar for jam making would necessarily be as much as last year. He therefore advised householders who contemplated making jam during this rationing year to conserve sugar from their weekly ration to ensure that they will have sufficient sugar when they wish to make jam.

Curtin Government Gets Credit Due

PAPERS PAY TRIBUTE TO THE WORK DONE BY THE CURTIN GOVERNMENT

Even papers opposed to Labor politically gave credit for the work the Curtin Government has done.

"SYDNEY MORNING HERALD," 31/12/42:

In a sub-leader referred to "so much genuine achievement which the Curtin Government had to its credit."

"DAILY TELEGRAPH," 8/5/42:

"Mr. Curtin has done a good job. He has certainly done far more than any of his predecessors to marshal the wealth, industry and manpower of this country for total war."

"Melbourne Herald," which is now so vitriolic in its attacks on Labor, on the 16th February, 1942, said:

"CURTIN REALISTIC

"The Curtin Government has never been complacent. Soon after he took office Mr. Curtin asked for an overhaul and a comprehensive revision of our strategy. So far as its resources permitted, the Government has since been making its war decisions on the basis that Australia might have to stand alone for a time."

"SYDNEY MORNING HERALD," 29/5/42:

"On the whole it (the Labor Government) has borne its tremendous responsibilities with courage and wisdom."

"NORTHERN DAILY LEADER":

"Mr. Curtin has carried a huge load of responsibility since he assumed office and has carried it in a manner that has won him praise from political friend and foe alike."

SIR EARLE PAGE, 22/8/41:

"Mr. Curtin has already demonstrated that he is prepared to serve Australia's best interests."

"DAILY TELEGRAPH," 27/8/41 (referring to Mr. Curtin and the Menzies-Fadden Anti-Labor Government):

"He (Mr. Curtin) says he has given the Government loyal support. So he has. But despite that the Government has failed."

"MELBOURNE HERALD" of 22/11/41 (after Labor took office):

"CURTIN GOVERNMENT DOES JOB WELL
LEADER'S SOUND EXAMPLE

"A striking element in the atmosphere established since the new Government assumed office is an invigorating breath of confidence derived from a feeling that tasks are being tackled honestly."

LABOR WAS RIGHT

It is well to remember that had Labor's policy in respect to our defence and industrial preparedness been adopted, Australia would not have been in such a totally unprepared state when war broke out or when the Labor Government led by Mr. Curtin took office in October, 1941.

AUSTERITY MESSAGES

From the wives . . .

. . . of AUSTRALIA'S LEADERS

"All true Australian women are wholeheartedly behind the nation's war effort; but not every woman realises how important she is in that war effort. Saving every penny, cutting down every luxury, just "doing without" are dull sacrifices but these sacrifices are the very foundations of a total war. By her efforts the home front woman makes possible the splendid work of her sisters in the services and in the factories. She carries a great and proud responsibility — from the nation's homes must come the nation's savings."

In Memoriam

BOND.—In ever loving memory of our dearly loved son and brother, Bill, aged 10 years, who passed away 31st July, 1942.

He was a wonderful son only lent,
One of the best God ever sent,
A loving smile, a heart of gold,
None could ever take his place.
God wanted one more gem for his crown.
A jewel of priceless worth,
So He said to His angels as he looked down.
I'll take one of the best on earth,
Our Bill.

BOND.—In loving memory of our dear grandson and nephew, Billy, who passed away 31st July, 1942. Aged 10 years.

Fond are the ties that are broken,
Dear is the one who is gone.
There's a memory we'll cherish forever
As long as the years roll on.

Gill, who has been appointed to Gladstone, was extended a hearty welcome.

PRIMARY INDUSTRY

DAIRY FARMERS

Rubber Stamp Refusals

Replying to Mr. Forde, who said the Curtin Government had imposed a blanket exemption on persons engaged in primary industry since May 1942, the Leader of the State Opposition (Mr. Nicklin) said during the past 18 months there had ben continual complaints of men being called up from dairy farms and other primary industries, but appeals for release were met with rubber stamp refusals. Present shortages of essential foods and prospect of greater shortages were the direct result of the stupid and unsympathetic treatment of primary industries by the Curtin Government.

GLADSTONE GOLF.

The popular four ball best ball competition for Rev. Faher Cullen's trophy will be continued on the local links to-morrow afternoon (Sunday), when the following pairs will play:—O'Sing-Busteed, Moore-Phillips, Peardon-Collins, Connellan-O'Donnell, Cullen-Clifford, Elliott-Power, Hanson-Bliss, McCray-Joyce. HOSPITAL DENTIST.

The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams) has been advised as follows:—"Referring to your representations on behalf of the Gladstone Hospitals Board and Gladstone branch of the A.L.P., requesting the allocation of the services of a dentist to the Gladstone Hospitals Board Dental Clinic, I have to inform you that the matter has been brought under the notice of the Queensland Medical Co-ordination Committee. A feature of the August function will be the raffle of a large 7lb. box of Winning Post chocolates.

COMING OF AGE PARTY.

A happy gathering took place on Saturday last, when Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Friend entertained a number of friends at their home, "Shalimar," Auckland Street, to celebrate the coming of age of their daughter Peggy. After the ceremony of cutting the cake Mr. A. W. Drewe, in a happy little speech, congratulated Miss Friend and wished her many years of good health and happiness. Mr. Arthur Friend responded, and thanked all for their good wishes. Another toast proposed was "Absent Ones," which included the guest's brothers Ken and Gordon, who are on active service. After dinner the adults remained for music, and the younger set were entertained at a picture party. Miss Friend was the recipient of many nice presents and congratulations from her friends on attaining her majority.

BILOELA-GLADSTONE HIGHWAY.

Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., has received the following advice from the Department of Public Works: "I have to inform you, in connection with your representations, that the Queensland Main Roads Commission has been authorised to carry out the work of erection of four bridges on the Port Curtis-Callide Highway No. 34 (Gladstone-Biloela), in the local authority area of Calliope. The scheme comprises the erection of bridges over Scrubby and McGinty's Creeks, a creek at 47.445', and Sheep Station Creek, and is on a section of the strategic connection between Gladstone and the Northern (inland) Highway. Approval has also been given for the Main Roads Commission to carry out the whole of the formation, earthworks, and gravelling in connection with the construction of the necessary approaches to the proposed new bridges over McGinty's and Scrubby Creeks.

SUSPENDED

MR. FRANK BARNES

Norvel Inquiry Recalled

Mr. Frank Barnes, M.L.A., has been suspended for two weeks without pay in Parliament for disobedience to the chair. The suspension motion was carried by 30 votes to 10 on party lines.

Mr. Barnes said there was no privilege in Parliament to-day, so he would have to be careful. Then, raising his voice and pointing to the Treasury benches, he said, "Every member of this Government is rotten. That is how careful I am going to be!"

"When called on for withdrawal and apology, Mr. Barnes said, "I humbly apologise to those I have insulted."

He then recalled the Marjorie Norval inquiry, and referred to the Crown Prosecutor as the "clown prosecutor."

The Attorney-General protested, and the Chairman (Mr. S. J. Brassington) said members must conduct themselves in a decent manner.

Mr. Barnes declared the Government had brought in the Coroner's Act to convict him. He complained that at the Mackay bye-election the police allowed men publicly to use insulting epithets towards him.

The Premier (Mr. Cooper) asked the Chairman to report Mr. Barnes to the Speaker. The Speaker entered the Chamber, and Mr. Barnes was named.

The Premier moved he be suspended for two weeks without pay.

Mr. Barnes: Good-oh, you mugs!

The Premier: Don't call me a mug.

Mr. Barnes: You are!

The motion was carried.

Mr. Barnes left with derisive calls of "good-bye" from the Government benches.

Opposition members joined with the Premier in deploring unruly scenes, but said they voted against the motion on the grounds that the punishment was too severe.

CAPRICORNIA

Stiff Fight for Mr. Forde

The Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Fadden) now proposes to carry the election fight into the hart of Capricornia electroate, held by Mr. Forde, the Minister of the Army. Mr. Fadden will speak at Rockhampton in the last week of the campaign.

The Opposition considers its candidate, Mr. C. P. Ward, will give Mr. Forde his stiffest fight since he first won the seat in 1922.

RURAL COMMISSION

Family Farming Best

Giving evidence before the Rural Reconstruction Commission, Mr. Colin Clark, Director of the Bureau of Economics, stated family farming was the best for Australia. Farmers' sons might not have as much cash as the city employee, but he was usually better off, and had better food. He did not think collective farming had been successful anywhere in the world. Russia at present was the hungriest country in the world. The Russian standard of agriculture was poor.

SYDNEY WATERFRONT

Shortage of Labour

Shortage of labour to handle cargo on the Sydney waterfront has caused serious difficulties for shipowners recently.

The port has been busier than usual during the past two weeks, and the shortage of waterside workers has appeared more pronounced.

On one day this week only slightly more than two-thirds of the jobs offering could be filled. No particular reason for the shortage is given by shipowners.

"When the calls are made the men are simply not there," said a shipowner. He added that there had also been a falling off in the number of "snipers"—watersiders who are not members of the Waterside Workers' Federation.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

Builyan-Many Peaks Branch

Annual Meeting

The first annual meeting of the Builyan-Many Peaks Red Cross branch was held in the Many Peaks Hall on Wednesday, July 21, and there was a large attendance.

The President (Mrs. Jacobsen) submitted her annual report, and this, with the balance sheet, was received and adopted, those present being unanimous in their opinion that the year had been a most successful one.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

President, Mrs. Jacobsen; vice-presidents, Mesdames D. A. McLachlan and Zwisler; treasurer, Mrs. Martin; hon. secretary, Mrs. Muspratt.

Mesdames Bundgaard and Ross were appointed sewing convenors.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED.

After the meeting the first birthday of the branch was celebrated, the birthday cake being made by Mrs. Jacobsen for the occasion. This was cut by Mrs. Martin, whose birthday coincided with that of the branch, the President forgoing the honour in favour of Mrs. Martin.

Afternoon tea was served, and this concluded a pleasant afternoon.

ANNUAL REPORT.

The annual report was as follows:

I have pleasure in presenting this, the first annual report and balance sheet of our branch for the period ended June 30, 1943.

The branch was formed on May 6, and has therefore been operating for approximately thirteen months.

Although not registered until July, this report covers the period from the date of formation, and the balance sheet has been prepared accordingly.

MEMBERSHIP.

This branch commenced activities with a membership of 22, and at the close of the year our records showed a membership of 38. It will thus be seen that the interest shown at the initial meeting has been maintained.

MEETINGS.

Fourteen meetings were held during the period under review, and although weather conditions were not always favourable, the meetings were well attended. With a few exceptions the meetings were held in the Many Peaks Hall, and our thanks are extended to Mr. Callanan for placing the hall at our disposal, and also to Mrs. D. A. McLachlan, of Builyan, at whose residence some of the meetings were held. The kind action of car owners who conveyed Builyan members to and from meetings is also much appreciated.

FUNCTIONS.

During the year the branch organised and conducted several functions, which showed a net profit of £214/16/1. In addition to these benefits, Mrs. Watt very kindly organised a dance at Nagoorin and donated the profit (£9) to the branch. A concert party from Kalpowar also held a concert and dance in Many Peaks, and our funds benefited to the extent of £16/10/- from this source.

THANKS.

Referring to these functions, I would like to take this opportunity of thanking those good people who provided such excellent music gratis.

SEWING AND KNITTING.

Members had a busy year sewing and knitting, etc., and several parcels were sent to the Gladstone Centre. These parcels included:—

24 prs. pyjamas, 19 tray cloths, 6 food protectors, 20 Balaclava caps, 34 handkerchiefs, 20 washers, 8 bandages, 2 cushions, 19 surgeons' aprons, 5 prs. socks, 5 locker covers, 15 skull caps, 33 towels, 7 screen covers, 6 anaesthetic masks, 6 prs. knee pads, 16 dental aprons, 14 crutch pad covers, 8 chest protectors, 14 binders, 2 pullovers, 3 toilet bags, 1 surgeon's cap, 3 prs. pyjama trousers.

Matron Griffiths also very kindly knitted and donated nine prs. socks, 2 skull caps, and a scarf.

DUTIES CAPABLY CARRIED OUT.

The following ladies were appointed to the various positions, and held office for the year:—

President, Mrs. Jacobsen, vice-presidents, Mesdames Mortensen and McLachlan; treasurer, Mrs. Martin; hon. secretary, Mrs. Muspratt.

These ladies all carried out their duties most capably, and in passing I desire to pay a tribute to our secretary for the keen interest she has taken in branch matters and for the splendid service she has rendered to the society.

COMPLETE HARMONY.

A most pleasing feature of the branch's operations was the complete harmony which existed between members, and this, together with the splendid support from the public, has contributed in no small measure to the splendid achievements of the branch.

In conclusion, I sincerely thank all members for their support and cooperation during my term as president, and on behalf of the branch I extend thanks to all who assisted our efforts in any way whatsoever, and I trust that similar support will be forthcoming during the coming year, and that 1933-4 will be as successful as the year just concluded.

CREDIT BALANCE

The balance sheet disclosed a credit balance of £24/1/7.

BATTLE STATIONS CONCERT

RECORD ATTENDANCE

Quota of £525 Reached

The battle stations concert, in aid of the Patriotic Comforts Fund (Gladstone branch), which was eagerly looked forward to by residents, took place in the Embassy Theatre on Thursday night, the attendance being a record for Gladstone, and the financial result registered approximately £90.

The lengthy and varied programme, as was to be expected, was of exceptionally high merit, winning the applause of the large audience, which followed with keen attention and enjoyment every item on the programme, and joined in the community singing led by Mr. C. N. Joseph.

A stage band of eleven players, the personnel of the orchestra consisting of Messrs. J. Busteed, T. Rees, L. Sweeney, B. Norris, G. Hare, A. Zemek, D. Groundwater, J. Merritt, R. Brennan, Mesdames E. Thiele and Del Busteed, and their work was greatly appreciated. Music of a bright and tuneful nature was submitted and enjoyed by all present, and this part of the programme was a distinct contribution to the success of the concert.

Benesto and Joe kept the fun rolling in several comedy sketches.

Shirley McCray's youth show added a pleasing variety to the concert, under the direction of Mrs. McCray, Miss Shirley McCray being in Brisbane attending school at All Hallows' Convent. All the dances of the pupils were cleverly executed, gaining the warm approval of the audience by their splendid performance. Those included in the show were:—Misses Pat Jordan, June Rose, Pam and Jan Cooper, Glenda Smith, Beres. Smith, and Joan Bryan.

The rest of the programme was ably and efficiently sustained by Mrs. C. N. Joseph, Miss June Rose, and Messrs. C. N. Joseph, L. Humphries, L. S. Johnston, A. E. Taylor, F. Axelsen, T. Rees, J. Merritt, Misses F. Broadhurst and D. Thorpe, and the various items rendered met with the approbation of the huge audience.

It was a splendid night, in which all the artists enthusiastically contributed to such a deserving object, the providing of comforts for the boys at the battle stations.

Altogether the concert was an outstanding success, and thoroughly enjoyable in every respect, and it must have afforded the concert committee (Messrs. J. Busteed, C. N. Joseph, A. W. Young, R. Power) the utmost gratification that financially the effort had greatly exceeded all their expectations. To these gentlemen and all those who assisted congratulations are extended for the efficient way in which the arrangements were carried through.

ART UNION DRAWING.

During the interval the drawing of the art union took place and resulted:

Chest of linen, Mrs. M. Tait, Gladstone.

Quilt, E. W. Carter, c/o of the Main Roads Commission, Calliope.

Woollen blanket, A. W. Young, Gladstone.

Hamper, Miss M. Gill, Barmundu.

Bag of flour, Mrs. N. Brunke, West Gladstone.

QUOTA REACHED.

The Chairman of the Patriotic Fund (Mr. W. R. Golding) took the opportunity to thank the public for its magnificent support, and all those who had assisted in making the concert such a success, and mentioned that the number attending that night was 886, and the takings just under £90. Gladstone's quota in the Battle Stations appeal, he said, amounted to £525, and he was pleased to state that this figure had been reached.

HOCKEY

THE GAME THAT GROWS

Week-End Matches

(By "Skylark")

Well, Hoekey fans, here I am again on the wing, after laying low for a fortnight. Many and varied were the remarks made as to "Skylark," but you are all wrong, and I am not going to tell, so that's that.

Sunday's matches were keenly contested, but two of them were runaway affairs. Bandid A and B. was an easy win for A, the old experienced players being too solid for the B. and won easily.

The same, more or less, applies to the ladies. Imps were short, and Y-Nots had rather a hollow win.

The final match, Sparks and A.T.C., was a thriller from the first bully off. Not a slack moment. Sparks were short of one player, but made up for that in experience, and superior tactics enabled them to make a draw of a fast and exciting game.

Cadets were unlucky in losing one goal. Kev. Flack, after beating the goalie, sent on to make doubly sure. Tom Judge came in from off-side to hit the ball, and when only inches from going over the goal line spoilt the goal. Bad luck, boys.

Tom Morgan was again the fly in the ointment for A.T.C. One of the headiest boys seen in Gladstone for a long time on the hockey field, and with perfect stick work, is always a real danger. All his forwards were on their toes, and with Gilbert Beale playing inside to him, put it over the Cadets in the last 20 minutes, to make a draw of it. All the Sparks played their part, outstanding in the back division being Len Flack and Tom Duncan. They were good to watch, the stopping and hard clearing being excellent.

The Cadet boys are young and many inexperienced, but nevertheless they are the liveliest team playing this season. Len George in goal had his first real test, and came through well, meeting the opposition on the edge of the circle and saving and spoiling many chances.

Merv. Last, at full-back, was a tower of strength. This boy is the outstanding full-back this season, and in the first half he had Tom Morgan worried, spoiling his moves repeatedly and getting the ball away in good style.

I think Cadets made a mistake in playing Brian Garrett (home on leave) in the centre forward position. Kev. Flack, who went outside to Brian, was out of position, and a splendid centre forward went begging.

I also noticed Kev. falling back into the back division. This is a bad move. Stay in your forward line, boy. You have a safe and sound lot of players in the back division, who can do their job, and your job is to get goals.

C. Fleetwood, C. Wright, L. George, and K. Last had charge of the games, and all were capably handled.

POETRY

THE LADY WHO WAITS FOR YOU.

No one but us will give her a thought;
Tell her she's brave and true—
So I give you a toast, my brothers,
To the lady who waits for you.
Who knows, it may be your mother,
Your wife, or your sweetheart true?
Whoever it is, whatever she does,
She's the lady who waits for you.

The papers may scare her with headlines
Of battles and of men that are slain,
But always she breathes a silent prayer.
Prays you've been spared again:
And her eyes sparkle and glisten
When she hears the postman's call;
Word from her loved one, her soldier,
The soldier who means her all.

So remember, chaps, when the going's tough,
And nothing seems to be right,
The lady's still waiting there for you,
Her burden is not so light.
Nobody sings her glory,
Gives honours, medals or praise.
But she cheerfully carries on with her part
Like the heroines do in plays.

So when the stars are in the skies,
And the lights in the tents are few,
Give thanks to God 'ere you close your eyes
For the lady who waits for you.

ELECTION PROMISES.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—In your issue of Wednesday, July 21, appeared a letter re election promises, which no doubt would sound convincing enough to a labour supporter, but not to the farmers and rural workers to whom your correspondent refers.

Your corerspondent mentions strikes.

It must be borne in mind that the position of Australia, before the Curtin Government took office and before Japan entered the war, was vastly different from what it has been during the last twelve months, when the enemy has been within striking distance of our shores.

And yet strikes continue.

We are being reminded daily by advertisements in the press and over the radio that the Curtin Government saved Australia.

I wonder if the soldiers and airmen who have fought in New Guinea, and their relatives, agree with this.

Even the dullest worker on the land can see some connection between the coming election, and the recent dairy subsidy, the reduction in the retail price of tea and potatoes, and all the other promises quoted in the "Observer" of Wednesday, July 14.

To most it is nothing less than barefaced bribery.

The increased pay to soldiers and their dependants is certainly no more than they deserve, when one considers the increases in civilian wages and the much higher cost of living.

But whatever arguments are put forward in favour of a Labour Government, there still remains the fact that Labour puts its own party before our country in refusing to follow Britain's lead and form a National Government.—Yours, etc.,

JOHN M. CAMPBELL.

FOOD FRONT

PRODUCTION PROGRAMME

Vegetable Contract System

"Australia's food production programme was the chief matter dealt with at the recent meeting of the Australian Agricultural Council held in Sydney at the week-end," said the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. T. L. Williams), who has now returned from the south.

"Delegates, who were present from all the States, including Tasmania, agreed that the fullest co-operation between the Commonwealth and the States was essential in order to secure the best results possible and to bring about a more closely knit food organisation than has been the case hitherto."

Man power difficulties were discussed, and Mr. Williams indicated that he had pointed out that, in his opinion, the food front was second in national importance only to the actual war front. Food and the regular supply in all its forms, he told the conference, would not only win the war, but also help considerably to write the peace.

General satisfaction was expressed that a priority equivalent to munitions was at last to be given to the manufacture of farm machinery. The question of price stabilisation was also discussed, and the Federal Minister for Commerce and Agriculture (Mr. Scully) informed the meeting that the Government intended to extend price stabilisation to commodities other than wheat, barley, meat and dairy produce, in order that producers generally might secure at least production costs for their products.

The contract system for vegetable production, said Mr. Williams, was also likely to be extended, and he thought this was necessary if the States were to reach anything like the production targets set them for the 1944 period.

On the whole, he said, the conference, though hurriedly called, had justified itself, if only for the reason that the position of the State Departments of Agriculture had been clarified, and particularly in respect to the growing belief that the States were likely in future to play only a secondary part in Australia's new food production programme.

"I am afraid that very few people in the community fully realise the complex and very difficult problems which are necessarily involved in maintaining production on the food front in war time," said Mr. Williams. "For example, besides having to provide adequate supplies for the civil population, it has been necessary to supply the needs of the Australian and Allied fighting services, both of which have increased to a very great extent.

"In addition, Australia is now feeding millions of people in the United Nations with essential foods. From our busy ports, shipments of meat, dairy produce, tinned and dehydrated foods, dried fruit, etc., commence on their long and hazardous journey to Great Britain, so that we will be able to fulfil a vital obligation to our kinsmen in the Mother Country.

"Large consignments of food are also being shipped to the Southern Pacific islands to feed soldiers, airmen, medical services, Red Cross workers and the white and native populations. Into those islands goes a large part of the rice crop grown in the Murrumbidgee irrigation area; and to the Allied and Australian troops in the tropics are sent sustaining and protective foods, fruit and fruit juices, to safeguard health and provide immunity against deficiency diseases.

"I am convinced that when the full story is told about Australia's contribution to the war effort, her remarkable achievements on the food front will be more generally appreciated. Despite the handicaps occasioned by the diversion of manpower from the land to the fighting services and war industries, shortage of fertilisers, farm implements, machinery, and spare parts, and rationing of liquid fuel, what our primary producers have done on the food front is deserving of the highest praise," declared Mr. Williams.

A MESSAGE TO HOUSEWIVES

from the manufacturers of

UNCLE TOBY'S OATS

If you are finding that your grocer is sometimes unable to supply Uncle Toby's Oats just when you need it, please understand that it is because of circumstances over which he has no control. Actually, the reason is a simple one, and a common one nowadays. Firstly the needs of the fighting forces have priority — and rightly so.

Secondly there are the combined problems of manpower and deliveries, which make it impossible to maintain normal peace time civilian supplies in the grocers' shops.

However, civilian supplies of Uncle Toby's Oats are only slightly affected—and if your grocer hasn't any stocks to-day, he will have in a day or two.

Remember, there is no shortage of Uncle Toby's Oats—it's just a matter of transport and delivery to your grocer, and as we said before, if he hasn't any stocks today—he will have in a day or two.

DR. WAND'S FAREWELL TO AUSTRALIA

FUTURE GREATNESS OF THE COMMONWEALTH

LOVELY ISLAND HARBOUR OF GLADSTONE

Following is the farewell message given by Dr. J. C. Wand, Lord Archbishop of Brisbane, which was recently broadcast through the Australian Broadcasting Commission, and Ald. R. R. Tudman has received permission for it to be published in the "Observer":—

MELANCHOLY FACT.

It is a melancholy fact that the person who elects to live any considerable portion of his life in a new country gives hostages to fortune. It is probable that never again, if he has been happy in both, will he for long be completely happy in either. In his more sombre moments, when he is tired or bored or out of tune with his immediate surroundings, he will be smitten with a sudden nostalgia for other sights and sounds and scents, which he knows well would suit his present mood and satisfy his present need.

COMPENSATING BENEFITS.

But this price, heavy as it may be, is not too dear for the compensating benefits he has received. At the very least knowledge of a fresh country gives a new standard for comparison and appreciation of the old. 'What can they know of England who only England know?' And conversely we may add that the Australian's judgment of his own country has increased immeasurably in value since so many of its sons have returned from campaigns overseas.

But the knowledge of a new country has also its positive advantages. It is an enlargement of experience, an enrichment of the soul. It brings fresh revelations of beauty in the order of nature and in the art of man. It reveals new skies, new seas, new birds, new flowers, a new architecture of the universe, as well as of the cities. And also it introduces new friends, and shows how in a new environment they make their own distinctive contribution to the solution of age-old problems common to all mankind.

GOTHIC GLORIES OF BRITAIN.

So for my part if sometimes during my years of residence in Australia I have missed the Gothic glories of Britain, its magnificent libraries and art galleries, and the daily companionship of great scholars, each a world-acknowledged expert in his own special domain; yet there have been compensating experiences which I could not have enjoyed elsewhere. I have gained the friendship of men who almost from the pioneering stage are building up a new culture in the southern hemisphere; I have felt the creaming softness of the surf on incomparable beaches; and my blood has absorbed the warmth of a sun which will create its own inescapable nostalgia as long as my physical being lasts.

QUEENSLAND.

Naturally it is of Queensland that I shall be tempted most to think as I look back upon the years spent in Australia. Not that I can ever forget the cities of the South, or the glories of the landscape seen so often from the air—the fairy land of Sydney with its myriad coloured lights as you fly over it in the gathering dusk; the almost English sky-line of Melbourne, with the triple spires of its two cathedrals reaching into the blue; the geometrical proportions of Canberra lying in its cup among the hills. Nor can one forget the distant snow on Mt. Buffalo, the heartbreaking beauty of blue water and green vegetation along the Hawkesbury, or nearer home the little squares of cultivation among miles of virgin bush like so many handkerchiefs spread out to dry on a green hedge. (I know no more graphic illustration than this last of the small proportion of this country, even in its coastal regions, as yet put under cultivation. Handkerchiefs on a green hedge—the squares of cultivation that seem so tiny from the sky amidst the miles and miles of virgin bush).

HARBOUR OF GLADSTONE.

But, after all, it is in Queensland that my chief work has lain, and Queensland that I have learnt to know best. What contrasts it presents as you journey from north to south! The rich fruitfulness of the Atherton Tableland; the deep circular lakes in the crater of extinct volcanies, with the thick green vegetation growing down to the water's edge; the lush tropical forest fringing the new Milaa Milaa Road; the clouds around Bartle Frere, and the swaying canefields of Innisfail; the lovely island-decked harbour of Gladstone, gateway to the Barrier Reef; the reef itself, so drab and disappointing at first sight, so infinite in variety of colour and teeming life on closer investigation; the coral islands with the deep blue of the outer waters, the white foam of the surf, and the exquisite pale green of the shallow lagoon, the burning white heat of the coral sand, and the dark green of the casuarina trees, flecked by the momentary white flash of a sea eagle's wings.

MEMORIES.

What memories will remain of the spreading wheat fields of the Darling Downs, and of the still wider spread of the mulga country in the west, with the lower branches of the trees planed as smooth as aceiling by the travelling mobs of sheep. And West again through paddocks that from boundary gate to boundary gate take you a hundred miles, along which you may meet no man or beast or any living thing except a bird or two, or an occasional goanna scurrying across the track. And still west till you come to a clay-pan, chocolate in colour, flat as a billiard table, and round it the huddled iron houses of some primitive township, the whole as grim and deserted as a barrack square with all the troops on leave. And then perhaps into a dust storm, from which you emerge having lost your road and gained a covering of fine powder which has filled your hair, eyes and nose, and ruined your clothes for ever.

COASTAL AREA.

Imagination will not linger here, but will leap back again to the coastal area and the lovely broken country of the Mary Valley, so beautiful in the lower reaches, and yet so lonely at the higher levels that you may start a family of black eagles from the thin grass by the side of the road. And so to the railway line and the eternal high-pitched shrilling of the cicadas in the bush on either hand; and then home to the soft sunset lights and pastel colours of our Brisbane winter. And everywhere gums, gums, and yet more gums, ringing a myriad changes on the splotched and gleaming straightness of their peeling trunks.

Surely the American officer who said that Queensland gives you 'more and more of less and less, oftener and oftener' knew too much of one corner and too little of the vast amazing whole.

IMPRESSIONS.

I suppose it is inevitable that when one sums up one's impressions of a country the largest place in one's thoughts should be taken by its physical characteristics. But I should not like to close this farewell without saying a word about a totally different aspect of the country and its future prospects. Prophecy is proverbially dangerous, but I am not afraid to say that in all history there has never been a country for which one could so safely foretell future greatness.

AUSTRALIA - A NATION.

If in the first World War Australia became a nation, in the second it is already becoming one of the great nations. Its importance far exceeds the size of its population. That importance, inherent, as it is, in its very geographical situation, must continue to increase in the new world that is to be. The fact is that Australia is an outer bastion of Western civilisation against the Far East. As she is now the springboard from which that civilisation will leap to turn back the enemy who has attacked it, so, once he is beaten, she must remain the great defensive bulwark against future aggression—and that is the significant fact. For that reason it is to the interest of all the representatives of Western civilisation to make her and to keep her great.

DESTINY OF AUSTRALIA.

It follows that Australia will not, like many countries in the past, have to struggle for greatness in internecine competition with other nations. Both Britain and America will be calling upon her to rise to the height of her destiny; and most assuredly they will give her every possible assistance to that end. True statesmanship in this country will be judged by the readiness with which it recognises this goodwill and seizes the opportunity. 'There is a tide in the affairs of men which taken at the flood leads on to fortune.' And that tide is nearing its flood for this country. There must be no fear, no selfishness, no inferiority complex, but a readiness to welcome with open doors those who are prepared to assist her in the great enterprise of handing on the benefits of 20th century science, of democratic organisation, and of Christian faith to the teeming millions of the East.

SERVING AUSTRALIA.

It is a real grief to me that I shall no longer be able as a humble citizen to contribute my small share to this noble endeavour. But I shall watch with intense interest and longing the future progress of this great Dominion. And I shall hope at least to contribute something to an understanding of its position, its character, and its aims on the part of our elder brethren across the seas. In the homeland to which I return there will be many opportunities of serving Australia, and I hope that I have become far too good an Australian to neglect any of them. In any case, I can never forget the wealth of kindness showered upon me here, and in saying goodbye I should like to take the opportunity of adding one big, comprehensive and heartfelt thank you.

"GOD BE WITH YOU."

The farewell itself I find very difficult to say, but in saying it I will try to realise exactly what it means, goodbye, God be with you.

. . . of AUSTRALIA'S LEADERS

"All true Australian women are wholeheartedly behind the nation's war effort; but not every woman realises how important she is in that war effort. Saving every penny, cutting down every luxury, just "doing without" are dull sacrifices but these sacrifices are the very foundations of a total war. By her efforts the home front woman makes possible the splendid work of her sisters in the services and in the factories. She carries a great and proud responsibility — from the nation's homes must come the nation's savings."

AUSTRALIAN COMFORTS FUND

FOURTH ANNUAL MEETING GLADSTONE BRANCH

WORK FOR THE YEAR INTERESTINGLY REVIEWED

The fourth annual meeting of the Gladstone branch of the A.C.F. was held in the new sewing and receiving depot rooms, Grand Hotel buildings, on Tuesday, July 27. Present: The President (Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan), Mesdames A. D. Hopper, R. Jones, K. Wood, G. Hughes, A. E. Worthington, J. Worthington, C. Chapman, W. Beutell, W. Picton, J. Turner, R. Barker, A. W. Young, W. Beale, E. Burnham, J. Clarris, G. Gordon J. M. Starfield, H. C. Smith, J. Stewart, D. Smith, S. Coxon, J. W. Garrett, and Miss G. Ward. Apologies were received from Mesdames E. Muir, E. W. Barker, P. Duff, and W. Keller.

ANNUAL REPORT.

The President (Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan) submitted the fourth annual report for the year ended June 30, 1943, as follows:—

MEETINGS.

The third annual meeting of the Fund was held in the Diggers' Hall on July 17, 1942, when the following officers were elected:—President, Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan; vice-presidents, Mesdames C. Chapman, E. Burnham, W. Beale, E. W. Barker; hon. secretary, Mrs. J. W. Garrett; hon. treasurer, Mrs. A. D. Hopper; hon. auditor, Mr. L. S. Johnston; advisory committee, Messrs. W. R. Golding, H. V. Loveday, M. A. Busteed. Mesdames C. Macfarlan, J. W. Garrett, A. D. Hopper; sewing and knitting convenors, Mesdames J. Worthington, G. Watt; cutting out, Mrs. A. E. Worthington; street stall convenors, Mesdames C. Chapman, J. Henriksen; appeals committee, Messrs. W. R. Golding, H. V. Loveday, M. A. Busteed, A. W. Young, Mesdames C. W. Macfarlan, J. W. Garrett. Since that date eleven general meetings were held, and all were well attended.

FINANCIAL.

Receipts for the year amounted to £643/9/9, and expenditure £505/18/-, leaving a credit balance of £137/10/9, and I wish to take this opportunity on behalf of the branch to thank every resident who in any way contributed towards the fund.

KNITTING AND SEWING CIRCLE.

This circle has met regularly every Tuesday and Friday, and has been responsible for a considerable quantity of comforts and reading matter being forwarded to headquarters for the comfort of our service men and women, and many letters of thanks and appreciation have reached us during the year from members of the forces, who have been recipients of A.C.F. parcels.

SERVICES APPRECIATED.

Unfortunately, early in the year we lost the services of the co-convener (Mrs. G. Watt), who left to reside in Brisbane and Mrs. G. Gordon was appointed in her stead. I wish to record my deepest appreciation and thanks to all donors, sewers and knitters, and all others who have assisted this circle in any way; to the convenors and members for their untiring efforts and loyalty extended to me throughout the year; to Messrs. Friends (Pty.) Ltd., and Mr. W. R. Golding, junr., for supplying cases and despatching all cases and bags to headquarters. This service has been greatly appreciated by all members of the branch.

STREET STALLS.

At our last annual meeting we decided to appoint permanent convenors for the year, and this has proved to be very successful. This year I would like to suggest that a bigger working committee be formed, with members in each section of the town. This, in my opinion, would considerably assist the convenors appointed for the forthcoming year. I would like to take this opportunity of thanking Mesdames C. Chapman and J. Henriksen for the excellent effort put forward by them during the year in organising the stalls, until they have now reached a very successful standard, £538/4/11 being raised through the ten stalls. I also wish to extend the thanks of the branch to Mr. M. Hanson for the use of his shop in which to conduct the stalls; to Mr. C. Chapman for his splendid support and assistance, and above all, to the public of Gladstone and district, who have so generously responded to our many calls. In April Mrs. J. Henriksen left to reside in Brisbane, and we were indeed sorry to lose such a cheerful, energetic and enthusiastic member, and we wish Mrs. Henriksen every happiness in her new home.

CHRISTMAS HAMPER APPEAL.

This appeal was again launched through the local press, and met with an overwhelming response from the public. An amount of £196/13/4 was forwarded to headquarters. Numerous letters of thanks and appreciation have been received from men and women on active service who have been recipients of our hampers, and I trust this year the appeal will meet with an even greater response.

SHOW STALL.

At the rodeo organised by the local Show Society our branch conducted soft drinks, ice cream, and pie stalls, which was very successful, and I extend by sincere thanks to all members who assisted on this occasion.

H.M.A.S. GLADSTONE.

As it was decided to adopt the H.M.A.S. Gladstone, the A.C.F. and Town Council launched an appeal for public subscriptions, and this met with a very ready response from every section of the community. An amount of £130/1/5 was raised. The ship has been equipped and comforts forwarded regularly to members of the crew.

ANZAC DAY.

As usual, on Anzac Day a wreath was placed on the Honour Board at the Town Hall, as a silent tribute to those who have paid the supreme sacrifice, and members attended the meeting and divine services.

BOOK DRIVE.

This drive has been conducted throughout the year with fairly good results, but we feel a still greater effort could be made in this direction, as there is an ever increasing demand for books, magazines, cards, gramaphone records, or any indoor games for the benefit of the men and women of the services. Mrs. W. Egan, who was in charge of this branch of our activities, left us early in the year to reside in Brisbane, and we were all sorry to lose another enthusiastic member. Mrs. W. Keller was appointed in her stead, and I wish to thank Mrs. Keller for the efficient manner in which she has carried on this work.

CHRISTMAS FAIR.

In December a Christmas Fair was conducted conjointly with the Gladstone and District Patriotic Fund. This function was very successful, and I wish to take this opportunity of thanking all members for their splendid co-operation and assistance in all such efforts.

FAREWELLS.

All members of the fighting forces who have volunteered for service have been farewelled at the Railway Station by representatives of the A.C.F. and Patriotic Funds throughout the year and each received a suitable gift with the best wishes of the Funds.

AVISORY COMMITTEE.

As usual, this small body of very busy men has been of inestimable value to the branch, and I wish to thank them most sincerely for the deep interest they have taken in all matters connected with the management of the branch.

APPEALS COMMITTEE.

Throughout the year this committee has carried out the work of raising funds for the A.C.F. and Patriotic Fund. Many successful functions have been held during the period under review. Details will be given in the report submitted by the Chairman of the Appeals Committee. I would like to extend the thanks of all members of the branch to the A.C.F. representatives on this committee for their interest and co-operation at all times, and for their regular attendance at meetings.

SERVICEMEN.

During the period under review many servicemen have passed through the town. Our Fund has rendered assistance to these men whenever necessary. In this direction I would like to thank the members of the Advisory Committee who carreid on so efficiently during my absence in December, and to all other members of the branch who have responded to many calls for assistance at very short notice.

SUCCESSFUL FUNCTIONS.

In conjunction with the Gladstone and District Patriotic Fund many successful functions were held. In all these efforts our members have worked with untiring energy, and it is with a deep sense of gratitude I acknowledge the wonderful work performed, both individually and collectively. But, when we consider the wonderful work our organisation is doing in helping to provide and equip recreation huts, leave centres, and hostels, etc., for our men and women of the services, I am sure we all feel our efforts are well rewarded. As an enormous amount of money is required to provide this service for our fighting men, we realise we cannot relax, but, if possible, double our efforts in the forthcoming year.

CO-OPERATION APPRECIATED.

As our donors are far too numerous to thank individually, I wish to offer the sincere thanks of the branch to one and all for their generosity and co-operation in assisting us to provide our fighting services with some of the amenities of life while they are engaged in this ghastly struggle for our freedom. This thanks I also extend to the hon. auditor (Mr. L. S. Johnston), R.S.S.A.I.L.A. for the use of the Diggers' Hall, Messrs. Upton and Clapham for advertising, the "Observer" for the space allotted the Fund, thus assisting to keep the good work of the branch before the public, and to every individual citizen who in any way assisted the Fund.

OFFICE-BEARERS THANKED.

I cannot allow this opportunity to pass without recording my sincere thanks to my very worthy office-bearers, committees, and members for the loyalty and co-operation extended to me during my term of office; also to the hon. secretary and other officers at headquarters for their prompt co-operation in all matters of concern to the branch.

CENTRAL PREMISES.

We have now moved to more central remises in the Grand Hotel Buildings, and I sincerely hope this will be of great assistance to our members who live at the other end of the town. During the past year we have lost many valuable members, who have left to reside in ohter towns, but, on the other hand, it has also been my pleasant duty to welcome many new members who have worked hard and have been of great assistance to the branch. I hope in the forthcoming year we will be able to welcome many others. I would like to thank Mr. M. Hanson on behalf of the branch, for his generosity in granting us the use of his shop free of rent for the duration.

BRIGHT LIGHT OF VICTORY.

In conclusion, I would like to say that the dark clouds of war still hang over us, but we have much to be thankful for, as we can now see at the end of the long road the bright light of victory and prosperity piercing the clouds in all directions, and I earnestly hope and pray the day is not far distant when the bells of victory will peal out their joyous notes of an everlasting peace in which the people's of the world will unite for all coming time.

WORKED IN HARMONY.

The President (Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan) moved the adoption of the report, and Mrs. E. Burnham, in seconding the motion, paid a warm tribute to the work carried out by Mrs. Macfarlan and members during the year, and stated the report was a very creditable one, and she hoped Mrs. Macfarlan would again accept the office of president, as it was always a pleasure to work with her and her officers. For the past four years, she said, everyone had worked in complete harmony, and she felt sure the same co-operative spirit and happy atmosphere would continue in the coming year.

The motion for the adoption was put and carried unanimously.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted:—

President, Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan; vice-presidents, Mesdames C. Chapman, W. Beale, E. Burnham, and E. W. Barker; hon. secretary, Mrs. W. J. Garrett; hon. treasurer, Mrs. A. D. Hopper; hon. auditor, Mr. L. S. Johnston; sewing and knitting convenors, Mesdames J. Worthington and R. Jones, cutting-out convenors, Mrs. A. E. Worthington; street stall conbenors, Mesdames C. W. Macfarlan and J. W. Garrett; committee, Mesdames K. Wood, W. Keller, J. Turner, M. Richards, J. M. Stanfield, F. F. Pope, R. Jones, W. Beutell, A. W. Young, and D. Smith; advisory committee, Messrs. W. R. Golding, H. V. Loveday, M. A. Busteed, and Mesdames C. W. Macfarlan, J. W. Garrett, and A. D. Hopper; representatives on appeals committee, Mesdames C. W. Macfarlan, J. W. Garrett, and Messrs. W. R. Golding, H. V. Loveday, M. A. Busteed, and A. W. Young.

VOTES OF THANKS.

Votes of thanks were recorded the retiring officers, the hon. auditor (Mr. L. S. Johnston) for services rendered during the year; Messrs. S. Clapham and T. Upton for advertising; the "Gladstone Observer" for valuable publicity, and Messrs. Friends (Pty.) Ltd., P. M. Jones, and R. Tudman for their advertising space in the "Observer."

A PRESENTATION.

At the close of the meeting opportunity was taken to bid farewell to Mrs. S. Coxon, who has left to take up her residence at Innisfail.

The President (Mrs. Macfarlan) expressed regret at losing the services of such a valuable worker, and on behalf of members presented Mrs Coxon with a handbag as a small token of their appreciation.

Mrs. Coxon suitably acknowledged the presentation.

C.W. ASSOCIATION

SERVICE WOMEN'S HOSTEL

National Dance and Flag Display

August being the twenty-first birthday of the Queensland Country Women's Association, special efforts are being made throughout the State by all branches to raise funds for the Service Women's Hostel, "Hollyrood."

Every branch sending £50 will have a room dedicated to the branch, with its name on the door, and all blankets, sheets, towels, pillowslips, etc., will be marked with the branch's name.

Gladstone branch appeals to residents to assist in raising the necessary money. Dances will be run every Tuesday during the month, with a special big night on Friday, August 20, when a national dance and flag display will be held. The flags were made by the women of the various branches before the war, the idea being to form a bond of friendship between nations.

Mr. H. C. Moore has kindly donated a magnificent pair of towels to be raffled, and has also promised a further donation of £5 when the Association has raised £45.

The Secretary of the Association (Mrs. E. Burnham) has made and donated a fruit cake, and tickets may be purchased from Mrs. W. Chapman, of Gladstone.

The Gladstone Golf Club has also offered to arrange a day's play with a view to raising funds for this worthy object.

Needless to mention, the Association looks forward to receiving the wholehearted support of the residents of Gladstone.

POETRY

(In answer to the Toast of "The Lady Who Waits For You.")

I'm responding to the toast, my dear,
Of "The Lady who waits for you,"
On behalf of all the mothers
And the viwes and sweethearts too.
No one knows the dread and horrors
She endures from day to day,
As she waits for news of loved ones
On the battlefields away.

Yes, the headlines sometimes scares her
When the news is rather bad.
And she prays to God to keep you,
Bring you safely through, dear lad;
That the war will soon be over;
It's travail will soon be through,
And that God will send you home again
To one who waits for you.

Be she mother, wife, or sweetheart,
She is with you all the way;
And in spirit walks beside you,
Both in battle and in play.
She would not a shirker have you,
When your country cries its need.
She is proud you're at your post, son;
Proud of your every deed.

Though you are soldier, sailor, or airman,
You are all of the Anzac breed,
Owning no man as your master,
God alone your creed.
You are in this fight together
To vanquish a ravaging beast.
And all she can do is pray for you;
She can do that at least.

You say there's no honour and glory for her,
And her burden is not so light;
But your letters arrive to cheer her,
And her world is then so bright.
To know you are safe and well, dear,
Your love steadfast and true.
That's all the glory she ever will need,
The lady who waits for you.

—Mammy Crab.

MOVE TO EASE TENANT RULES.

To ease the accommodation shortage in Brisbane, the War Organisation Deputy Director (Mr. Colin Clark) is urging that the landlord and tenant regulations be waived in certain cases. Until some such revision is made people will continue to be afraid to offer accommodation, because under the regulations they canont repossess their houses or their rooms.

COMFORTS FUND

JUNE STREET STALL

Net Profit £40

The monthly meeting of the A.C.F. was held in the branch rooms on Friday, July 30. Present: The President (Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan), Hon. Treasurer (Mrs. A. D. Hopper), Hon. Secretary (Mrs. J. Garrett), and Mesdames C. Chapman, W. Chapman, H. C. Smith, R. Jones, J. Worthington, and E. Burnham. Apologies were received from Mesdames Turner, Beutell, Richards, and Young.

SPECIAL PRAYER.

The meeting opened with a special prayer for members of the fighting services.

KNITTING AND SEWING CIRCLE.

The convenor of the sewing and knitting (Mrs. J. Worthington) submitted the following report from June 10 to July 30:—

40 prs. socks, 80 men's bags, 578 handkerchiefs, and 6 suits pyjamas. A bag was packed and forwarded to headquarters, containing 674 handkerchiefs, 75 calico bags, 2 prs. flannelette pyjamas, 38 prs. socks.

STREET STALL.

The convenor of the June stall (Mrs. Macfarlan) reported a net profit of £40.

GENEROUS OFFER.

A letter was received from the Gladstone Hockey Association, offering the gate proceeds on certain Sundays. It was decided to accept this offer and thank the Hockey Association.

DONATIONS.

During June donations of £10 were received from Mr. P. A. Friend, and £1 from Mrs. E. Shandley. The Fund gratefully acknowledges the donations.

BATTLE STATIONS FETE.

The President thanked members who had worked so hard at the fete held on July 23 for the Battle Station appeal, and this function was an outstanding success.

FIRE BRIGADE BOARD

CREDIT OF £300

46 Calls During Year

In his annual report to the Gladstone Fire Brigade Board the Chief Officer (Mr. K. H. Trott) disclosed that the Brigade had received 46 calls during the year, compared with 21 the previous year. Of these 12 were false alarms, several being malicious calls, 22 grass and rubbish fires, and 12 other fires, the most serious being one which recently caused damage to the premises of the Gladstone Cash & Carry and Gladstone Hardware (Pty.) Ltd.

In connection with the fires in grass and other uninsured property, the Board decided to render an account for the full scale of charges as laid down in the Act to the owner of the premises, but the Chairman and Secretary were empowered to accept a nominal amount, sufficient to cover the actual cost to the Board, providing the account was paid within 21 days.

The budget revealed that a total of £2383, or £230 more than the estimate, was expended, but a refund of half the wages paid to civil defence firemen and large recoupments for the services of the Brigade on special duties enabled the Board to finish the year with a credit balance of nearly £300.

The estimated expenditure for the next year was £2586.

The Deputy Chief Officer (Mr. J. F. Pitt) expressed a desire to enlist in the R.A.A.F. ground staff. The Board granted him the necessary leave of absence, and his release has been agreed to by the National Service Officer.

Fireman Vidler was appointed Acting Deputy Chief Officer during the absence of the Deputy Chief.

FLOWER SHOW AND FAIR.

TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL

HOUSING COMMISSION

Two Members Thanked

Mr. J. Gosschalk, secretary of the Trades and Labour Council, has received the following letter from the Minister of Agriculture and Stock, Mr. T. L. Williams:—

"I should like you to pass on to Mr. Willey and Mr. C. Boles my keen appreciation of the particularly excellent way in which they not only submitted their evidence on Sunday, July 11, to the Commonwealth Housing Commission members, but also for the very full and intelligent way in which they were able to deal with the various questions submitted by the Chairman on the occasion in question.

"As you know, I was present throughout the giving of the evidence of these two members of your branch, more in the capacity of being able to assist them where desired than anything else, and I am happy to be able to say that Mr. O'Connor voiced his extreme pleasure also at the helpful manner in which the evidence was obtained.

"This is not merely something to say for the sake of saying it, and if you will be so kind as to pass on my appreciation to these representations which your Council appointed for that specific purpose, I will be pleased. With kind regards and wishes."

The Secretary of the Commission, writing to Messrs. Willey and Boles, stated that the Chairman of the Commission (Mr. L. P. D. O'Connor) had asked her to convey his thanks for the valuable evidence recently submitted to him. The Chairman realised the number of calls there must be on their services, but hoped they shared with him the view that time spent now in laying the foundations of reconstruction might be amply repaid later.

HOSPITAL POSITION

Suggestions for Improvement

Australia has very few hospitals which measure up to ideal standards as set by world experience. This is stated by the Commonwealth Medical Survey Committee.

The defects of hospitals range all the way through their planning and construction, their accommodation arrangements for both patients and staff, and their location in regard to centres of population and to the existence of other hospital facilities.

The report of the Committee suggests many means of improving the position.

The Works Departments of the various State services, it says, frequently have drawn up plans with no more than passing reference to medical men experienced in hospital needs and administration.

There is no experienced authoritative body which can generally supervise plans and help solve a host of specialised problems.

The Committee's solution for this would be an expert Commonwealth body to establish and keep in effect standards for planning, equipment and construction of all types of hospitals. Commonwealth and State authorities could also combine to plan adequate regional distribution.

This would be designed to reduce the number of inefficient hospitals, and to establish in their place community hospitals equipped to provide accommodation and treatment for public, intermediate, and private patients. The system would also ensure that patients requiring specialised treatment would be taken into recognised base hospitals, staffed with specialists.

LABORATORIES NEEDED.

Provision for laboratory, X-ray, and other services for small hospitals in country centres is strongly advocated.

Queensland already has a number of laboratories. The Commonwealth Health Department has established laboratories at Cairns, Townsville, Rockhampton, and Toowoomba. State laboratories are also maintained at Maryborough, Mackay, Bundaberg, Cloncurry, Longreach and Mount Isa.

These, however, are only the outline of one particular kind of service. The numerous country districts which completely lack all such services should, according to the Medical Survey Committee's report, be provided with them at the earliest opportunity.

IN JAPAN

Italian Official Assaulted

A lot of Axis nationals in Japan and occupied China is not a happy one. For although Japan's self-proclaimed mission is the extermination of Anglo-American interests in the Far East, the average Japanese does not discriminate between one white man and another, and hates all with equal intensity.

Military leaders and other high officials may profess friendship for Hitler and Mussolini, but even they have no real affection for their nationals, and make little or no effort to see that they get favoured treatment.

A neutral who has just arrived in the U.S.A. from Japan tells what happened to Vittorio Azilla, an assistant to the Italian Naval Attache in Tokyo.

One Sunday evening he was strolling along the Ginza, the main Tokyo thoroughfare. Several Japanese pedestrians jumped on him and started to beat him up, calling him a "white devil."

Rescued by the police, Azilla was taken to the local station. "I'm Italian," he explained to the police official, and pulled out his passport.

The official looked at it. "This man is Italian," he announced.

Immediately five policemen pounced on Azilla and gave him a terrific lacing. They tossed him in jail and kept him there for two days before they let him go. The Italian Embassy was afraid to lodge a protest.

CAN'T BUY SOCKS.

It is the same story in occupied China. Italians are subjected to so many restrictions and currency rackets that they find it almost impossible to exist. When they get into debt in consequence, their property is seized and sold up.

Italians who have no private resources find the purchase of a pair of shoes, or even socks, quite beyond their means, and cannot change their underclothing for weeks on end because of the scarcity of soap. Even press correspondents, whom the Japanese authorities might be expected to woo, are in dire financial difficulties.

from the manufacturers of

UNCLE TOBY'S OATS

If you are finding that your grocer is sometimes unable to supply Uncle Toby's Oats just when you need it, please understand that it is because of circumstances over which he has no control. Actually, the reason is a simple one, and a common one nowadays. Firstly the needs of the fighting forces have priority — and rightly so.

Secondly there are the combined problems of manpower and deliveries, which make it impossible to maintain normal peace time civilian supplies in the grocers' shops.

However, civilian supplies of Uncle Toby's Oats are only slightly affected—and if your grocer hasn't any stocks to-day, he will have in a day or two.

Remember, there is no shortage of Uncle Toby's Oats—it's just a matter of transport and delivery to your grocer, and as we said before, if he hasn't any stocks today—he will have in a day or two.

"BOMBER" BARNES' OUTBURST

CORONER AND CROWN PROSECUTOR ATTACKED

"DESIGNED TO GET ME AND NOT MARJORIE NORVAL"

Mr. J. F. Barnes, known as the Bundaberg Bomber, who has caused more headaches in the Legislative Chamber than there are aspros to relieve, referring to the Marjorie Norval case in the House, spoke at length. We take the following extracts of his speech from "Hansard" of July 29:—

"There was a very long time ago, and until approximately one hour before I went to court on the Marjorie Norval case on the second occasion, a thing styled the privilege of Parliament. But there is no privilege of Parliament in Queensland to-day, so I have to be very careful what I say, because the Government would make anything they chose to do restrospective. I have to be very careful what I say, but this I do say now, that those members of the Government who were behind that engineered Marjorie Norval law, are low, are rotten! That is how careful I am. Now the Government can make it retrospective.

The Treasurer: I rise to a point of order. I ask the hon. member to withdraw that statement.

Mr. J. F. Barnes: The Premier admits he organised that, so I withdraw it.

The Chairman: Order! I ask for a withdrawal and an apology.

Mr. Barnes: I withdraw it.

The Chairman: Order! I am asking the hon. member to withdraw and apologise in a dignified way and in keeping with the dignity of this Chamber.

Mr. Barnes: Mr. Chairman, I humbly apologise to those whom I have insulted.

The Chairman: Order!

Mr. Barnes: That is dignified, is it not?

Mr. Barnes continued: "Just prior to this Act being brought to Parliament the Secretary for Health and Home Affairs advised me that I had to be careful, or words to that effect, because there might be something done about it later. In other words, he forewarned me. I thanked him at the time, and told him I should be forearmed.

"The result was that in due course the Coroners Act Amendment Bill came before this Assembly. Everybody in the Opposition said: 'This is specially made for you, so you had better look into it.'

"I read it a first time, I read it a second time, and I read it a third time, and after reading it the third time I saw the big point in it. I saw the point that I could be convicted of the same offence twice—something that is contrary to Magna Charta and subsequent British law.

"When I saw the Bill and read it, especially after I had studied it the third time, I discovered that the whole thing was set up to get me, and not to find out where Marjorie Norval was. I thought to myself, 'these galoots! what chance have they of getting me? I am seven thinks ahead of them all the way through, and I shall be 13 this time.'

"I knew that one very important person said: 'As far as I am concerned Barnes will not go to goal—the people of Queensland will be against it!' I also knew that another party said, 'You are only a Sunday school teacher; you have got him where you want him, keep him there.' I knew that that statement was made by the Premier of Queensland.

"The first time I was at the court I made the statement, without qualifying it, that the whole thing was designed to get me and not Marjorie Norval.

The Attorney-General: How was the breakfast?

Mr. Barnes: It was very good. When I went back to court I summed up my case to the District Coroner, and told him all the reasons why he should not put me into gaol. One of the reasons was the privilege of Parliament. A glaring case has happened since then. When Eddie Ward goes to a royal commission he claims privilege and gets it. Why was I not given privilege?

The Secretary for Public Lands: You are reflecting on the judge of the case.

Mr. Barnes: I am entitled to reflect on the police magistrate. It was not a judge at all.

The Secretary for Health and Home Affairs: You told your story in Cairns.

Mr. Barnes: The Minister had what I said about the Marjorie Norval case taken down in Cairns and sent to him, and he can lay it on the table of the House. When I made that statement the Minister could see that I read out what I said in this House, which was privileged. In my evidence I said that rumour had told me that she is now in England, and I said that in Mackay and in Cairns. I did not state any names; I said 'rumour.'

Mr. Collins: You said Detective Smith afterwards.

Mr. Barnes: Not at that stage. I am talking about something else now. The hon. member is finding it hard to catch on. At that stage I said rumour had it that she was in England, and the Crown Prosecutor or, I should call him the Clown Persecutor, in cross-examining me later——

The Attorney-General: I rise to a point of order. I ask that the hon. member withdraw that reflection on our Crown Prosecutor. I ask that he withdraw the words "Clown Persecutor." They are offensive to an honoured public servant who does his work well, and who did his work well at the time.

Mr. Barnes: I'll say he does his work well!

The Chairman: Order! I have ruled previously that I have no power to extend any protection to anyone not subject to the Standing Orders. I can only ask the hon. member, and for that matter all hon. members, to be decent in their dealings in this Chamber, and to conduct themselves in accordance with the principles and the desires of the people who elect them. I hope the hon. member will take notice of what I say and do justice to this hon. chamber, of which he is a member.

Mr. Barnes: I have never reflected on anybody wrongfully in my life. The Attorney-General asks me to apologise, but I have no intention of doing so. That is where he finishes up!

"Let me take the mater a little further. The Crown Prosecutor tried to trap me into saying 'in London.' He knew that Gibbs's evidence was to follow, but I knew nothing at all about Gibbs. I never said anything about her being in London. In Mackay and Cairns I spoke of her being in England, but I did not say 'London.' He wanted to make it appear that I had been talking to Gibbs, which I had not. However, I have since spoken to him in Sydney, after my return from that mysterious trip referred to by 'Truth.' Gibbs told me that he had not the slightest doubt that he saw Marjorie Norval in London, and knowing Gibbs as I know him I have no doubt either.

"In the billiard room of this Parliament, just prior to the Monday of my going back to court, the Secretary for Public Lands said to me, 'I know something about you.' I replied, 'Then do not tell anybody, because everybody will know.' He went on to say, 'You sold forestry shares once.' I replied, 'Baj Jove, Ned, I did; I worked with them for a week. I forgot I was ever on that job.' He wanted me to make an admission. He asked me that question so that I could be cross-examined about it.

The Secretary for Public Lands: How many people did you take down in that time in selling those shares?

Mr. Barnes: I was a bad salesman; I never sold any.

"The position is that when I claimed privilege in the Coroner's Court I did not get it, and I am sent to prison for something in respect of which I had already paid a fine of £10. I am sent back to gaol. I am hanged and brought back again, and afterwards shot. (Laughter.)

"Well, it was just as sensible. When I came back from gaol next day the Police Magistrate said to me, 'The Superintendent of the gaol says you are willing to tell the names.' I replied, 'Yes, that is so.' He said, 'What are the names?' I said, 'Smith and Jones.' (Laughter.)

"Everybody else laughed, too, but that does not matter. I said, 'Detective Smith and Citizen Jones.' In saying that the persons were Smith and Jones I raised this matter of law, that the Crown Prosecutor had to bring evidence before the court to prove that both Smith and Jones were wrong. Did he bring any such evidence before the court?

"The Coroner went on to say, 'Do you not think that it is a remarkable coincidence that the names should be Smith and Jones?'

"I replied, 'Do you not think it is ten million times more a remarkable coincidence that I am the first member of Parliament in the British Empire ever sent out without pay, and the first person in the world to be convicted for the same offence twice, including being sent to gaol?'

"My point is that the Crown Prosecutor had to bring evidence to show that Smith and Jones were wrong. It did not matter whether the names were Brown and White. The fact is that these names were before the court. He knew there was no evidence to the contrary, and the District Coroner should have released me, but he sent me back to gaol. Not only did he imprison me wrongfully once, but he impriconed me wrongfully a second time; he did it because he had to ask somebody what he was to do with Barnes next!

"He had to go back and consult someone, either the Commissioner of Police or Cabinet, perhaps, so that Cabinet could tell him what to do with me next. I rang up my solicitor on the lock-up 'phone, and said, 'If I am not released to-morrow I want you to issue a writ of habeas corpus so that I shall be out of gaol to-morrow.' That was said in the hearing of every policeman in the watchhouse. Next day I was released from gaol. If not, I should have issued the writ of habeas corpus myself.

"I knew that the District Coroner had sent me back to gaol with the object of asking somebody what to do with me now, as my revelation that Detective Smith and Mr. Jones had informed me had made a complete fool of the authorities. The position arose next day that he let me out of gaol. No further evidence was brought to the coronial inquiry to prove that it was not Detective Smith or Mr. Jones who had given me my information.

The Attorney-General: You are the only one who knew anything about Smith and Jones.

Mr. Barnes: Smith and Jones are a pain in the neck to you. The Attorney-General is very annoyed because the Coroners Act Amendment Act was designed to destroy the hon. member for Bundaberg for all time by bringing him into a court of law, but his revelation concerning Detective Smith and Mr. Jones destroyed all his Government's engineering. That is what is annoying the Attorney-General. The fact of the matter is that the Attorney-General is neither an attorney nor a general, yet he is allowed to bring down legislation to make these laws!

"I would make it a law that the first reading of every bill should be advertised. That would enable solicitors in the various electorates to examine the

"All true Australian women are wholeheartedly behind the nation's war effort; but not every woman realises how important she is in that war effort. Saving every penny, cutting down every luxury, just "doing without" are dull sacrifices but these sacrifices are the very foundations of a total war. By her efforts the home front woman makes possible the splendid work of her sisters in the services and in the factories. She carries a great and proud responsibility — from the nation's homes must come the nation's savings."

MARJORIE NORVAL CASE.

Mr. L. J. Barnes (Cairns), for Mr. J. F. Barnes (Bundaberg), in the Legislative Assembly, asked the Attorney-General (Mr. D. A. Gledson): "In view of District Coroner Leahy's finding, viz., that Miss Marjorie Norval went to the house of an abortionist and never returned, will he obtain from him the name and address of the abortionist, and inform the House accordingly?" The Attorney-General replied: "The name of the abortionist is unknown to me or to Mr. Leahy. As far as I know it might be T. Smith or Citizen Jones."

LADY GLADSTONE SCORES IN RECORD TIME.

On Saturday the last race of the Rockhampton Jockey Club's 1942-43 season, the Farewell Handicap, was won by Mr. H. Ballantine's Lady Gladstone. In running the five and a half furlongs in 1.6¼ secs. Lady Gladstone broke the Callaghan Park record of 1.6½ secs., which up till Saturday was held by four horses—Black Hawk, Soult Shade, Assam Light, and Montreg. Gladstone and district sports will join with us in congratulating Mr. Ballantine, and hope the mare will continue to carry the name she bears to the forefront.

PADDY'S MARKET.

The monthly Paddy's market, organised by the convenor (Mrs. A. H. Friend) and her committee of ladies, will take place next Friday, August 12, when the usual high class collection of fruit, flowers, vegetables, cakes, jams, sweets, and other home manufactures will be for sale at the Red Cross grounds. Town and country supporters are asked to kindly send their donations to Messrs. Friends (Pty.) Ltd. in good time for the opening of the market. The convenor would like to hear from any person able to assist by sending along bottles or jars for jam making. A feature of the August function will be the raffle of a large 7lb. box of Winning Post chocolates.

POSTAL VOTING.

Electors entitled to vote by post at the forthcoming Federal elections are those who, on polling day, will not be within the State for which they are enrolled or, if they are within the State for which they are enrolled, will not be within five miles of a polling place, or will be travelling under conditions which preclude them attending any such place, and also all those who through illness, or infirmity or approaching maternity, will be unable to personally attend a polling booth on polling day. An application for a postal vote may be made from now onwards. The necessary form is obtainable at any post office. Early application is most desirable. The polling places will be advertised in the "Observer."

COMFORTS FUND

Books and Games: Large quantities of books, magazines, and all sorts of games have been despatched to headquarters—bobs, table tennis, cribbage boards, cards, draughts, etc.

DEEPLY GRATEFUL.

To all of you who so generously donated knitted articles, books, games, or helped us in any way, and to the women who so untiringly knit and sew for us at home and send finished articles to us regularly, we are deeply grateful.

CONVENING.

Mrs. G. Watt left us during the year to live in Brisbane, and her assistance with the convening was greatly missed Mrs. G. Gordon very kindly helped me during the last few months, and I wish to thank her for her assistance.

MR. HANSON'S GENEROSITY.

Mr. M. Hanson has generously allowed us the use of one of his shops in the Grand Hotel buildings for the duration of the war. This is more centrally situated than our old rooms were, and we are very appreciative of Mr. Hanson's generosity.

MEMBERS THANKED.

In conclusion, I wish to thank all members of the committee for their loyalty and support during my term of office.

The report was adopted.

A CORRECTION.

In the report of the annual meeting of the Builyan-Many Peaks branch of the Red Cross Society it was stated that the credit balance was £24/1/7. This should have read £241/1/7.

COPEMAN FAMILY.

News of Mr. A. B. Copeman, B.A., who was for many years head teacher and principal of the Gladstone State and High Schools, tells of lengthy travels as inspector through such places as Boulia, Bajarra, and Burketown. At one station (Lorrajne), where Mr. Copeman stayed the night, the area was over 1000 square miles and 50,000 head of stock. The talented Copeman family are all doing well. Margaret is doing physiotherapy at the University; Belle is teaching at Boonah (where the Copemans were stationed for many years), and Charles is boarding at "Churchie," East Brisbane. Latest news of the boys show that both are in England. George is flying officer, now being an air gunner, and Herbert has his wings, and is stationed close to George. Herbert went to England via the U.S.A. Mr. and Mrs. Copeman reside in Brisbane.

PATRIOTIC-COMFORTS FUND

FINANCIAL POSITION REVIEWED

Raising Money For The Boys

At the annual meeting of the Comforts Fund, Gladstone branch, the Chairman of the Appeals Committee of the A.C.F. and Patriotic Fund (Mr. W. R. Golding) reported as follows:—

On behalf of the above committee I have pleasure in presenting to you the financial transactions of these joint bodies for the year 1942-1943.

A.C.F. WORK APPRECIATED.

This year cannot be said to have been an easy one, as many other bodies besides our own have made very successful calls on the citizens' generosity. Still, it can be claimed that our efforts have not slackened, and every appeal was a successful one. Members generally, and the Comforts Fund members in particular, have been well represented at every meeting held, and took an active part in every effort that was placed before the public. Here I would like to express my own appreciation to your executive officers for their loyalty and co-operation throughout the whole year. Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan, as your president, Mrs. J. W. Garrett as secretary, and Mrs. A. Hopper as treasurer, together with the members of the Comforts Fund, without whose support it would have been impossible on many occasions to successfully function.

VALUABLE WORK.

To Mr. F. Peardon, of the Joint Appeals Committee, I am indeed grateful, not only for his valuable work as secretary of the Fund, but for his assistance at the many functions that have been held throughout the year, and to the members of the Patriotic Committee, who have contributed towards the success that has met our every effort.

NO. 2 DIVISION.

To the representatives of the No. 2 Division of the Calliope Shire, especially Mr. H. Neill Ballantine and Mrs. Ferguson, and any others who have been associated with them in their work on our behalf, I tender them my warmest thanks, the work of the two persons named being worthy of great praise.

SINCERE THANKS.

To the "Gladstone Observer," for the valuable space always available to us, and to the public generally I tender the sincere thanks of my committee, and look forward in the coming year to the same measure of co-operation as has been given in the past, so that those of the boys who will need our help on their return from the war will find us in the position to assist them.

FINANCE.

We commenced the year with a credit balance of £904/12/5, and during the year raised the sum of £1090/8/7, to which must be added interest amounting to £15/2/9, or a grand total of £1105/11/4. No appeal for cash subscriptions was made, and the amount of £34/16/- received was from sundry donors.

Various functions brought in the sum of £552/7/8, and street stalls the importance of which cannot be over estimated, realised £538/4/11. Expenses in conection with functions was £40/10/4, and for street stalls £30/17/7. The amount of money transferred to Brisbane on behalf of the Battle Stations appeal was £60, which was a long way below our quota, and we are looking forward to being able to fill our quota of £525 in the year just entered.

IN GOVERNMENT LOANS.

Surplus money, which in the opinion of the Executive is above our own requirements, is transferred to the Patriotic Fund, and is invested in Government loans. The sum of £1000 was transferred to this account during the year. Working expenses of the Comforts Fund are from this account, and £200 was transferred to meet their current need.

CREDIT.

The balance to the credit of the Joint Appeals Committee now stands at £713/15/10, and this, coupled with the credit to the Patriotic Fund of £2700, will provide some return for those who have been called upon to sacrifice so much on our behalf.

The report was adopted.

MEAT RATIONING.

A warning by Mr. Curtin that Allied needs were making increasing demands on Australian-produced food is believed to foreshadow early Federal action to ration or otherwise restrict civilian meat consumption.

Savings stamps, war savings certificates, Commonwealth loans, are vital instruments in waging the war against the powers of darkness. You have a part to play.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

ST. ANDREW'S CHILDREN'S CONCERT

An Excellent Programme

In the presence of a large and appreciative audience, a children's concert was staged in the Town Hall on Friday, July 30, by a company of 40 scholars of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Sunday School.

High-clas performance, dainty colourful costumes, clever stage effects, variety and interest, were all provided in the excellent programme presented by the young artists.

It is difficult to distinguish the items in a performance that was uniformly high in taste and execution, but the work of the kindergarten scholars certainly won the hearts of all.

The Doll Dance deserves special mention. Valerie Wright was fairy, and the dolls were Beverley Williams, Maizie Haack, Betty McKenzie, Barbara McLeod, Janice Bowers, Iris McLeod, and Janice Cooper.

A pageant of nursery rhymes, under the title "Little Boy Blue," was supported by a huge shoe designed and decorated for the purpose. Miss Joan Bryan took the vocal lead in this item.

To illustrate the comedy item, "Hey, Little Hen," a large hen drawn by Master Gosschalk was shown in a nest, nad in a mysterious way it "cackled" lustily.

"One Dozen Roses" was represented by twlve small girls in floral costumes, supporting the vocalist, Miss June Rose. "Minuet" was rendered by eight junior girls in period frocks.

The upper school girls presented two delightful items, "Ailce Blue Gown" and "Umbrella Man." Miss Joan Bryan had the vocal part of "Alice Blue Gown," supported by eight girls in appropriate frocks and hats. Their graceful movements were of outstanding merit.

In "Umbrella Man" Miss June Rose and Miss Joan Bryan, assisted by the Harold trio, introduced a skillful dramatization of the song.

Shirley McCray's youth show assisted the programme with two popular items, which evoked encores from the audience, "Irish Colleens" and "Naval Turn."

Probably the highlight of the programme was "Ten Pretty Girls," a school ballad, in which the second part was taken by boys who appeared as "girls" to the spontaneous amusement of the audience. The "Saucy Little Redhead" (Graham Young) performed "her" part with popular acceptance. The boys also staked a camp fire scene, which was enjoyed by all.

Instrumental items were rendered by Joan Bryan, Ruth Henry, Denise Hopper, Graham Young, the Harold family, and Valerie Wright. The vocalists were Beth Miller, who appeared in costume as a Scotch thistle, Beryl Power, June Rose, Beris Smith, Ruth Henry, Marie and Mervyn Harold.

Recitations were rendered by Ruth Hunter, Maizie Haack, and Margaret Davidson.

A eurhythmic display was given by the senior girls, and Miss Beryl Power performed club swinging to musical accompaniment.

Much amuseemnt was created by Max Garrett's futile attempt to induce Mrs. 'Arris to claim her pot plant, which grew at an astronomical pace during the evening.

The Rev. H. MacNeil Saunders moved a vote of thanks to the promoters of the programme, Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Miller, whose long and arduous preparations had been crowned with success. A large measure of that success was due to the children themselves, who had given of their best efforts, and the picturesque frocks had been made by the promoters out of paper in delicate pastel shades in order to overcome coupon restrictions. It was, he said, a highly creditable performance.

Mr. A. W. Young moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Saunders, the accompaniste of the evening.

Beautiful bouquets were presented to Mrs. Bryan, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Saunders, and Mrs. McCray.

ALLEGED ASSAULT.

In the Magistrate's Court on Thursday, before the S.M. (Mr. M. Dwyer), Percival Martin Jones, proceeded against William George Otty, both of Gladstone, claiming £157/10/- damages for alleged assault. After lengthy evidence had ben adduced the case was adjourned until Thursday next. A full report will appear in our next issue.

MR. CURTIN

NOT A GREAT PRIME MINISTER

Mr. Ward Hits Out

Labour claims that it is entitled to be returned to office because of its war record. It claims that it is entitled to be returned because Mr. Curtin is the leader of the Labour Party. It refers to Mr. Curtin as "Australia's great wartime Prime Minister and outstanding statesman." Mr. Curtin, therefore, seems to be Labour's ace at this election, the card with which it hopes, if all else fails, to gain your votes (said Mr. C. P. Ward, the endorsed C.N.O. candidate for Capricornia).

"REPUTATION DECLINED."

Now, no one would deny that Mr. Curtin is an eminent man and an able Australian. He would hardly have become Prime Minister of the Commonwealth if he were not. No one will deny that there was a time when Mr. Curtin was held in high regard in this country, and when even his opponents were prepared to acknowledge his statesmanship. But those were the days when Mr. Curtin was Leader of the Opposition, the days before he became Prime Minister. Since the day he became Prime Minister his reputation has steadily declined in the opinion of the ordinary elector, the man in the street. Whatever else may be said about Mr. Curtin, he has not proved a great wartime Prime Minister; to say that he has is extravagant and unwarranted praise.

SINCERE MAN.

Let us admit that he is a sincere man, and that he once had a reputation for fairness and square dealing; let us repeat that he deservedly enjoyed his reputation for statesmanship while he was leader of the Opposition. His sincerity even now no one doubts, but has he been a big enough man for the job he assumed?

ASKED FOR PERMISSION.

No great Prime Minister in a democratic country would openly slight Parliament. It is the last thing, for example, that Mr. Churchill would dream of doing. Can you imagine Mr. Churchill seeking the permission of an outside and irresponsible body before he introduced an important law into the House of Commons? Obviously, it is unthinkable; yet Mr. Curtin did. Before he introduced his Militia Bill Mr. Curtin went humbly, a suppliant, not a leader, to an Australian Labour Party Conference for their gracious permission. Would a great Prime Minister have done this thing?

INDUSTRIAL TROUBLE.

The first duty of the Prime Minister and his Ministry is to carry on the executive government of the country, in a word, to govern. Notwithstanding that, Mr. Curtin has frankly said that the trumpery nature of many of the strikes that occurred during his term of office "shocked" him, he never at any time took any effective step to put an end to industrial trouble. Instead of acting, he talked; and he sent his valets, Messrs. Forde and Beasley to Trade Union Conferences, not to demand, but to beg, to plead, to humbly petition for peace in industry. The Trade Union Bosses paid scant heed to any of them. Is this the mark of a leader, a great Prime Minister?

MR. CURTIN BLAMED.

True, the Labour Party may have foisted Mr. Forde, Mr. Dedman, and Mr. Ward on to the Prime Minister. But is no blame to be attached to the Prime Minister for making Mr. Forde Minister for the Army, for putting a confirmed socialist like Mr. Dedman in charge of the War Organisation of Industry, for retaining Eddie Ward, that born trouble-maker, as Minister for Labour? Would a great Prime Minister have done these things?

AUSTRALIANS SHOCKED.

Again, it is true that Mr. Curtin appealed to America for help. His duty to Australia demanded that he make such an appeal. But sober Australians all over the country were shocked by the manner and the nature of the appeal. To sober ears, to ordinary men well aware of the dangers that faced them and their country, Mr. Curtin's appeal sounded remarkably like a squeal for help. It amazed and hurt those who had thought that Australians did not squeal. Was this the mark of a leader, a great Prime Minister?

Let us give Mr. Curtin his due measure of praise by all means; indeed, he deserves considerable praise; but nevertheless, it is extravagant and ridiculous to claim that he is a great Prime Minister. He is not.

Vote for Charles Power Ward for Capricornia, and Brown, Goldenstedt and McDonald for the Senate.

OBITUARY

MR. M. ANSBOROUGH.

A well-known pioneer, and one of the best known identities in the Port Curtis district, Mr. Martin Ansborough, passed away at Raglan recently. Deceased, who was 84 years of age, was born at County Mayo, Ireland, and came out from England on the steamer Tara in 1890, and landed at Bundaberg.

For some time he worked in the cane in charge of South Sea Islanders, and afterwards took over a cane farm from Mrs. Greathead. Later he was joined by his brother Patrick, and went into the sugar mills working for Mr. George Greathead.

In 1891 he married Miss Emily Aitkins, who had made the journey out from England in the same boat. She was a native of Gloucestershire.

Leaving Bundaberg, Mr. Ansborough took a job on the construction of the North Coast railway, being employed on the Rosedale-Murray's Creek section. He then decided to go on the land, and took up a selection at Miriam Vale in 1896. He made a great success of farming, growing corn, which yielded up to 100 bags per acre.

In 1914 the late Mr. Ansborough disposed of the property to Mr. Johnson, and with his son Pat bought land at Iveragh from Mr. L. Hancock, where the partners carried on dairying and stock dealing. In 1916 his son enlisted, but was later rejected, and the Iveragh property was sold in 1919 to Mr. Geo. Hickman.

When deceased retired his son purchased a general store at Calliope.

In 1927 his wife passed away in the Gladstone Hospital, and the Calliope business was sold to Mr. James Miller.

Early in 1930 Mr. Ansborough Jr. purchased the freehold of the Railway Hotel and general store, Raglan, where Mr. Ansborough lived with his son until his death.

Although of small build, the late Mr. Ansborough was a remarkably active man, and despite his age enjoyed good health until his demise.

Many old friends who came regularly to Raglan to talk of the old days will regret to hear of his passing.

The funeral took place at Rockhampton.

CAPRICORNIA CONTEST

GLADSTONE NEXT WEDNESDAY

Barnes in Action

Mr. Frank Barnes, M.L.A., Bundaberg, with Mr. Lou Barnes, M.L.A. for Cairns, will speak at the undermentioned places in the interests of the True Labour. Subject: "The Labour machine can put you into Parliament, and if you are not a 'yes man' to High Finance the machine will not endorse you at the next elections, and out you go."

GRAND LABOUR SENATOR.

Like Senator Darcy, the 4th man in the Tasmanian Senate team, that grand Labour Senator who last year moved in Caucus for the abolition of the Commonwealth Bank Board, which would have left the Bank under the control of the Government, not a Bank Board, including in the motion was the use of National Credit, which I defy anyone to prove that National Credit has been used by the present Government, yet it has been their platform since the Fisher-O'Malley days.

WHAT MR. CURTIN SAID.

The following is a statement made by John Curtin on the 14th of December, 1939, and printed in the "Locomotive Journal" of West Australia, when he (Mr. Curtin) was in the opposition: "Everything in war must be paid for, not by reducing wage standards, but by the use of the National Credit. Because of a Labour Government in the Federal Parliament there is a Commonwealth Bank. It was created as a means of releasing national credit. But because Labour lost office the National Bank has been transformed by our opponents into a mere puppet of the private banks. As a requisite to the national defence the Commonwealth Bank must have restored to it its original charter. When we are in power we shall proceed to redeem the National Bank from its slavery. The cost of the war can be met without piling up huge debts, and without interest payments sucking our life-blood. The Commonwealth Bank must, with a Labour Government, work out a freer and fuller life for our people."

Neither Mr. Curtin nor the Federal Labour Party has honoured that policy.

The power of this machine is only made possible by the age-old guarantee that the workers will vote the ticket at each election. This has been the curse of the Labour movement for all time.

GET TRUE LABOUR MEN.

For that reason we are setting up a campaign to get the true Labour man to vote against the ticket in the Capricornia electorate, and thereby making Mr. Forde the example for the whole of the Australian Labour Party (State and Federal). Then, and then only, will you get action from the present day so-called Labour parties who are riding on the backs of Andrew Fisher, King O'Malley, and other Labour stalwarts of the past.

If present-day Labour men know the ticket is not safe any more they will act and, in particular, will put their monetary reform platform into action, and save the Australian workers from paying more than half their wages in direct and indirect taxation.

My brother and I are the Labour Party in Queensland. The present Government are a Tory Labour Party. End this once and for all.

Vote— 2 Forde, 1 Ward

We do not intend to make an example of the Senate, as theirs is a six-year term, but we do advise you to vote Mr. Forde back next election (1946). Believe us, he will then be only too anxious to represent the true Labour Party's platform. This will show Mr. Forde's colleagues that they cannot be a Communist or a Tory organisation any more. They will have to carry out the Labour policy laid down by Andrew Fisher and King O'Malley. Remember, Communism is a million times worse than Toryism. Socialism is a full brother to Communism.

Communism, after 25 years of power in Russia, in January 1941, had black bread as their stable diet, everything else was a luxury. Butter was 28/6 a kilo (2¼ lbs., bread 5/6 a kilo, meat 16/- a kilo, potatoes 2/6 a kilo. These are the prices the civilians pay in Russia, and their basic wage is equivalent to about £4/10/- per week.

That should be sufficient to show that the State Capitalist system of Russia is a million times worse than our rotten system. Remember, there is no private ownership in Russia, the State charge these prices!

We do not draw our punches. At our three Mackay meetings we had 3000, 4000, and 6000 people. If you want to know why we lost the Mackay by-election, and why I was sent out last week for two weeks without pay, read last week's Government Hansard. As your member, he will send you one, I hope?

Come along to our meetings and hear the TRUTH about the Brisbane Line, and hear how it is possible to pay our soldiers the same wages as the Americans are getting—they are worth every penny of it.

PROGRAMME.

Monto 8 p.m. August 5th; Rockhampton 7.30 p.m. August 7th; Mount Morgan 8 p.m. August 9th, Gladstone 8 p.m. August 11th; Bundaberg 7.30 p.m. August 14th; Barcaldine 8 p.m. August 17; Rockhampton (grand finale) 8 p.m. August 20th.

So far my brother and I have paid every penny of our campaign expenses. We have not asked any other elector to contribute towards our fight for TRUE DEMOCRACY. But we ask you now to help us to finance this campaign by sending donations to me care Post Office, Rockhampton.

HEENZO IS 3 IN ONE REMEDY FOR CHEST NOSE AND THROAT AILMENTS

In addition to saving much money by using HEENZO Cough Remedy, you can also use it three different ways. You take HEENZO internally for internal ailments, viz., coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis and influenza. You use HEENZO as a nasal antiseptic, just a few drops up each nostril night and morning quickly ridding catarrh and colds in head. By gargling with HEENZO you gain instant relief from sore and smokers' throats. Remember, a bottle of Concentrated HEENZO costing only 2/- makes one pint of Family Cough Remedy, equally good for adults and children.

bills and say, 'Don't put that bill through, as it will convict a person twice for the same offence.' If that fact was made known to hon. members of the Opposition they would flog the bill to prevent it becoming law. Of course, this particular provision was wedged in one of the clauses for an evil purpose, but this evil purpose went astray, and the Government as a result made a complete fool of themselves.

The Attorney-General: Not as big a fool as you did.

Mr. Barnes: The Attorney-General need not make any mistake on that point.

"The Coronial Court was rotten. I was examined and re-examined and examined again, and re-examined again. So was Mr. Gibbs. Then on the following morning the District Coroner would examine me again, and then re-examine me, but only succeeded in making a fool of himself. They could not do what they intended. The District Coroner set himself up as a psycho-analyst. He was appointed to the court as a district coroner, not a psycho-analyst. Nevertheless, he set himself up as a psycho-analyst and wiped Gibbs' story out because it did not suit him.

"Knowing the thing to be a racket from start to finish, I told the Coroner what he was going to find. He said, 'shut up.' I said, 'neither you nor anyone else can shut me up.'

The Crown Prosecutor said, 'Your Honour he is defying you.'

I said, 'Shut up and give your nose a chance.'

Here was a court of law and here was I committing contempt by defying the court. I told the District Coroner that he would find that she was aborted and that she went to an abortionist. Why did the District Coroner take that from me? He turned round to the deposition clerk and said, 'don't put that down.' He also turned round to the newspaper representatives and forbid them to print my remark, but one paper did so, or I am told it did.

Why did I make a fool of the court? Because I knew the District Coroner would find that way, hence the reason why he did not want to commit me for contempt to prolong it.

The District Coroner at another stage refused to put the depositions down. I argued that he would have to do so, and he threatened to put me back into gaol. I said I did not want to go to gaol, and so behaved myself for five minutes. I then went back to the point, after which he adjourned the court until half past 2.

At that time I was committing contempt of court, and had been doing so from time to time. This is the point: It is rotten if the Government can bring in a law to get one man in Queensland and make the people of Queensland spend thousands of pounds to get at one of their political opponents. What is this country coming to? It is a disgrace to democracy, or I should say, if we take the middle syllable of democracy, it is merely a mockery. There was not one decent thing about the whole court.

Evidently the Government will stop at nothing. Any Government that will do a thing like that are decidedly low. Something has to be done about it, and believe me something will be done about it later!

FORTNIGHT WITHOUT PAY.

Speaking on incidents in the Mackay election, Mr. Barnes was called to order, when the following clash occurred:—

The Chairman: Order! I ask the hon. member to apologise to the Committee for unseemly language. Might I also add that if the hon. member does not conduct himself in a proper manner I shall deal with him? I ask the hon. member to apologise.

Mr. Barnes: I apologise to the Committee. The point is the party concerned inferred I was an illegitimate child. The party concerned inferred it in the language I used and for which I was pulled up, but I know you cannot do it, as I was merely stating what was said, but that is by the way. I said, "You can call me that all night, because the police won't arrest you." They could have arrested him for using obscene language in the street, but they would not.

I said, "You can continue calling it all night, but don't call it to me personally, or I will knock your block off."

The Chairman: Order! Please resume your seat.

Mr. L. J. Barnes (Cairns): I will have to differ with your ruling.

The Chairman: Order! Please resume your seat.

Mr. L. J. Barnes: I move that the Chairman's ruling be disagreed to." I will bring evidence to prove it.

The Chairman: Order! I am not accepting the motion. Under the Standing Orders the responsibility is on the hon. member to proceed further.

Mr. L. J. Barnes: Mr. Brassington——

The Chairman: Order! Resume your seat.

Mr. J. F. Barnes: I desire to know what you ruled me out on.

The Chairman: Order! Resume your seat.

Mr. J. F. Barnes: I want to know why you ruled me out.

The Chairman: Order!

The Chairman: Order! I name the hon. member for Bundaberg Mr. J. F. Barnes for disregarding the authority of the Chair.

The Premier: I regret the hon. member for Bundaberg will persist in creating scenes in this Chamber, consequently I have no alternative but to ask you to send for Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Maher: Give him a chance to withdraw and tender an apology to the Chair.

The Chairman: Order!

A Government Member: Do you not think there is a limit?

Mr. J. F. Barnes: You have no decency at all.

The Chairman: Order!

Mr. J. F. Barnes: You cannot take it. I will make you take it!

The Chairman: Order!

Mr. L. J. Barnes: You use the language yourself sometimes.

The Chairman: Order! Mr. Speaker, I have to name the hon. member for Bundaberg for disregarding the authority of the Chair.

Mr. Speaker: Order! The Chairman reports he has named the hon. member for Bundaberg.

The Premier: I move 'That the hon. member for Bundaberg, Mr. J. F. Barnes, be suspended from the service of the House for a fortnight without pay."

Mr. J. F. Barnes: Good on you, you mug!

The Premier: Don't you call me a mug.

Mr. Barnes: You are.

The motion was carried by 30 votes to 10.

A MESSAGE TO HOUSEWIVES

from the manufacturers of

UNCLE TOBY'S OATS

If you are finding that your grocer is sometimes unable to supply Uncle Toby's Oats just when you need it, please understand that it is because of circumstances over which he has no control. Actually, the reason is a simple one, and a common one nowadays. Firstly the needs of the fighting forces have priority — and rightly so.

Secondly there are the combined problems of manpower and deliveries, which make it impossible to maintain normal peace time civilian supplies in the grocers' shops.

However, civilian supplies of Uncle Toby's Oats are only slightly affected—and if your grocer hasn't any stocks to-day, he will have in a day or two.

Remember, there is no shortage of Uncle Toby's Oats—it's just a matter of transport and delivery to your grocer, and as we said before, if he hasn't any stocks today—he will have in a day or two.

BLOW STRUCK IN JONES' SHOP

JONES AND OTTY - CLAIM FOR £158/8/- DAMAGES

"I WASN'T ANGRY - AMUSED AT DEFENDANT"

In the Magistrate's Court on Thursday, before the S.M. (Mr. M. Dwyer), Percival Martin Jones, of Gladstone, proceeded against William George Otty, of Gladstone, claiming £158/8/- damages for alleged assault. The damages were made up as follows:— Dentist's costs of attention to teeth and making of upper and lower plates £8/8/-, and general damages £150.

The notice of defence set out:— (1) Not indebted as alleged or at all; (2) not guilty.

Mr. C. N. Joseph, of Messrs. Kellett & Joseph, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. R. Larcombe, for the defendant, instructed by Mr. D. P. Carey, of Rockhampton.

THE EVIDENCE.

Percival Martin Jones deposed that he carried on the business of stationer, newsagent, and fancy goods, at Gladstone, and his shop was situated next to the Post Office, in Gondoon Street. He was also the proprietor of the Gladstone Newsagency, and he had a branch in the Valley, managed by Mr. A. C. Huth. He controlled all Gordon & Gotch agencies in Gladstone, also "Smith's Weekly," "Sydney Bulletin," and "Women's Mirror." He acquired all the block newsruns in Gladstone by buying out the agents in opposition to him. The defendant was the lessee of the railway bookstall at Gladstone, and he supplied defendant with copies of the "Australian Women's Weekly," the "Sydney Bulletin," "Women's Mirror," and "Smith's Weekly" for resale by him at the bookstall.

PAPERS CUT DOWN.

Witness went on to say that he had been cutting the defendant down in number of papers, particularly "Australian Women's Weekly," and the publishers knew this. They were unable to get further issues from the publishers, and he needed more to meet his increasing customers. He had found that the defendant had been selling copies of these papers around the town away from the bookstall. On July 5 he cut defendant's supply of the "Women's Weekly" from 30 to 24, and on July 12 from 24 to 20. He was a returned soldier from the last war, and was 51 years of age. He had been in business in Gladstone for 23 years, and had been vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce for many years, and also a committeeman of the Returned Soldiers' League. He had taken a keen interest in all Gladstone town matters.

OTTY IN THE SHOP.

Continuing, Jones said, about 2.30 p.m. on July 12 he was in the shop, and at that time he saw the defendant standing close by the back entrance on the long counter, and he had a bundle of the "Australian Women's Weekly" under his arm. As Jones went behind the counter the defendant said to him: "Is that all the papers I am getting to-day " and he replied: "If that's the number there that is all you will be getting," and he thought Otty replied, "This is no good to me." Jones then said to him: "As a newsagent you don't exist." During this time Jones was endeavouring to locate some tobacco for a customer, and while he was doing so the defendant kept interjecting and asking him to come outside. Otty said to him several times to come outside, or come out the back, or come out the front, and Jones' reply was not to be childish, or not to be a school boy, or remember "you are grown up," or words to that effect. Jones also said to him: "It would be better if you would leave the shop and go about your own work."

"I WASN'T ANGRY."

The defendant remained in the shop about ten minutes, and he appeared to be very angry. "I wasn't angry, I was rather amused at the defendant's action," said Jones. Later a naval man came into the shop and asked for an article, and to get this Jones had to cross to the other side of the shop, going through the break between the long and short counters in the direction of the front show case. As he crossed the defendant, whom he thought was leaving the shop, bumped into him. He did not speak to Jones, who just turned and looked him up and down.

"RING THE POLICE."

Later Otty placed one of his boots across the toe of his right boot, and Jones pulled his foot from under his and told Otty not to be silly. As he spoke to Otty Jones turned towards him, and immediately afterwards turned away from him to face the front of the shop and talk to the customer, but at that moment Jones was struck a blow on the mouth by Otty with his fist. Jones immediately turned towards Otty and put up his hands in a defensive attitude, and defendant stepped back. Jones stepped towards Otty once or twice, and as he did so the defendant stepped back each time. Jones paused then, and thought the matter over, and then said: "This sort of thing is no good." Jones stated he did not strike the defendant, nor did he strike at him. Jones then turned to the customer and said to him: "A man ought to knock him down," and the customer made some sensible reply, and Jones then called to his office girl: "Ring the police." Jones did not hear Otty say anything after that.

TEETH KNOCKED OUT.

As a result of the blow one of Jones' front teeth was knocked out, and the tooth below it on the bottom jaw was knocked right back, and in addition three other teeth in his lower jaw were loosened. Jones' bottom lip was cut, both inside and out. After that Jones saw his solicitor, and made a visit to the dentist, and had the bottom tooth that was knocked in removed. Since then the three loose bottom teeth had tightened somewhat, although they were still loose. As a result of the blow his mouth was sore for some days, and the cut lip had only now healed. His dentist told him he suffered with pyorrhea, but he had never felt any effects from it.

JONES CROSS EXAMINED.

By Mr. Larcombe: He had known the defendant for about 10 years, and he was a married man with a wife and child. He had a monopoly of the newspaper trade in Gladstone, and always tendered for the railway bookstall, but on the last five occasions defendant's tender was accepted in preference to his. Defendant has had the bookstall for more than three years, and he did not want to get him out of it. It would not be a way of getting him out for him to cut down his supply of papers. He called it fair on his part to treat the defendant as he had done. He cut the defendant down because of the demand he was having from the public for the papers in respect of which orders he had on the waiting list. The principals won't increase his (Jones) supplies, and they told him not to worry about sub-agents. He swore that he had never gone round canvassing orders from defendant's customers. He had sold papers on the Gladstone Railway Station while the defendant had the bookstall rights. Defendant rarely worked the bookstall. He knew he had no right to do so, and that it was an infringement on the defendant's right, but still he sold papers on the Gladstone Railway Station. When defendant bumped him he did not hear him say, "I am sorry," and he did not remember saying to him, "You're not a bit sorry." After defendant struck him, for a split second, he intended to hit him, but then thought better of it.

By Mr. Joseph: By cutting down the defendant's supply of papers it was his intention to make it impossible for him to sell papers around the town. If he had kept the bookstall and looked after it properly it was his intention to help him as much as possible.

"BLOOD ON HIS LIP."

Basil Talbot Smith deposed that he saw the plaintiff and defendant in the shop, and as far as he could remember the plaintiff was behind the long counter, and the defendant was in front of it. He saw the parties talking together at the right hand end of the front show case, but he stood off deliberately so he could not hear what they were saying. He was looking away from them, but for some reason or other he turned round towards them, and he noticed the defendant moving away. He noticed that plaintiff had blood on his lip, and he heard him ask one of his staff to ring for the police. At plaintiff's request he gave him his name and occupation, and after completing his business left the shop.

"FOOLISH MAN, MR. OTTY."

Ailsa June Pope deposed that she was a shop assistant, and employed by the plaintiff. Her duties were to attend to the papers, and serve customers in the shop. She knew the defendant, and made up his papers for him. On the afternoon of July 12 she was out on the back verandah working, and she heard the defendant asking where his papers were, and at that time the plaintiff was serving customers from behind the long counter. She heard the defendant say: "Are you frightened of me?" but she did not know who he was talking to. At that time plaintiff was standing close to defendant, and she heard plaintiff say, "You are a very foolish man, Mr. Otty." She saw the defendant walking towards the front door of the shop and heard a scuffle, and saw plaintiff with his hand on defendant's arm as though keeping him away. At that time defendant had a bundle of papers under one arm, but she could not remember where his other arm was. She noticed plaintiff's lip was bleeding.

MOUTH WAS BLEEDING.

Aileen Margaret Rigby deposed that she had worked for the plaintiff for approximately eight years. She knew the defendant, and saw him come into the shop on July 12, and walk down towards the end of it and collect his papers. At one stage she heard defendant say to the plaintiff, "Is this all you can do for me?" and some time later she heard plaintiff say to defendant, "You are a very foolish man." She noticed that the plaintiff's mouth was bleeding, and heard him say, "Ring for the police, Joyce." All through there were customers in the shop.

JONES' MOUTH EXAMINED.

Dudley Wyndham Pidgeon deposed that he was a dentist, carrying on business in Gladstone. He knew the plaintiff, and first saw him professionally in September, 1942. He examined his mouth, and found he was suffering from pyorrhea in both jaws. On July 12 he saw the plaintiff in the afternoon, and found that his upper right lateral incisor was missing, and the lower right central incisor was almost out of the gum, and the lower right lateral incisor and the lower left central and lateral incisors were loosened. He extracted the incisor that was almost out, and it was definitely necessary for him to do so.

"REASONABLY COST £8/8/-."

Continuing his evidence, Pidgeon said that on August 3 he again examined the plaintiff's mouth, and to replace the two teeth would require one tooth partial plate on the top jaw, and in the bottom jaw the three loosened teeth should come out, and the whole replaced by a four-tooth partial plate. It would not be good practice to build a plate around those three loosened teeth in the way they were now. He thought the plaintiff might have retained his lower teeth in normal circumstances for another two and

from the manufacturers of

UNCLE TOBY'S OATS

If you are finding that your grocer is sometimes unable to supply Uncle Toby's Oats just when you need it, please understand that it is because of circumstances over which he has no control. Actually, the reason is a simple one, and a common one nowadays. Firstly the needs of the fighting forces have priority — and rightly so.

Secondly there are the combined problems of manpower and deliveries, which make it impossible to maintain normal peace time civilian supplies in the grocers' shops.

However, civilian supplies of Uncle Toby's Oats are only slightly affected—and if your grocer hasn't any stocks to-day, he will have in a day or two.

Remember, there is no shortage of Uncle Toby's Oats—it's just a matter of transport and delivery to your grocer, and as we said before, if he hasn't any stocks today—he will have in a day or two.

CAPRICORNIA CONTEST

TO-NIGHT, WEDNESDAY

Barnes To Address Electors

Mr. Frank Barnes, M.L.A., Bundaberg, with Mr. Lou Barnes, M.L.A. for Cairns, will speak at the undermentioned places in the interests of the True Labour. Subject: "The Labour machine can put you into Parliament, and if you are not a 'yes man' to High Finance the machine will not endorse you at the next elections, and out you go."

GRAND LABOUR SENATOR.

Like Senator Darcy, the 4th man in the Tasmanian Senate team, that grand Labour Senator who last year moved in Caucus for the abolition of the Commonwealth Bank Board, which would have left the Bank under the control of the Government not a Bank Board, including in the motion was the use of National Credit, which I defy anyone to prove that National Credit has been used by the present Government, yet it has been their platform since the Fisher-O'Malley days.

WHAT MR. CURTIN SAID.

The following is a statement made by John Curtin on the 14th of December, 1939, and printed in the "Locomotive Journal" of West Australia, when he (Mr. Curtin) was in the opposition: "Everything in war must be paid for, not by reducing wage standards, but by the use of the National Credit. Because of a Labour Government in the Federal Parliament there is a Commonwealth Bank. It was created as a means of releasing national credit. But because Labour lost office the National Bank has been transformed by our opponents into a mere puppet of the private banks. As a requisite to the national defence the Commonwealth Bank must have restored to it its original charter. When we are in power we shall proceed to redeem the National Bank from its slavery. The cost of the war can be met without piling up huge debts, and without interest payments sucking our life-blood. The Commonwealth Bank must, with a Labour Government, work out a freer and fuller life for our people."

Neither Mr. Curtin nor the Federal Labour Party has honoured that policy.

The power of this machine is only made possible by the age-old guarantee that the workers will vote the ticket at each election. This has been the curse of the Labour movement for all time.

GET TRUE LABOUR MEN.

For that reason we are setting up a campaign to get the true Labour man to vote against the ticket in the Capricornia electorate, and thereby making Mr. Forde the example for the whole of the Australian Labour Party (State and Federal). Then, and then only, will you get action from the present day so-called Labour parties who are riding on the backs of Andrew Fisher, King O'Malley, and other Labour stalwarts of the past.

If present-day Labour men know the ticket is not safe any more they will act and, in particular, will put their monetary reform platform into action, and save the Australian workers from paying more than half their wages in direct and indirect taxation.

My brother and I are the Labour Party in Queensland. The present Government are a Tory Labour Party. End this once and for all.

Vote— 2 Forde, 1 Ward

We do not intend to make an example of the Senate, as theirs is a six-year term, but we do advise you to vote Mr. Forde back next election (1946). Believe us, he will then be only too anxious to represent the true Labour Party's platform. This will show Mr. Forde's colleagues that they cannot be a Communist or a Tory organisation any more. They will have to carry out the Labour policy laid down by Andrew Fisher and King O'Malley. Remember, Communism is a million times worse than Toryism. Socialism is a full brother to Communism.

Communism, after 25 years of power in Russia, in January 1941, had black bread as their stable diet, everything else was a luxury. Butter was 28/6 a kilo (2¼ lbs., bread 5/6 a kilo, meat 16/- a kilo, potatoes 2/6 a kilo. These are the prices the civilians pay in Russia, and their basic wage is equivalent to about £4/10/- per week.

That should be sufficient to show that the State Capitalist system of Russia is a million times worse than our rotten system. Remember, there is no private ownership in Russia, the State charge these prices!

We do not draw our punches. At our three Mackay meetings we had 3000, 4000, and 6000 people. If you want to know why we lost the Mackay by-election, and why I was sent out last week for two weeks without pay, read last week's Government Hansard. As your member, he will send you one, I hope?

Come along to our meetings and hear the TRUTH about the Brisbane Line, and hear how it is possible to pay our soldiers the same wages as the Americans are getting—they are worth every penny of it.

ASSAULT CASE

a half to three years and might have retained the upper teeth for six or seven years. To provide plaintiff with a one-tooth partial upper plate and a four-tooth partial lower plate would reasonably cost £8/8/-.

PYORRHEA CONDITION WORSE.

By Mr. Larcombe: The pyorrhea condition had grown progressively worse since September, 1942. In April, 1943 he extracted one tooth for plaintiff and he thought it was an upper right wisdom tooth. He thought plaintiff would be well advised to have his teeth extracted apart from the recent injuries to his mouth.

JONES RECALLED.

Percival Martin Jones was recalled, and in answer to questions asked by Mr. Larcombe stated: "I don't remember defendant saying to me at the long counter 'You are nothing more than a snake. A snake has got nothing on you, and you have nothing on a snake'." Jones could not remember saying in reply to that "Thank you." Defendant had the bundle of papers under his arm at the time when he was struck. He did not say, "I ought to slap you over the ears with the 20 Women's Weeklies," and I did not say, "Yes, you ought to," and then Otty struck him.

By Mr. Joseph: He did not say anything about hitting me over the head with the 20 "Women's Weeklies" when he struck me.

THE DEFENCE.

William George Otty deposed that on July 12 he called at plaintiff's shop about 2.30 p.m. to obtain his "Women's Weeklies" from him. When he picked up the papers he noticed there were only 20 copies for him. He received 24 the previous week. He said to the plaintiff calmly, "Is this the best you can do for me," and he replied, "Yes." He then said to the plaintiff "Do you think you are treating me quite fairly?" and Jones stated, "There is no need for me to discuss the matter; you simply don't exist." Jones then walked away from him and ignored him, and later when the shop was empty except for a Mr. Fred Williams he said to plaintiff: "I don't want to say this, but you are nothing more or less than a black snake; you have got nothing on a snake and a snake has got nothing on you," and in reply to that Jones said "Thank you" and walked away from him, and from then on ignored him.

"YOU'VE GOT NO BRAINS."

Witness went on to say that later he called to the plaintiff "Are you game to come down here" and Jones muttered something which he could not catch at first, but the concluding words were, "You'll do no good; you've got no brains." In reply Otty said, "I'd like to get you down the back steps for a few minutes" and if you were half a man you would come." Just at this stage the previous witness (Smith) came into the shop and plaintiff walked towards the other side of the shop. Otty then commenced to walk out of the shop, and when he arrived at the passageway between the long and short counters plaintiff stepped in front of him. As he did so he brushed him, or may have bumped him slightly and as he turned round and faced Otty the defendant said, "I'm sorry." In reply to this Jones said, "You're not a bit sorry" and later defendant remarked, "I ought to slap you over the ears with these 20 "Women's Weeklies" and Jones said, "Yes, you ought to."

"STRUCK JONES WITH RIGHT FIST."

Continuing, Otty went on to say that he struck Jones with his right fist on the mouth and he was definitely facing him when he struck. At that time the "Women's Weeklies" were under his left arm, and plaintiff raised his hands slightly and then called to one of his girls, "Ring for the police" and in reply to this witness stated, "There is no necessity, I am leaving." He had dealt with the plaintiff since 1925, and in 1939 he purchased a mixed business at the corner of Auckland and Herbert Streets. In July, 1939, he tendered for the rights of the bookstall at the Gladstone Railway Station, and when he obtained the rights he was able to make satisfactory arrangements for the supply of all papers except the "Women's Weekly," "Smiths Weekly," "Sydney Bulletin" and "Women's Mirror." The proprietors of those four papers told him it was not their practice to appoint agents indiscriminately, but that he would be able to draw his needs through the plaintiff, and he obtained his supplies from Jones from time to time. In December, 1941 he was obtaining 102 copies of the "Women's Weekly" through the plaintiff, but in July Jones cut his supply down to 20 weeklies, and this put his newspaper business at both the shop and the bookstall into a chaotic state.

PAPER SUPPLIES.

When Otty applied for the "Women's Weekly" the proprietors did not put any restriction on him as to where he was to sell them, and plaintiff did not do so either. All the periodicals and papers that he obtained through Gordon & Gotch he was compelled to restrict for sale to the railway bookstall. All other papers and periodicals he handled had no restrictions whatever. No restrictions were placed on him by the proprietors of the "Sydney Bulletin," "Women's Weekly," or "Women's Mirror." Owing to his papers being reduced by Jones, and being unable to supply his patrons, he had lost their custom to the plaintiff. On several occasions as his supplies were being reduced he asked Jones if he could not maintain his supplies, knowing that he was under no cut himself. He simply would shrug his shoulders or say "No." This town had never been blocked in regard to the sale of newspapers and he only invited the plaintiff to come outside on one occasion. Jones never said to him it would be better if he went to his shop and started work. If Otty stood on the toe of the plaintiff's boot it was quite accidental, and he was unaware of it.

At this stage of the proceedings Mr Larcombe intimated that his defence was directed to the mitigation of damages only.

OTTY CROSS EXAMINED.

By Mr. Joseph: Plaintiff had no block rights as far as Gladstone was concerned other than the Gordon & Gotch agencies. He made one application through the member for a direct agency of the "Women's Weekly," but he never received a reply. He had never been advised by the plaintiff or the "Women's Weekly" that he was prohibited selling that paper off the railway platform. When he first got the papers from the plaintiff he did not tell him they were only to be sold at the railway bookstall, and if Jones said he did it would be a lie.

"COME OUT AND FIGHT."

In March, 1943, it was pointed out to him by Gordon & Gotch that he was restricted to selling their publications away from the railway bookstall, and since that time he had not done so. Gordon & Gotch had reduced his supplies by 10 per cent. and all his papers come addressed to the railway bookstall. If he did not have that stall he could still get the daily papers. After he had seen the cut in his supplies on July 12 he wanted the plaintiff to come out and fight, but it was not a common thing for him to go looking for fights.

"AIMED AT HIS CHIN."

About six months ago Otty had a struggle with a man named Sanders out in front of his shop, and he struck Mr. Tweed in self defence about twelve months ago. Within the last eight or nine months a Mr Duke wanted him to come out of his shop and fight, but as he was in the shop by himself he could not do so. He did not know that Duke was a sick man. At Mr. Treacy's residence last Saturday he wanted to throw him (Otty) down the steps, and he did not show his right fist to Treacy and say to him, "This is what I did to Jones." When Otty found his "Women's Weeklies" were reduced down to twenty he was very annoyed, and so much so that he wanted the plaintiff to come out and fight. It was quite possible that he deliberately bumped into plaintiff, and had he accepted his apologies at the time that would have been the end of it. Actually he did deliberately bump him, so his apology, "I'm sorry," was purely sarcastic. That was the first occasion when he hit anyone in the mouth, and when he struck plaintiff his hands were down, but immediately afterwards Jones raised them. He thought plaintiff was expecting the blow, but he had no particular reason for striking Jones on the mouth, and added, "I think I aimed at his chin."

SANDERS INCIDENT.

By Mr. Larcombe: The incident with Sanders occurred about six months ago. He is a carter employed by Friends and he had two dozen bottles of methylated spirits on the cart for him, and Sanders wanted empty bottles in exchange right away, but he did not have any empty bottles to replace them. Otty asked Sanders to leave the methylated spirits and told him he would let them have the two dozen empty bottles later in the week when he could dig them up. Witness then endeavoured to take the methylated spirits off the lorry, telling Sanders he would take full responsibility, but he caught hold of Otty, and they had a struggle and he pushed the witness aside. Otty told Sanders next morning that he regretted the incident, and said as far as he was concerned he had forgotten about it. Tweed and Otty were now good friends.

The case was then adjourned until to-morrow (Thursday).

DEFENCES OF AUSTRALIA

LABOUR GOVERNMENT REDUCED DEFENCE VOTE

POSITION SUMMED UP BY MR. C. P. WARD, C.N.O. CANDIDATE

In the first place I may say that I have no excuse or apology to make for contesting this election against a member who has represented the Capricornia electorate for 20 years, and who at the present time holds the position of Minister for the Army, said Mr. C. P. Ward, the endorsed C.N.O. candidate for Capricornia, in his opening remarks in his address to the electors in the Town Hall on Thursday night. Mr. Ward was supported by Mr. L. W. Luckins, M.L.A. (member for Mareel). The Deputy Mayor (Ald. W. R. Golding) presided, and introduced the speakers.

RESIDENT OF ROCKHAMPTON.

I have been a resident of the city of Rockhampton for upwards of five years, and all my interests are centred in the district. When I decided to make an important change in my life and to launch out in business on my own account I chose the Central Division of Queensland to take the chance. It is a tribute to the opportunities which exist in this region for all men of energy and enterprise, if they are given the chance, that I can claim to have achieved some measure of success. Whatever that success has been, all my interests are here and if I am returned as member for this division it is natural that my energies shall be directed to the advancement of the division and its people.

ROCKHAMPTON AND GLADSTONE.

I am, as you know, a resident of Rockhampton. I understand that before my time there used to be some rivalry between Rockhampton and Gladstone, on the score of shipping and roads. Rivlray between towns and cities is not a new thing. It has existed throughout history, and so far as I can gather, so long as it is a healthy rivlary it never does much harm. In the case of Gladstone and Rockhampton it certainly has done no harm, for both have made, and are making, steady progress, which I feel sure will continue.

In the case of Gladstone this has been most marked. I remember the town a few years ago, when it was not perhaps quite so progressive as it has since become. I feel sure that the progress will continue under the stimulus of sympathetic consideration from those who have post war reconstruction in hand.

FALSE AND TRUE ISSUES.

Now as you all are aware, elections are fought on what are known as "issues." There are real issues and false issues. Many elections have been fought and won on false issues. It is of the greatest importance to Australia that this election, above all others, shall be fought on true issues.

At a meeting in Rockhampton Senator Cooper made a remark which made a deep impression on me. It was that this election was probably the most important that had ever been held in Australia, and that its result would determine the Government which would rule the lives of our people for many years to come. That, I think, is true. And for that reason, above all others, we must make sure first and foremost that the election is fought on real issues. All political parties naturally would like to chose their own election issues, just as the man who is going in to fight would like to chose his own weapons. It is clear that the Labour Government is fighting this election and seeks return first and foremost on the defence issue.

DEFENCE ISSUE.

And what is the defence issue?

Reduced to the simplest and plainest terms it is this:—

That the Menzies-Fadden Government neglected the defences of Australia, that they adopted a defeatest attitude towards the war, and if it had not been for the Labour Party coming to the rescue we would have been in a sorry plight. That Menzies and Fadden took no steps for our protection, and Curtin and Forde and Eddie Ward and Senator Collings are the saviours of the country. That is what Mr. Forde is telling you, and he expects you to believe it and return him to Parliament again on the strength of it.

LABOUR'S TWO VOICES.

I think I can safely leave any intelligent person who has followed the events of the last three years and whose memory can go back a little further to make his own comment on that particular claim. But I will quote an authority which throughout his ministry has been very favourably disposed towards Mr. Curtin. That is the "Sydney Morning Herald." In a recent article, entitled "Labour's Two Voices," it said:—

"A more impudently fraudulent issue was never devised for the gulling of voters than that on which Labour hopes to concentrate electoral attention. The strutting of the party's pacifist demagogues, posing now as the militant saviours of the country, and ranting against 'guilty men,' merely arouse derision. Their records are rank: their effrontery is limitless."

After Mr. Curtin became Prime Minister, he not only declared that we were able to defend ourselves, but told Parliament six weeks after Labour had assumed control that Australia was never before so well prepared for war as it was then.

MR. CURTIN PAYS TRIBUTE.

Six months before becoming Prime Minister Mr. Curtin said:

"I claim that the war has been prosecuted to the maximum of Australia's capacity."

This was six months before Japan entered the war. After he had been in office a whole year Mr. Curtin saw no reason to change his opinion.

At a Labour rally in the Sydney Town Hall on October 12, 1942, Mr. Curtin said:—

"I pay tribute to the Governments which preceded my own for the constructive work they have done in defence and the foundations they have laid."

"DEFENCE VOTE SHOULD BE REDUCED."

In 1938, the last year of the Lyons Government, members of the Curtin Government urged that the defence vote should be substantially reduced instead of "calamitiously" increased. That was only a year before war broke out. At the same time Mr. Curtin declared in Parliament that the international crisis had passed. This is what he said:—

"I say that any increase of defence expenditure after the Munich pact, so far as Australia is concerned, appears to me to be utterly unjustifiable and an hysterical piece of panic propaganda."

With these contradictory statements of the Prime Minister and other Government leaders before us, does it not strike you what a total lack of sincerity and untruthfulness there is with these men? And if we cannot look for truth and sincerity from our national leaders, where are we to look for it?

Twenty-three years ago a Trades Union Conference, attended by six of the present ministers, including Mr. Curtin, denounced compulsory military training as "morally degrading." Ten years later Labour abolished compulsory military training and stripped the country of such defences as it possessed. As late as December 1939 (three months after the outbreak of war) Mr. Curtin denounced the calling up of young men for home defence training. He said the Menzies Government affronted the patriotism of the people by the imposition of compulsory training, and that there was no justification for it, and that he was irrevocably and unequivocally opposed to it.

I say emphatically that if any affront has been offered it is the affront to the intelligence of the people of Capricornia, when Mr. Forde gets up and says that a party of which he is Minister for the Army and which tried to prevent the youth of the country already at war from being taught to bear arms, should now pose as the only party fit to govern in war time.

"THAT SCOUNDREL CHURCHILL."

Now, I could go on quoting indefinitely of the things which our new-found saviours of the country were saying about the time when war broke out and Australia was collecting its first divisions for overseas—those magnificent young men who won such proud honour for Australia in the Middle East, and many of whose people are in this audience to-night. I will, however, recall to you that notorious outburst of Senator Collings, who referred to one of the greatest men the world has known as: "That scoundrel Churchill, the mad dog of Europe."

Here also is a comment by General Brand, a man with an honoured career in the last war:—

"It makes my blood boil when I hear politicians who never did a day's soldiering in their lives, never wanted anyone to train to defend their country, and never raised their voice or lifted a finger to help us in the first world war, airing their views on military strategy and battle tactics."

OTHER SIDE OF PICTURE.

Now, the other side of the picture. Everything must have a beginning. Before a building can be erected the foundations must be laid. Before a harvest can be reaped the seed must be planted. In no field of human endeavour is it more necessary for planning sound foundations than in the arming of a nation. The whole of this war has proved that.

The real facts are that when the Labour Government came into power Australia was manufacturing the famous three point seven anti-aircraft gun, the twenty-five pounder, and the Beaufort bomber, and had advanced them to mass production stage. We had raised four divisions of the A.I.F., 70,000 Australians were in training for the Empire air scheme, a start had been made in the face of strong Labour criticism with the Women's Auxiliary Services that have proved of such great value to us. And yet responsible ministers—men like Mr. Forde and Mr. Curtin—stand up and tell us that nothing was done, that it was they who saved the country.

I say that these Labour politicians, in an endeavour to throw mud at their political opponents, are libelling thousands of men and women who gave magnificent service in the production of the implements of war whilst these politicians were not lifting a finger to help Australia.

LABOUR NEGLECTED AUSTRALIA.

Now, I do not propose to pursue this matter any further at this juncture. I think I have put before you evidence which shows these people up in their true colours. It is they who are the defeatists, they who would have neglected Australia's safety. The application of a little common sense on your part exercised when you go to the ballot box on August 21st will give them the answer they so rich deserve.

MAIN POINTS.

Now, to briefly review for you my grasp of the main points in Mr. Fadden's policy speech, let me say:

Whilst it is necessary to offer strong criticism of our opponents at this election on account of the outrageous claims they are making in connection with the defences of Australia, I will admit that criticism of one's opponent is in itself not a sufficient claim to ask you to return me to Parliament. An old and tried campaigner of my acquaintance often said:

"The candidate who does nothing but criticise his opponents is not long in convincing his audience that he has nothing else to talk about."

AUSTERITY MESSAGES

From the wives . . .
. . . of AUSTRALIA'S LEADERS

"All true Australian women are wholeheartedly behind the nation's war effort; but not every woman realises how important she is in that war effort. Saving every penny, cutting down every luxury, just "doing without" are dull sacrifices but these sacrifices are the very foundations of a total war. By her efforts the home front woman makes possible the splendid work of her sisters in the services and in the factories. She carries a great and proud responsibility — from the nation's homes must come the nation's savings."

CURRENT TOPICS

COMMERCIAL BANKING COY. OF SYDNEY.

The General Manager (Mr. C. Darvall) of the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney Ltd., advises by advertisement in our business columns that the Mount Larcom branch of the bank will be closed on Monday, August 30, and that the business will be transferred to the Gladstone (Q.) branch. A receiving office will be conducted at Mount Larcom each Friday between the hours of 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

P.O.W. SCHEME.

Gladstone's Prisoner of War street scheme is well organised, and continues to return approximately £1400 per annum. The joint organiser Mr. D. J. Connellan, banked £140 on Thursday being collections by ladies for the period July 1 to August 11. Two original collectors, in Mesdames G. Hartley and Mortimer Tait have had to temporarily give up their books. These two ladies did splendid work in the early part of the scheme, and continued to collect weekly since last February. Boy Scouts have been assisting Mrs. Tait in recent months. The organisers would be pleased to hear from any ladies living in Bramston Street and Central Lane who could take over the books. Mrs. Masterson has returned and resumed her collections in Gondoon Street, which were kindly taken over by Mrs. Hall in her absence.

Many friends will regret to learn that the joint secretary of the Red Cross, Mrs. H. P. Browne, has been ill for the past fortnight, and unable to attend to her usual duties. Members will join in wishing her a speedy recovery.

AMBULANCE BALL.

The annual bearers' dance in aid of the Gladstone Ambulance Brigade was held in the Trocadero on Friday night. The dance was well patronised by Gladstone and district people, and reflected great credit on all who helped to make it a success. The Committee wish to thank everyone who gave their support. Hon. Bearer Geo. Curran acted as M.C., and carried out the duties in his usual capable manner. The raffle was in the hands of Hon. Bearer Alf Barker, assisted by Hon. Bearer G. Bruce and Mr. Frank Farmer. The Treasurer (Mr. Alf Fry) was in chage of the ticket selling, and the doorkeepers were Messrs. A. T. Power and W. O'Reilly (chairman and deputy chairman, respectively). All carried out their respective duties in a most capable manner. The music was supplied by Miss G. Ward (piano), V. Royston (violin and trumpet), and R. Brennan (drums). The shipping bag of groceries was won by Mr. F. Pashley (ticket No. 1243D), the Monte Carlo by Miss C. Barker and partner (Mr. T. Judge), and the spot onestep by Miss Josie Reaney and partner (Mr. V. Breslin). Next Ambulance dance will be held at Calliope on August 14, when a good time is assured.

"VOTE FORDE OUT"

REASONS OUTLINED

Mr. Barnes at Gladstone

Mr. Frank Barnes, the "bombshell" in Australian politics, after addressing record political meetings at Monto, Rockhampton and Mt. Morgan, continued his record here on Wednesday night by addressing the largest wet night meeting Gladstone has ever seen.

PORT OF GLADSTONE.

Mr. Barnes said Gladstone was not only the best natural port in Queensland, but the second best natural port in Australia but it had not been pushed ahead because it has had no real assistance from its State and Federal members. A striking example of this is the Gladstone water scheme. The only way to cure this ill is to show both Mr. Forde and the State member (Mr. Williams) that their seats are not "safe" any more by voting—

[2] FORDE
[1] WARD

"MAN-MADE DEPRESSION."

Mr. Barnes criticised a number of statements which he claimed Mr. Forde had made, including one "that there must not be a repetition of the dark days of the man-made depression."

This man-made depression, said Mr. Barnes, was allowed by Jack Scullin, because he was Prime Minister at the time, and he should have hunted Sir Otto Niemeyer back to England as fast as he came here. Then there would not have been a depression. Nor would there have been one if Sir Denison Miller, the Governor of the Commonwealth Bank, had been alive as just previously, in 1923 when the world bank smash was on. Sir Denison saved the Australian banks from ruin. Over 1400 banks went smash in America alone at that time. This reminds me of Sir Denison's historic saying: "What is physically possible I will make financially possible."

FARMERS' SONS.

Mr. Barnes went on to say that the Prime Minister made the following statement 12 months ago: "If I have to chose between manpower for an army and manpower for food production, I would choose the former."

This is what Mr. Curtin has done, Mr. Barnes added. He has sent the farmers sons to war, then his labourers, then his machinery, and if a farmer had any machinery left he has no petrol with which to run it. The result is that primary production has dropped more than 33 per cent all over Australia, which eventually means "hungry stomachs." This along with the main communist doctrine of bloodshed means revolution, because all revolutions are made possible by "hungry stomachs."

SOLDIERS' PAY.

Mr. Barnes said Mr. Forde's skiting that his Government had increased soldiers' pay 1/6 a day and the old age pension 1/6 a week was humorous to him, because in reality they had reduced their pay. The old age pensioner to-day can buy about 4/6 worth goods less than he could have bought two years ago; that makes him 3/- a week worse off than he was two years ago! What is the use of increasing their pay and allowing the price of goods to go up higher than their increased pay? said Mr. Barnes.

Just fancy Mr. Forde skiting about a 1/6 a day increase in our soldiers' pay: they should be getting 18/- a day, the same as the Americans are getting. This argument alone proves that the American Government must be a three times better Government than his (Mr. Forde's) Government.

There is no Government in the world better than a true Labour Government. A true Labour Government would pay our soldiers this pay without increasing taxation, by using the Commonwealth Bank the way King O'Malley (the founder) wanted it to be used.

"VOTE FOR WARD."

An interjector asked: Do you want us to vote Tory, Mr. Barnes?

Mr. Barnes replied: You have no alternative, because the candidates are both Tories. It is just a matter of working out which Tory would be better to vote for, and you will agree that Mr. Ward has declared himself as a Tory, so you know where you stand with him. But Mr. Forde is a Tory wearing the Labour uniform, and you don't know where you stand with him.

I am asking you to vote Forde out, not to vote Tory, continued Mr. Barnes, but in voting Forde out you have no alternative but to vote for Ward. I am not interested in Mr. Ward; I am only interested in giving the A.L.P. and Q.C.E. the lesson they should have got years ago.

INDIRECT TAXATION.

In answer to another interjection about Indirect taxation, Mr. Barnes said: "In Pitt's time you could tax the past.

HARBOUR BOARD

Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Harbour Board was held yesterday. Present: Messrs. A. W. Drewe, W. R. Golding, J. F. Donovan, E. W. Crow, C. S. Schache, and the Secretary (Mr. A. D. Hopper).

Owing to the absence of the Chairman through illness, Mr. A. W. Drewe was appointed acting chairman. Apologies were received from Messrs. C. W. Macfarlan (chairman) and R. S. Wilson for non-attendance, and they were granted leave of absence from the meeting.

The District Engineer, Main Roads Commission, Rockhampton, was written to regarding hire charges on and the return of the Board's pile-driving equipment.

The Gladstone Unemployment Board invited delegates from the Harbour Board to meet members of the Board at its next meeting to discuss any post war schemes the Board may have for the utilisation of the services of men and women now engaged on war duties.

The Chairman of the Works Committee (Mr. W. R. Golding) and Mr. E. W. Crow were appointed to represent the Board.

FINANCE.

Payments amounting to £173/13/9 were confirmed and accounts amounting to £122/15/5 passed for payment.

It was decided to remit a further £1500 to the Treasury Department on account of interest and redemption.

WEDDING BELLS

BURDEN-RIGBY.

A wedding of interest to Gladstone and Adelaide (S.A.) residents was celebrated at St. Saviour's Anglican Church, Gladstone, when the marriage of A.C.W. Joan Eva, fifth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rigby, Roseberry Street, Gladstone, to Corporal Maxwell Harold Robert, of the R.A.A.F., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Burden, Walkerville (S.A.), was solemnised.

Revd. Bode was the officiating clergyman, and Mrs. J. Busteed presided at the organ.

The bride, who wore her service uniform entered the church on the arm of her father.

Mrs. C. D. Ryalls, sister of the bride, attended as matron of honour, and was frocked in a dusty pink jumper suit with navy accessories.

Mr. L. J. Rigby, brother of the bride, was best man.

The wedding breakfast was held at the Geisha Cafe, the main feature of the table being a two-tiered cake, made by the bride's mother.

Mrs. Rigby, mother of the bride, received the guests wearing a black wool de chene ensemble and accessories.

Among the toasts honoured was "Absent Relatives," Sam, Connie, Alex and Bob (brothers and brothers-in-law of the bride, who are all on active service).

The young couple left by the afternoon train for Adelaide, where the honeymoon was spent. Both have since returned and rejoined their units in the north.

the shirt off a man's back by indirect taxation, and he would not complain. I say you can now tax the gold out of a man's back teeth by indirect taxation without even disturbing the conversation!"

ELECTION FIGURES.

Mr. Barnes said that at the last election the Social Credit movement of Capricornia voted for Forde to the man because of his promise to introduce monetary reform, and because he failed to do this the Social Credit voters are voting against him this election, which means the Social Credit candidate the election before last (six years ago) polled 6000 votes, which at a minimum has doubled in six years. This means 12,000 of Mr. Forde's last election votes of 33,000 will be reduced to 21,000. Add 12,000 to the Tory's 23,000 last election, and Mr. Ward will poll 35,000 votes. Supposing there are only 6000 Social Credit votes this time. This means 6000 from Mr. Forde's 33,000, which leaves him with 27,000; and 6000 on to the Tory candidate's 23,000 last times will give Mr. Ward 29,000 votes. Remember, two elections ago Mr. Forde had an absolute majority of only 443.

LABOUR FARMERS.

This time most of the Labour farmers, the soldiers, and the true Labour man will also be voting against Mr. Forde, so why waste your vote? Vote (2) Forde, (1) Ward, and give the A.L.P. and Q.C.E. a lesson, which they badly need.

"SHOW YOUR PROTEST."

Show your protest to these Communistic actions by voting (2) Forde (1) Ward, and make, as I have said previously, Mr. Forde an example to the whole of the Australian Labour parties. If you don't protest you will get the apathy you have received in

TOWN CLERK

MR. GRAYSON RESIGNED

Joined the R.A.A.F.

Mr. R. H. Grayson, who has occupied the position of Town Clerk with the Gladstone Town Council for the past 12½ years, has joined the R.A.A.F., and left on Wednesday to take up his duties with the equipment section of the Air Force at a southern base.

Mr. Grayson has been an efficient and popular officer, and his many friends will join in extending best wishes for success and a safe return. He actually enlisted some 12 months ago, but was not called upon until last week, when he was successful in passing the necessary tests.

A well-known sportsman, Mr. Grayson is perhaps best remembered by his association with early Rugby League football, when he was one of the three-quarter stars in that brilliant pre-war combination, the Waratahs.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

The Muspratt family still await official news of Driver Arthur Muspratt, who has been posted as missing in Malaya.

Gnr. Mona Muspratt, of Littlemore, and now of the A.W.A.S., has recently been home on leave. She has now rejoined her unit in the south.

Corporal Eric and Sapper Roger Muspratt are home on three weeks' leave with their parents at "Littlemere" after 18 months in New Guinea, and are thoroughly enjoying their leave, but finding it very cold after the tropical heat.

Corporal Noel Muspratt, who is a P.R.T. instructor, is now stationed in Toowoomba. He has come across several Gladstone lads during his term as instructor in various other centres, mostly team-mates or opponents of the good old football days.

MISSING REAR GUNNER.

Recently, when Rear Gunner Jack Ryalls was reported missing in air operations over Germany, mention was made of a recent promotion. Mr. J. T. Ryalls, of Monto, has now received official word from R.A.A.F. headquarters of the promotion of his son Flight Sergt. J. Ryalls to the rank of pilot officer as from May 11—just two weeks before he was posted missing. Sergt. Con Ryalls advises that on a visit to Jack's squadron's headquarters in England information was available which leads him to believe that a Lancaster aircraft which came down over the Dutch coast will prove to be the one in which Jack was a member of the crew. Hockey enthusiasts will be pleased to learn that Con still retains his form, as in a recent game with an R.A.F. team against Southampton he scored three goals, the game ending in a 3-all draw.

TOWN COUNCIL

LOW VOLTAGE AT STATION

Boyne Water Scheme

At the Town Council meeting last Monday night the Deputy Mayor (Ald. Golding) moved that a minute be placed on record expressing the Council's appreciation of the excellent work performed by Mr. Grayson over a lengthy period in the Council's employ.

Aldermen Smith, Tudman, Busteed and Deveney joined in wishing Mr. Grayson every good fortune.

The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), who was indisposed, also sent a message expressing his best wishes.

At Monday night's meeting of the Gladstone Town Council the General Manager Central Queensland Railways wrote drawing the Council's attention to the low voltage and poor lighting which resulted in very indifferent illumination at the Gladstone Railway Station. The Electricity Manager (Mr. E. W. Phillips) is to report on the matter.

The Insurance Commissioner advised through Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., that the term of the £90,000 debenture loan for the construction of the final section of the Boyne water scheme had been extended from 15 to 30 years.

The Department of Public Lands advised that authorised surveyor Mr. W. R. Groundwater had been appointed to carry out the survey of the pipe line from the Boyne River to Gladstone. Letters from Mr. Axon (consulting engineer) re whether electricity was to be used for pumping the Boyne water, and Mr. W. H. Reinhold (consulting engineer) re cost of using steam for pumping, were held over until the Mayor attended the next meeting of the Council.

The Calliope Shire Council acknowledged a communication from the Council concerning the proposal to draw up a joint scheme of post war work for consideration by the Unemployment Exchange Board. This is to be dealt with at the next meeting of the Shire Council.

It was decided to support a proposal by the South Gladstone and Barney Pt. Progress Association in its efforts to have the Parsons Pt. State School removed to a more suitable site.

COMFORTS FUND

MONTHLY STREET STALL

The usual monthly street stall in aid of the joint A.C.F. and Patriotic Appeal Fund will be conducted in the Grand Hotel buildings on Friday, August 20.

The convenor, Mrs. C. W. Macfarlan would appreciate donation of jam, fruit cakes, vegetables, sweets, or any other home manufacture or articles for sale on that date.

Donations may be left with the convenor, or at Gladstone Cash and Carry, or Mrs. Macfarlan.

DO YOU REMEMBER

The Dreadful Depression after the last War?

AND

After long years of Tory Rule at Canberra?

WAGE AND SALARY EARNERS: 500,000 were unemployed.

HOUSEWIVES: Dreadful poverty invaded homes.

PARENTS: Children were undernourished and denied opportunity to learn a trade or profession.

FARMERS could not sell produce at reasonable prices.

BUSINESSMEN: Businesses languished because customers were unemployed.

PROPERTY OWNERS: Property values and income from property collapsed.

RETURNED SERVICEMEN AND WOMEN were promised the world, but received the dole amongst the unemployed.

YOUNG MEN could not afford to marry; they were ill-fed, ill-clothed. Unemployment and rations was their lot—they carried the swag the regulation number of miles weekly to qualify for rations.

YOUNG WOMEN were unemployed, poverty-stricken, and miserable. Potential sweethearts and husbands were on rations.

PRIVATE BANKING AND FINANCE COMPANIES foreclosed on mortgages and waxed fat and prosperous on the misery of the people.

AUSTRALIANS may never recover from economic and social evils resulting from that man-made depression.

THE LAST DEPRESSION enriched Monopoly Capitalism in many ways.

TORY PROFESSIONAL POLITICIANS, representing Monopoly Capitalism, had been in control for many years and were still in control when the depression overwhelmed us.

THE MENZIES-HUGHES-FADDEN, etc., etc., etc., Tories, represent Monopoly Capitalism to-day.

INFLUENCES WHICH CREATE DEPRESSIONS are now more powerful and potent than ever before.

PROSECUTE THE WAR

I think you people here to-night and all the electors of Capricornia, are entitled to know what is the policy of the party with which I am associated. You are entitled to know that, and I am now going to state it.

First of all, our policy is to prosecute the war on the battlefronts and on the home front to the utmost of Australia's capacity, so that this horrible war shall not be allowed to last one moment longer than is necessary.

Secondly, our policy is, when the war ends, to take full measures to see that the men and women in the services are returned to peaceful occupation with a minimum of dislocation and an absence of hardship. A most important measure to that end is the maintenance of servicemen until they have found a place in civil life. This is a most just provision in my opinion and it is the duty of all relatives of servicemen to vote for the Government which promises it.

Thirdly, our policy is to make over a certain amount of the money you are now paying in war time taxation, so that you will receive it back in the shape of post war credit certificates after the war. On top of that Mr. Fadden promises to make these post war credits retrospective to the time when his Budget containing a similar provision was defeated prior to the advent of the Curtin Government. That, I should say, is an undertaking that no body of people in their sane senses would reject.

Other points are: A generous repatriation scheme. Unqualified preference to employment of all members of the services. Two days' leave for every month of service for servicemen, after 12 months in tropical battle areas. Those who have already served 12 months to get this leave within six months.

Vigorous action to prevent inflation and keep down the prices of food clothing, and other essential commodities.

Award rates to servicemen working on the waterfront or doing work normally done by civilians.

National insurance to cover health, unemployment, medical and superannuation.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

The United Australia Party and the United Country Party are firmly convinced that the primary requisite is a National or All-party Government. They believe that for the duration of the war party politics should be set aside, that personal and sectional differences should be obliterated. The supreme purpose of the whole Commonwealth should be to co-ordinate and employ the nation's resources. Only in this way can Australia's contribution to ultimate annihilation of the Axis gangster be a maximum one.

COMMUNISM.

There are other important issues involved in this election, which I can only touch on briefly. The people of Australia are becoming gravely concerned about this matter of Australian Communism, which is something very different to Russian patriotism. No one more than the Australian is prepared to honour the Russians for the magnificent fight and the great sacrifices they have borne in defence of their country. But there is a growing fear in the public mind in Australia that this Communism aims to secure control of the industrial, political, social and religious life of our country. That is something we do not want, because we think it will rob us of that individuality, freedom and initiative which is the pride of all Australians, and for which we are fighting to-day.

STRIKES.

As to strikes and absenteeism, we must admit that these happenings have often caused us great concern. I want to say that I believe the great majority of Australian workers are loyal and honest, and wish to see the country perform its maximum war effort. But there is a small element which is out to frustrate that maximum effort. Our complaint is that these men have not been controlled as they should have been by the Government and the ministers whose duty it was to do so.

LABOUR INEFFICIENCY.

There has been inefficiency in ministerial administration and I claim that until this inefficiency disappears we will never get that peace in our industrial life which everyone, and none more than the great body of workers desire to see. You will never get it whilst we have men like Mr. Eddie Ward as Minister for Labour and National Security.

DRIFTING TO INFLATION.

Australia's money policy also is a matter of great concern to all our people. We are drifting towards that dreaded inflation that has brought ruin to so many other countries. It is believed, and I think with reason, that the policy which the Labour Government is pursuing in the issue of so much paper money will have that effect, and if it should come about you must realise what it will mean to the little bit of money you have in the bank and upon the value of your insurance policy when you come to use it.

WHISPERING CAMPAIGN

Not only are these Labour politicians lying with regard to such matters as the Brisbane line and who saved Australia—they are circulating even baser falsehoods. It has come to my notice that a whispering campaign has started that if Mr. Forde is defeated it will mean the end of old age pensions and that there will be no more child endowment.

Surely no sensible person will believe this! No Government will interfere with these pensions or endowment. In fact, I think that after the war greater social services will be available to the people of Australia. Instead of taking things away from you Mr. Fadden promises to give you something that Labour took away from you. He will convert some of your present taxes into post war certificates, and will make these certificates retrospective to the time when his Budget containing a similar proposal was defeated by Mr. Curtin, Mr. Forde, and others.

LOCAL INDUSTRIES.

On the question of local industries I am aware that Gladstone is largely dependent for its prosperity on an industry with which I can claim to have a fairly close knowledge, since I make my own living in connection with it. That is the beef cattle industry. There are over one million beef cattle in Central Queensland. They are the basis of the prosperity of the entire district. When the beef cattle industry is having a bad time, so is everything else having a bad time. You all have some idea of the work which the industry provides for stockmen, drovers and other bush workers. When the cattle are ready for the market and have to be trucked they provide much work for railwaymen, and the freights contribute largely to the revenue of the State. But that is not all. Many thousands of workers in this district enjoy good employment at the Meatworks as a result of the beef cattle industry. At Lakes Creek we have the largest meat works in Australia, employing 2000 men and women. Gladstone does not fall far short of this. Then there are the thousands of others who derive employment because of the wages earned by meatworkers for the treatment of the stock and the price derived by the owners for their sale.

It will be a bad day for Central Queensland if through any cause whatever a setback were to be given to the beef cattle industry.

At the present time it is receiving a setback through the number of men taken away from the country by reason of the manpower call-up. Wherever I have been in country districts during the election I have found that the country has been denuded of men who would have been better left in the rural industries. Fences have had to go; improvements have had to be neglected.

"PRIMITIVE STATE."

Down at Abercorn a man told me that already his property had slipped half back to its primitive state. I say that the manpower position has been badly handled, particularly with regard to rural industries, and when we speak of rural industry in this part of Australia we speak of the beef cattle industry and of the dairying industry. I say that not only must the beef cattle industry be kept up to the highest point of efficiency so that it shall continue to contribute to the prosperity of towns like Gladstone and Rockhampton, but I believe that it is capable of doing much more. If there is anything in this talk of decentralisation of industry, we must look forward to the time when centres such as Gladstone and Bundaberg and Rockhampton shall have their secondary industries.

RAW MATERIALS.

The trend of the future, I believe, is that raw materials shall be manufactured close to the source of supply. In that case Rockhampton and Gladstone should have tanneries to treat the hundreds of thousands of hides that now go away to be tanned. And when the leather has been tanned here we should have factories to turn out boots and leather goods.

That, in my opinion is what should be meant by decentralisation of industry. What applies to the hides applies also to other by-products. Look at the many uses to which lard us have them turned into the finished product here and not have them taken away to provide wealth and work for someone else. The days of the big bloated city should be over. Smaller cities give better living conditions and happier lives. Let us have one here.

"ALWAYS PROMISED"

Mr. Forde when he was here made some rather lavish promises regarding certain matters which are important to Gladstone's future. It seems strange to me that a man who has represented this town for the past 20 years should still be in the stage of promising to do things. Why has he not done some of them in the past, specially during that portion of the past when he has been acting Prime Minister?

That is the complaint I have found against Mr. Forde—that during his long term in Parliament he has always promised and never performed.

I have no intention, ladies and gentlemen of trying to out-do Mr. Forde in the field of promise. I am prepared to believe that this part of Capricornia has many needs and has perhaps suffered neglect in the past. If I am returned I shall make it my business to inform myself fully on all matters of this nature with which you are concerned, and to place them before the new Government, and to back them up with all the force at my command. I feel sure you will not ask more of me than that. If I were to promise more than I should not be worthy of that support I hope to receive from you.

But before concluding I will put the election before you as it appeals to me. You will study the respective policies, and I hope you will give some little attention to my own attitude to the bigger questions involved in the election and my interest in local affairs in weighing up my claim for your votes.

"SWING TOWARDS FADDEN."

In closing I would say this. It must be growing daily more apparent that at this election there is likely to be a big swing towards Mr. Fadden, because of the assurance he offers of a stable Government to enable Australia to finish the war at the earliest possible moment, and to lay the foundations for peace.

Already I have said that it is the opinion of competent people that whatever Government is returned will be in for a long time. There is a saying in the sporting world that it is a wise thing to be with the strength. That is my tip; I give it to the people of Capricornia. Return me as your member, and we will see if we cannot get more out of this Government than we have got out of the last. On this note I leave you.

VOTE OF THANKS.

Mr. P. A. Friend moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Ward, and this was carried by acclamation.

NEED FOR CHURCH UNITY

Church of England

Dean H. T. Langley, of Melbourne, preaching at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Sydney, said the deepest need of Christendom was unity. The Church was beginning to realise how divided she was and the grievous sin of her divisions.

"The problem is a specially urgent one for the Church of England," he said. "We have managed to keep within the same organisation and name, but we are made impotent by our distinct internal disintegration, and we are unable to speak as one Church to the world or to take any practical steps towards the goal of reunion."

He said that the recent meeting of the Constitution Committee in Sydney was a last, almost despairing effort to save the fruits of thirty years' work by the best minds of the Church. "Repeated failure and frustration has characterised the great movement to make the Church of England in Australia one in organisation and power to act as a united Church. At present the Church of England is made impotent and immobile in the life of the Australian nation, in which she is the largest religious factor, by the fact that she is content to remain in a loose assortment of provinces under different constitutions, and growing in divergence of teaching and practice.

The Church of England remains a congeries of independent and mutually exclusive dioceses. This would be serious at any time, especially for a Church which inherits a great national tradition, but in the midst of the most decisive turning point perhaps in the world's history, we are passive, disintegrated, and 'cribbed, cabined, and confined' by obsolete and out-moded machinery and a like mentality. We are living in an age of transition, and it is threatening us in Australia, where many young people render allegiance to Russian ideals rather than to the traditions of Britain.

We as a Church are standing still, not even marking time. The whole scene is shifting. At best it will leave us aside as irrelevant to its needs; at worst it may turn on us and rob us of our place.

Dean Langley is to be heartily commended for this frank and courageous utterance. It is especially welcome as coming from an Anglican.

AUCTION SALES

Second-Hand Goods

A senior officer of the Prices Branch from Canberra has visited Brisbane and inspected auction sales in the city. After interviewing auctioneers and furniture dealers he expressed satisfaction at the manner in which auction sales were conducted in Brisbane, and the way auctioneers and furniture dealers were co-operating with the Queensland Prices Branch.

This was stated by the Deputy Prices Commissioner (Mr. E. H. Lindsey), in reply to a report that an Army officer had "out-bid" civilians at an auction sale conducted in a northern centre.

Mr. Lindsey stated that all sales of second-hand goods, whether sold by dealers in their shops, by private persons, or by auction, were covered by the recent regulations applying to second-hand goods.

With regard to second-hand goods sold by auction, the order fixed the maximum prices at which they may be sold. In its application the order throws certain responsibilities on the auctioneer, of which the most important is that of ascertaining the prices of comparable new goods. The ceiling price of second-hand goods sold by auction is 75 per cent of the price at which a comparable new article would have been sold on April 12, 1943.

Objects of fine art and genuine antiques (not reproductions) are excluded from the operations of the order.

The order also lays down certain terms and conditions under which auctions may be conducted.

Mr. Lindsey said that the regulations applied to the whole of the State, and where an auctioneer did not comply with such regulations the Deputy Commissioner had power to prohibit him from conducting the auction. This power was used in Sydney recently when an auctioneer was found to have committed a breach of the regulations by selling above the ceiling price.

GRAVITATION MAIN

PROGRESS OF WORK

Mr. Tait's Report

At the last meeting of the Town Council the Works Overseer (Mr. R. Tait) reported on the progress of the work on the gravitation main for the period between June 24 and July 29.

During this period of five weeks there has been a lot of broken time on the job through the men not being available for the work. We have had only nine days pipe laying and seven days on earthwork.

The gang went off the job on to the wharves on July 2, and nine or ten of them returned to work again on July 22.

I understand the remainder of the men are on the sick list, so I have been working shorthanded since then. Some days only six men have reported for work. Up to July 29 1700 lineal feet of 12-inch main has been laid and jointed, and 4700 lineal feet of trenching has been opened up, and 3800 lineal feet of this length has been completed.

When the men went off the job on July 2 I was greatly relieved when Alderman Golding suggested that I send the tractor and grader to town. The tractor has been working intown continuously since then.

The truck-driver (G. Parsloe) and I were working in town with it cleaning up along the edges of the bitumen after the grader for a few days, and the rest of the time we were tarring the pipes.

Before the men went off the job I was making very good progress with the pipe laying, and if I could get a continuous run at it I feel confident that we could do 300 feet a day without increasing the gang.

The report was adopted.

HEENZO COUGH REMEDY USED BY FAMOUS PEOPLE

Many world-famous people, including Sir Harry Lauder, Mr. Peter Dawson, Miss Gladys Moncrieff, and Captain Frank Hurley, use and recommend HEENZO as a quick acting, economical and nice to take remedy for coughs, colds, catarrh, croup, bronchitis and influenza. You save lots of money by, in your own home, adding a bottle of Concentrated HEENZO (costs 2/-, all chemists and stores) to sweetened water, thus making ONE PINT of the Best Family Cough Remedy, equally good for adults and children.

Cutting down Our Apple TREES

WHEN a man plants an apple tree he does it to bring food and profit, not only to himself, but to those who come after him. An apple tree is productive wealth that a man can enjoy and, by caring for it, pass on to his children.

Life Assurance is much like an apple tree. If an A.M.P. policy be cared for, and properly fed, it will bring comfort and security to him who owns it, and succour to those who come after him.

There are people to-day who would confiscate or "regiment" all wealth, foolishly thinking that that would save them the labour of creating wealth for themselves. They would cut down all the apple trees to save themselves the trouble of caring for them and harvesting the yearly crop.

The members of the A.M.P. Society (one family in every three in the Commonwealth) would be wise to think on these new notions. Their Society has served them for nearly 100 years. They have £141,000,000 worth of wealth conserved for their own future use. Let them guard carefully these savings.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST V.D.

WOMEN WARNED

City Residentials Visited

A drive to protect servicemen from women infected with V.D. was made in Sydney during last week-end by a number of police from special vice and consorting squads.

Some women frequenting hotels and wine bars so as to meet soldiers who subsequently have been infected with the disease, were warned by the police.

Some city residentials also were visited, and from some of these young girls were removed.

A conference attended by United States and Australian officers, doctors, representatives of the Department of Health, police and various health and welfare bodies decided to ask each State Government to take immediate action to have all sufferers from V.D. treated under proper supervision.

The conference recommended that the police should be given powers to detain any girl reasonably suspected of having V.D.

It is thought that if immediate medical attention proved a girl was capable of infecting others she should be compelled to undergo proper treatment until cured, if necessary under detention in an institution.

This recommendation will be forwarded to the State Governments with the request that in the interests of

AUSTRALIAN-AMERICAN MARRIAGES

GIRLS TOLD DIFFICULTIES

Regulations and Legal Aspects

Prospective Australian wives of American servicemen are being interviewed by officers of the American Red Cross at the request of the U.S. Army.

These officers point before the girl the difficulties facing them in American marriages, and present the facts regarding the prospective bridegrooms' civilian position. In each instance they have to report to the men's commanding officers the type of girls interviewed.

On rare occasions only have any of the girls decided not to go ahead with the marriage.

American Red Cross Field Director (Mr. W. R. Elsbarty) sometimes interviews ten couples a week.

"There is every chance for happiness when an American boy marries an Australian girl," he said. "After all, it's only the difference in miles that separates us, isn't it? Almost every case has been one of genuine love, and almost all the girls should make grand wives."

"We do not give any opinion on the proposed marriages. We merely interview both parties and place the facts before the commanding officer of the man's unit. If he approves the marriage takes place.

"I've been two years in this country, and Australian young people are now aware of the regulations and legal aspects associated with Australian-American marriages.

"What we do try to do is to make each aware of the other's background, the type of homes they come from, and the jobs they have been doing, so that each may be sure that neither is hiding anything.

"We've had very few instances of couples who are not well matched," he added.

Parents of prospective brides are asked to sign papers showing that they are prepared to support the bride if her husband becomes a casualty, or until her allotment arrives.

Brides are told by American Red Cross officers that any children born to them become "foreign-born Americans," and that until the war is over there is little chance of them reaching America.

Soldiers marrying Australian girls must remain with their unit and wait until they reach America for their military release.

GLADSTONE GOLF CLUB

Week-End Games

Bundaberg Club Secretary (Mr. H. V. Golding), and one of that club's low markers, is spending a holiday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Golding, senr. There were no links in Gladstone when H.V. spent his boyhood here, but he has since done well at the game, and there was much interest to see how he would shape against the unofficial local champion, Harold O'Sing, who was his opponent on Saturday.

Allowing for the fact that the Bundaberg man was on a strange course, with very small greens, there was little between the pair in actual play. O'Sing shaded him in both matches over the week-end, and would probably hold his own with him on a neutral course, as the Gladstone player has proved himself previously on such long S.S.S. links as Toowoomba and Rockhampton.

In the bogey competition H. O'Sing 5 down, led Frank Peardon 6 down. Then came R. Elliott 7 down, and L. Collins 8 down.

ROOM AT HOSTEL

Hope To Raise £50

The President of the Gladstone branch of the C.W. Association (Mrs. H. Phillips) presided over the monthly meeting.

SILENT PRAYER.

The meeting opened with the singing of the National Anthem and "My Creed," the accompaniment being rendered by Miss Ward, which was followed by a two minutes' silent prayer for the fighting forces and those bereaved.

VISITORS WELCOMED.

Several apologies were received, and a goodly number of members were present, including two visitors—Mrs. Farmer (State President) and Mrs. Dougal.

Mrs. Phillips welcomed the visitors, and Mrs. Farmer suitably responded.

£100 CERTIFICATE.

Among the correspondence was the certificate of £100 interest free war loan, and the secretary asked that this should be lodged at the Commonwealth Bank with the rest of the documents. This was agreed to.

NO DISTRESS CASES.

Mrs. Leadbetter reported that owing to sickness, etc., the attendance at euchre had slightly fallen off. The secretary reported no distress cases, and no travellers' aid was required this month. The cottage was occupied and being well cared for. Two engagements have been received for the month for the rest room, and a religious body had asked permission to hold services on Saturday mornings. This was granted at a small rental.

HOSPITAL VISITED.

Hospital visiting had been carried on by Mesdames Phillips and Chapman, who have agreed to still do the ensuing month, and would like reading matter for men and children.

The thanks of the Association is due to Mesdames Gerber and Fleetwood for papers, etc., also to Master Barry Gerber for comics.

CAMOUFLAGE NET MAKING.

The convenor reported that camouflage net making was going steadily along, and a plentiful supply of twine was on hand.

The Association is sorry to lose Mrs. Paxton, who has been such a splendid help, but she has left two very good supervisors in charge at the C.W.A. Hall group, namely, Mesdames Bryan and Spork.

HOSTEL.

The dance to be held at the Trocadero on Friday next was discussed, and it was decided to erect the flags in the hall on Thursday night, if possible, and the flags will then be on display to the public on Friday for the small charge of 6d. The Association is hoping for good results, as it was desirous of having a room at the hostel dedicated to the branch. It is hoped to raise £50 for this purpuse.

Mrs. H. C. Moore has very kindly donated a pair of beautiful towels to be raffled, which with the fruit cake should bring in a fair amount. Several donations have also been promised, and the Gladstone Golf Club had offered to put on a day's play.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to all donors.

It was also decided that soft drinks be sold at the dance, and Mesdames Hamill, Duff, Baynton, and Chapman offered to attend to same.

TAG DAY.

Friday, August 20, will also be C.W.A. Tag Day, when tags will be on sale at 6d each. Tags numbered will be sold at the dance, with a prize for the lucky number.

MYSTERY PARCEL.

The mystery parcel was donated by Mrs. Baynton and won by Mrs. Hughes.

AFTERNOON TEA.

A very dainty afternoon tea was then served by the hostesses, Mesdames Wallace and Ryalls.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Among the recent appointments to the Justices of the Peace is Mr. Frank Cannan, of "Wangalee," Builyan. Frank is well known to tennis players in Gladstone and district, all of whom will join in congratulating him on his elevation to the Bench.

The many friends of Miss Dorothy Henderson, of Dalgetys Ltd., will be pleased to learn that she has made good progress after her recent illness.

Master Bruce Moore is home from his University studies on vacation. Bruce has been playing first grade Union football with Great Public Schools, which won the Brisbane premiership final last Saturday.

ATTEMPT TO SAVE CHILD'S LIFE

NEW DRUG USED

Discovered by Accident

The American public is watching a dramatic use of the newly discovered miracle drug, penicillin, believed to be a more powerful internal bacteria killer than sulfa.

The patient is two-year-old Patricia Malone, of New York. She is suffering from septicemia, and failed to respond to transfusions and sulfa drugs.

Doctors pronounced that an immediate dose of penicillin alone offered a 100 to one chance of saving the child's life.

Urgent requests were made to Washington for the release of some of the drug by the U.S. Army, which is holding yet inadequate supplies reserved for its use.

Physicians report a slight improvement in the conditions of the child, who is fighting for life in an oxygen tent, watched by her parents and doctors.

Penicillin is the discovery partly of an Adelaide doctor, Professor of Bacteriology at Adelaide University (Dr. Florey), now at Oxford University.

Penicillin, the new wonder drug, now being used in such dramatic circumstances to save a New York child's life, was discovered by accident. It was partly the work of an Adelaide doctor.

The drug is developed from common moulds, such as develop on old boots, stale bread, or other fungus and decaying matter.

In penicillin there has been found the cure for meningitis, pneumonia, and venereal disease, and possibly many other serious diseases, including bone infections.

It was first noticed by Dr. F. Fleming, of London, that bacterial cultures with which a little bit of mould had come into contact had immediately died.

Later the Professor of Bacteriology in Adelaide (Dr. Florey), now of Oxford University, saw the significance of this. To-day penicillin doses, which are injected, are measurel in Florey units.

Dr. J. V. Duhig, professor of pathology at the Queensland University, said that penicillin is not toxic to the human being, and its bacteria killing power is enormously in excess of that of the sulfa drugs, formerly the best known.

At the moment stocks are limited, and it is difficult to obtain sufficient quantities for use on a large scale. Research is being directed towards the discovery of a "salt" of the drug, which will remain stable in the human body long enough to exert its effect.

With this "salt" smaller quantities should be effective.

SCHOOL CHILDREN

Sleeping in Horse Stalls

In a scathing statement, Squadron Leader Watson-Brown, C.N.O. and N.C.P. Senate candidate, complained bitterly of the treatment of Queensland school children by the Army.

Squadron Leader Watson-Brown, who returned to Brisbane from a tour of the State, said that school children were actually sleeping on Charters Towers racecourse in horse stalls, the dirt floors of which were impregnated with manure.

The Squadron Leader said it was scandalous that schools, particularly boarding schools, should be taken over by the Army without provision being made for housing the children. No national emergency should require interference with the chilren's health and education. All other avenues should be considered before the sacrifice of children.

"Scandalous cases have been seen," Squadron Leader Watson-Brown said. "But the greatest scandal that could have ever been perpetrated is in the case of the schools at Charters Towers. Two hundred and forty children are accommodated in the dilapidated structures on the racecourse. Some of the children are actually sleeping in the horse stalls. It is a state of affairs that a civilised community could not [illegible]

Five miles further along the road, the Squadron Leader continued, there was a perfect workers' camp, with prefabricated huts and cement floors, kitchens and mess huts, and all necessary outbuildings. If this camp could be provided for workers, surely similar provision could at least be made for children, who formed the country's greatest asset.

Responsibility for this, Squadron Leader Watson-Brown added, rested on the shoulders of the Army Minister.

PARTY POLITICS

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—I believe you will agree with me that party politics is very largely responsible for the confusion and waste of our manpower, and other resources, which is in such startling evidence around us.

Men have been ruthlessly withdrawn by unqualified and irresponsible bureaucrats, from such essential activities as food production, activities for which it has taken men a lifetime to qualify, and compelled to fritter away their time.

I believe you will agree with me that it is impossible for political party hacks to represent their electors and the vested interests of their parties at the same time. Cowering beneath the lash of the party bosses, your representatives only protest feebly against the onslaught of bureaucracy and invariably vote for it as told. Hence the Planning Boards, Famine Boards, and plethora of rules and regulations at present thwarting the will of electors and hampering the war effort.

"By their fruits ye shall know them."

A vote for any party hack is a mandate for much worse treatment.

The only way to free ourselves from the creeping paralysis of bureaucratic control is to elect to Parliament men who are determined to resist bureaucratic control and all other policies which do not come from the people whom they are elected to represent.

In order to afford the people of Queensland an opportunity to register their utter hostility and resistance to these imposed policies, I have nominated as a candidate for election to the Senate.

Apart from the resistance to bureaucracy and other imposed policies, which I believe to be the outstanding desires of Queensland people at the present time, I do not believe that it is the function of a candidate to formulate policy. It is the function of electors to know clearly what they want in relation to each issue as it arises, and it is the job of the representative to learn from the electors what they want, and to apply all his power to urging their desires in Parliament. This, if elected, I promise faithfully to do. Moreover, I sincerely promise and undertake, at all times, to act in relation to my constituents in the folloing manner:—

(a) I will give my whole-hearted allegiance to my constituents, and derive from them, and from them only, the policies which I advocate and vote for in the Senate.

(b) I will make every effort to ascertain and advocate the will of my constituents, issue by issue, as they arise.

(c) I will vote against every measure brought before the Senate which does not implement the clearly expressed will of my constituents.

(d) I will resist to my utmost all pressure brought to bear upon me which does not arise from my constituents.

If elected I will make special arrangements to encourage constituents to set up policy groups, who will form a channel by which I can at all times be in close touch with the desires of my electors in relation to all issues as they arise. Yours, etc.,

J. N. KIDMAN.

Shortage OF FOODSTUFFS Who's to Blame?

IT is incredible in a land like Australia, that there should be shortages of meat, butter, eggs and vegetables. The cause is not far to seek. RECKLESS MISMANAGEMENT BY THE CURTIN GOVERNMENT has resulted in a call-up of men and women whose experience should have been retained to produce food not only for Australia, but also for our Allies overseas. The Curtin Government's catch-cry is that the commitments to our Allies must be met. There would have been enough for all, under wise Government direction. Make sure of that direction. BOMBING OF ROME

STRATEGIC AND OTHER REASONS

Mr. Churchill's Warning

The "bombing of Rome" has been a vexed question for some time. On the one hand there have been those who for reprisal or other reasons, have ardently advocated such a course, while on the other hand, there have been others who for cultural or religious reasons, have as ardently opposed it.

Now, Rome has been bombed, and in no half-hearted manner. What is the significance of the contentions? On both sides there has been a considerable amount of ill-informed opinion expressed.

Most of the confusion involved has arisen from the failure to recognise that there are really two Romes: the one the Rome of Michaelangelo and his confreres the present home of the Vatican, and the other the modern Rome, which Mussolini has brought into existence.

The Rome of the Vatican, which is a neutral State, none would wish to damage, and as far as possible it will undoubtedly be left unharmed: but Mussolini's Rome is bound to get all that is coming to it, for strategic and other reasons.

It will be remembered that at the time of the German blitz on London Mussolini asked permission of Hitler that Italian airmen be allowed to participate. This permission was granted, and Italians joined with the Germans in dropping bombs on the British capital. The Italian airmen desisted from this self-chosen task only when they found the going too hot for them.

At the time Mr. Churchill warned the Italians of what would come to them in due time, and now that it is coming to them they can have little ground for complaint.

It is not really, however, a matter of retaliation. The truth of it is this: Mussolino set out to make Rome a great industrial city, and just about trebled the size of its population, until it has become comparable with Sydney in size. Mussolini was asked to demilitarise Rome, but, believing it would not be bombed, replied with only arrogant refusal.

The factories of Rome, which feed the Italian war effort, are undoubtedly a military objective, and as such the United Nations are justified in bombing it. Because Mussolini has built factories in Rome is no reason why they should be immune from attack.

What is more importan is his: Mussolini has made Rome a vital rail communication centre. For geographical reasons the railway system of Italy is particularly vulnerable. The United Nations know that they need to disrupt Italy's rail communications to prevent men and munitions being sent to Sicily or to points on the mainland which may be attacked. In this system the railway station and the marshalling yards of Rome are a vital link. That is probably the main reason, and a justifiable one, why the United Nations have bombed Rome.

FASCISTS TO BLAME.

The head of Roman Catholicism in Queensland (Archbishop Duhig) took a definite stand against Fascism in his recent commentary on the bombing of Rome. He also stated that the views he expressed represented those of the Roman Catholic people of Queensland generally. He asserted that he was in no way associated with the cablegram on the bombing of Rome which had been sent to the Vatican on behalf of the bishops of Australia.

"I would sooner entrust the fate of Italy to the Allied Nations than to the Nazis," said the Archbishop. "We can give to Great Britain and America the credit of honourable intentions towards Rome and the head of the Catholic Church.

"Rome belongs, not to Italy alone, but to the entire world, from all parts of which pilgrims flock to it. It is not in any way suited to be a commercial capital. But the pride of the Fascists would not permit them to forgo its possession. They made it their capital; they turned it into military barracks, monasteries and schools."

"REAL LEADERSHIP"

MR. JOHN CURTIN

Statement by Mr. Forde

At no time in Australia's history has it been so necessary that real leadership should be provided by the man who is chosen as Prime Minister of this country. On August 21 the electors will have to decide a momentous question, which will profoundly affect the future of this country probably for many years to come, said the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde).

If the Labour Party is chosen to govern, then the Prime Minister will be Mr. John Curtin, who commands the absolute loyalty of his party, and who gave the country, the Parliament, and his own party members inspiring leadership during the last twenty-one months.

POSTERITY.

I am sure that posterity will assess Mr. Curtin as probably the outstanding Prime Minister that the country has ever had, judging him only upon his achievements over the last twenty months. He is capable of performing even greater service to Australia in the future.

"UNITED GOVERNMENT."

I stress this point again. If the Labour Party is returned by the electors as the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia after August 21, Mr. Curtin will continue to enjoy the absolute loyalty and confidence of the members of the Parliamentary Labour Party. He will be supported by every member of his party in carrying into effect the reforms which he outlined in his policy speech of July 26. Labour has provided a unified Government since it has been in office, and will continue to provide unified government when it is returned.

OPPOSITION PARTIES.

If we examine the record of the Opposition parties since the last election in 1940 we find that they have been torn by strife, dissension and quarrels over the leadership, and even since this election campaign has been going on Mr. Menzies and Mr. Fadden have been at one another's throats as a resit of a dispute over the post-war credits scheme mentioned by Mr. Fadden in his policy speech. Mr. Menzies said only a few days ago that he could not support this part of Mr. Fadden's policy, and Mr. Fadden said that Mr. Menzies was stabbing him in the back. How can the country expect stable and unified government through the Opposition parties when their leaders carry on like this, even when appealing to the people for support?

"RESULT OF QUARRELS."

It was the result of quarrels and intrigues among members of the Opposition parties that Mr. Menzies was deposed as Prime Minister in 1941, and Mr. Fadden selected in his stead for a few brief weeks. It was not the Labour Party which threw the Fadden Government out of office. The Labour Party could not do this, because it was in a minority in both Houses of the Federal Parliament.

INDEPENDENT MEMBERS.

The two independent members of the House of Representatives (Mr. Coles and Mr. Wilson) became so disgusted with the performance of the Opposition Government that they voted them out and voted Labour in. Mr. Curtin became Prime Minister, and has carried on magnificently for 21 months, although lacking a majority in the House of Representatives and being badgered by a hostile Senate. Despite these handicaps, Mr. Curtin's Government made an all-time record of stability for an Australian Government. The Labour Cabinet remained unchanged for a longer period than any other Cabinet in the country's history.

SOME OF THE POINTS.

Here are some of the points which are in the forefront of Labour's policy for the coming three years:—

Labour is determined to continue an all-out prosecution of the war against the Japanese to the maximum of the country's capabilities.

Already plans are being made for post-war reconstruction, and Labour is determined that these plans will reach the blueprint stage before the end of the war.

When service men and women are demobilised from the fighting forces they should not return to face a situation similar to that after the last war. The Government is determined that employment will be waiting for them so that they can take their places in the post-war economy.

The Government is determined to press on with its plans for improvements in social services and health. A nation-wide housing plan is one of the Government's chief objectives.

The Government is also determined that Australia shall play her part as a great nation in the Pacific. The Government will concentrate on establishing a system of security which will be as effective in the Pacific as in any other part of the world.

The importance of Queensland in the post-war reconstruction period will not be overlooked by the Government which, by reason of the works it has already constructed in this State, has laid the foundations for great progress after the war.

Brisbane Line, Mr. Fadden said that Mr. Eddie Ward, who had first brought it up, made certain that he kept himself on the safe side of it. Mr. Forde, too, was secure 800 miles south of the line.

Vigorously attacking the Labour Government for claiming to have saved Australia, Mr. Fadden said Labour had opposed every attempt to defend Australia. Mr. Forde was a member of the Government which had abolished compulsory military training, which had closed Duntroon and Jervis Bay and the Cockatoo Island dry dock and the Flying Fish Point aviation works, and had opposed the sending of Australian troops abroad, and the Empire Air Training Scheme. Yet he now had the colossal effrontery to claim that as Minister for the Army he was one of the saviours of Australia.

Referring to his financial proposals, Mr. Fadden explained the refund of taxes by way of war savings certificates, and said that the scheme was already working in Britain and Canada. People asked where would the money come from. It would come from the same place as the money for soldiers' deferred pay and the repayment of war loans and war savings certificates. These post-war certificates would be a nest egg, a protection for deflation, and a safeguard against Communistic control. The pay as you earn system of income tax was something that no sane person should reject.

Returning to Communism he described it as a godless organisation out to control the lives of the people of Australia at all costs. It would destroy our individualism and initiative, and it would be the end of all private enterprise. If they did not reject Communism at this election they might never get the chance of doing so again by the exercise of a free franchise.

The meeting concluded with cheers.

MALARIA IN BRISBANE.

Two cases of malaria are reported in the "Medical Journal" as having occurred in Brisbane in April and May. The victims were two boys. The journal states that there was strong presumptive evidence that local mosquitoes conveyed the infection from convalescent soldiers.

Mr. Fadden Hits Out

Speaking in Brisbane Mr. Fadden recalled that at Perth on March 5, 1937, Mr. Curtin advocated the sale of iron ore to Japan. Mr. Fadden said he mentioned this as a reply to unfair propaganda aimed at Mr. Menzies regarding scrap and pig iron.

Early in 1937 and in 1938 the Western Australian Labour Government proposed to lease iron ore deposits at Yampi Sound to a company which had entered into contracts to supply up to 1,000,000 tons of iron ore yearly to Japan.

In May, 1938, the Lyons Government prevented the Western Australian Labour Government from proceeding with this colossal supply of raw material for munitions to Japan by prohibiting the export of iron ore from Australia.

Mr. Fadden said: "The Japanese Government and the Labour Premier of Western Australia (Mr. J. Wilcock) protested strongly, but the Lyons Government remained firm, and but for their action our soldiers to-day would have been assailed with shells and bombs made from Western Australian iron."

Disclosing how consistent was the attitude of Western Australian Labour men on this question, Mr. Fadden quoted a statement made in Perth by Mr. Curtin on March 5, 1937, when the question of the Yampi Sound iron was first raised. Mr. Curtin said: "There is no more reason for refusing iron ore than any other commodity which might strengthen Japan in her economic organisation. Refusal to sell the necessary commodities would be a fertile cause of war."

PATRICK'S EASY WIN.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

MR. FADDEN AT ROCKHAMPTON

RECORD CROWD

Communism Denounced

Mr. A. W. Fadden, Leader of the Federal Opposition, speaking at Rockhampton in support of the candidature of Mr. P. C. Ward, C.N.O. candidate for Capricornia, addressed the largest political meeting held in Rockhampton for many years. Mr. Fadden was subjected to a little interruption, which was counter-balanced by frequent outbursts of applause.

Mr. Ward was the first speaker, and he gave an account of his tour of Capricornia and the relations of the electorate to the big political questions of the moment and the local issues.

"Wherever I went," said Mr. Ward, "I found that the people throughout Capricornia were strongly of the opinion that Australia should have had a National Government during the last three years, and especially from the moment Japan entered the war. They consider it is still desirable, in the interests of laying the foundation of peace as well as the vigorous prosecution of the war to its end, that we should have a United Government.

"I found also there was a strong opinion, especially in the country, that since the commencement of the war no Government had shown a sufficiently strong hand in dealing with strikes and absenteeism."

MR. FADDEN.

Mr. Fadden dealt mainly with the connection of the Labour Party and Communism. He claimed that they were closely linked, no matter how much Mr. Curtin might try to disavow the connection.

He quoted a Communist pamphlet appeal to the electors to vote for the Labour Party so that there would be a Labour Government supported by Communists. He cited subscription lists sent out soliciting financial support for Labour's expenses in N.S. Wales.

The objectives of the Communist Party and the Labour Party were the same, their ultimate aim being Socialism. This was something that Australia did not want. It wanted to be free and untrammelled, controlled by practical, enterprising men and women.

A voice: What about the Red Army?

Mr. Fadden: There is absolutely no connection between those brave and gallant Russians who are fighting for their country and these Australian Communists who have no time for their country.

Replying to an interjection about the Brisbane Line, Mr. Fadden said that Mr. Eddie Ward, who had first brought it up, made certain that he kept himself on the safe side of it. Mr. Forde, too, was secure 800 miles south of the line.

Vigorously attacking the Labour Government for claiming to have saved Australia, Mr. Fadden said Labour had opposed every attempt to defend Australia. Mr. Forde was a member of the Government which had abolished compulsory military training, which had closed Duntroon and Jervis Bay and the Cockatoo Island dry dock and the Flying Fish Point aviation works, and had opposed the sending of Australian troops abroad, and the Empire Air Training Scheme. Yet he now had the colossal effrontery to claim that as Minister for the Army he was one of the saviours of Australia.

Referring to his financial proposals, Mr. Fadden explained the refund of taxes by way of war savings certificates, and said that the scheme was already working in Britain and Canada. People asked where would the money come from. It would come from the same place as the money for soldiers' deferred pay and the repayment of war loans and war savings certificates. These post-war certificates would be a nest egg, a protection for deflation, and a safeguard against Communistic control. The pay as you earn system of income tax was something that no sane person should reject.

Returning to Communism he described it as a godless organisation out to control the lives of the people of Australia at all costs. It would destroy our individualism and initiative, and [illegible] the end of all private enterprise. If they did not reject Communism at this election they might never get the chance of doing so again by the exercise of a free franchise.

The meeting concluded with cheers.

SALE OF IRON ORE TO JAPAN

YAMPI SOUND DEPOSITS

Mr. Fadden Hits Out

Speaking in Brisbane Mr. Fadden recalled that at Perth on March 5, 1937, Mr. Curtin advocated the sale of iron ore to Japan. Mr. Fadden said he mentioned this as a reply to unfair propaganda aimed at Mr. Menzies regarding scrap and pig iron.

Early in 1937 and in 1938 the Western Australian Labour Government proposed to lease iron ore deposits at Yampi Sound to a company which had entered into contracts to supply up to 1,000,000 tons of iron ore yearly to Japan.

In May, 1938, the Lyons Government prevented the Western Australian Labour Government from proceeding with this colossal supply of raw material for munitions to Japan by prohibiting the export of iron ore from Australia.

Mr. Fadden said: "The Japanese Government and the Labour Premier of Western Australia (Mr. J. Wilcock) protested strongly, but the Lyons Government remained firm, and but for their action our soldiers to-day would have been assailed with shells and bombs made from Western Australian iron."

Disclosing how consistent was the attitude of Western Australian Labour men on this question, Mr. Fadden quoted a statement made in Perth by Mr. Curtin on March 5, 1937, when the question of the Yampi Sound iron was first raised. Mr. Curtin said: "There is no more reason for refusing iron ore than any other commodity which might strengthen Japan in her economic organisation. Refusal to sell the necessary commodities would be a fertile cause of war."

PATRICK'S EASY WIN.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

Skilled attention at the District Hospital has the genial Tom on the highway to recovery, and his legion of friends will be pleased to see him about again.

HAIR OIL BLACK MARKET.

Commonwealth officers this week unearthed a plant estimated worth £15,000, which they believe to have supplied an extensive black market with hair oil and other cosmetics. The plant was discovered in Sydney, and equipment found included stills, plant for bottling mixture to be sold as brilliantine, and several hundred bottles of brilliantine packed ready for the market.

CANTEEN PROFITS.

Lieut. Commander Harewood, of the Salvation Army, who recently visited Gladstone, states that to his knowledge the Australian Defence Canteens had made a profit of £2,000,000, and that the money should be spent in the provision of hostels and leave centres. There was no need for the civilian purse to provide these amenities for the men. These colossal profits should be spent on the Diggers.

WANTED—FEMALE DRIVERS

The United States Army requires female transport drivers in Cairns, and it has been decided that Mr. A. Pares, of the Cairns Harbour Board, accompanied by Mrs. Pares, will visit Gladstone on Thursday, August 26, in connection with the matter. Applicants may be interviewed by Mrs. Pares by applying to the National Services Officer at the Court House, Gladstone. The main qualifications is the ability to drive a car.

The outstanding event of the year in Gladstone, the Presbyterian Flower Show, is near at hand.

In spite of the limitations imposed by present circumstances a large and varied schedule is offered to competitors.

The Committee very much regret that owing to circumstances outside their control they are unable to secure the usual gold watch for the trophy for the sponge sandwich cake, but a cash prize of 10/6 has been donated in lieu by Mr. A. W. Young.

Cash prizes will be awarded for the other championships because of the same difficulty to procure suitable trophies.

The section for home manufactures has been carefully revised to enable competitors to cope with rationing restrictions.

OLD AGE AND INVALID PENSIONS

Whispering Campaign

It is odd that those who seek to undermine the heart by whispering in the ear are telling aged people that if Labour is defeated their pensions will be reduced, and are also assuring mothers that the return of a Fadden Government would spell the end of child endowment.

Not only is it odd; it is clumsy. The fact is that the only Australian Government to reduce the amount paid per week to old-age and invalid pensioners was the Scullin Labour Government, of which Mr. Forde was a Cabinet Minister; and also because it was the Menzies Government which brought in child endowment. The date of pension reduction was July 23, 1931, and that of passing the Child Endowment Act was April 3, 1941.

Many of Labour's election boners have proved mere squibs, or else have exploded in the fumbling hand which fashioned them.

SOLDIERS UNLOAD BEEF

Meatworkers Refused

Beef supplies for the Army had to be unloaded yesterday when Brisbane Abattoir employees refused to do the work after their demands for higher rates of pay were not met.

The beef arrived in frozen form to make up the shortage of service supplies available in Brisbane. The employees at the abattoirs refused to unload it from the trucks into motor vehicles unless they were paid "freezer" rates, following a combined stopwork meeting of freezers and yard gangs.

As a result of the dispute, the Army arranged for the unloading of its own supplies.

FEDERAL ELECTION

VOTE OUT SOCIALISM

Protect Your Own Interests

It is merely stating a fact even to say that the election to be held on Saturday is more crucial than any previous election in Australian history.

If the Labour Government is returned to power it will claim that it has a mandate from the people to proceed with a definite policy of socialisation of industry.

Certain members of the present Government have already made it very clear what can be expected in this regard. These gentlemen want to tear down the present social and economic order and replace it with a new order which will not only stifle initiative, but destroy private enterprise.

The experience of the past 18 months is some indication as to what will take place in Australia if the Labour Government has a working majority instead of having to rely upon the support of an independent.

The tragedy of it is that it is largely due to the apathy of the anti-labour supporters in Queensland at the last election that we have had a Commonwealth Labour Government. It only required a little more effort at that election, and the result in Brisbane, Griffith and Maranoa would have been reversed, as these seats were won by the Labour candidates by [illegible]

LABOUR DID NOT SAVE AUSTRALIA

DEFENCE PROJECTS

Some Telling Facts

One of the questions which has been raised during the election is why Australia was caught unprepared when war broke out. The Labour Party is trying to throw all the blame on the shoulders of their political opponents, and calling upon the people of Australia to look upon them and them alone as the people who have saved this country from the horrors of invasion.

What are the facts? Here are some of them.

(1) It was a Labour Government which first reduced the number of men to be trained and eventually abolished compulsory training for the young men of Australia.

(2) On November 2, 1938, a motion of no-confidence was moved by Mr. Curtin against the Federal Government then in power. One of the principal charges against the Government was that it was spending too much money on defence projects. On that occasion Mr. Curtin said, "The Government has brought the country to the verge of war hysteria."

Speaking on the motion, Mr. Ward, of Brisbane Line fame, said, "How does the Government propose to finance its enlarged defence programme?

Another Labour Minister (Mr. Holloway) said, "I do not charge the Government with not spending enough money on defence. I make it clear at the outset that I think it is spending too much."

And these are the very same men who are stating to-day that the previous Government took no steps to protect Australia in the event of war.

In May, 1941, five months before he became Prime Minister, Mr. Curtin, speaking of the Menzies Government's war effort, said, "The war has been prosecuted to the maximum of Australia's capacity." To-day he is saying just the opposite, and trying to convince the people that only a Labour Government saved Australia.

The truth is that Labour came into office just at the right moment to reap the result of the years of blue-printing and tooling-up which had been done by previous non-Labour Governments. For instance, the Beaufort bomber for which Labour is claiming credit, was just beginning to come off the assembly line when Labour took office.

So far as munitions are concerned, the supply was short because the previous Government had sent munitions from Australia's scant supplies to Great Britain in order to help the Mother Country in her hour of need, when most of her supplies had been lost at Dunkirk.

These are cold, hard facts, and prove that any claim by Labour Ministers that a Labour Government has saved Australia is as far from the truth as any statement ever made.

Electors should not be led astray by these mis-statements, but must remember that their own future and the future of Australia will best be served by men who have a true Country Party outlook, and can be depended on to prosecute the war whilst it lasts, and watch over the interests of country producers when peace is again restored.

BOARD AND MEALS.

Regulations under the Public Safety Act were issued on Thursday modifying the Liquor Act impelling licensees to utilise to the full the facilities existing on their premises for supplying board and meals to the public. In the event of failure to comply with this provision the Licensing Commission is empowered to temporarily suspend licenses by way of penalty.

ACID THROWER.

Sydney detectives are searching for a man who threw corrosive acid into the face of William Edward Duncan, 26, an Australian naval rating. Duncan told the police he was walking near the Art Gallery when a man asked him for a cigarette. Duncan gave him one and then struck a match to light it. As he was holding the match the man threw acid into his face. His skin was burned and an eye injured, necessitating treatment at Sydney Hospital. The man ran away after throwing the acid.

FEDERAL ELECTION

ONLY TWO ISSUES

Statement By Mr. Forde

There are really only two issues which electors have to decide in this election, said the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde). Do you want the Curtin Labour Government to continue to control the defences of this country and to be responsible for its safety? Or do you want to revert to the Fadden-Hughes-Menzies party, which failed on the job before and fell to pieces owing to intrigue and personal antagonism?

The second is: Do you want the Curtin Labour Government to continue its social welfare programme and to control the post-war reconstruction programme in the interests of the ordinary men and women of the land? Or do you want the Fadden-Hughes-Menzies Governments to control the country on behalf of the vested interests they represent when the post-war world is planned and the plans are carried out?

It will not be difficult for the electors to decide these two issues. The Fadden-Hughes-Menzies parties realise that they are bankrupt, and that they are known by the people to be bankrupt, both in past achievements and future plans.

PERSONAL ANTAGONISMS.

Their personal antagonisms have burst through to the surface again. Their answer to the charge that they left the country almost defenceless at the outbreak of war is frantic, but unconvincing, especially in Queensland, where it is well known what the position was when the war with Japan broke out. Their sorry record in social services in the past makes it clear that their programme in the future will be no more for the benefit of ordinary men and women that it has ever been.

STOP STRIKES.

Mr. Fadden, in his policy speech, said he would stop strikes. He does not say how. We know, however, that any attempt made will be the usual provocative methods. These will destroy the basis of co-operation and consultation with the Trades Union movement. Mr. Fadden and his associates would provoke more industrial trouble than ever before.

Remember these facts, and discount propaganda. Do not let a smoke-screen deceive you or side-track you from the real issues. Return the Curtin Government by voting for Labour candidates for the Senate and the House of Representatives.

HARBOUR OF GLADSTONE

View From Aucland Hill

Whether Gladstone will ever get a lead on Rockhampton or not much will depend on how long we dilly dally over the Port Alma Road. Anyone who can remember Gladstone a few years back must admit that it has made great strides in the last five or six years, and it looks like going on with the good work. It is bound to be an important airport for flying boats after the war.

If I am to be run out of my own city with a tin can tied to my tail for saying so, I must say you will go a long way before anything finer is spread before you than the view from the park on Auckland Hill. It had rained the night before, the harbour was at its best, and a flying boat was taking off.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Miss Peggy Lynch, A.W.A.S., who has been spending a short holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Lynch, of Gladstone, has now returned south to rejoin her unit.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Bundaberg City Council voiced a strong protest against the reinstitution of daylight saving time in Australia.

Swiss godparents, or sponsors, undertake to pay 10 francs monthly for the support of a godchild in France or Belgium during six months. At the end of this time the sponsorship may be renewed.

Each godparent receives a card bearing his protege's photograph, and giving his name, age, and information about his health, circumstances of his family, etc. In addition they are encouraged to correspond with him.

At the end of July 1942 there were 12,500 of these sponsors in Switzerland, and in all 1,200,000 Swiss francs had been subscribed by these people for the relief of children in other lands.

Recently a Grant of £10,000 was made by the Australian Red Cross for China Famine Relief, and this was handed over to the National Relief Committee at Chungking.

CURRENT TOPICS

ESSENTIAL SERVICES.

A special meeting of the Essential Services personnel will be held in the basement of the Town Hall on Monday night next at 7.30 o'clock. A good attendance is requested.

AUSTRALIAN FOOD OUTPUT.

Plans have been announced to greatly increase Australia's production of dairy produce, eggs and vegetables. The plans, if carried out, will mean the release of thousands of farm workers from the Army and other wartime occupations.

RESCUE AND DEMOLITION SQUAD.

A special meeting of the Rescue and Demolition Squad will be held on Tuesday night at 7.30 o'clock in the basement of the Town Hall, when preparations for the A.R.P. demonstration to be held on September 1 will be made.

POPULAR BOATMAN.

A popular figure has been missing from the waterfront for several weeks in the person of Mr. Thos. Dore, owing to sustaining a serious accident while engaged on duties with his launch. Skilled attention at the District Hospital has the genial Tom on the highway to recovery, and his legion of friends will be pleased to see him about again.

HAIR OIL BLACK MARKET.

Commonwealth officers this week unearthed a plant estimated worth £15,000, which they believe to have supplied an extensive black market with hair oil and other cosmetics. The plant was discovered in Sydney and equipment found included stills, plant for bottling mixture to be sold as brilliantine, and several hundred bottles of brilliantine packed ready for the market.

CANTEEN PROFITS.

Lieut.-Commander Harewood, of the Salvation Army, who recently visited Gladstone, states that to his knowledge the Australian Defence Canteens had made a profit of £2,000,000, and that the money should be spent in the provision of hostels and leave centres. There was no need for the civilian purse to provide these amenities for the men. These colossal profits should be spent on the Diggers.

WANTED—FEMALE DRIVERS

The United States Army requires female transport drivers in Cairns, and it has been decided that Mr. A. Pares, of the Cairns Harbour Board, accompanied by Mrs. Pares, will visit Gladstone on Thursday, August 26, in connection with the matter. Applicants may be interviewed by Mrs. Pares by applying to the National Services Officer at the Court House, Gladstone. The main qualifications is the ability to drive a car.

You can't fool all the people all the time, but you can keep a politician from trying when you go to the ballot box.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

ANNUAL FLOWER SHOW

Large and Varied Schedule

The outstanding event of the year in Gladstone, the Presbyterian Flower Show, is near at hand.

In spite of the limitations imposed by prevailing circumstances a large and varied schedule is offered to competitors.

Once again as in previous years the Scott Cup is open to competition for the champion flower of the show, and Messrs. Arthur Yates & Co. Ltd. of Sydney, have donated a silver cup for the competitor scoring the highest number of points for cut flowers grown from seed.

The Committee very much regret that owing to circumstances outside their control they are unable to secure the usual gold watch for the trophy for the sponge sandwich cake, but a cash prize of 10/6 has been donated by Hen. by Mr. A. W. Young.

Cash prizes will be awarded for the other championships because of the same difficulty to procure suitable trophies.

The section for home manufactures has been carefully revised to enable competitors to cope with rationing restrictions.

A new feature this year is a juvenile section, in which boys may compete for maps and handicrafts.

A special prize of 10/6 has been donated by the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis) for collection of vegetables grown by the exhibitor, and Mrs. Dennis has given a similar prize for collection of flowers which are grown by the exhibitor.

Entries close on Friday, August 27, at 10 a.m. and the show will be open to the public at 12 noon. The official opening will take place at 3 p.m. and the prize money will be paid after 7 p.m. that evening.

Keen interest is being shown in the Flower Show and intending exhibitors are urged to have their exhibits ready and on hand at an early hour. Schedules are available at Mr. A. Young's, Friends (Pty.) Ltd., or Mar 5.

The show this year promises to be one of the best for years. Don't forget the time and place: the Town Hall, Friday, August 27.

BIBLE SOCIETY

VISIT OF REV. SHAKESPEARE

Amazing Results Outlined

The Rev. L. H. Shakespeare, General Secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, addressed an interested congregation in the Presbyterian Church on Monday evening last. He told of the effects of the word of God on the inmates of H.M. Prison in Boggo Road.

The Bible Society, he said, had placed a copy of the New Testament in each cell, and the results were amazing. One of the prisoners serving a life sentence takes his New Testament out into the remand yard every mid-day and reads to those who will listen.

Mr. Shakespeare said that every night at 9 o'clock the lights were out, a bell strikes, and a prayer meeting is held in the prison. The men cannot meet physically, but meet spiritually, and each man—eleven of them—as the bell chimes 9 p.m., falls on his knees in his cell and prays.

Mr. Shakespeare indicated several instances of men who have been released from gaol and are new men in Christ Jesus.

The speaker also said that Australia was seeking to lift some of the burden from Border's shoulders by printing the Gospels in seven languages in Australia. Most of these are for the Aboriginal tribes somewhere in Australia.

Mr. Shakespeare visited Gladstone to place on a working basis the local branch of the Society. There was a unanimous decision at the meeting that the branch should be revitalised.

The Ministers are being acquainted with the decision of the meeting, and it is hoped that a committee will be appointed in due course.

The branch will seek to extend interest in and obtain more support for the Bible Society, which for many years has become the indispensable handmaid of the Christian Church.

Mr. Shakespeare left for the north on Tuesday last.

NON-VOTING SOLDIERS.

The Wartime Electoral Act does not prescribe any penalty for soldiers who do not vote at elections. Heavy penalties are prescribed under the Act for anyone found guilty of impersonation.

FINAL ELECTION RESULTS.

At least ten days and up to fourteen will elapse before the results will be definitely known in most seats, and Senate results will not be known for a month or five weeks after polling day. The delay will be due to the service vote, expected to total 600,000.

COMMUNIST MENACE.

Speaking at Laidley on Thursday night, Mr. Fadden said only the formation of a National Government could save Labour from itself and from complete subjugation by the Communist menace that was slowly but surely strangling it.

FEDERAL ELECTION

VOTE OUT SOCIALISM

Protect Your Own Interests

It is merely stating a truism to say that the election to be held early (Saturday) is more crucial than any previous election in Australian history.

If the Labour Government is returned to power it will claim that it has a mandate from the people to proceed with a definite policy of socialisation of industry.

Certain members of the present Government have already made it very clear what can be expected in this regard. These gentlemen want to tear down the present social and economic order and replace it with a new order which will not only stifle initiative, but destroy private enterprise.

The experience of the past 18 months is some indication as to what will take place in Australia if the Labour Government has a working majority instead of having to rely upon the support of an independent.

The tragedy of it is that it is largely due to the apathy of the anti-labour supporters in Queensland at the last election that we have had a Commonwealth Labour Government. It only required a little more effort at that election, and the result in Brisbane, Griffith and Maranoa would have been reversed, as these seats were won by the Labour candidates by very slender majorities.

The Country-National Organisation has organised a most intensive campaign against the Socialistic Party in Queensland. Every seat in this State and the Senate vacancies will be keenly contested.

Every elector should weigh financially the risk to him personally, and vote against the Labour-Socialist candidate.

PAY-AS-EARN TAXATION

DESIRABLE SAFEGUARD

Operating Elsewhere

"There can be no argument about the possibility of the pay-as-you-earn taxation scheme in Australia," said the Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Fadden).

"Taxpayers will pay as they earn, and when they cease to earn, they will cease to pay taxation immediately—that is, if the Opposition is returned to power on Saturday."

Pay-as-you-earn taxation represented a very desirable safeguard for women in war work. When these women returned to their homes they would not be called on to meet a tax liability.

Unless the present system was changed servicemen and their wives would begin civil life under the handicap of taxation of the year's income of the wife. Soldier husbands whose income dropped severely when they entered the army, would be freed of a debt for past taxes.

Taxation arrangements in the United States and Canada have been converted to a pay-as-you-earn basis, and this should be applied in Australia.

OLD AGE AND INVALID PENSIONS

Whispering Campaign

It is odd that those who seek to undermine the heart by whispering in the ear are telling aged people that if Labour is defeated their pensions will be reduced, and are also assuring mothers that the return of a Fadden Government would spell the end of child endowment.

Not only is it odd; it is clumsy. The fact is that the only Australian Government to reduce the amount paid per week to old-age and invalid pensioners was the Scullin Labour Government, of which Mr. Forde was a Cabinet Minister; and also because it was the Menzies Government which brought in child endowment. The date of pension reduction was July 23, 1931, and that of passing the Child Endowment Act was April 3, 1941.

Many of Labour's election boloes have proved mere squibs, or else have exploded in the fumbling hand which fashioned them.

SOLDIERS UNLOAD BEEF

Meatworkers Refused

Beef supplies for the Army had to be unloaded yesterday when Brisbane Abattoir employees refused to do the work after their demands for higher rates of pay were not met.

The beef arrived in frozen form to make up the shortage of service supplies available in Brisbane. The employees at the abattoirs refused to unload it from the trucks into motor vehicles unless they were paid "freezer" rates, following a combined stopwork meeting of freezers and yard gangs.

As a result of the dispute, the Army arranged for the unloading of its own supplies.

LABOUR DID NOT SAVE AUSTRALIA

DEFENCE PROJECTS

Some Telling Facts

One of the questions that has been raised during the election is why Australia was caught unprepared when war broke out. The Labour Party is asking to throw all the blame on the shoulders of their political opponents, and calling upon the people of Australia to look upon them and them alone as the people who have saved this country from the horrors of invasion.

What are the facts? Here are some of them.

(1) It was a Labour Government which first reduced the number of men to be trained and eventually abolished compulsory training for the young men of Australia.

(2) On November 2, 1938, a motion of no-confidence was moved by Mr. Curtin against the Federal Government then in power. One of the principal charges against the Government was that it was spending too much money on defence projects. On that occasion Mr. Curtin said, "The Government has brought the country to the verge of war hysteria."

Speaking on the motion, Mr. Ward, of Brisbane Line fame, said, "How does the Government propose to finance its enlarged defence programme?"

Another Labour Minister (Mr. Holloway) said, "I do not charge the Government with not spending enough money on defence. I make it clear at the outset that I think it is spending too much."

And these are the very same men who are stating to-day that the previous Government took no steps to protect Australia in the event of war.

In May, 1941, five months before he became Prime Minister, Mr. Curtin, speaking of the Menzies Government's war effort, said, "The war has been prosecuted to the maximum of Australia's capacity." To-day he is saying just the opposite, and trying to convince the people that only a Labour Government saved Australia.

The truth is that Labour came into office just at the right moment to reap the result of the years of blue-printing and tooling-up which had been done by previous non-Labour Governments. For instance, the Beaufort bomber for which Labour is claiming credit, was just beginning to come off the assembly line when Labour took office.

So far as munitions are concerned, the supply was short because the previous Government had sent munitions from Australia's scant supplies to Great Britain in order to help the Mother Country in her hour of need, when most of her supplies had been lost at Dunkirk.

These are cold, hard facts, and prove that any claim by Labour Ministers that a Labour Government has saved Australia is as far from the truth as any statement ever made.

Electors should not be led astray by these mis-statements, but must remember that their own future and the future of Australia will best be served by men who have a true Country Party outlook, and can be depended on to prosecute the war whilst it lasts, and watch over the interests of country producers when peace is again restored.

BOARD AND MEALS.

Regulations under the Public Safety Act were issued on Thursday modifying the Liquor Act impelling licensees to utilise to the full the facilities existing on their premises for supplying board and meals to the public. In the event of failure to comply with this provision the Licensing Commission is empowered to temporarily suspend licenses by way of penalty.

ACID THROWER.

Sydney detectives are searching for a man who threw corrosive acid into the face of William Edward Duncan, 26, an Australian naval rating. Duncan told the police he was walking near the Art Gallery when a man asked him for a cigarette. Duncan gave him one and then struck a match to light it. As he was holding the match the man threw acid into his face. His skin was burned and an eye injured, necessitating treatment at Sydney Hospital. The man ran away after throwing the acid.

FEDERAL ELECTION

ONLY TWO ISSUES

Statement By Mr. Forde

There are really only two issues which electors have to decide in this election, said the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde). Do you want the Curtin Labour Government to continue to control the defences of this country and to be responsible for its safety? Or do you want to revert to the Fadden-Hughes-Menzies party which failed on the job before and fell to pieces owing to intrigue and personal antagonism?

The second is: Do you want the Curtin Labour Government to continue its social welfare programme and to control the post-war reconstruction programme in the interests of the ordinary men and women of the land? Or do you want the Fadden-Hughes-Menzies Governments to control the country on behalf of the vested interests they represent when the post-war world is planned and the plans are carried out?

It will not be difficult for the electors to decide these two issues. The Fadden-Hughes-Menzies parties realise that they are bankrupt, and that they are known by the people to be bankrupt, both in past achievements and future plans.

PERSONAL ANTAGONISMS.

Their personal antagonisms have burst through to the surface again. Their answer to the charge that they left the country almost defenceless at the outbreak of war is frantic, but unconvincing, especially in Queensland, where it is well known what the position was when the war with Japan broke out. Their sorry record in social services in the past makes it clear that their programme in the future will be no more for the benefit of ordinary men and women that it has ever been.

STOP STRIKES.

Mr. Fadden, in his policy speech, said he would stop strikes. He does not say how. We know, however, that any attempt made will be the usual provocative methods. These will destroy the basis of co-operation and consultation with the Trades Union movement. Mr. Fadden and his associates would provoke more industrial trouble than ever before.

Remember these facts, and discount propaganda. Do not let a smoke-screen deceive you or side-track you from the real issues. Return the Curtin Government by voting for Labour candidates for the Senate and the House of Representatives.

HARBOUR OF GLADSTONE

View From Aucland Hill

Whether Gladstone will ever get a lead on Rockhampton or not much will depend on how long we dilly dally over the Port Alma Road. Anyone who can remember Gladstone a few years back must admit that it has made great strides in the last five or six years, and it looks like going on with the good work. It is bound to be an important airport for flying boats after the war.

If I am to be run out of my own city with a tin can tied to my tail for saying so, I must say you will go a long way before anything finer is spread before you than the view from the park on Auckland Hill. It had rained the night before, the harbour was at its best, and a flying boat was taking off.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Miss Peggy Lynch, A.W.A.S., who has been spending a short holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Lynch, of Gladstone, has now returned south to rejoin her unit.

HOCKEY

THE GAME THAT GROWS

Week-End Matches

(By "Skylark")

Sunday last saw the hockey fixtures advanced a further stage. Owing to sickness there was no ladies' match. This was regrettable, as the ladies have put up some stirring games this season. I hope to see the girls in action again next Sunday.

The first match on Sunday, Bandit A v. B., was a wash-out. Both sides were short of players, and several of the older players failed to put in an appearance—not like the old originals. In the past it was not a question of the Bandits having a full team; the trouble was who was going to stand down. It's up to the older players to give the beginners a little more encouragement, or take a back seat.

The second game was a thriller, and made up for the first Sparks v. A.T.C. The cadets were two players short, and Sparks, in a sporting manner, agreed to other players filling the vacancies.

For the first time this season the Cadets put it over the Sparks in no uncertain way by six goals to two.

Sparks were without their star centre forward, Tommy Morgan, and he was sadly missed. Gilbert Beal, Pat Crow and Watty Spencer tried all the tricks they know, but the Cadets were too solid and would not be denied.

Tom Duncan and Eddie Coxon at full-back worked overtime for Sparks. The halves have played better hockey. Bill O'Donnell was the safest. Len Flack was very erratic, far too much wild swinging at the ball. Better to settle down, boy; give the ball to your forwards; never mind punching the ball over the back line. Beale, Spence and Crow were solid, and put in some good hard work.

For Cadets Len George made some splendid saves for his side—the best display this season. Lewis and Last at full-back were very safe, and cleared well.

In the halves, Nevell Knott played an outstanding game. This boy has given promises right through the season. He was in everything last week, and rarely missed the ball; his anticipation was excellent, but inclined to make sticks. A little more practice with the stick and Cadets have a fine half.

Merv. Patterson and Harison were also solid, missing very little.

Forwards: Tom Judge was right on his toes, but appears to get a little confused with the rules. He is a rattling good hustling forward, with plenty of pace, and always willing to have a go, and very dangerous when he gets to the circle.

Gus Power can improve. He seems very slow on the up-take to me.

Kev. Flack had a day out, shooting four goals for his side. He kept well up in position last week, and knows the game. His pace and stick

John Ryan, on the wing, is one of the hardest workers in this team, and gets a full share of the ball for his side. He also knows what to do with it.

Kev. Last, on the left wing, put up a good game, shooting a good goal for Cadets.

"SUEZ TO SINGAPORE"

American Comment

The noted American war correspondent, Cecil Brown, in a recently published book, "Suez to Singapore," makes the following comment:—

"One of the most incredible men I ever encountered in political life was the Army Minister, Francis Forde.

"In his office at Parliament House he acted as harassed as if a Japanese division was chasing him.

"His manner was to keep on saying, 'Yes, yes, yes,' whether you were saying anything to him or not.

"In my talk with him there were periods of half-minute silences, and during that time Mr. Forde kept saying, 'Yes, yes, yes,' as though he were in a dream.

(The above is quoted from "Smith's Weekly.")

ECONOMIC CHAOS

Financial Crisis

Two issues of the Government stand out crystal clear. First, compulsory unionism; the domination of one class by another—the submission of reason to force; and since force begets force, while the spirit of freedom bre[athes] that way lies violence and revolution.

The second is the Government's insistence on eating into the resources of the individual, by taking goods from the trader and services from the worker, and paying for them with irredeemable I O U's: by taking from the banks the substance of their customers' deposits and giving in exchange accommodation bills which may be renewed indefinitely, but never repaid: by commandeering portion of the banks' credit balances and thus reducing the working capital of the country: and by taking from the higher income earners part of their capital.

Obviously the end is in sight. When the Government has exhausted the capital sources now being tapped they face the alternative of summarily and drastically cutting down expenditure; otherwise, Australia faces an unprecedented financial crisis, with its ensuing economic chaos, since the fund out of which present wages are being paid can no longer function.

If the country endorses Labour's policy it makes it its own, but it is expedient now to issue a grave warning of what lies ahead—revolution on one hand, and economic chaos on the other.

HOCKEY

THE GAME THAT GROWS

Week-End Matches

(By "Skylark")

Sunday last saw the hockey fixtures advanced a further stage. Owing to sickness there was no ladies' match. This was regrettable, as the ladies have put up some stirring games this season. I hope to see the girls in action again next Sunday.

The first match on Sunday, Bandit A v. B., was a wash-out. Both sides were short of players, and several of the older players failed to put in an appearance—not like the old originals. In the past it was not a question of the Bandits having a full team; the trouble was who was going to stand down. It's up to the older players to give the beginners a little more encouragement, or take a back seat.

The second game was a thriller, and made up for the first Sparks v. A.T.C. The cadets were two players short, and Sparks, in a sporting manner, agreed to other players filling the vacancies.

For the first time this season the Cadets put it over the Sparks in no uncertain way by six goals to two.

Sparks were without their star centre forward, Tommy Morgan, and he was sadly missed. Gilbert Beal, Pat Crow and Watty Spencer tried all the tricks they know, but the Cadets were too solid and would not be denied.

Tom Duncan and Eddie Coxon at full-back worked overtime for Sparks. The halves have played better hockey. Bill O'Donnell was the safest. Len Flack was very erratic, far too much wild swinging at the ball. Better to settle down, boy; give the ball to your forwards; never mind punching the ball over the back line. Beale, Spence and Crow were solid, and put in some good hard work.

For Cadets Len George made some splendid saves for his side—the best display this season. Lewis and Last at full-back were very safe, and cleared well.

In the halves, Nevell Knott played an outstanding game. This boy has given promise right through the season. He was in everything last week, and rarely missed the ball; his anticipation was excellent, but inclined to make sticks. A little more practice with the stick and Cadets have a fine half.

Merv. Patterson and Harison were also solid, missing very little.

Forwards: Tom Judge was right on his toes, but appears to get a little confused with the rules. He is a rattling good hustling forward, with plenty of pace, and always willing to have a go, and very dangerous when he gets to the circle.

Gus Power can improve. He seems very slow on the up-take to me.

Kev. Flack had a day out, shooting four goals for his side. He kept well up in position last week, and knows the game. His pace and stick

John Ryan, on the wing, is one of the hardest workers in this team, and gets a full share of the ball for his side. He also knows what to do with it.

Kev. Last, on the left wing, put up a good game, shooting a good goal for Cadets.

"SUEZ TO SINGAPORE"

American Comment

The noted American war correspondent, Cecil Brown, in a recently published book, "Suez to Singapore," makes the following comment:—

"One of the most incredible men I ever encountered in political life was the Army Minister, Francis Forde.

"In his office at Parliament House he acted as harassed as if a Japanese division was chasing him.

"His manner was to keep on saying, 'Yes, yes, yes,' whether you were saying anything to him or not.

"In my talk with him there were periods of half-minute silences, and during that time Mr. Forde kept saying, 'Yes, yes, yes,' as though he were in a dream.

(The above is quoted from "Smith's Weekly.")

ECONOMIC CHAOS

Financial Crisis

Two issues of the Government stand out crystal clear. First, compulsory unionism, the domination of one class by another—the submission of reason to force; and since force begets force, while the spirit of freedom bre[athes] that way lies violence and revolution.

The second is the Government's insistence on eating into the resources of the individual, by taking goods from the trader and services from the worker, and paying for them with irredeemable I O U's: by taking from the banks the substance of their customers' deposits and giving in exchange accommodation bills which may be renewed indefinitely, but never repaid; by commandeering portion of the banks' credit balances and thus reducing the working capital of the country; and by taking from the higher income earners part of their capital.

Obviously the end is in sight. When the Government has exhausted the capital sources now being tapped they face the alternative of summarily and drastically cutting down expenditure; otherwise, Australia faces an unprecedented financial crisis, with its ensuing economic chaos, since the fund out of which present wages are being paid can no longer function.

If the country endorses Labour's policy it makes it its own, but it is expedient now to issue a grave warning of what lies ahead—revolution on one hand, and economic chaos on the other.

—6—

INFILTRATION TACTICS

Gain Control of Australia

Those who have attended various political meetings held in Gladstone during the past few weeks have no illusions that Communism is active in our midst. At times it was almost impossible to follow some of the speakers, though invariably the Red interjectors were left nonplussed by the retorts of the campaigners. Especially was this so when Mr. Barnes was heckled. He gave such stinging retorts that the Red element was left almost gasping at the things the Bundaberg Bombshell threw back at them. It is deplorable that in a Democratic country such behaviour is allowed to continue. In voicing our disapproval of the tactics resorted to by many of these irresponsible illiterates we quote the following from the "Rockhampton Bulletin" of August 16, which sums up the position in a masterly manner:

"The most charming attribute of the amiable Communist propagandist is his sweet reasonableness, his gentle moderation. Without being quite clear as to definitions, he declares that Fascism everywhere must be exterminated, the general impression being that this mild stimulant is to be applied to everyone who has not the grace to be a Communist.

If he has any hate left over after dealing in a propaganda sense with our social and religious and industrial organisations, it is bestowed in generous measure upon Messrs. Menzies and Fadden, and an occasional spill-over for the benefit of the memory of the late Neville Chamberlain.

Being set to gramophone record rigidity, Communist propaganda is lagging badly, and is still churning out the story of Australian unpreparedness for war, days after Mr. Curtin corrected all previous statements and beliefs by announcing that her war preparations were well under way in response to a vigorous stepping-up policy initiated by the Menzies-Fadden combination. But he is still furious over the Menzies-Fadden perfidy in the matter of exporting pig-iron to Japan, and that despite

"The imposition of embargoes of this kind is sometimes justified on the ground that they will restrict the activities of aggressor nations, but such action carries with it also a definite danger to the peace of the world. We are saying now that other countries cannot have iron ore from Australia, because we need the supplies ourselves. What would happen if some other countries were to say that we could not have petrol supplies because they needed the petrol for themselves?"

This is an extract from a debate in the House of Representatives on May 19, 1938, upon the action taken by the Lyons Government to prohibit the export of iron ore from Yampi Sound (Western Australia) to Japan. It is part of a protest against such prohibition made by John Curtin.

Curiously enough, Communist propagandists appear not to remember that Japan and Russia are not at war, which is why Mr. Joseph Stalin is unable to sit in at Allied conferences in America or anywhere else where Pacific strategy is being considered.

Trade between the two countries goes on uninterruptedly, but we are unable to state how much war material is being supplied by Russia to Japan, or vice versa. But we do know that Japan is permitted by Russia to share the petrol supplies of Sakhalien, and that such supplies are used by Japan against us.

We also know that the way to Japan's heart would be shortened considerably if Mr. Stalin would permit his Allies to use air bases in Siberia.

The Queensland Communist Manifesto demands offensives against Japan and an immediate second front in Europe, both to be supplied by Britain and America, which have conscripted their manpower, while Australia under Communist supported Curtin Government sits behind a defence policy which keeps half a million of eager men within restricted limits, and a conscripted army of workers into unions which are white-anted by Communists.

It is an open question whether Joseph Stalin is a Communist, but there is none regarding what would happen to Australian Communists were they handed over to him. Such Communists simply could not exist in Soviet Russia, nor, in fact, anywhere but in a country where they are permitted by flaccid governments to work for a condition that is to end all freedom.

Messrs. Forde and Curtin point falteringly to the fact that Great Britain had completed a 25 years' pact with Soviet Russia, but omit to state that British Labour will have none of Communism, and also that Stalin cast off the Third Internationale propagandists who call themselves Communists and claim political relationship with the Soviet Union.

Australian Communists are following deliberately the only way by which to gain control of the governmental functions of Australia. They have infiltrated throughout the Australian trade union movement, and are taking one stronghold after another. They when a strike or industrial dispute springs into being, if a Communist has not already his hand on the controls, he soon will be there.

The average Australian worker is a reasonable being who is in a state of growing dismay at the reputation for fractious trouble-mongerings which Communist propagandists are earning for him. He is also wondering why he is reputedly so bitter against profit-sharing and co-operative movements. If he would devote a little time to the study of Communist strategy he would soon know.

The Communist propagandist is sincere when he states this election to be vital. He is also correct, because if the Curtin Government is returned Communist strength is such that its leaders will be able to throw off the mask and cast aside their Labour dupes. In that case this election is much more important even than the Communist propagandist admits, in that it would be the last held under a free democratic system that any of the present generation would be likely to see.

Curtin & Communism

THE Curtin Government lifted the ban on the Communist Party, despite its record of intrigue, treachery and sabotage.

Against the spirit and the letter of its own regulations the Curtin Government granted newsprint licenses to four Communist papers.

The Curtin Government has appointed leading Communists to important Government positions.

NATIONS MUST COLLABORATE

Warning Issued

A warning of possible repercussions if Britain, the United States, and the Soviet Union did not continue full collaboration was given by the Challis Professor of International Law and Jurisprudence at Sydney University, Professor Julius Stone.

"The British, American and Soviet Governments had better get together and agree or trouble is bound to come," he said in an address to the Industrial Management Association of New South Wales. "We got to Sicily first and what comes out of Sicily will be our baby, and it may have our features.

If the Russians got to Berlin first what comes out of Berlin will be Russia's baby, and we may find its features less beautiful."

Professor Stone said that the only feasible method of building stable foundations for peace appeared to be a system of inter-governmental agreement with permanent international control over manufactures, exports and imports. Rational adjustment of post-war issues was, however, possible, and there was no reason for despair if people insisted that Governments face up to the issues in time honestly and bluntly. "We, as citizens, cannot afford to let the time go by until the next peace conference before we formulate our own ideas on

INFILTRATION TACTICS

Gain Control of Australia

Those who have attended various political meetings held in Gladstone during the past few weeks have no illusions that Communism is active in our midst. At times it was almost impossible to follow some of the speakers, though invariably the Red interjectors were left nonplussed by the retorts of the campaigners. Especially was this so when Mr. Barnes was heckled. He gave such stinging retorts that the Red element was left almost gasping at the things the Bundaberg Bombshell threw back at them. It is deplorable that in a Democratic country such behaviour is allowed to continue. In voicing our disapproval of the tactics resorted to by many of these irresponsible illiterates we quote the following from the "Rockhampton Bulletin" of August 16, which sums up the position in a masterly manner.

"The most charming attribute of the amiable Communist propagandist is his sweet reasonableness, his gentle moderation. Without being quite clear as to definitions, he declares that Fascism everywhere must be exterminated, the general impression being that this mild stimulant is to be applied to everyone who has not the grace to be a Communist.

"If he has any hate left over after dealing in a propaganda sense with our social and religious and industrial organisations, it is bestowed in generous measure upon Messrs. Menzies and Fadden, and an occasional spill-over for the benefit of the memory of the late Neville Chamberlain.

"Being set to gramophone record rigidity, Communist propaganda is lagging badly, and is still churning out the story of Australian unpreparedness for war, days after Mr. Curtin corrected all previous statements and beliefs by announcing that her war preparations were well under way in response to a vigorous stepping-up policy initiated by the Menzies-Fadden combination. But he is still furious over the Menzies-Fadden perfidy in the matter of exporting pig-iron to Japan, and that despite—

"The imposition of embargoes of this kind is sometimes justified on the ground that they will restrict the activities of aggressor nations, but such action carries with it also a definite danger to the peace of the world. We are saying now that other countries cannot have iron ore from Australia, because we need the supplies ourselves. What would happen if some other countries were to say that we could not have petrol supplies because they needed the petrol for themselves?"

This is an extract from a debate in the House of Representatives on May 19, 1938, upon the action taken by the Lyons Government to prohibit the export of iron ore from Yampi Sound (Western Australia) to Japan. It is part of a protest against such prohibition made by John Curtin.

Curiously enough, Communist propagandists appear not to remember that Japan and Russia are not at war, which is why Mr. Joseph Stalin is unable to sit in at Allied conferences in America or anywhere else where Pacific strategy is being considered.

Trade between the two countries goes on uninterruptedly, but we are unable to state how much war material is being supplied by Russia to Japan, or vice versa. But we do know that Japan is permitted by Russia to share the petrol supplies of Sakhalien, and that such supplies are used by Japan against us.

We also know that the way to Japan's heart would be shortened considerably if Mr. Stalin would permit his Allies to use air bases in Siberia.

The Queensland Communist Manifesto demands offensives against Japan and an immediate second front in Europe, both to be suplied by Britain and America, which have conscripted their manpower, while Australia under Communist supported Curtin Government sits behind a defence policy which keeps half a million of eager men within restricted limits, and a conscripted army of workers into unions which are white-anted by Communists.

It is an open question whether Joseph Stalin is a Communist, but there is none regarding what would happen to Australian Communists were they handed over to him. Such Communists simply could not exist in Soviet Russia, nor, in fact, anywhere but in a country where they are permitted by flaccid governments to work for a condition that is to end all freedom.

Messrs. Forde and Curtin, point falteringly to the fact that Great Britain had completed a 25 years' pact with Soviet Russia, but omit to state that British Labour will have none of Communism, and also that Stalin cast off the Third Internationale propagandists who call themselves Communists and claim political relationship with the Soviet Union.

Australian Communists are following deliberately the only way by which to gain control of the governmental functions of Australia. They have infiltrated throughout the Australian trade union movement, and are taking one stronghold after another. They [illegible] when a strike or industrial dispute springs into being, if a Communist has not already his hand on the controls, he soon will be there.

The average Australian worker is a reasonable being who is in a state of growing dismay at the reputation for fractious trouble-mongerings which Communist propagandists are earning for him. He is also wondering why he is reputedly so bitter against profit-sharing and co-operative movements. If he would devote a little time to the study of Communist strategy he would soon know.

The Communist propagandist is sincere when he states this election to be vital. He is also correct, because if the Curtin Government is returned Communist strength is such that its leaders will be able to throw off the mask and cast aside their Labour dupes. In that case this election is much more important even than the Communist propagandist admits, in that it would be the last held under a free democratic system that any of the present generation would be likely to see.

Curtin & Communism

Against the spirit and the letter of its own regulations the Curtin Government granted newsprint licenses to four Communist papers.

NATIONS MUST COLLABORATE

Warning Issued

A warning of possible repercussions if Britain, the United States, and the Soviet Union did not continue full collaboration was given by the Challis Professor of International Law and Jurisprudence at Sydney University, Professor Julius Stone.

"The British, American and Soviet Governments had better get together and agree or trouble is bound to come," he said in an address to the Industrial Management Association of New South Wales. "We got to Sicily first and what comes out of Sicily will be our baby, and it may have our features.

"If the Russians get to Berlin first what comes out of Berlin will be Russia's baby, and we may find its features less beautiful."

Professor Stone said that the only feasible method of building stable foundations for peace appeared to be a system of inter-governmental agreement with permanent international control over manufactures, exports and imports. Rational adjustment of post-war issues was, however, possible, and there was no reason for despair if people insisted that Governments face up to the issues in time, honestly and bluntly. "We, as citizens cannot afford to let the time go by until the next peace conference before we formulate our own ideas on these matters," he said.

Professor Stone said he had examined the Atlantic Charter from the viewpoints of logic and concreteness, and found it wanting. Unless the United Nations could get out of the realm of platitudes and agree on the apportionment of markets and related problems the world was plainly headed for catastrophe, he said.

While Britain, the United States of America and Russia are engaged in the life and death struggle in which they are involved, it is to be expected that they will work unitedly for the achievement of victory. Their very existence, at least as democratic nations, depends on this. Of victory we may be sure, though we are unable to say just when it will come. The greatest of the world dangers that loom ahead is that these nations will not collaborate in world reconstruction as they are now doing in war.

Certain principles have been agreed to by the United Nations, but the matter of implementing them is going to be exceedingly difficult. Economic as well as political factors are involved. Probably the matter of tariff adjustment will be the most difficult of all the matters that will have to be dealt with. Unless such problems are satisfactorily solved the whole

BLITZ ON ENGLAND

Age-Old Barriers Broken

Shortly after the last war a British statesman said: "We must become international or perish," and there are many thoughtful people who believe that failure to accept this dictum was the root cause of the present war; whether this is true or not, the statement has a realistic application to the problems that confront the world to-day.

This war has brought out some of the most horrible of human tendencies, but it has, at the same time, demonstrated some of the finest qualities of mankind.

In England during the blitz, people found themselves suddenly surrounded with friends. People whom they had never known before, came to their aid when bombs or fire had destroyed their homes and personal possessions.

Age-old barriers between rich and poor were broken down by an instinct greater than that of self survival; a sudden understanding brought people of every kind together in a time of dire need.

This same humanitarian tendency is being demonstrated in many wider spheres. There is the Lease Lend Bill, the greatest international gesture of trust and understanding yet recorded in world history, and more recently the convening of an International food conference in America, where, it appears, plans are being laid for a global distribution of the world's supplies of food according to the greatest need of help.

We in Australia must do more than applaud the sentiment inspiring them if we are to keep our present place among the nations. The measure of our greatness will be the measure of our readiness to make a fitting contribution to the needs of global peace.

As a member of an international commonwealth there can be no question of producing too much food while China has her starving millions; there can be no thought of settling down to peace and ease and plenty while untold numbers in the Indies, Burma and Malaya cry for material, medical and economic help.

Already there are people conscious of these facts. The Australian Red Cross is preparing plans to train welfare officers who will follow the Allied armies into the islands and countries of the Pacific. Relief will come with liberation.

Committees are being formed in every State; lectures and classes will soon be held to teach the principles of relief administration; theories of nutrition are being studied, so that these ambassadors of friendship will be equipped to give the fullest help to Australia's needy neighbours.

We have learned, in a measure, the need for international co-operation in this war. We have seen that a few personal and national sacrifices are no exorbitant price to pay for peace.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

HOUSEWIVES' PROBLEMS

Shipping Difficulties

Shipping difficulties have provided problems for the housewife, and territorial losses and war's denial of certain supply sources have added to them. But victories have already returned to us some of the materials we have managed without for so long, and as these victories follow each other, so will the problems decrease in number.

Washing powder cannot be shipped interstate. Before the war there was a large exchange of this powder between N.S.W. and Victoria. But as it is made from the same material, each State now supplies its own markets.

Baking powder became very scarce, but the clearing of the Axis from Africa will improve this position.

Algiers was one of the world sources of rock phosphate, which is used for makin agricultural fertilisers, and, in a refined form, for the food phosphates used in making powder. Germany, consequently, has lost one of the main sources of phosphates for her agriculture and her war chemicals. All North Africa's phosphates are now available to the Allies.

Before the war the people of Japan used to collect the flowers of pyrethrum, a species of the chrysanthemum, which is their national flower, and send them to Australia, where we used them dried and powdered in fly sprays and insect powders.

It has been found difficult to get anything to take the place of pyrethrum as a fly-killer. Kenya, in Africa, was practically the only source of pyrethrum supplies left to the Allies after Japan came into the war. But later the chrysanthemums of Madagascar became available.

The same war that cut off pyrethrum from Japan also increased the use of pyrethrum. It is used for killing malarial mosquitoes in the jungle.

SUPPLIES RESERVED.

Pyrethrum supplies in Australia are reserved entirely for military use, except in northern areas where malaria and dengue carrying mosquitoes are prevalent.

For that reason insect-killing sprays in the south are not as potent as they used to be.

Samples of all brands being sold in the cities are now being tested out by the Division of Economic Entomology, for the protection of purchasers.

At the same time, pyrethrum substitutes are being developed in the division's laboratories, so that, while the old-style fly sprays protect soldiers against malaria in New Guinea, their wives and mothers at home can still kill the flies in the kitchen.

FREEDOM FROM WANT

Banishing a Spectre

"It is true that no nation has ever had enough food to feed all its people as we know human beings should be fed."

Thus President Roosevelt when the United Nations' Food Conference ended its first meeting with a recommendation to set up a permanent organisation.

Out of evil, good; out of war, peace and the hope of a better world. The war, with its agonies of body and mind, gave birth to this meeting of the United Nations.

In a setting of war, delegates representing four out of every five inhabitants of the globe faced up to the need of banishing the spectre of want of adequate food from the post-war world.

Only an Allied victory can accomplish this. Had the Nazis won, we should have gone back to a dark age of penalty and starvation.

No sacrifice for victory is too great if our children, and theirs, may enjoy freedom from want.

EXTENSION AIR TRAVEL

FLYING BOAT SERVICE

Position Reviewed

"I am convinced that the development of aviation in Australia is most urgent. It will have a considerable bearing on the development of the country and its future prospects," said an airline executive in Sydney last week.

"To my knowledge there are no particular plans in train for post-war aviation, possibly due to the fact that though development is important, the immediate future prospects have, in my opinion, been somewhot exaggerated. The cost of aviation is not going to be cheap, by any means, and I feel that aviation can only be considered as transport for passengers and first-class mail.

"Though the flying boat service between Sydney and Townsville has been re-opened, and a new two-way air service between Sydney and Melbourne has begun, aviation has not begun to get back to pre-war standards or costs by any means. There is an enormous demand for air transport, because of what air transport has to offer—the saving of time. And time," he added, "is possibly the most valuable thing we can save. The cost of development will be high, but we can anticipate that ultimately we will be able to supply cheap speed for everybody.

"Let's consider, for a moment, the costs of aviation. The cost of aircraft itself will always be high. No commercial aircraft is being built in Australia at present, and even after the war it will probably be uneconomic to build such planes.

The job of switching over from the production of fighter planes to commercial planes would be difficult and costly. The recent great development in the aircraft industry in England and the States means that enormous set-ups have been established to turn out large numbers of land and marine types.

It would be a very different proposition for Australia to produce similar types at a cost which would make them economic to operate. Quite apart from the initial cost of the plane itself, its period of operation throughout the year is limited. The number of hours flying a crew can maintain during a year is limited. Fuel costs are high, and therefore the operational costs are high.

"Many people consider that after the war there will be 'family planes,' just as now there are 'family cars,' and that autogiros will be on the market for everyone. But autogiros need flat roofs for city or suburban landing grounds, and there again, the cost would be tremendous. Here again I feel that the immediate future of aviation in Australia has been over-optimistically glamorised. Certainly we have lots of territory and suitable weather, but our population is still small.

"The continual development of radio and meteorological facilities in the Commonwealth will help the establishment of regular air services and will greatly increase the safety of flying, and provided it is carefully planned and controlled, the development of aviation is the most desirable development which could take place for this Commonwealth.

"As to who should control aviation in the future, I am particularly opposed to monopolies, and I do feel that the Government should maintin possibly more control than in the past, but I feel also that the sound future of air transport needs an organisation which will permit competitive standards of service and efficiency."

During the past six months in the U.S.A. approximately 500,000 lbs. of rubber has been conserved through the use of wool felt in the making of washers, gaskets, and similar items.

AUSTERITY MESSAGES

From the wives . . .
. . . of AUSTRALIA'S LEADERS

"Saving can be exciting. I have found that out for myself and pass it on to you. In peace time we Australians were free spenders, and it was fun to buy nice things, and plan little treats, but now we're at war, and a thrifty living is necessary to the success of the War Effort. Feel that every economy and self-denial helps our boys. Be proud of the mounting total of your Bonds and War Savings Certificates, and, believe me, you'll get a thrill out of saving."

—Says Mrs. Jones wife of Air Vice-Marshal Jones

Muriel Jones.

STEP-UP FOOD PRODUCTION

MANPOWER PROBLEM

Vegetable Production

Following important discussions by the Commonwealth Food Executive in Sydney, the War Cabinet will be faced at its first post-election meeting in two weeks time with far-reaching proposals to step up the production of food in Australia.

The major problem will be the supply of sufficient manpower to permit a large scale increase in the output of dairy produce, meat, poultry, eggs, and vegetables to supply increasing service, civilian, and United Kingdom needs.

"It is clear from an examination of the total demands made upon Australia's food resources we shall have to have a very big step-up in food production," said Mr. Scully (Minister for Commerce) after the conference. Not only will Australia be called upon more and more to feed the armed forces based on this country, thus becoming in a true sense one of the principal food arsenals of the Allied nations, but it is clear we shall be called upon to play a big part in feeding the peoples of many occupied countries as they become liberated when the war is over.

"Production of vegetables also is a major problem, because, unlike other industries, such as dairying, meat and poultry, there was no export surplus before the war, and therefore increased demands in Australia itself will have to be met entirely by increased production.

"The Government places the greatest importance on the campaign which has been launched for the home growing of vegetables. Spring plantings can now be made, and people are urged to grow more vegetables in their back yards than ever before."

CIVIL DEFENCE DAY.

£125,000,000 LOAN

OPENS OCTOBER 5

Call On Nation

Mr. Curtin stated on Thursday last that the Fourth Liberty Loan, the greatest war loan undertaken, opens on October 5, and in five weeks the Government will ask for £125,000,000.

He said there must be no doubt of the response. The loan would offer the people immediate opportunity of demonstrating their complete unity in purpose of hastening victory. A great deal had been done, but the nation must still exert every scrap of strength in step with the Allies to finish the job.

The Allies had passed from the defensive to attack. None could escape the responsibility of ensuring means were constantly provided so that Australia could press on unremittingly to final victory.

The call was on the nation to spend less and save more for the war effort. There should be 750,000 subscribers at least, although they had not exceeded 450,000 previously.

Australia had not yet failed to fill a loan, and he asked the people to register the greatest triumph of all in the Fourth Liberty Loan. Rates of interest would be the same as in the last, 2½ per cent for short, four to five years; 3½ per cent for seven to 16 years.

WATERFRONT WORK.

A new order making it necessary for employers to engage casual labour for waterfront work (other than waterside workers) through a National Service Office has been issued. In future it will be necessary for the engagement of tally clerks, waterfront watchmen, ironworkers' assistants, shipwrights, ship joiners, ship painters, and dockers and storemen and packers to be made through a National Service Office.

In Britain postage stamps numbering 6,200,000,000 were issued last year.

CIVIL DEFENCE DAY

PARADE AND DEMONSTRATION

Gladstone, September 4

In Australia thousands of men and women have given freely of their leisure time in order to reach a standard of efficiency in civil defence work, which has had the effect of sustaining public morale in these recent months of tension and uncertainty.

So that the efforts of these patriotic individuals might receive recognition and appreciation of their fellow citizens it has been decided to set aside Saturday, September 4, as Civil Defence Day throughout the Commonwealth, and on that day parades and demonstrations will be held at all centres to remind the public of the debt of gratitude it owes to its civil defence organisations, which was called into being for the sole purpose of saving civilian life and property endangered by any possible enemy action.

COMMENCE AT 2.10 P.M.

At a meeting of the local committee of the organisation, held last Wednesday, under the presidency of the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), it was decided that the Gladstone Civil Defence Organisations fall into line with these ideals, and that a parade and demonstration be held, commencing at 2.30 p.m.

MARSHALLING THE PARADE.

It was resolved that Captain C. D. Patrick be approached, and asked to undertaake the duty of marshalling the parade, and that the services be in the following order:—

(1) A.R.P. Wardens
(2) Essential and Emergency services.
(3) Hospital and Ambulance services.
(4) Fire Brigade services.
(5) Welfare and Mobile Canteen services.

ROUTE OF THE PARADE.

It was then decided that all services assemble at the Court House, and join the parade, and that the route should be as follows:—

Leave Court House at 2.30 p.m., and march down Yaroon Street to its intersection with Auckland Street, thence along Auckland Street, to its intersection with Tank Street, thence along Tank Street to its intersection with Gondoon Street, thence along Gondoon Street to the vacant allotment opposite the Ambulance Station. At this allotment demonstrations by the services will be given.

FULL MUSTER WANTED.

It was further requested that the officers in charge of various services endeavour to contact all members of his service, and use every endeavour to muster full membership for the parade, and that suitable notices be printed by the various sections, and that all were to march with kit or equipment supplied.

LIGHT REFRESHMENTS.

It was further decided that light refreshments would be available from the mobile canteen for the members, and that arrangements for this be completed. It was stated that this would be done by the Red Shield, and that the services of the welfare section attached to the State School be asked to co-operate in this work.

PUBLIC INVITED.

It was further decided that every available means of publicity be given to the parade and demonstration, and that the public be invited to be present.

UBOBO

Ambulance Dance

A very successful dance was held at Ubobo on Saturday, August 7, in aid of the Ambulance Funds, conducted by the Boyne Valley sub-branch of the R.S.S.A.I.L.A.

RURAL INDUSTRIES

Number Employees Decreased

The number of people employed in industries in Australia, excluding rural industries and domestics, rose from 1,727,000 in July 1939, to 1,885,000 last May.

This is revealed in figures issued by the Acting Commonwealth Statistician (Mr. Carver).

In the two years from the outbreak of war to September, 1941, the number of males employed in industries, other than rural, increased from 1,306,000 to 1,396,000. This figure decreased by 112,000 in the next 20 months through enlistments. Female labour in the same period increased by 75,000 to 601,000.

The total male employees in rural industry had decreased from 200,000 pre-war to about 120,000, while farm owners, lessees, and unpaid male relatives on farms had decreased from 300,000 to 240,000. Women employees had increased from 20,000 to 60,000.

COMFORTS FUND

SERVICES TO FIGHTING FORCES

New Records Established

In the last 12 months new records were established in services by the Australian Comforts Fund to the fighting forces, says the annual report of the Queensland branch.

This report was presented to the annual meeting in Brisbane on Wednesday.

Rapid expansion of the Fund's work is shown by the huge expenditure incurred by all State divisions in supplying comforts and amenities for the services. Queensland's total to June 30 this year was £154,753, against £73,495 for last year.

REGULAR ISSUES.

During the year ended June 30 full issues of comforts were distributed at regular intervals to all servicemen and women at their battle stations.

HOSTELS AND CANTEENS.

Besides providing comforts and amenities, the A.C.F. has established many hostels, leave centres, and recreation rooms, says the report. Mobile cinemas and canteens also were provided. Embarkation kits were presented to all members of the services, including nurses, when leaving for overseas battle stations.

Each month large supplies of woollen garments were sent to the Mission to Seamen for distribution among men of the Merchant Marine. Thirty thousand Christmas hampers were distributed.

Next Christmas the Queensland Division will undertake the distribution of another 30,000.

STATE BRANCHES.

To June 30 State branches contributed £45,000 in donations to the general fund, and provided a big percentage of woollen garments and other made articles distributed to the forces, the value for the year being £51,000. The Opportunity Shop conducted on behalf of the Queensland Patriotic Fund, raised £1272.

For the year ended June 30 the Entertainments Committee collected £1057. Total revenue from the joint appeals committee increased from £105,000 the previous year to £190,000 for the year under review. Administrative costs of Queensland Division were practically negligible, being assessed at under 1 per cent of total expenditure.

PROVIDED BY COMFORTS FUND.

"Many of the boys in front-line areas do not know that the cups of tea they are given by the Salvation Army are provided by the Comforts Fund," said the A.C.F.'s Federal Administrator (Mr. C. R. McKerihan) at the annual meeting.

So often credit was not given to the Comforts Fund because the troops did not realise the relation between the A.C.F., the Salvation Army, and the Y.M.C.A., he said. Between the three there was the maximum co-operation, and the Comforts Fund had established main forward depots from which the other two were fed.

200,000 XMAS HAMPERS.

Mr. McKerihan said that the A.C.F. would supply a minimum of 200,000 Christmas hampers this year. The Queensland branch had had a great responsibility placed on it in the last 12 months, and the response had been amazing. "No doubt, we will have great calls on us in the future," he added. The troops going to forward areas will increase, and our comforts must go forward with them.

EXPENSES ONLY 1 PER CENT.

While most philanthropic concerns showed expenses usually well up to 20 per cent, Queensland's Comfort Fund showed only 1 per cent, and there was no State with expenses more than 2½ per cent., Mr. McKerihan said. "Criticisms levelled at us in the past are no longer heard of. Our success depends on our women, who are the backbone of the A.C.F."

GOVERNOR'S TRIBUTE.

Always the work of the A.C.F. had been inspired by people who put devotion to national honour before selfishness, said the Governor (Sir Leslie Wilson), who moved the adoption of the annual report.

"Our people are prepared to play their own individual part in this war and serve the national interest in every way," he said. "On the other hand, Nazism will fail because it has no roots, no honour, and no history."

"We want to see some of the ideals which great men and women have cherished throughout the world come true at last. Our trials of the last four years have laid the foundations for a better future."—Field-Marshal Smuts, South African Premier.

BUTTER FOR HOT CLIMATES

TROPICAL SPREAD

Fills Real Need

Described as one of the major food discoveries of the war, tropical spread (a butter that will not melt in tropical heat) is not only of value to the troops in Northern Australia and New Guinea, but it also promises to provide an amenity for those who take up civilian life in these areas in peacetime.

Where the ice-chest or refrigerator cannot be used tropical spread fills a real need. It is a first-class butter, rich in flavour, and spreads easily, but remains firm despite high summer temperatures.

Only those who have spooned on to bread the oily, salt-tanged mass known as ordinary tinned butter can fully appreciate what this means.

Tropical spread is free from chemical adulteration, and is far richer in butterfat than ordinary butter.

For more than a year Dr. Wiley and Mr. Loftus Hills, with a band of workers, experimented in the laboratories of the Commonwealth Council for scientific and industrial research. The Queensland Butter Board acted in close collaboration with them, trying out on a commercial scale their laboratory formulae.

USED IN THE NORTH.

In February, 1943, the first commercial batch of tropical spread was manufactured by the Butter Board, and samples from this trial batch sent to troops in New Guinea and Northern Australia. Glowing reports came back. Tropical spread, it was unanimously declared, was the answer to the tinned butter problem.

The production plant, the only one in operation in the world, was provided by the Queensland Butter Board, and most of the machinery is Australian made.

Already over 120 persons, half of them women, are engaged in the work, and this staff will be considerably increased.

The spread is obtained by dehydrating creamery butter and extracting from it the pure butter fat. The butter fat is boiled, and to it is added a small quantity of salt, skim milk powder, flavouring, and 19 per cent of hydrated butter fat to increase the melting point to 105-F.

MEAT RATIONING

PEOPLE TO PAY

Fadden's Comment

"After supper comes the bill! The Australian people are being called on to pay for the return of the Curtin Government before the counting of votes has been completed," said Mr. Fadden.

Last week he predicted the Government would ration meat. That prediction was emphatically denied. Now the Government has announced a cut of 15 per cent from Monday, and meat traders are of the opinion that the people will be fortunate if the cut is not nearer 50 per cent.

The Government's incompetency in its handling of dairying and meat industries had caused butter and meat rationing in a country which would normally produce far in excess of what the people could consume.

No neutral ship has ever been sunk by British submarines.

. . . . .

Australian soldiers in the Pacific theatre of war have won 20 American decorations.

. . . . .

The maintenance command of the R.A.F. handles 250,000 tons of equipment a month.

. . . . .

As a result of fewer mail deliveries throughout Great Britain, 5000 full-time women workers and 2000 full-time men employees have been relieved for other war work.

About 110,000 tons of scrap metal are collected every week in Britain. Nearly 500,000 tons of railings have been collected, enough to make 20,000 cruiser tanks.

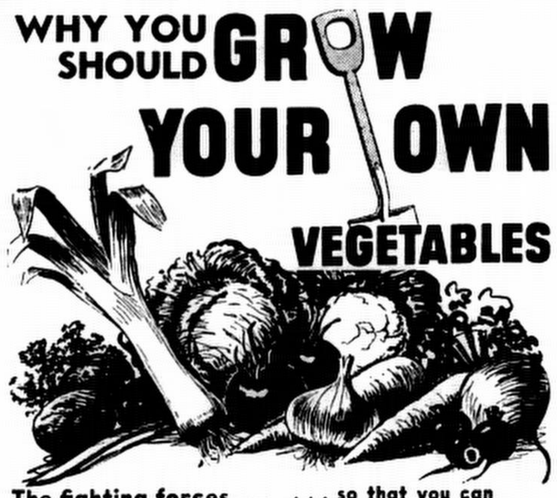
Launching of the North African expedition required the running of 440 special troop trains, 680 special freight trains, and 13,000 railway waggons by ordinary goods service, in Britain.

WHY YOU SHOULD GROW YOUR OWN VEGETABLES



The fighting forces . . . the fighting men, both our own and our Allies, are given the finest food this country can produce, including all the fresh vegetables they need to maintain their high standard of fighting fitness. Their needs must be met first and this means that often vegetable supplies remaining for civilians are short. You can overcome these shortages by turning part of your garden into a vegetable plot. Start growing your own now!

. . . so that you can supplement your weekly vegetable requirements And remember! By growing your own, you help your country as well as yourself!

. . . so you can have plenty of fresh food Doctors say that vegetables direct from the garden contain an abundance of vitamins.

. . . so you can save Yes, it's sound economy to "grow your own." You save money and benefit in health!

Cutting down Our Apple TREES

WHEN a man plants an apple tree he does it to bring food and profit, not only to himself, but to those who come after him. An apple tree is productive wealth that a man can enjoy and, by caring for it, pass on to his children.

Life Assurance is much like an apple tree. If an A.M.P. policy be cared for, and properly fed, it will bring comfort and security to him who owns it, and succour to those who come after him.

There are people to-day who would confiscate or "regiment" all wealth, foolishly thinking that that would save them the labour of creating wealth for themselves. They would cut down all the apple trees to save themselves the trouble of caring for them and harvesting the yearly crop.

The members of the A.M.P. Society (one family in every three in the Commonwealth) would be wise to think on these new notions. Their Society has served them for nearly 100 years. They have £141,000,000 worth of wealth conserved for their own future use. Let them guard carefully these savings.

HOUSING PROBLEM

AMERICA GIVES A LEAD

Pre-fabricated Homes for Workers

America has given Australia a useful lead towards solving the housing problem by the erection in recent months of pre-fabricated homes for war workers. Some have been completely built with drainage, electricity and running water in the space of four hours.

The Commonwealth Housing Commission is keenly interested in this speed-up in building cheap and effective homes, the secret of which is mass production of every part in factories and quick assembly on the home site.

Such things as radiators, electric irons, light fittings, taps, locks and hinges are produced separately in Australia to-day, but in the American pre-fabricated house mass production turns out all of these, and the completed home, in the factory.

Pre-fabricated walls are made up of panels of wood, plastics or other material, windows or doors are already hung in them, with the glass puttied in and the locks fitted. In the same way roofing panels are constructed, and the floors of bathrooms and kitchens are cast in one piece in the factory. Plumbing, electric light and heating units are built into the walls. The whole house is then put on a lorry carted to the home site, and put together in a few hours.

The American experts are now exploring the possibilities of some form of plastic material with permanent colour to provide the ideal constructional medium.

The costliest items in house building are in the bathroom, laundry and kitchen. Mass production simplifies plumbing and drainage fitting, and sink, stove refrigerator and cupboards can all be combined in a single fitting along one kitchen wall. The other side of this wall can carry the bath, basin and toilet fixtures for the bathroom.

One type of bathroom in America has floor, walls and ceiling moulded in one piece, with the fitting in the walls, and with plastic materials the moulding eliminates all corners and cracks, and the rounded junctions are kept clean with ease.

Pre-fabrication does not mean that everyone will live in a house identical with that of his neighbour. Rational constructional methods provide for individuality, because the units of a house can be arranged in many ways.

A pre-fabricated home can easily be altered or enlarged, and can be demolished, taken to a new site, and rebuilt with minimum effort.

Perhaps the greatest advantage, however, is that mass production of home units mean a post-war house within the means of every wage-earner who wants a home of his own.

In America the simplified production of thanks and motorised transport has already saved 5,000,000 lbs. of critical nickel, 3,500,000 lbs. of chrome, and over 1,000,000 lbs. of molybdenum.

NEW AUSTRALIAN INDUSTRIES

Re-forging Scrap Steel

A £600,000 plant for the re-forging of scrap steel, and a £500,000 chemical plant, are being established in South Australia.

Both the plants will be owned by the Commonwealth Government, but the steel plant will be staffed and operated by the Broken Hill Proprietory.

The chemical plant, one of a chain of four now being established in different States, will produce fertilisers after the war.

The establishment of a plant for the re-forging of scrap steel will be of great value to Australian industry as a whole.

In the face of a world-wide shortage, scrap metals are the most readily available source of new materials.

The Sheffield Steel Corporation in the States has recently proved the American steel industry's ability to make good steel entirely from scrap "no matter how forbidding."

The factory is now turning out shell steel rounds for medium calibre artillery as well as steel wire for hoisting cables, rods, bolts and spikes.

Australian enterprise is producing high grade steel at the lowest price in the world, and there is no doubt that this enterprise will develop the new South Australian industry into as successful an undertaking as the "steel from scrap" factory in the States.

COUNTRY WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION

WORK FOR THE YEAR INTERESTINGLY REVIEWED

"LINES OF YOUR CREED HAVE LOFTY CONCEPTION"

The 20th annual meeting of the Gladstone branch of the Country Women's Association was held in the rest room on August 25. The meeting opened with the singing of the National Anthem, followed by "My Creed," and this was followed by a two minutes' silence for the fighting forces and those bereaved.

The Mayor and visitors were welcomed by the President (Mrs. Phillips). There were present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson, Rev. McNeil Saunders, the President (Mrs. H. Phillips), Mesdames Baynton, Gerber, Wallace, Bryan, Cross, Connellan, Beale, Hickson, W. C. Chapman, Norton, Leadbetter, Ricketts, Crawford, R. Smith, Miss G. Ward, and the Secretary-treasurer (Mrs. Burnham). A number of apologies were received.

Greetings by telegram were received from Mrs. Galloway (div. president) and Mrs. Hughes.

ANNUAL REPORT.

The President (Mrs. H. Phillips) presented the following annual report:

OFFICERS ELECTED.

At our last annual meeting the following officers were elected:— President, Mrs. E. W. Phillips; vice-presidents, Mesdames W. Chapman, Baynton, G. G. Dennis, D. Lewis, C. W. Macfarlan; country vice-presidents, Mesdames F. Butler and Colyer; supervisor Younger Set, Mrs. Chapman; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. E. A. Burnham; cottage committee, Mesdames Robinson, Leadbetter, and the President and Secretary; travellers' aid, Mrs. Hughes.

MEETINGS.

We have 37 members, and the ten meetings were well attended. January and February we were in recess. A group meeting was held on June 11, which was attended by representatives from many branches. The agenda was in the capable hands of Mrs. Chandler, D.V.P., and many Association problems were discussed. At our meeting on August 10 Mrs. Farmer (State president) attended in a non-official capacity, being on holidays. After the business of the meeting all enjoyed an interesting chat about the doings of the Association. An "airgraph" letter was viewed, which Mrs. Farmer had received from the Secretary, Country Women of the World (C.W.A.), London.

REST ROOM.

The rest room has been made available to the Methodist Church and Seventh Day Adventists for services and Sunday School. It has also been let for parties and weddings.

TRAVELLERS' AID.

Travellers' aid had been rendered when required. Mrs. Hughes attended to an invalid with special diet, and to children and mothers.

HOSPITAL VISITED.

Hospital visiting has been carried on regularly, when reading matter is given to patients. Distribution of bootees to babies had to be discontinued owing to wool rationing. The usual gifts and good wishes were personally presented to each patient at Xmas.

ANZAC DAY.

A wreath was placed on the Honour Board on Anzac Day, the wreath being made by a few of the members.

"HAVAREST."

"Havarest" has been occupied during the whole of the year, and has been well cared for.

EUCHRE.

Euchre continues to bring in regular income, and is attended to by Mrs. Irwin and her assistants.

DISTRESS CASES.

Distress cases were attended to, and 350 garments distributed. A pair of blankets were also purchased.

CAMOUFLAGE NET WORK.

Camouflage net work is progressing satisfactorily at the C.W.A. Hall, Comforts Fund room, and Comino's shop, 23 completed nets having been sent to headquarters.

WAR SAVINGS GROUP.

A war savings group was formed, and Mrs. Hammill made convenor, and she reported having 17 in her group. An interest free war loan certificate was taken for £100, and £43 was raised for various patriotic appeals, including Red Cross and Lady Gowrie Service Women's Appeal. This month we aim to raise £50 for the Service Women's Hostel, having arranged a National dance and flag display.

SOCIAL EVENINGS.

Social evenings were held in the rest room every Thursday, while troops were in town, and when we lost Mrs. Ogg early in the year members gathered at a farewell social to bid her good-bye.

YOUNGER SET.

The Younger Set have had a difficult year, due to so many of the members joining the military forces. They are stable financially owing to their hard work last year. We hope that the coming year may bring new members and fresh enthusiasm. The housekeeper scheme has been helped by members giving 1d each per week. The conference in Rockhampton was attended by Mesdames Burnham and Chapman.

THANKS.

I desire to thank all office-bearers, especially Mrs. Brnham, and members for their loyalty and co-operation during my term of office. I also thank the Press, our auditor (Mr. Cameron), camouflage net supervisors and workers, and all who in so many ways have assisted us in the work of the Association.

SOCIAL SERVICE.

In conclusion, I would like to state that though our membership is lower than it has been for a long time, our work of social service has not decreased, nor has its importance. To this has been added our various war efforts, the most vital being our camouflage net making, which is run throughout Queensland entirely under C.W.A. supervision.

SERVICE WOMEN.

Our service women too are our responsibility, and I am proud to say that never has an appeal been made to us that has not been responded to lavishly.

For their assistance and patronage I thank the public most sincerely.

The report was adopted.

CREDIT BALANCE.

The balance sheet disclosed a credit balance of £75/7/3.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were:—

President, Mrs. H. Phillips; vice-presidents, Mesdames W. C. Chapman, Baynton, D. Lewis, and C. W. Macfarlan; country, Mesdames F. Butler and Colyer; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. E. Burnham; supervisor Younger Set, Mrs. W. C. Chapman; travellers' aid, Mrs. Hughes; cottage committee, Mesdames Leadbetter and Robinson, with the President and Secretary.

VOTES OF THANKS.

Mrs. Duff moved a vote of thanks to the retiring officers, and spoke very highly of the wonderful work achieved during the year.

Mrs. Burnham moved a vote of thanks to the Mayor and visitors.

INVITATION GRACIOUSLY WORDED.

Acknowledging the vote, the Rev. G. T. A. Phillipson said that the invitation to be present at this annual function was so graciously worded that one really wished to be present, and not just as a matter of form. "First I should like to say how grateful I am to the C.W.A. for the courtesies extended to me and to the church which I represent. The war, having prevented the building of our new church on the land in Auckland Street, presented a great difficulty to my denomination, but the C.W.A. very kindly placed this hall at our disposal, where our services are now held every Sunday. For that reason alone this hall is very dear to me as our temporary spiritual home.

IMPRESSED WITH "THE CREED."

At the opening of the meeting this afternoon I was much impressed with the wording of your Creed. The lines have a lofty conception, and as the members endeavour to daily live up to the Creed they are making a worthwhile contribution to the uplift of the community. It has been my privilege in many parts of Queensland to see the extent of the C.W.A. activity.

TRIBUTE PAID.

The Nathan hut at Bowen is well known as a place of rest for all inland people, and I am looking forward to seeing your seaside home at Barney Point. The reading of the statement this afternoon gave all present an interesting resume of the manifold activities of your branch, and I gratefully pay my own tribute to the work which you have accomplished during the past 12 months.

REAL INSPIRATION.

The war has brought extra duties to all of us, and the way which members of the Gladstone branch of the C.W.A. have shouldered their responsibilities is a real inspiration."

GENERAL.

Rev. H. MacNeil Saunders then gave an address on the C.W.A. work, and the Mayor congratulated the C.W.A. on attaining their 21st birthday.

A very dainty afternoon tea was then served, and there being no further business, the President declared the meeting closed.

The mystery parcel, won by Mrs. Ricketts, was donated by Mrs. Kearney (Ballarat). Mrs. Ricketts has kindly donated the parcel for next meeting.

Who'd have thought it would come to this ?

After years of slaving over the wash tub for hours every Monday, Grandma is amazed to find that by using SU-TALL Washing Powder she can achieve an even whiter wash in half the time it used to take. She will tell you, too, that no rubbing was necessary.

If Grandma is convinced that there's nothing to equal SU-TALL, then it's time you tried it, too. Change to SU-TALL next washing day.

AUSTERITY MESSAGES

From the wives . . .

. . . of AUSTRALIA'S LEADERS

"Saving can be exciting. I have found that out for myself and pass it on to you. In peace time we Australians were free spenders, and it was fun to buy nice things, and plan little treats, but now we're at war, and a thrifty living is necessary to the success of the War Effort. Feel that every economy and self-denial helps our boys. Be proud of the mounting total of your Bonds and War Savings Certificates, and, believe me, you'll get a thrill out of saving."

Muriel Jones.

Sydney Hogarth (Garth) Starmer; also all those who assisted in arranging passage to New South Wales to enable us to be present at the funeral, and to the officers and personnel of the R.A.A.F. for their kindness and consideration; and also Mrs. Della Millar, of Wagga, N.S.W., who helped us so much.

Please accept this as our personal thanks.

CURRENT TOPICS

COMFORTS FUND RAFFLES.

Raffles conducted by the Gladstone branch of the Comforts Fund resulted: Iced cake (donated by Mrs. J. Milne) was won by Mrs. Kitto, Off Lane, Gladstone; a shopping bag (donated by Mrs. Dwyer) by Mrs. E. Linnane; and a duck (donated by Mr. T. C. Watson) by Mrs. McCrudden, Rolla Street, Gladstone.

YATES' CUP.

Mr. J. W. Garrett, secretary of the Presbyterian Flower Show, advises that the Yates' Cup was won by Miss M. Neil, with 15 points, Mrs. T. Murphy second with 14, and Mr. A. Blake third with 8. The committee regret that it was announced that Mr. A. Blake had won the Yates' Cup, and states the points were added up wrongly. Mr. Blake secured the highest number of points in section 1, but the Yates' Cup is given to the entry receiving the highest number of points from flowers grown from seeds the points being three for first and two for second.

PADDY'S MARKET.

The monthly Paddy's market, conducted by Mrs. A. H. Friend and her committee of ladies, will be held at the Red Cross grounds next Friday, September 10. The usual collection of fruit, vegetables, flowers, cakes, home manufactures, sweets, etc., will be on sale that day, and town and country donors are asked to kindly send in their consignments to Friends (Pty.) Ltd. in time for the market. A large amount of marrow fat will be available to buyers, and purchasers are asked to please bring their own containers for this. The Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society relies principally on its Paddy's market revenue for general funds, and the committee is very keen to keep the function at its present high level.

SERGT. RAY HALLAM

Posted as Missing

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hallam of Auckland Street, Gladstone, have received advice that their son, Sergeant Ray Hallam is listed missing in air operations on Friday night, August 27. The news was received in town with great regret, and many friends in conveying their sympathy to the parents have expressed the hope that the young airman may yet be posted as among the prisoners of war in enemy territory.

Young Ray was on the staff of the Bank of New South Wales when he enlisted two years ago, being stationed at Roma, Wowan and Miriam Vale, and later on the relieving staff.

Instead of proceeding to Canada he went direct to England, where he made rapid progress. He had only cabled his parents last week announcing his engagement in England.

The young pilot was in a Lancaster bomber with an Australian squadron, and it is thought probable that his unit was engaged on the recent heavy raid on Nuremberg (Germany).

We join in the wish that Mr. and Mrs. Hallam will soon receive further news of the safety of their gallant son.

SMOKING ON WHARVES.

A National Security Regulation gazetted this week gives port authorities power to issue orders prohibiting smoking on wharves. Previously, in some States, the port authorities did not have this power.

MORTGAGE BANK.

It has been officially stated that the Mortgage Bank of the Commonwealth Bank would open on September 27. The Act provides that primary producers can obtain loans up to £5000 for a period of not less than five years and not more than 41 years. Thousands of applications have been received already.

TRAFFICKING IN TAX STAMPS.

Trafficking in tax stamps has become rife, and the Taxation Department is determined to end it, said the N.S.W. Deputy Commissioner of Taxation (Mr. Hughes) last week. Many unscrupulous and foolish persons, he said, had purchased stamps illegally at discount rates, and had attempted to use these to obtain a fraudulent refund from the department. Fortunately, in most of these attempts, the suspicions of the taxation counter officials had been aroused.

P.O.W. APPEAL.

This appeal is to residents of West Gladstone, where Mesdames Bennedick and Schneider are the official collectors for the Prisoner of War street collection scheme. Until recently Mrs. Bennedick was able to call on residents in View, Side, Ormonde and Scenery Streets for their weekly subscription to this worthy cause. However, increasing demands on her time with the business makes it impossible for further calls in the streets mentioned, and the hon. organiser (Mr. D. J. Connellan) points out that it would greatly assist if all persons brought their weekly or fortnightly amount to the Fiveways Store, where Mrs. Bennedick will note them in the official P.O.W. street book. Miss M. Liddicoat will continue her collections in Kent and other portions of West Gladstone, but there will, as stated, be no further calls in View, Side, Ormonde and Scenery Streets.

DISPLAY OF CHOICE FLOWERS.

Accompanied by Mr. M. Dwyer, S.M., who is a keen gardener, our representative recently took advantage of an invitation from the caretaker, Mr. A. Blake, to inspect the display of choice flowers at the Gladstone Bowling Green. The collection of roses, sweet peas, gerberas, etc., surrounding the green presents one of the prettiest sights imaginable, and is well worth a visit by any garden lover. Mr. Blake, who recently exhibited some of these blooms at the Methodist and Presbyterian flower shows, has put in a lot of time and care in establishing the beds. In all there are ten plots surrounding the playing area, planted with roses in full bloom, and set off on the outer circumference with sprays of sweet peas. The highlight of the whole display is a mass of 8ft. high sweet peas in a large bed covering the club's flagpole between the gate entrance and the club house. Here magnificent blues, reds, pinks, navy blues, whites, and other colours make a beautiful showing. Most of the sprays have four flowers and some even five to the stem, and the colours are outstanding. The visitors were also shown a vase of very nice roses, "Una Wallace," which were grown by Mr. Blake.

GROW VEGETABLES

POSITION IN GLADSTONE

Mr. Williams' Gesture

During his recent visit to Gladstone in connection with the opening of the Presbyterian Church Flower Show and Fete the Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams) said it was his desire to encourage as far as possible the growing of vegetables in every home garden plot throughout the State, and was prepared to render what personal financial assistance and departmental advice he could to all intending persons interested in his proposal.

As a gesture in that direction he has offered one guinea and half a guinea as first and second prizes for the best displays of vegetables grown by any one individual householder at future flower and vegetable shows to be held in Gladstone, commencing with those conducted by the various churches annually.

"I realise I am up against a "double-edged" difficulty in this connection, and so will intending competitors," he said, during an interview with a representative of this journal before he left Gladstone.

"Scarcity of water and lack of manpower in the home in many centres will be the main difficulty to be overcome, but judging by what I saw at Gladstone during my recent visit," he said, "this evidently has not presented the problem one would expect it to have been during an unusually prolonged dry period.

The quality of the vegetables left little to be desired," he added, "and with a continuance of that energy and love for gardening in the home plot there is little doubt but that my offer of cash prizes will help to considerably increase the number of vegetable home gardeners in Gladstone, despite its generally poor quality of soil and inadequate supplies of water from time to time."

GOODS BY RAIL

Congestion at Brisbane

Action had been taken to ensure that essential civilian goods for Brisbane and northern towns were transported by rail, said the Transport Minister (Mr. Lawson).

Mr. Lawson said that statements by the New South Wales Railways Commissioner (Mr. Hartigan) referring to restriction of passenger and freight traffic were made without Mr. Lawson's knowledge. No recommendation was under consideration to restrict either civilian passenger travel or freight traffic. Dispatch of traffic outside the railways' capacity should be assured by making shipping space available.

New South Wales had applied restrictions during a period of congestion recently at Brisbane terminals. Defence materials and perishables only were accepted. In future, however, any restriction would take into consideration essential civilian requirements.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

L.A.C. W. Sidey is at present spending his leave with his wife and family in Gladstone. He will return to rejoin his unit at the end of the month.

The Muspratt family, of Littlemore, have received official word from the Minister for the Army (Mr. F. M. Forde) that their son Arthur is a prisoner of war in Malaya.

COMFORTS FUND

Gifts of Farm Butter

The Rationing Commission has advised Australian Comforts Fund headquarters that branches may accept gifts of farm butter for the manufacture of goods for sale, for meals to the public, and refreshments for the troops.

If any branch proposed to sell butter to the public it must collect coupons and surrender them to the Rationing Commission, explaining why they are surrendered.

BREEDING GROUND FOR FLIES.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—Gladstone people have something to be proud of in their harbour, and a lot to be thankful for in the climate.

The pests are few, no goats, a few mossies, some sandflies; but I was surprised to see a really excellent breeding ground for flies, made to order, which will enable Gladstone to rival any of the western towns this summer.

Already the first hatching is on the wing, and as these, of course, will not practice Dr. Marie Stopes' doctrine, we shall, I fear, have our choice of approximately fifty diseases to be delivered personally by these dirty little horrors bred in the Gladstone Hospital grounds in "clean" water from septic systems.—Yours, etc., sorrowfully

"FLY SWAT."

FREE EXPRESSION OF VIEWS.

Sir,—The Trades and Labour Council views with indignation your vicious attacks on the Labour Party and the trade unions generally in recent editions of the "Gladstone Observer." While such attacks are understandable in the Tory controlled press of the south, we fail to see why a purely local newspaper gives vent to such outbursts.

Gladstone is essentially an industrial town, the greater part of its inhabitants are engaged in industry, and there is, at the moment, a strong feeling of resentment against your publication. Fortunately, the people of this town were not misled by such propaganda.

Since the country has shown its desire for the continuance of the Curtin Government, a degree of tolerance would be more acceptable to the industrial inhabitants of this district.—Yours, tc.,

J. GOSSCHALK,
Hon. Sec. Trades and Labour Council.

(The columns of the "Observer" are always open to both sides for the free expression of political views, and on the occasion under review was taken full advantage of.—Ed. "Obs.")

COMMUNISM.

Sir,—In reply to an article entitled "Communism," which appeared in the "Gladstone Observer" on August 21, I would like to point out that this attack, like every attack on Communism printed in the capitalist press, is made without the slightest evidence to substantiate it, and in accordance with Hitler's technique—that to have a lie believed you must make it big. It is indeed deplorable that, in this democratic country, the freedom of the press is used by the capitalists to print such cheap political trollop without the slightest evidence to support it.

The reference to communists as "illiterates" and the seeming objection to their hatred of Fascism shows a complete lack of knowledge of the Communist Party. The members receive the finest political education of any political organisation in Australia, and it is because they know what Fascism is, and can recognise the Fascist trend among certain politicans and organisations in Australia, that they so bitterly oppose it. And if they are just "illiterates," then why is it that communists challenges to debates are so deliberately avoided by those to whom they are issued.

The statement that Russia is supplying war materials to Japan was obviously made by a person with a vivid imagination, in an attempt to out-Goebell Goebells. Russia has an immense task to keep supplies of war materials up to her own gallant soldiers, without supplying war materials to a potential enemy. This statement is designed to sow the seeds of distrust between the Allies.

The poor old communist is in the wrong again—this time because he is not like the Russian Red, yet some time ago he was too much like the foreign Russian communists. The Australian communist has not changed. The same papers that made these statement, and there are few that did not, now refer to the communists as "sommersaulters."

Communists hold positions in trade unions by virtue of their ability only. There are approximately one million workers organised in trade unions, and there are only 20,000 communists in Australia, so the communists must be elected to the positions they hold solely because they have all the necessary qualifications to capably carry out the duties required by that position.

In all these attacks I find that it is the communist, and not the communist policy that is attacked. Can it be that you do not wish to bring the communist policy before the eyes of the people you feed on your distorted versions of communism? Yours etc.,

W. J. RABNOTT.

Oaka Lane, Gladstone.

(We believe in free discussion, and not many moons ago the case for communism was given lengthy and sustained publicity in the "Observer."—Ed. "Obs.")

ROLL OF HONOUR

L.A.C. S. H. Starmer

The funeral of L.A.C. Sydney Hogarth (Garth) Starmer, of the R.A.A.F., and son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Starmer, of Gladstone, who was killed in Southern New South Wales, took place in Wagga on Sunday, August 22.

The cortege moved from St. Michael's Cathedral after prayers had been read by the very Rev. Father J. H. Larkins, administrator.

The casket, which was draped with the Union Jack, was carried by L.A.C.'s Nielson, Steele, Andrews, Holmes, Marchant and Bullock, while the flower tray, laden with tributes, was carried by L.A.C.'s Buckland, Day, Gould and Thomson.

A guard of honour was formed at the Cathedral by members of St. Michael's branch of the Holy Name Society, and through this the casket was taken.

Miss Kathleen Hunt presided at the organ, and as the casket left the church rendered "The Dead March In Saul."

As the gun carriage bearing the casket moved from the church it was followed by the attending party, who formed a procession from the Cathedral to the Town Hall, thence to disperse and form up again and follow the casket to the grave.

As the casket was lowered in the grave "The Last Post" was sounded.

Relatives present were: The mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Starmer (Gladstone), and officers from No. 5 S.F.T.S. were the commanding officer, Wing Commander Curnow, Flt. Lieut. Branigan, Flt. Lieut Dixon, and Flying Officer McInerney.

Among the tributes were wreaths from the staff of the Embassy Theatre (Gladstone), members and associates of the Gladstone Golf Club, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Connellan, June and Patty, Mavis and Bill Barker, the Patrick family, Betty Breslin, mother and dad, Geoff and Beryl, Jack and Phyllis, Lex, of Gladstone.

The officer in charge of the funeral arrangements for the R.A.A.F. was Squadron Leader Sturgeon.

Mr. and Mrs. Starmer were assured by the Commanding Officer that Garth was indeed a very promising trainee, and would have graduated from the Flying School with high honours and appointed to commissioned rank.

Garth had attained a prominent place in his course, and in the matter of leadership, and was very popular with his instructors, and it can be said that the Royal Air Force has been deprived of a very valuable member who would have gone far in the service of his country.

Young Starmer was a prominent member of the Gladstone Life Saving Club, being the holder of the bronze and surf medallions in the Royal Life Saving Club. He was also an outstanding hockey player, being a member of the Sparks Club.

Gladstone residents remember with pride many of his brilliant swimming feats, having won many important championship races. In 1940 he won the 54 yards, 100 yards, and 200 yards (under 16 years) Central Queensland championships (junior), representing the Fitzroy Club, Rockhampton, while in 1939 he was a close second in the Queensland State championship 100 metres, the prize being a handsome silver medal.

Garth was also a member of the 3rd Gladstone Scouts, having passed through the cubs, thence into the scouts, and was a patrol leader, and his work in this direction merited high praise from those in authority.

Our young friend has now passed on, and he will ever be remembered as one who nobly performed his duty in the service of his King and Country.

NEW APPLICATION FORMS FOR TYRES. 4

Under a new rubber control order the old application forms for tyres are null and void. People who were complaining about a tyre shortage did not realise that they had to forward new application forms.

BOYNE VALLEY

PATRIOTIC FUND

Successful Dance

Th monthly dance of the Boyne Valley Patriotic Fund, held in the Ubobo Hall on Saturday, August 28, was well patronised. Music was supplied by Mrs. H. C. Dougall (piano), Mr. L. Pownall (cornet), and Master Brian (drums), and proved as popular as ever. Mr. R. Waite carried out the duties of M.C.

A sweets stall was held in conjunction with the dance. The committee buys the sugar and supplies willing workers, who make the sweets for the stall. The rapidity with which the sweets sell imparts great credit on the cooks. The committee thank these women for their effort, also all donors of raffles and raffle workers.

A bunch of flowers, made and donated by Mrs. Kajewski, and raffled by her, was won by Miss Vera Ibbotsen.

A pig (donated by Mr. J. W. Muspratt) was raffled, Mrs. Cole being the winner.

A goose (donated by Mrs. Stapleton) was raffled, the winner being Mr. Bert Waldron.

The chocolate waltz was won by Mrs. M. Wengert, and the Monte Carlo by Mr. and Mrs. J. Mossman, the prizes being donated by Mrs. Wagner and Mrs. Christie.

Results of dance was as follows:—Door takings £11/6/-, chocolate waltz £2/4/-, Monte Carlo £1/17/-, raffle of pig £4/12/-, raffle of goose £4/6/-, raffle of flowers £2/10/-, sale of sweets £2/12/-. Donations: Mrs. J. N. Pownall £1/1/-, H. C. Dougall £1/1/-, H. J. Russell £1/5/-, Miss M. Gray 12/-, Miss J. Davies 2/-, grand total £33/18/.

MARRIED NURSES

May Be Called Up

Many qualified nurses who are married will probably be directed to seriously understaffed hospitals.

This was the impression given by the Director General of Manpower (Mr. Wurth) last week, when he said: "Manpower authority will be exercised to the full in directing nurses to hospitals. Nurses who are not practising, even if employed in occupations other than nursing, have had ample opportunity to return to nursing work."

"Surveys had shown," he continued, that there had been a shortage of 898 nurses on staffs of hospitals in Australia. Within three months more than 1000 additional nurses had been appointed to hospital staffs. Army and Air Force nurses had been temporarily released for emergency civilian needs, and were still being used to meet urgent hospital dmands.

FLAT OWNERS

A Protective Move

About 100 Brisbane flat owners have formed themselves into an association. Owners have banded together to further flat owners' benefits and to seek legal advice on National Security Regulations concerning flats, said Mr. C. L. Baker, who is secretary of the movement.

The main trouble landlords were experiencing was that of ejecting tenants. The Flat Owners' Association will deal with such cases and watch landlords' interests in all matters concerning their flats.

LETTERS TO PRISONERS

Limited to 25 Words

Letters to prisoners and internees in Japanese hands must be limited in future to 25 words, and must be typed or written in block letters.

The Postmaster General (Senator Ashley) said that a telegram had been received from the High Commissioner in London stating that the Japanese authorities had advised the protecting power and the International Red Cross that these stipulations must be complied with henceforth.

PARADE AND DEMONSTRATION

Gladstone To-day (Saturday)

In Australia thousands of men and women have given freely of their leisure time in order to reach a standard of efficiency in civil defence work, which has had the effect of sustaining public morale in these recent months of tension and uncertainty.

So that the efforts of these patriotic individuals might receive recognition and appreciation of their fellow citizens it has been decided to set aside to-day (Saturday), Sept. 4, as Civil Defence Day throughout the Commonwealth, and on that day parades and demonstrations will be held at all centres to remind the public of the debt of gratitude it owes to its civil defence organisations, which was called into being for the sole purpose of saving civilian life and property endangered by any possible enemy action.

COMMENCE AT 2.10 P.M.

At a meeting of the local committee of the organisation, held last Wednesday, under the presidency of the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), it was decided that the Gladstone Civil Defence Organisations fall into line with these ideals, and that a parade and demonstration be held, commencing at 2.30 p.m.

MARSHALLING THE PARADE.

It was resolved that Captain C. D. Patrick be approached, and asked to undertaake the duty of marshalling the parade, and that the services be in the following order:—

(1) A.R.P. Wardens
(2) Essential and Emergency services.
(3) Hospital and Ambulance services.
(4) Fire Brigade services.
(5) Welfare and Mobile Canteen services.

ROUTE OF THE PARADE.

It was then decided that all services assemble at the Court House, and join the parade, and that the route should be as follows:—

Leave Court House at 2.30 p.m., and march down Yaroon Street to its intersection with Auckland Street, thence along Auckland Street to its intersection with Tank Street, thence along Tank Street to its intersection with Gondoon Street, thence along Gondoon Street to the vacant allotment opposite the Ambulance Station. At this allotment demonstrations by the services will be given.

FULL MUSTER WANTED.

It was further requested that the officers in charge of various services endeavour to contact all members of his service, and use every endeavour to muster full membership for the parade, and that suitable notices be printed by the various sections, and that all were to march with kit or equipment supplied.

LIGHT REFRESHMENTS.

It was further decided that light refreshments would be available from the mobile canteen for the members, and that arrangements for this be completed. It was stated that this would be done by the Red Shield, and that the services of the welfare section attached to the State School be asked to co-operate in this work.

PUBLIC INVITED.

It was further decided that every available means of publicity be given to the parade and demonstration, and that the public be invited to be present.

HARRIS HORDER KILLED.

Harris Horder, 43, the Australian-born professional cyclist, was killed in action in the South-West Pacific. He was an air corps gunner, and held the American sprint championship in 1927.

HEENZO IS 3 IN ONE REMEDY FOR CHEST NOSE AND THROAT AILMENTS

In addition to saving much money by using HEENZO Cough Remedy, you can also use it three different ways. You take HEENZO internally for internal ailments, viz., coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis and influenza. You use HEENZO as a nasal antiseptic, just a few drops up each nostril night and morning quickly ridding catarrh and colds in head. By gargling with HEENZO you gain instant relief from sore and smokers' throats. Remember, a bottle of Concentrated HEENZO costing only 2/- makes one pint of Family Cough Remedy, equally good for adults and children.

IMPOSTERS IN UNIFORM

Rob Servicemen

Service uniforms are being worn by impostors to enable them to assault and rob Allied servicemen, says the Sydney "Sun." One night last week two more Allied men, one convalescent from a military hospital, were assaulted and robbed.

A police officer said that men arrested for this type of offence, although wearing uniform, were not always members of the forces. Frequently they were deserters for whom authorities have been searching for some time.

Deserters from the Army usually adopted the role of a naval rating, as there is less chance of them being questioned by the Provost Corps.

Civilians of the criminal type were also frequent offenders.

Charles Waybright, an Allied soldier, who is still convalescent, had been with two men dressed in Australian naval uniform, and when walking along William Street, Sydney, about 7 p.m. they suddenly attacked him and threw him to the footpath. They ran off with his wristlet watch. He had to get three stitches in a wound in the head.

QUEENSLAND CATTLE

For N.S. Wales

Twice as many cattle have crossed the border from Queensland to New South Wales in the first six months of this year compared with the same period of 1942.

This was disclosed in Parliament by the Agriculture Minister (Mr. Williams), when replying to questions by Mr. Luckins.

Mr. Williams said that in the first six months of this year 206,512 cattle had crossed the border, compared with 100,821 in the first six months of 1942.

TOBACCO CONTROL.

Grower representation on the Australian Tobacco Board predominated, said the Chairman of the Board (Mr. J. A. Tonkin). He emphasised that statements that the British Australasian Tobacco Co. Pty. Ltd. had powerful representation on the Board were not in accordance with facts.

Is Wealth DESIRABLE?

WHAT is Wealth? . . Some people think that wealth should be abolished, so we ought to be clear what wealth is.

Is a bicycle wealth?
Or a coalminer's cottage?
Or a young couple's first household of furniture?
Or a suit of clothes?
Or a share in a woollen mill?

If these be wealth (as most certainly they are), is one kind of wealth better for the nation than another kind of wealth? Or is wealth what the other fellow has, and not what we have ourselves?

As one family in three in the Commonwealth uses the A.M.P. Society to conserve some of its wealth (against the day when it will be most useful) there ought to be some hard thinking on these questions. On the answers given to them may depend the future happiness of our people.

For nearly 100 years the A.M.P. Society, with complete freedom of enterprise, has been building up its strength, the better to serve its members. Last year it paid out £8,660,000 in benefits. Its assets are now worth £141,000,000, every penny of which belongs to its members. Let them guard well these savings.

DAIRY ASSOCIATION

MEETING OF DIRECTORS

Various Matters Dealt With

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Port Curtis Co-operative Dairy Association Ltd. was held at the registered office, Gladstone, on Thursday, August 26, there being present: Mr. G. B. Mouatt (chairman of directors), Messrs. C. W. Thiele, R. F. Graham, A. Johanson, N. R. Mullally, W. C. Paroz, C. R. Anderson, W. Lehfeldt, F. Morris, A. H. Bulow, and E. Liddell. Apologies were received from Messrs. G. Ellis and H. E. Hewitt, and leave of absence was granted. The assistant general manager (Mr. R. R Meldrum) and the secretary (Mr. C. E. Butterworth) were also in attendance.

Major J. R. King, general manager of the Producers' Co-operative Distributing Society Ltd., attended the meeting by invitation, and addressed the directors on the business conducted by his organisation, and explained the association with Australian Producers Wholesale Co-operation Co. Ltd., Empire Dairies Ltd., and Overseas Farmers' Co-operative Co. Ltd.

ELECTIONS COMMITTEE.

Mr. J. W. Byatt tendered his resignation as a member of the Elections Committee, and Mr. J. H. Cummings, Mt. Larcom, was appointed to fill the vacancy.

THEODORE FACTORY.

Consideration was given to the milk supply to Theodore Cheese Factory, and it was decided that the Chairman of Directors visit Theodore and discuss this matter with suppliers.

PROTEST SUPPORTED.

The South Burnett Co-operative Dairy Association Ltd. wrote forwarding copy of letter forwarded to the Prime Minister, protesting against the re-introduction of daylight saving time, and the Board decided to strongly support this protest.

SHARES AND TRANSFERS.

Thirty-three new shares were alotted, and a number of transfers registered.

BALANCE SHEET ADOPTED.

The annual balance sheet for the year ended June 30, 1943, was adopted, and the surplus for the period was transferred to an account for deferred payments to suppliers. The amount will be distributed on a date to be decided, and will provide an additional payment of one half penny per gallon to suppliers of milk for pasteurisation purposes, one half penny per pound butter fat in connection with milk supplied to cheese factories, and slightly less than one farthing per pound commercial butter to cream suppliers.

RECORD ICE SALES.

Ice sales for the year constitute a record for the Association, and other trading results were considered very satisfactory. It was pleasing to note that a profit had been shown on the operations of both of the Association's piggeries.

BUTTER MANUFACTURED.

Butter manufactured during the year amounted to 7284 tons, an increase of 557 tons on the previous year, and cheese produced at Bracewell and Theodore Cheese Factories totalled 442 tons, being an increase of 405 on the previous year's output, when Bracewell Factory only operated for a very short period.

Representatives were appointed to attend the annual meeting of the Queensland Co-operative Dairy Association, and the next meeting of the Board was fixed for Thursday, October 21.

LONG RANGE BOMBING

Dramatic Events

In recent weeks added interest has been given the Allied communiques by the news of spectacular long range bombing raids.

These raids have not been confined to Europe, although the bombing of targets in Rumania and Austria have perhaps been the most dramatic of these events.

In our own area the 2400-mile journey to attack Sourabaya has been followed up by a raid against an enemy base in Borneo involving a flight of 2532 miles.

Perhaps the most significant deduction to be made from the news of these long range air attacks in the Pacific is that we now have more aircraft and accessories to use against targets far advanced from the active battle areas; but this demonstration of intensified offensive strategy leads to closer thought about territories now brought within the orbit of our vision; territories that have not entered very largely into our consideration during the past year.

An Australian correspondent in Sicily has pointed out that "there is tremendous encouragement for the Australians and their Allies in the Pacific in the smoothness and the results of the amphibious (Sicilian) undertaking in the Mediterranean."

We are reminded that beyond New Guinea and Timor lie Java, Sumatra, Borneo, Malaya, and the Philippines—all of which are our concern, not only during the war, but afterwards. Australia has a part to play in the freeing of these countries, and our interest in them cannot automatically cease as soon as the Japanese are driven out.

It is well understood in Britain and America that the United Nations will have the responsibility of rehabilitating liberated territories. Already in Sicily an Allied administration is working to restore normal conditions and to re-establish the local people on a secure social and economic footing.

Something along the same lines is being done in New Guinea, although there the situation is not so acute as it might be in places where the Japanese have been longer established, and the internal economy more drastically changed.

In preparation for the re-occupation of the Netherlands East Indies a school of civil servants has been established in Australia by Netherlands Indies authorities in this country.

Australians, together with our Allies, have a great responsibility. We shall have to help repair the damage, both physical and economic.

We will be morally bound to help them take their places in the new comity of nations envisaged by the Atlantic Charter.

For a time we shall have to give them more than we can ask them to buy; in short, we shall have to raise them up to a comparable national level unless we decide to retire to our isolated white outpost and allow them to work out a destiny which will lead to conflict rather than co-operation.

These long distance raids are a timely reminder that this war holds responsibilities beyond its winning; responsibilities that will exercise our patience and determination just as much as the gaining of victory itself.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

SAVE IT... for Australia...

REDUCE personal spending — that means more tanks, aeroplanes, ships, munitions, equipment, to be used by our men for our defence.

Here is a vital war-time job for you — to see that not a single penny is wastefully or unnecessarily spent, and that every penny so saved goes into the total war effort. Until Victory is won, the Government needs all your savings, not only the money you have now but all that you can put aside.

PARACHUTE BOMBS

Dropped on Berlin

It was reported from Germany recently that a series of 200 feet anti-aircraft towers have been built around Berlin in an attempt to defend the city from the growing weight of Allied air attacks.

These towers were designed to give anti-aircraft gunners a better angle at which to fire at low flying planes.

With raids being carried out "in very great strength," the enemy is trying out every device his ingenuity can invent, and he has been hoping the towers would deter the planes which swoop down to within 75 feet of the ground to drop parachute fragmentation bombs.

Fragmentation bombs are dropped attached to specially designed rayon parachutees. The bomber skims along at such a low altitude that if parachutes were not used for the bombs the plane itself would run the risk of being damaged in the explosion.

The parachutes delay the descent of the bomb long enough to allow the plane to fly out of range. The bombs themselves weigh only about 30 lbs., but their destructive power is terrific.

Allied planes, which dropped the bombs over the Axis in Tunisia, Pantellaria and Sicily, wrought great havoc on landing grounds, docks, and other vital targets.

Axis planes parked on airfields were riddled with the metal fragments which the explosion scatters at high velocity over a wide area.

NEWCASTLE STEEL

Lowest in the World

"The price of steel in Australia remains the lowest in the world," said Mr. H. G. Darling, chairman of the Broken Hill (Pty.) Ltd., speaking at the company's annual meeting last week.

"The first increase in the price of steel since the war took place last October. Rising costs, due to many causes, made this increase necessary, but we are still supplying the lowest cost steel in the world. This is of vital importance from an economic point of view, not only to industry in Australia, but to all the Allies.

"Our tungsten carbide products in the form of a wide range of tool tips and wire drawing dies are also being marketed throughout Australia at prices lower than the pre-war price of similar imported articles.

"Our deep thanks must go to the many metallurgists and technicians who, often without proper equipment, have achieved wonders. I would also like to thank" Mr. Darling continued, "the many firms in Great Britain and America who have unreservedly placed their knowledge at our disposal.

FOUR YEARS OF WAR

A Vital Corner Stone

In September, 1939, Australia went to war. At the time many felt vaguely doubtful about it. In spite of inspiring and worthy battle cries, they had not fully assessed its moral foundation, its implications, and its goal. There followed the period of relative inaction—the "phoney war."

Gradually the feeling grew that something bigger was at stake than the mere integrity of national boundaries and the disciplining of unruly elements among the nations.

As the war progressed the issues became clearer. The common people inevitably came to understand that it was their affair, that its issues affected them personally, that the goal was not only a victory on the battlefield but a winning back of human rights that had become suppressed and atrophied.

At the beginning the emphasis was upon preservation of democratic institutions and maintenance of the status quo; but as the war progressed we came to realise that we did not want to preserve democracy as we had known it so much as to improve and extend it.

This has provided a more positive inspiration of our mounting war effort. It goes hand in hand with our determination to beat the enemy. We are not merely fighting against, but for, something.

We have no doubts about our military strength. We have confidence in our fighting leaders, our forces, and our arms, and the defeat of the enemy rests only on time and the application of our power.

But that is not the end. The greater victory that lies beyond the present conflict calls for an even greater application of the principles that motivate our present efforts. We shall have to attain such a state of understanding, such a pitch of realisation, that we shall never again permit our destiny to rest on the chances of accident or force, but on the well built foundations of reflection and choice.

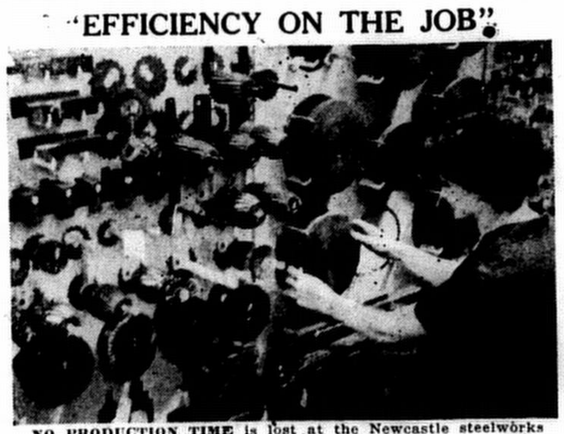
This means the end of personal and national isolation. It means the regeneration of those humane instincts that make every man his neighbour's friend and every nation a member of a family.

It means tolerance and a due regard for the rights of others. It means removing the beam from our own eye before challenging the mote in another's.

Four years of war have shown us that our fundamental rights are human rights, belonging to our neighbours equally with ourselves. When we resolve to build our world on this foundation we shall have won the war and guaranteed peace with justice.

The United States will make this year the greatest tonnage of steel the world has ever seen. Production to date is 1,000,000 tons in excess of the estimate of 90,000,000 tons.

"EFFICIENCY ON THE JOB"



NO PRODUCTION TIME is lost at the Newcastle steelworks through misplaced tools or spare parts. "Shadow Boards", with a place for everything, and everything in its place, are provided for tools, equipment and spare parts. The scheme has been copied in plants throughout the world.

"THE CITY OF STEEL"

Russia Interested in Newcastle

"In the Soviet Union, Newcastle is known as 'the city of steel'," said the Soviet Minister to Australia, M. Andre Vlasov, who added, "I was greatly interested to inspect for myself the production methods and organisation of the Broken Hill Proprietary works." M. Vlasov, who spent a day at the works last week, was formerly Dean of the Faculty of Steel in the University of Moscow.

The recognition of the output and high quality of the Newcastle Steelworks by Russia is indeed interesting, and Australia's vital contribution to war supplies through her steel industry is given emphasis by three news items of the week.

First was the announcement that a new anti-tank gun is now in production in Australia.

Second was the launching of a new naval vessel from a New South Wales shipyard.

Third was the arrival in Sydney of the American War Mission.

All three of these news items concern Australian steel and Australian enterprise.

"The anti-tank gun," said the Minister for Munitions, Mr. Makin, "is only one instance in which production in this country of a new type of weapon has proceeded almost simultaneously in this country and the United Kingdom."

Judge R. P. Patterson, head of the American War Mission, is down here to inspect troops and their equipment. He is vitally interested in the "forward action" promised by the Quebec conference, and in Australian arms which will help put this action under way. They will, no doubt, include the new anti-tank gun and the famous Owen gun, described by Mr. Ray Parer as a "builder of morale among the New Guinea troops."

The American War Mission lost no time in finding out for themselves something of Australian factory production. They spent their first day inspecting factories, naval and military establishments.

AUSTERITY MESSAGES

From the wives . . .

. . . of AUSTRALIA'S LEADERS

"Saving can be exciting. I have found that out for myself and pass it on to you. In peace time we Australians were free spenders, and it was fun to buy nice things, and plan little treats, but now we're at war, and a thrifty living is necessary to the success of the War Effort. Feel that every economy and self-denial helps our boys. Be proud of the mounting total of your Bonds and War Savings Certificates, and, believe me, you'll get a thrill out of saving."

CURRENT TOPICS

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

No decision will be made by the Federal Government on the reintroduction of daylight saving until the Cabinet is reconstituted, probably in a fortnight. Normally the change over to daylight saving would take place late this month.

PADDY'S MARKET.

The monthly Paddy's market, conducted by Mrs. A. H. Friend and her committee of ladies, will be held at the Red Cross grounds next Friday, September 10. The usual collection of fruit, vegetables, flowers, cakes, home manufactures, sweets, etc., will be on sale that day, and town and country donors are asked to kindly send in their consignments to Friends (Pty.) Ltd. in time for the market. A large amount of marrow fat will be available to buyers, and purchasers are asked to please bring their own containers for this. The Gladstone branch of the Red Cross Society relies principally on its Paddy's market revenue for general funds, and the committee is very keen to keep the function at its present high level.

ROLL OF HONOUR

"DIGGER" CROW.

A Builyan resident writes:—

Quite an air of gloom pervaded the district when the news of the death of "Digger" (Keith) Crow in battle in New Guinea circulated on Saturday last.

Reared in the heart of the settlement, a connection of the old established Bailey family, and recalled as a bright faced, conscientious, open-hearted, well mannered boy, now on the threshold of manhood, his end however honourable, brought the sorrows and horrors of war closer to many a surrounding household.

To his father, the well-known Goddy, to the surviving members of the family, to all connections, the district proffers most genuine condolence.

STRIKERS WARNED

Government Determined

The Prime Minister (Mr. Curtin) said that the Government is determined to take whatever action is necessary to wipe out strikes and stoppages. Mr. Curtin said these problems would be one of the first to be discussed by the new Cabinet.

"I won't have war operations prejudiced by hold-ups," said Mr. Curtin.

DEBENTURE LOAN OF £90,000

C.C. CORPS CONDITIONS

Revised Estimate of Cost

The Minister for Agriculture and Stock (Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A.) advises that he has received the following letter from the Under Secretary to the Treasury, relative to the Boyne River water scheme:—

"With further reference to your personal representations relative to the authority given to the Council of the Town of Gladstone to enter into negotiations for a debenture loan of £90,000 for the construction of the Boyne River water supply scheme for Gladstone, in connection with which a subsidy of one-third of the annual instalment of interest and redemption for the first fifteen years will be made available to the Council, and to my letter of the 23rd instant, I have to inform you that, in drawing attention to the urgency for this A2 priority project, the Co-ordinator General of Public Works points out (inter alia) that, as the Commonwealth Government has agreed to contribute £10,000, it will be possible to utilise Civil Constructional Corps labour on this work, and the Co-ordinator General advises that he has requested that the Council's engineers submit a revised estimate of cost based on present Civil Constructional Corps conditions.

In view of the possibility of Civil Constructional Corps labour being employed on the work, it would appear desirable to allow the amount to be borrowed at £90,000. The Council should therefore comply with the provisions of "The Local Government Acts, 1936 to 1943," with respect to a loan of £90,000 (as originally intended).

Application will be made by the Honourable the Treasurer to the Treasurer of the Commonwealth for the latter's consent with respect to the full amount of £90,000.

GRAZIERS' ASSOCIATION

GLADSTONE DISTRICT BRANCH

Stock Route and Toll Gates

At the commencement of a meeting of the Gladstone District branch of the Central Coastal Graziers' Association, held on the fourth anniversary of the declaration of war, all members stood in silence for one minute.

There were presents Messrs P. A. Frind (chairman), R. L. Webb, J. M. Campbell, W. C. Chapman, C. F. K. Cave, C. Chapman, H. H. Waddell, W. P. McGuire, H. Chapman, J. D. Stirrat, E. L. Farmer, F. M. Hickson, and A. E. Easterby (district secretary).

MEMBERSHIP.

Applications for membership from Messrs. R. S. G. Macdonald, G. Milner, H. C. Dougall, A. B. Ferris, and Mrs. M. E. Hickson were recommended to the Central Coastal Graziers' Association for acceptance.

STOCK ROUTE.

The meeting was informed that the work of clearing the stock route on the ten chain road, near Catfish Scrub, rendered necessary owing to a change in the route of the road, was nearing completion.

TOLL GATES ERECTED.

The Chairman reported that the toll gates had been erected at the holding yards at Burua, and the Calliope Shire Council's new by-law relating to this toll had become effective as from September 1.

The management of the Gladstone Meat Works had agreed to deduct the toll from the proceeds of cattle upon receiving authority from suppliers, and the secretary stated that 96 suppliers had been forwarded forms for this purpose.

The proceeds of the toll are to be expended on improvements to the yards and stock route, the work to be carried out by the Shire Council at the request of the branch.

STATE SURPLUS.

The Treasury returns for the two months ended in August showed a surplus of £405,592, compared with a surplus of £343,557 shown for the corresponding two months last year. State receipts from all sources in the two months reached £4,086,380, and the expenditure £3,680,788.

Australia is producing shale petrol at the rate of 2,000,000 gallons a year.

GLADSTONE TOWN COUNCIL

VISIT TO BRISBANE BENEFIT GLADSTONE CITIZENS

EXPECTED SCHEME BE COMPLETED IN 12 MONTHS

A special meeting of the Council was held on Monday night. Present: The Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), and Aldermen J. Deveney, M. A. Busteed, W. R. Golding, H. Anderson, R. E. Smith, R. R. Tudman, and the Acting Town Clerk (Mr. V. P. Breslin).

BUSINESS OF MEETING.

The business of the meeting was to consider:—

(1) To pass a resolution to borrow the sum of £90,000 from the State Government Insurance Office for the Boyne River water supply scheme.

(2) To further deal with the applications of Mr. J. McCarthy and Mr. N. S. Burns for the position of acting Town Clerk during the period the Town Clerk (Mr. R. H. Grayson) was serving with the R.A.A.F.

(3) Matters appertaining to the Boyne River water supply scheme.

BORROW £90,000.

Ald. Golding moved that application be made to the Treasury Department for permission to borrow the sum of £90,000 from the State Government Insurance Office for the Boyne River water supply scheme. Seconded by Ald. Smith and carried.

FORMALITIES OF LOAN.

Ald. Golding moved that application be made to the Treasury Department for permission to dispense with the formalities in connection with the loan. Seconded by the Mayor and carried.

ALD. GOLDING'S REPORT.

Acting under a request and authority from the Council, I proceeded to Brisbane on Wednesday, September 1, accompanied by the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis), for the purpose of interviewing the Deputy Co-ordinator General (Mr. Kemp) and others with a view to securing some assistance in the construction and expediting the completion of the new water supply scheme from the Boyne River to Gladstone.

MR. WILLIAMS HAD PRIOR ENGAGEMENT.

I had instructed the Acting Town Clerk (Mr. V. Breslin) to contact our representative, Mr. T. L. Williams, M.L.A., Minister for Agriculture and Stock, to secure an appointment with the Deputy Co-ordinator General for 10 a.m. on Thursday. On arrival in Brisbane it was found that Mr. Williams could not attend the conference owing to a prior engagement.

SUPPLY OF LABOUR.

We met the Deputy Co-ordinator General (Mr. Kemp), Mr. Rogers, Secretary Allied Works Council, and Mr. Sharp, of the Water and Irrigation Commission, at the Main Roads Office, and put our case before them for the supply of labour for the completion of our water scheme. From the outset Mr. Kemp showed a keen desire to help us over our troubles and expedite its completion.

FORMALITIES.

One of the first difficulties to be overcome was the formalities in connection with the loan, and it is recommended that application be made to the Treasury for permission to dispense with the formalities which it is anticipated will be granted.

TENDERS FOR PIPES.

The question of calling tenders for pipes was next discussed, and it was pointed out by Mr. Kemp that as the price of pipes was fixed and that there was only one company making these pipes, that considerable delay would be overcome if the provision of the Local Authority Act could be set aside so as to enable an order to be placed at once. However, as Mr. Chuter was away in the North, we were not able to finalise this matter, but it is recommended that immediate steps be taken towards this end.

QUESTION OF FREIGHT.

The question of freighting the pipes was discussed, and it was pointed out to us that urgency of the need for goods very often overruled the question of cost of transport, but in this case Mr. Kemp promised to take up with the authorities concerned and endeavour to arrange boat freight.

RECASTING THE SCHEME.

The need for a recasting of the estimated cost of the whole scheme was apparent, when we were asked what was the estimated cost of the first section, and in reply could only hazard a guess of £25,000. We were then asked to contact our engineers with a view to having the whole scheme recast at the earliest opportunity, and the assistance of officers from the Water and Irrigation Commission and Main Roads Office would be available for collaboration.

RESTORED TO £90,000.

Previous correspondence from the State Insurance Office advised that owing to a Federal grant of £10,000, the amount of loan money available to the Council had been reduced by a similar amount. Acting on a request from the Deputy Co-ordinator General, this amount had been restored to £90,000, and Mr. Williams had been advised of this decision.

SALES TAX.

Sales tax payment on account of goods supplied and to be supplied would run into many thousands of pounds, and discussion ensued in regard to this as to whether, on account of the Federal authorities being interested in the proposition, we could obtain a remission of the whole of the tax paid and payable. Mr. Kemp was very hopeful that this difficulty could be overcome, and promised to support any representation that we would make in regard to it.

RELEASE OF CEMENT.

The necessity of an early application for the release of cement for this work was urged, as many important undertakings were already help up through lack of this material.

MANPOWER AND MACHINERY.

The most important point to be decided was the manpower and machinery necessary for the completion of the whole scheme. A resume of progress to date and labour difficulties encountered were given to Mr. Kemp, and it was admitted by us that at the rate of progress being made by the few men that were available would mean that it would take years to complete.

A WAR MEASURE.

Mr. Kemp pointed out that the scheme was recognised as a war measure, the Army had given £10,000 towards the cost, and it was necessary to have the whole scheme completed at the earliest possible moment if it was to be of any value during the war, which meant that far greater numbers of men would have to be employed.

MR. THEODORE INTERESTED.

The job could not be recognised as an Allied Works Council project, but on account of the interest that the Army authorities had taken in the scheme it would be recognised as a job on which Civil Constructional Corps members could be employed, and Mr. Kemp knew that Mr. Theodore was personally interested in the project.

MR. KEMP HOPEFUL.

The release of men for this project would have to be carefully weighed in its relation to urgent defence works. There were about four thousand men short for their immediate needs, but Mr. Kemp was hopeful that the men would be forthcoming.

RELIEVE THE COUNCIL.

Mr. Kemp said there appeared but two ways of having the scheme completed—by day labour or by cost plus. The Allied Works Council had four men who were accustomed to doing this class of work, and two of them were looking for work of this nature. Mr. Kemp considered that work done under cost plus would relieve the Council of tremendous responsibility, as the onus of procuring everything and paying for it in the first instance was on the contractor, who would render his claim in detail to the Council, and he would be reimbursed on his nett payments.

SERVICES OF 100 MEN.

These men had already in their employ large numbers of men who upon application by the contractor for men for this job would in all probability be granted these men for carrying out the Council's scheme. To do the job economically and expeditiously would require the services of one hundred men for a year, and in all probability these contractors would have considerable plant of their own, for which they would be paid hire charges for certain implements, and it may even be possible to secure a trench digging machine from the Allied Works Council.

WORKS COUNCIL RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. Kemp promised to write the Council during the week forwarding the names of two men who would carry the Works Council's recommendation, and he would leave it to the Council to make first and second choice. Mr. Kemp would also forward the system of working such a scheme.

INTERNATIONAL ADOPTED.

Under the present cost plus system which was of international adoption, an estimated cost of the whole job was submitted to the contractor, and if he was satisfied with the estimate he would be paid a commission of something like 3 per cent on works estimated to cost over £100,000, and if the scheme was put through at a lesser cost then the Council would reap the benefit. But if the scheme cost more than the estimated sum the contractor would still only receive his commission on the estimated cost, and he would be allowed certain key men who would not be required to be members of the C.C.C.

UNDER C.C.C. CONDITIONS.

Under C.C.C. conditions it was necessary to provide accommodation and food for the men, inclusive of kitchen and eating houses. The Works Council had a staff of men who were skilled in erecting these huts, which could be hired out to the contractor. It was thought that on the second section it would be more economical to have a central camp, but this is a matter for the contractor.

RESIDENT ENGINEER.

Mr. Kemp strongly advocated the appointment of a resident engineer, who would act as a liaison officer to the Council between the consulting engineer and the contractor.

"We consider," concluded Alderman Golding, "that the visit to Brisbane has been of the utmost benefit to the citizens of Gladstone, and it now remains with the Council to put into effect the recommendations contained in the report."

ADOPTED.

After the report submitted by Ald. Golding had been carefully considered Ald. Tudman moved that it be adopted.

Ald. Busteed, in seconding the motion, congratulated Ald. Golding and the Mayor for the work they had carried out in Brisbane.

MOTION SUPPORTED.

Ald. Anderson, in speaking in support of the motion, said what had been achieved he had advocated for a long time—the sending of representatives to Brisbane to personally contact the Deputy Co-ordinator General (Mr. Kemp). He congratulated Ald. Golding and the Mayor on the results achieved, and considered if the same action was adopted in the future they would get somewhere.

GOOD WORK CARRIED OUT.

Ald. Deveney said he was satisfied with Ald. Golding's report, and offered his congratulations to him and the Mayor for the good work they had carried out.

Ald. Smith endorsed the remarks of the other speakers.

"BEST REPORT."

Ald. Tudman said the Boyne River water supply scheme had been a burning question for many years, and as a result of the representations made personally in Brisbane they had got somewhere, and he hoped the present Council would see the scheme carried to completion. If Gladstone was to advance they must have a good water supply, and added, "it was the best report we ever received."

The motion for the adoption of the report wasc then put and carried unanimously.

NO APPOINTMENT MADE.

The Council then went into committee to deal with the position of acting Town Clerk, and on resuming it was reported that no appointment had been made.

MOBILISING THE NATION

BACK THE FIGHTING SERVICES

Fourth Liberty Loan

Australia's man and woman power is now fully mobilised. The number of men and women in the forces and engaged on direct war production has been more than doubled between the period commencing with the outbreak of the Pacific war and the end of March, 1943.

The number of men in the Forces and in war industries has increased by 618,000, and women by 110,000—a total of 728,000, and the population equivalent of nearly 14,000,000 men and women in the United States and more than 4,000,000 in Britain.

Munitions production has reached such a high peak of efficiency and output, that in mid 1943 plans were drawn up for a far-reaching re-shuffle of man power, involving diversion of many munitions operatives to other and more immediately pressing skilled war work, such as food processing, production of agricultural and food processing machinery, ship building and repairing, aircraft construction, and aircraft repairing.

Between June 1940 and December 1942 production of aircraft bombs increased by more than 200 times, of artillery by more than 48 times, of rifles by 8 times, and of machine guns 7 times. The tightening up of costing procedure resulted in very substantial savings in cost of production, in some instances the cost of equipment being reduced by as much as 25 per cent.

The Navy has been strengthened to a surprising degree, not only in man power, but in ships and modern equipment, while the R.A.A.F. to-day is over 15 times larger than it was prior to the fall of Dunkirk.

All this provides a heartening indication of Australia's rapidly growing strength, and when it is realised that in addition a vast constructional programme has been undertaken in all States, which has converted the Commonwealth into a major offensive base against the Japanese, it will be understood that Australia has acquitted herself well in the task of providing a war effort equal to that required of her by the United Nations.

The time is now arriving when this great operational base will be used more intensively in a new Pacific offensive strategy, and Australians will be asked to make a grand and supreme effort to ensure that the task of driving the enemy from his conquered territory right back to the defensive limits of his own land will result in a victorious and successful sweep.

To ensure success more money must be found to maintain replacements, reinforcements and repeated assaults till the enemy is relentlessly crushed. It is our duty to see that the great mobilisation of men, munitions and equipment which has built the necessary strength to commence the "victory push" will be maintained in increasing and overwhelming proportions, so that our fighting services will lack nothing in the gigantic task that lies before them.

It is not merely sufficient for the fighting services to bear the brunt of the task of defeating the enemy. We are all in this fight. We must back the attack by putting our savings on service too. The 4th Liberty Loan opens on October 5, and closes on November 9. The Prime Minister has asked for a record number of individual subscribers to this Loan.

To every civilian the path of duty is clear. He or she must save and lend for victory, giving every penny that can be spared to back up the men who are making the supreme fight for the final destruction of Axis power and domination—the greatest menace civilisation has ever known.

HEENZO IS 3 IN ONE REMEDY FOR CHEST NOSE AND THROAT AILMENTS

In addition to saving much money by using HEENZO Cough Remedy, you can also use it three different ways. You take HEENZO internally for internal ailments, viz., coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis and influenza. You use HEENZO as a nasal antiseptic, just a few drops up each nostril night and morning quickly ridding catarrh and colds in head. By gargling with HEENZO you gain instant relief from sore and smokers' throats. Remember, a bottle of Concentrated HEENZO costing only 2/- makes one pint of Family Cough Remedy, equally good for adults and children.

CORRESPONDENCE

(We do not necessarily identify ourselves with the views expressed by correspondents.)

PUBLICLY THANKED.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—I have been instructed by the South Gladstone and Barney Point Progress Association to publicly thank Mr. W. R. Golding, principal of the Gladstone Sawmills, for donating material for the erection of tree guards at Barney Point, and the Mayor (Ald. G. G. Dennis) for his donation of a cheque for the purchase of trees for that area.

This work, which has just been completed, was carried out by a busy bee from the Association, under the direction of Mr. L. Short.

We appeal to the public of Gladstone who frequent this beach to refrain from depositing rubbish in these guards, as same may damage these young trees.

The Association appreciates the generosity of the Gondoon Street business man (who prefers to remain anonymous) for his substantial cheque to the Association. This money will play its part in the progress of our suburb.

We feel confident that with the Government and the Town Council co-operation the citizens of this badly neglected suburb will enjoy the conveniences they rightly deserve.—Yours, etc.,

J. F. O'MALLEY.
Hon Secretary South Gladstone and Barney Point Progress Association.

FREE EXPRESSION.

Sir,—In your "Observer" of 4th inst. in reply to the Trades and Labour Council Secretary, you state the columns of your paper are open to the expression of political views of all at all times.

Again, in reply to Mr. Rabnott, you state a good deal of publicity was given to the case for Communism through your columns.

Yes, I was given a good deal of latitude in advocating Communism, and the privilege was appreciated, but your reply to the Trades and Labour Council Secretary is not nearly as correct.

Just prior to the Federal elections there appeared in your journal an article contributed by H. Hardman Knight, urging all farmers to support Q.C.P. candidates at the elections, claiming this Queensland Country Party was something apart from the C.N.O. or any other similar organisation.

The aim of the article was to gull the farmers and split the farmer-worker-soldier unity, which the Communist Party had built up.

I replied to that article, clearly exposing the hook-up between the Qld. Country Party and the C.N.O. I traced their history over a perior of years, always arriving at the only possible conclusion—the various anti-labour parties were really one, and used different titles to attempt to gull different sections of people.

If your journal is, as you claim, "open to both sides for free expression of political views," will you please tell the public why you deliberately withheld my letter from publication.—Yours, etc.,

LEO FUNK.

The editor did not "deliberately" withhold from publication the letter mentioned by our friend, Mr. Funk. The plain outstanding legal fact is that the letter has never come into his possession, and Mr. Funk knows that Mr. Macfarlan does not do the things he is now accused of. It is rather serious to make an accusation of this kind, and especially in cold print. All papers, in reporting matters of such an nature, with a view to protecting themselves against defamation, use the word "alleged," but here no "alleged" is used. The law of the land compels Mr. Funk to make enquiries as to why his letter was not published, but he failed to make any enquiries at the "Observer" office to ascertain whether he was on safe legal grounds in making a "deliberate" accusation, which is not true. For instance, the particular letter now published was pushed under the door, and was blowing about the floor when discovered. If this letter had failed to reach the editor no doubt he would have again been accused of "deliberately" withholding from publication.—Ed. "Obs."

There are 17,250,000 women in Britain between the ages of 14 and 65. More than 10,000,000 are married. There are more than 9,000,000 children to be looked after. More than 7,000,000 of the women are employed in the Services or in industry.

BOXING

WELTERWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP

Patrick Wins Easily

Fighting with speed, strength and versatility, which he has not shown since his early contests with Tod Morgan, Vic. Patrick (9.11½) belted his way to victory over Hockey Bennell (10.6½) for the welterweight championship at Sydney Stadium on Saturday night before a packed house.

Patrick won on a technical knock-out in the seventh round.

On the night's showing, Bennell's armour was not nearly heavy enough to cope with the high powered fighting kit of Vic. Patrick.

It can be truly said that one of Patrick's pile-driving punches was worth a dozen of Bennell's light fancy punches. To give Bennell his due, he entirely dropped the toe-dancing methods which have earned him disapprobation in the past.

Equipped with very light artillery, he stood up manfully, and on occasions traded punches with the stronger, harder hitting and much more destructive opponent.

It was apparent from the very first blow, in the opinion of the keen judges, that Bennell would be beaten. In fact, from his general demeanour one might not be blamed for thinking that Bennell himself shared that belief.

The queer part about the contest was that Patrick had beaten Bennell in the one department in which Bennell was expected to excel, that is speed. The lightweight champion was quicker, off the mark, a faster puncher, and also more versatile than his opponent. This came as a shock to Bennell's admirers, and also surprised Patrick's fans.

Outstanding elements in Patrick's victory centred in his destructive punching, complete sangfroid, and also complete indifference towards his opponent's hitting power.

Patrick moved forward all the time, forced the fighting from bell to bell in every round, barring several hectic flurries when Bennell rushed in by sheer fury of glove fighting and forced Patrick to the ropes.

Bennell, in flashes, boxed with some of the skill usually attributed to him, but in the main Patrick's non-stop attack and versatile use of both hands knocked Hockey completely out of his stride.

From the third round on the impression was given that the fight would not go the distance, and Patric was expected to win by a knock-out inside 10 rounds.

The end came in the seventh round. Bennell was bleeding badly in this round. The round was the last desperate flurry of a beaten man. Bennell put everything into it to stem the tide, but without avail.

He returned to his corner holding his right hand. Spasms of pain showed on his face as his seconds beckoned the referee, and then spoke to referee Wallis, who walked across to the doctor in the opposite corner.

Dr. Ken Smith examined Bennell's right hand, and Joe Wallis then crowned Patrick the winner on a technical knock-out.

The gate totalled more than £4000.

IGNORANT OF BIRTH

Unbelievable Story

An almost unbelievable story was told in Wellington (New Zealand) by a 23-year-old girl who had no idea she was to become a mother until her child was to be born. The girl lived alone.

At the inquest into her son's death she revealed that her ignorance was so great that she even attended a dance a few days before her confinement.

For three days after the birth she lay unattended in bed, too weak to summon assistance.

At the hospital she told a nurse her dead child was in a suitcase she had brought with her. A pathologist said the child's death was caused by inadequate attention. He conceded the mother's story was quite feasible.

The coroner returned a finding according to medical evidence, and said he could not find the girl culpable.

IN ENGLAND

Air Industry Record

"The aircraft industry in England is now the largest single industry in the country, employing more than 1,000,000 workers," said the general manager of Qantas Empire Airways (Mr. Hudson Fysh).

Mr. Fysh has returned to Australia after spending five months in England and America on a survey of air transport.

Mr. Fysh forecast that the Allied mass raids over Europe would be the largest single factor in the ultimate defeat of Germany.

He said that in addition to the very fine types of British aircraft now in service, she had several new types which would considerably better current performances.

"I believe that the aircraft manufacturers of Britain, who have shown themselves masters in the production of military aircraft, will equal the world's best when they are able to turn their attention to the construction of civil planes," he said.

Total expenditure on the last war from revenue and loans was £265,000,000 between July 1, 1914, to June 30, 1919.

Don't let us kill OUR GOOSE

THAT old Fable about the Goose that laid the Golden Eggs is one that we Australians might heed just now.

The goose that has laid Golden Eggs for us is Free Enterprise. Until war put our goose largely out of the business of meeting our needs, she was prodigiously bountiful. She enabled us to develop a standard of living, and a way of life, that were the envy of other countries.

As soon as the war came, Free Enterprise turned to making 'planes and trucks and guns and munitions, and all the thousands of things that war eats up, and many of our private wants had to stand over.

When war ends, we must see that Free Enterprise is restored to her old job of making Australia a happy and secure place in which to live. There will be those who will want to kill Free Enterprise, but let us all see that no one lifts an axe to this goose of ours.

For nearly 100 years, under Free Enterprise, the A.M.P. Society has been building up its strength, the better to serve its members. Last year it paid out £8,660,000 in benefits. Its assets are now worth £141,000,000, every penny of which belongs to its members. Let them guard well their savings and their Society's freedom of enterprise.

.303 RIFLES

Cessation of Sale

The Department of the Army has announced that no further applications can be received from pastoralists and farmers for .303 rifles to be used for pest extermination, as the very limited quantity that was available has now been sold.

All applicants to whom an official application form has been forwarded and who have returned the same, together with the required remittance and police permit, to the Impressment Officer, but who have not yet received a rifle, will have a rifle forwarded to them, and all applicants to whom an official application form has been forwarded but who have not yet taken the action outlined above, will, on completion of this action, have a rifle despatched to them. Applicants are advised to take prompt action in this connection.

In some cases applicants will not receive a Martini Enfield rifle, as insufficient stocks of this type are available to complete demands, but will receive other types of .303 rifles which have been released to complete the applications in hand.

The Army regrets that some unavoidable delay in delivering rifles to applicants may eventuate as the reconditioning and transportation of these rifles must take second place to stores that are urgently required in operational areas. This factor has resulted in some considerable time lapse before delivery has been effected, but every possible action, subject to operational priorities, is being taken to expedite the delivery of these rifles to the pastoralists who require them urgently for pest extrmination.

DEMOCRATIC FAITH

Improve and Extend Democracy

"In the kind of world for which we fight there must cease to exist any need for the use of that accursed term 'racial or religious minority.'

"The equality of individuals, like the equality of peoples, cannot in fact be granted by fiat.

"Equality depends on their own achievements, and upon their own intrinsic worth; but to equality of human rights, and to equality of opportunity, every human being is by divine right entitled.

"That is the essence of our democratic faith. If that corner stone is laid in the foundation of the new world of United Nations, the blot of the concept of minorities upon the fabric of our civilisation will be erased."—Mr. Sumner Welles, May 31, 1943.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS AND CARDS

Help the Boys

The Australian Comforts Fund is urgently appealing for books, magazines, playing cards, or any other indoor games or sporting material for the men of the fighting forces.

The men in the front line or outposts are entitled to these amenities of life, and the Fund asks residents to do their best to supply these articles.

Mr. A. W. Young, Gladstone Cash and Carry, has kindly consented to take possession of these donations, so please forward all you can without delay, and thus help the Fund to help the boys.

Free gifts to the value of £51,584,000 have been made to the Commonwealth for war purposes.

HEENZO COUGH REMEDY USED BY FAMOUS PEOPLE

Many world-famous people, including Sir Harry Lauder, Mr. Peter Dawson, Miss Gladys Moncrieff, and Captain Frank Hurley, use and recommend HEENZO as a quick acting, economical and nice to take remedy for coughs, colds, catarrh, croup, bronchitis and influenza. You save lots of money by, in your own home, adding a bottle of Concentrated HEENZO (costs 2/-, all chemists and stores) to sweetened water, thus making ONE PINT of the Best Family Cough Remedy, equally good for adults and children.

VEGETABLE GROWERS

Appeal For Returns

With a target set at 496,000 acres, compared with 399,000 acres estimated to have been sown in the 1942-43 season, vegetable plantings this year will be an all-time record.

So that the Commonwealth Food Controller (Mr. J. F. Murphy) shall know what progress is being made towards attaining this goal, it is essential that growers who have not yet completed their vegetable growers' return should do so at once and send the completed form to the Government Statistician in the capital city of their State.

Of 60,000 forms sent out to growers in all States, 50,000 have so far been returned. The remaining 10,000 are required urgently because the survey will be of little value unless it is complete.

Various factors have contributed to the delay in returning forms, one of the chief of which has been unfavourable weather making forecasts of sowings indefinite and difficult.

Mr. Murphy announces that if he can be given a complete picture of the vegetable industry immediately, and if growers tell him what factors are limiting maximum production, the food supply organisation may be able to take action to remove these obstacles while there is still time.

In view of the importance of planning the expansion of vegetable production now, farmers are asked to complete their outstanding returns at once.

The survey is being made under National Security Regulations, and failure to comply with requirements may bring a penalty.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, particularly when it deals with ships. Gossipers who know only a little still may talk enough to furnish the enemy with the vital link in his chain of information.

SAVE IT...

for Australia...

REDUCE personal spending — that means more tanks, aeroplanes, ships, munitions, equipment, to be used by our men for our defence.

Here is a vital war-time job for you — to see that not a single penny is wastefully or unnecessarily spent, and that every penny so saved goes into the total war effort. Until Victory is won, the Government needs all your savings, not only the money you have now but all that you can put aside.

£10 National Savings Bonds mature 1952, bear interest at 3% payable half-yearly, are purchaseable for cash or by 10% deposit and instalments of £1 monthly.

PLANNING FOOD PROGRAMME

Britain Points the Way

Australia has always been a land of plenty to eat. With the increasing restrictions of war she can only remain so if she scientifically plans the use she will make of her resources. In such planning the example of Britain can teach us a lot.

The British Government was determined from the very beginning that everyone should be fed adequately and without favour to any class.

Early in the war a Scientific Adviser to the Ministry of Food and a Scientific Food Committee were appointed. Later a personal adviser to the Minister of Food was appointed to help with the medical aspects of food problems.

The Ministry of Food has research kitchens working in close co-operation with the Scientific Adviser. Each kitchen conducts experiments in the preparation and use of such new and unfamiliar foodstuffs as dried meat and dried eggs, and other imported concentrated foods.

Another example of methods used to improve general nutrition is the vitamin programme.

The Ministry aims at providing vitamins in the form of natural foods rather than enriching food artificially or supplementing deficient diets with such things as tablets and capsules.

Food Advice Bureaus have been opened throughout the country. Visiting Food Advice Kitchens are set up temporarily from time to time in empty shops in the busy streets of towns.

Refresher courses for teachers and social workers, and cooking classes for the general public, have attracted hundreds of thousands of people eager to teach and be taught.

AUSTRALIA'S CAMPAIGN.

Australia's nutritional campaign is now well under way. As Britain has had, Australia will have its difficulties and problems. As Britain has done, Australia can solve them by the same scientific and sustained effort.

But we must remember, above everything, as Britain did, that it is on each and every one of us, in our kitchens and vegetable gardens, in our strict elimination of waste, and in a hundred other everyday ways, that the job really falls.

FATE OF ROME

More Precious Than Stone

The fate of Rome is part of the tragedy of Europe.

Years ago the Axis partners, Germany and Italy, declared war on the spirit of man.

To-day the United Nations have learnt that the spiritual heritage of Europe can be saved only at the expense of its material possessions.

It is this bitter lesson which made inevitable the bombing of Rome. The glories of that great city belong not to Italy, but to the whole world.

What, however, can it profit the world if monuments remain while the spirit which built them has been destroyed?

The world knows to-day that the spirit which rose out of the ruins of London, of Warsaw, of Rotterdam, is a far more priceless inheritance than all Europe's monuments of stone.

Between 1910 and 1941 the population of India increased by 77,000,000.

Northern Ireland is now sending to England an average of 1,000,000 eggs and 10,000 gallons of milk a day.

The 45,000-ton battleship Iowa is 108 feet wide, only a few inches less than the width of the Panama Canal.

LAND ARMY GIRLS

Deliver The Goods

Tons of farm produce, grown and packed by Land Army girls, are now sold daily at the Newcastle markets. Vegetables grown by Land Army girls on a farm at Woodville, near Gresford, are well on their way to the markets by 6 o'clock each morning.

Joyce Lawrence, 21, formerly a Sydney stenographer, is the first Land Army girl to deliver goods to Newcastle vegetable agents. Each day she drives a heavy lorry with produce off the farm 40 miles to Newcastle.

The lorry is never late. Each morning it rolls to a stop in the markets punctually at 7.30. Joyce climbs on top of the load and begins throwing down pumpkins, cabbages and cauliflowers she helped to grow. Seven other girls working on the farm help her to load, but Joyce does all the unloading alone at the markets.

The agents, doubtful at first about relying on a girl, receive their produce early even on the coldest morning, and praise the way she handles the work.

After the market sales are completed Joyce delivers eggs to the district hospitals. Then she returns to the farm and the job she likes best—learning to drive a tractor.

VIENNA

No Longer City of Song

Gay, care-free Vienna, city of song and laughter. Recall "Tales of the Vienna Woods," and compare light-hearted Vienna of yesterday with the picture given to-day.

In an article on July 31, the Swedish newspaper "New Daily Jorunal" says:

Vienna is grey and vulgar. There is certainly no destitution, but the city is joyless and silent.

During recent months large German armament enterprises have been evacuated to Austria, and the Hermann Goering works are in Vienna and Linz.

Several thousand foreign workers and prisoners of war are employed.

In the evenings these people can be seen in their thousands in an amusement park, and the Prater is overcrowded with shabby, sullen conscripted workers who are often unruly.

One old Viennese says: "I no longer feel comfortable in the Prater. I always feel that a knife may be stuck into my back. I tell you they are only waiting for the day when we are at the end of our tether. Then they will turn on us, these foreign workers, and terrify the population."

There are 150,000 men in Australia of 70 years and over.

LONDON

To Be Remodelled

Mr. Ernest Brown, British Minister for Health, recently released figures showing the remarkable manner in which the people of Britain have been housed, fed and clothed efficiently and have maintained their health in spite of air attacks, blackouts, and lack of normal holidays.

The infant mortality rate in 1942 was the lowest on record at 49 per 1000 live births, while the maternal mortality rate had also fallen to around the low record figure of 2.47.

Widespread interest is being shown in the future lay-out of London. Enemy bombing has effected such remarkable clearances in large areas of the city that opportunity for replanning is greater than it has ever been since the Great Fire of 1666.

The London County Council has published a comprehensive scheme for remodelling the area, but there are tremendous tasks to be done in solving housing and traffic problems. It is a subject around which much controversy will rage, but there is evidence of a strong resolve everywhere that London shall this time be worthily remodelled.

AUSTERITY MESSAGES

From the wives . . .

. . . of AUSTRALIA'S LEADERS

"Saving can be exciting. I have found that out for myself and pass it on to you. In peace time we Australians were free spenders, and it was fun to buy nice things, and plan little treats, but now we're at war, and a thrifty living is necessary to the success of the War Effort. Feel that every economy and self-denial helps our boys. Be proud of the mounting total of your Bonds and War Savings Certificates, and, believe me, you'll get a thrill out of saving."

POLICE COURT

STEALING CHARGES

Wolff Convicted and Fined

Eugene Roy Wolff (30), carpenter, of Gladstone, appeared before the S.M. (Mr. S. Dwyer) in the Police Court, charged with:—

(1) Stealing one fence gate and fittings, valued at £2/10/-, the property of Joseph Matthew Schneider.

(2) With having in his possession seven 4-gallon D.D. motor spirit drums, 7 lbs. Gargoyle grease, and 10 lbs. universal grease, suspected of being unlawfully obtained.

Wolff pleaded guilty to the charges, and was remanded for sentence.

When Wolff appeared in court he was further charged with stealing 60 feet of 2in. galvanised iron piping, valued at £4/10/-, the property of the Port Curtis Co-operative Dairy Association Ltd.

Wolff pleaded guilty to the charge.

On each charge Wolff was convicted and fined £5, in default of immediate payment, imprisonment for one month with hard labour in the Brisbane Gaol, sentences to be cumulative.

The circumstances in respect to the first charge were that between June 1 and 7 the gate and fittings were removed from a gateway of a vacant fenced allotment in Toolooa Street.

The matter was reported to the police, and investigations were made by Constable Gerber. Later the defendant was interviewed at his home on the morning of September 3, and following a close interrogation Wolff admitted having stolen the gate and fittings, which were found in a shed at his residence.

Wolff was also questioned in regard to the D D drums of motor spirit and grease found in his possession, and he informed the police they had been given to him by Allied soldiers as payment for the use of his outboard motor boat.

When Wolff was further questioned regarding other drums in his possession, he admitted having one at his home. A search of his shed and house, made by Constables Gerber and Fels, revealed one additional drum in the shed and two in a bedroom of the house.

When Wolff was questioned in regard to the piping in his possession (which was connected from the bathroom to carry waste water to the yard), he admitted having stolen it early in June from behind the Ginnery on the mud flat.

The piping had been loaned to the American Army last year by the management of the Butter Factory, and had been connected to carry waste water from the Ginnery on to the mud flat from a military camp.

Sergeant Gill prosecuted.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Seventy-fifth Anniversary

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Gladstone, will celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the erection of the charge by the Presbytery of Rockhampton on October 3 and 4 next. Regular worship was organised in 1863 by the Revd. A. C. Smith, who was sent to Gladstone by the Synod of Queensland, thus making 80 years since Presbyterian worship was commenced.

The Moderator-elect, the Rev. D. A. Brown, accompaniel by the General Secretary, Mr. R. S. Byrnes, B.A., will visit Gladstone for this historic occasion. Special services will be held on Sunday, October 3, and a public meeting will follow on Monday, October 4.

HAMMER AND SCREW DRIVER

SUSPECTED OF BEING STOLEN CHARGE

Salgado Discharged

Francisco Gonsalvis Salgado (24), meatworker, appeared before the S.M. (Mr. M. Dwyer) in the Police Court on Thursday, charged with having in his possession one claw hammer and a screw driver, suspected of being stolen.

Sergt. Gill prosecuted, and Mr. C. N. Joseph appeared for the defendant.

Evidence was given by Constable Gerber of having detected the articles at the defendant's house on August 7, while making a search in connection with another matter, and in consequence of other complaints he made another search of Salgado's house by virtue of a search warrant on August 13, when he took possession of the claw hammer, the screw driver, and three gallons of solvent that was suspected of being stolen.

Evidence was also given by John Arthur Bliss, canery foreman, employed by Swift Australian Company (Pty.) Ltd., who identified the hammer by two case nails inserted in the butt, and also the name "nail machine" and the letters "F.A.C." cut into the handle, which had been detected on the removal of a black substance from the handle.

John Leonard Myine stated he was a foreman employed at the works of Swift Australian Company (Pty.) Ltd., and he had made a complaint to the police regarding the loss of a quantity of tools from his motor car during the month of March last when left standing in close proximity to the Meat Works. He identified the screwdriver by general appearance as his property.

Mr. Joseph raised the point that there was no evidence of suspicion from the time the articles were taken possession of, and no continuance of suspicion up to the time the defendant appeared before the court on the charge.

The S.M. upheld the point raised by Mr. Joseph, and discharged the defendant.

CHRISTMAS HAMPERS

Appeal for Donations

Christmas hampers are now being prepared for packing and despatch so that every soldier, sailor, airman, nurse and service woman in the jungles of New Guinea, overseas, or in isolated areas, will receive during the festive season a hamper from the A.C.F.

Gladstone and district residents have in the past freely given to this appeal, and many have been the letters of gratitude received from recipients.

Queensland's quota is 30,000, and the price is the same as last year—7/6 for a single hamper, or three hampers for £1.

Donations for hampers may be sent to Mrs. J. W. Garrett or Mr. F. Peardon.

Each donation will be acknowledged through the columns of the "Gladstone Observer."

ROLL OF HONOUR

CAMERON BENTLEY.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Curran, of Tank Street, Gladstone, have been officially advised that Cameron Bentley had been killed in action in New Guinea. Prior to enlisting this bright lad was employed at the Meat Works, and was a keen sport, playing football for the Wallabies, and cricket for the Junior Norths. The deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Curran in the loss of a gallant lad.

BEER QUOTA.

No increase in the beer consumption quota fixed early this year is likely to be authorised by the Government, despite the contention that the production of more beer should be allowed to meet the higher demand in the summer. All reports agreed that since production had been regulated abuses in the use of liquor had declined and an improved position was evident in every big city.

TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL

Fortnightly Meeting.

Various Matters Dealt With

The fortnightly meeting of the Gladstone Trades and Labour Council was held on Tuesday night. Present: Vice-President Mr. N. Willey, Secretary Mr. J. Gosschalk, and Messrs. C. Boles, L. Dennis and M. Thompson (Meatworks delegates), G. McCabe and H. Watts (building trade group), F. Hunt and M. Hines (carpenters and joiners).

In business arising out of the correspondence it was decided to furnish a copy of a report on tyre and tube prices received from the Deputy Price Fixing Commissioner to the editor of the "Observer" for the benefit of people of this town.

Among general business it was decided to draw the Town Council's attention to the breeding places for malarial mosquitoes in close proximity to dwellings in and around the town.

A suggestion was forwarded to cope with this matter.

It was also decided to bring the Council's attention to the lack of firewood, and the distribution of ice.

Suggestions were made in both instances for the Town Council's consideration.

A lengthy debate took place on post-war reconstruction, and the Employment Board.

Two delegates were elected to attend the meeting of the Employment Board, Messrs. V. Willey and M. Thompson.

TYRE AND TUBE PRICES.

Maximum prices under order No. 948 National Security (Prices) Regulation:

Third grade cover, red or black, 70/5 each.

Third grade tube, red, 4/- each.

First grade cover, black, or black and white, 13/- each.

First grade tube, black, 5/4 each.

Leggett's Heavy Duty or Dunlop L/W 27 x 1¼ cover, 14/6 each.

Thornproof Legget's or Dunlop cover, 19/10 each.

Thornproof extra heavy cover, 28/6 each.

All these prices are Brisbane, and traders in areas outside Brisbane can add the cost actually incurred and properly attributable to the transport of such goods to the place of sale. Provided such amount is properly recorded in the books of the trader.

OBITUARY

MR. H. Y. MACKAY

One of the best known of the younger generation of district graziers, Mr. Herbert Young Mackay, passed away after a brief illness in the Gladstone District Hospital last Thursday, and the news was received with genuine regret throughout the town and country, where he was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends.

Deceased, who was 40 years of age, was the son of Mrs. G. J. Mackay, of West Gladstone.

When the late Mr. G. Y. Mackay died in 1937, the two sons, Herb and Jim, took over the grazing property "Callemondah" at Tableland, and carried on the business.

Young Herb was born and reared at Tableland, joining his father on the land in 1918, when additional property was added to the already large holding, which extends from the Callide Valley overlooking the cotton belt back to the mining fields at Tableland.

Deceased was a member of the Masonic Lodge, a prominent sportsman, and noted for his generosity and hospitality. Visitors to "Callemondah" for years had been welcomed to the Tableland by the late Mr. Mackay senr., and the son kept up the tradition.

He also took a keen interest in country sporting functions, being a supporter of camp drafts, rodeos, and other patriotic efforts, while district race meetings were always attended by the Mackays.

Deceased married Miss Ada Marshall, who survives him, and in addition to the brother James there is a sister, Dorothy (Mrs. Frank Ward, of Brisbane).

The funeral took place on Friday, Rev. MacNeil Saunders officiating, and also reading the Masonic service.

There were numerous tributes and wreaths, and expressions of sympathy from friends all over the State.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

PRISONER OF WAR SCHEME

"May God Bless You"

The following letter, received by the Red Cross from a "digger" who has arrived back in Australia after having spent more than two years in an Italian prisoner of war camp, speaks for itself:—

"Digger" Ray A. Penhaligan, of Clayfield, writes:—

"I am a man with a duty to perform—an obligation to fulfil. I have been entrusted with this mission by many men, and I know that it is one which thousands of others by the dictate of their hearts would have me fulfil.

"This mission is that I should do the outmost in my power, let the people of Australia know just what the Red Cross organisation is doing for the prisoners of war in Italy."

"Various appeals for funds for prisoners of war have met with gratifying results, showing the generosity and sympathy of their subscribers, but there are those sceptics, and I have met several who doubt whether those for whom money was given ever received benefit from it.

"Let me, as one who has been a prisoner of war in Italy for over two years, say that most definitely benefit from these subscriptions does reach the men. More than that, the Red Cross is veritably saving the lives of those thousands of exiles—that is what the Red Cross is doing.

"I am not being melodramatic, nor am I seeking commiseration for myself; I am offering this affirmation of the fact that the weekly food parcels and regular supplies of clothing and medical and sporting goods have turned a decidedly grim existence into a moderately comfortable one for them. But this is no time for us to relax.

"We, I say we, must continue giving this help which I, as but few others can assure you, is giving such satisfactory results.

"I offer this to show in a little way the heartfelt thankfulness and appreciation that I and those many others who are still in prisoner of war camps do feel.

"Would that I could personally thank every donor of every penny to your funds. May God bless you and your helpers in your such noble work."

This letter merely endorses what Phillip Taylor, Len Cowan, and others have written to relatives here from prison camps in Italy, etc.

CALLIOPE STATION STUD

AT BRISBANE SHOW

A Creditable Display

Messrs. Wilson & McDouall, of Calliope Station, showing polled herefords of their own breeding for the first time, were successful with their only two exhibits in carrying off both male and female reserve championships at the recent Brisbane Show. These two champions, Calliope Woodrow and Calliope Texas Cora, are both from the successful breeding cow Texas Cora 4th (imp. U.S.A.), imported by this stud in 1938, and both were reserved from sale for use in the stud.

This firm also showed three hereford bulls and one heifer, gaining fourth place with Calliope Marlute 2nd in a strongly contested class of 28 bulls under 18 months, and third prize with Calliope Fancy 20th, heifer under two years.

Details of the sales of these four head were as follows:—

Calliope Fancy 20th to J. E. Zillman, Eidsvold, at 200 guineas.

These four head averaged 170 guineas.

INDUSTRIES AND COUNTRY TOWNS.

Investigations which are being made by the State Government have in view the building up of industries around country towns and inland from the coastal belt after the war.

The Minister for Mines (Mr. Gair) gave a hint of the possibility of the rationing of gas and electricity and the curtailment of rail traffic. He appealed to the public to reduce the pressure on coal supplies by avoiding waste in light, power and heating.

MT. LARCOM

7th ANNUAL RODEO

Gross Takings £320

The seventh annual rodeo, held in aid of the Mount Larcom Ambulance Brigade, was conducted under adverse weather conditions last Saturday.

Rain fell throughout the day, which marred the attendance considerably, but the programme was carried out successfully. Had the weather not taken a hand all previous records would have been smashed, both for the day and the grand ball at night.

The gross takings, notwithstanding the unfavourable conditions, realised approximately £320. Mr. F. G. Knight, of Bundaberg, acted as judge.

One feature on the ground, which was of valuable assistance to the Secretary, was the installation of loud speakers conducted by Mr. R. Snell, of Biloela.

The committee is very fortunate in having Mr. C. H. Buss, of "Euroa," who takes a keen interest in Ambulance affairs, most generously providing the cattle and the use of his yards for the holding of this annual function.

Too much praise cannot be extended to Mr. E. McGuire (secretary) for the manner in which he carried out his duties, his committee, the ladies, and many others who assisted to make the day a success.

Following are the results:—

Maiden camp draft: O. C. Christensen's Coral (Evers) 1, A. Beasley's Skeeter 2, M. Bill's Dolly 3.

Novice camp draft: H. A. Burgess' Mazurka 1, O. C. Christensen's Coral 2, J. Martin's Quicksilver and Jim Rideout's Laurel (tie) 3.

Open camp draft: H. A. Burgess' Flashlight and Rainbow tied for first, W. Divine's Lightning and O. Christensen's Laura tied for third.

Open flag race: S. T. Offord's Trinket 1, J. Bruce's Bonny Boy 2.

Open bending race: J. Bruce's Bonny Boy 1, W. Divine's Bobbing 2'

Maiden bending race: C. McKean's Boy 1, W. Divine's Bobbing 2.

Open bullock riding: Kevin Evers 1, G. Grey 2.

Maiden bullock riding: G. Gray 1, J. Wright 2.

Catching rooster: K. Ahchay.

Ladies' nail driving: Miss M. Nothling.

Stepping distance: F. Tappenden.

Throwing at wicket: E. Hodgon.

Guessing height of pole: A. Hancox, R. Foley, F. Gilbert, and R. McCamley, all tied.

Guessing seeds in bottle: K. Leahy.

The grand ball, held in the evening, was very largely attended. Mr. E. McGuire carried out the duties of M.C. in a most efficient manner.

Some useful digging hints

Nothing is more vital to the success of any garden enterprise than preparing the soil properly.

If your soil is heavy

It will need deep digging, cultivating, draining and lightening, after which it will be excellent for most crops. The addition of sand, decayed strawy horse manure, leaf mould and compost will help to make heavy soil lighter. Liming and the addition of wood ashes is also advised.

If your soil is sandy

It will need the regular addition of cow manure, plenty of strawy horse manure, large quantities of green vegetable matter, green manure and poultry manure to make it hold water and to increase its productiveness.

Bury the kitchen rubbish

Never burn a leaf. Anything that will decay readily will add to the humus content of your kitchen garden soil. The average family of three or four sends over a ton of good manure to the garbage tip each year. You should save this by burying it daily.

Shallow digging keeps roots near the surface and makes vegetables suffer from drought.

Deep digging increases the feeding area for roots, tempting them to go in the safest direction.

Don't let us kill OUR GOOSE

THAT old Fable about the Goose that laid the Golden Eggs is one that we Australians might heed just now.

The goose that has laid Golden Eggs for us is Free Enterprise. Until war put our goose largely out of the business of meeting our needs, she was prodigiously bountiful. She enabled us to develop a standard of living, and a way of life, that were the envy of other countries.

As soon as the war came, Free Enterprise turned to making 'planes and trucks and guns and munitions, and all the thousands of things that war eats up, and many of our private wants had to stand over.
